Jailer Adams was busy several days last week putting the court house and premises in order for the Institute and circuit court.

Miss Lucy, daughter of John W. Kirkpatrick, of Aurora, and Mr. Chas. Weldon, of the same place, were married Monday.

William Gilson, of Rising Sun, was in town Monday talking farm implements, hardware and buggies to Boone county people.

James White, of Petersburg, served as Recorder, with a sample of delicious nutmegs, Mouday. He has quite a nice crop of them.

Mrs. Venia Patterson returned home, Monday, after a two weeks' pleasant visit with Mrs. Harriet Rice, of Idlewild neighborhood.

Mrs. James A. Kirtley and daughter, Miss Dora Huey, were in Burlington, on Friday, and Mrs. Kirtley made this office a pleasant call.

Miss Nellie Kirkpatrick, of this place, was the guest of her brother William and wife, of the Limaburg neighborhood, a few days last week.

Miss Fannie Hogan has gone to her home at Riverside, Ohio, after a pleasant visit of several days duration with her brother Johnny and wife, at this place.

Our friend, W. C. O. Rouse, of Limaburg, sent us a box of plums, Monday, that had badly decomposed. They were very fine specimens when taken from the tree.

Misses Ruth Ferris, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, and Ethel Reynolds, of Covington, have returned home after a pleasant visit of ten days with their aunt, Mrs. J. E. Smith, near town.

Mrs. Anthony Bentlet's mare she had driving in a buggy yesterday being anxious to get home to her colt left off with the buggy, and threw Mrs. Bentler out, fortunately, she was not seriously hurt.

A. B. Rouse was looking after business in the Beaver neighborhood, last Friday. He reports the matrimonial prospects of his old friend and business associate, who resides near Beaver, as very bright. Here's hoping he is not mistaken.

In loving remembrance of Edward Rudesill, who departed this life July 24th, 1903, age 28 years, 1 month and 14 days.

Our hearts were so sad when you left us,
It seemed that the light of our home was gone;
And no joyous with future prospects,
Little knew we would feel so lone
Your must be borne, which it is hard to bear,
Much given away which it were hard to keep;
And help us all, who need indeed his care;
And yet I know the shepherd loves his sheep.

There is an old time saying that I so fine recall to mind; 'tis that the one who goes is happier than the one who left behind. Still we find ourselves waiting and waiting, forgetting you are gone to stay; only thinking of you as standing, and that you are ours always. What might have been, Oh, I not think—we are all changed—judges for us best, God help us do duty and not shrink, and trust in Him humbly for the rest.

Gone where he will find a crown, better than all earth's renown;
Dearest hope to me now given,
Let meet him in heaven.
Written by his loving friend,
MISS GRACE LUCAS.

End of Bitter Fight.

Physicians had a long and hard fight with an abcess on my lung," writes J. F. Hughes, of Otho, "and gave me up. Everybody my time had come. As a last I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit was striking and I was well in a few days. Now I've regained my health." It conquers Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung Trouble. Guaranteed by All Druggists.

An exchange says: There's no use worrying, fretting and losing sleep because someone has found fault with what you do. 'Tis the common lot of man in buiness. The merchant does not please all his customers; the postmaster is cuffed and kicked for alleged mistakes; the railroad agent is frequently backed up in a corner and given to understand this and the other thing; the butcher is forever reminded of the tough steak, and even the minister finds it hard to please all the congregation with his best sermons. If you do not believe this ask these men. The newspaper man gets more than his share of it, and is expected to get out a cheerful newspaper all the same. A man befriends another for years and is turned down and abused. Such things are not pleasant but they always have been and always will be, and the man who goes through them the easiest is the one who pays the least attention them and goes right along trying to be pleasant add useful.

Gained forty Pounds in thirty days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds of flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade on the Tablets.—Holley Bros., Merchants, Long Branch, Mo. For Sale by all Druggists.

County Correspondence.

RABBIT HASH.

Mrs. Lotta, of Lockland, Ohio, is visiting G. H. Wilson and family.

Miss Carrie Hankinson, of Upland, Indiana, is visiting relatives and friends here.

Miss Lutie Stephens is visiting her sister, Mrs. Alice Aylor, of near Aurora, Indiana.

C. G. Riddell went to Cincinnati last Monday, and laid in a stock of dry goods and groceries.

Thos. Kent's child got a small pebble in its nose a few days ago, and it was troublesome to remove.

S. N. Riggs commenced erecting a dwelling in Lower Rabbit Hash. Jeff Williamson is doing the stone work.

Harry Stephens, of Rising Sun, who has been laid up with rheumatism for a month or more, is visiting here this week.

Wm. C. Ryle started to California last Sunday evening, where he expects to make his home if he is pleased with the country.

BUFFALO.

Mrs. Allie Utz is visiting her sister in Owensboro.

Mr. Frank Rue made a business trip to the city, one day last week.

Miss Edith Feldhaus is the guest of her cousin, Ruth Thornton, of Covington.

T. J. Stephens was offered a handsome price for his fine horse last week, but refused to sell.

Mrr. Lucy Feldhaus, is nursing a very badly sprained foot, caused by falling down stairs.

Master Lee McNeeley spent several days with his cousin, Miss Emma Clements, the past week.

Mrs. Julia Elston and neice and Miss Bertha Shinkle attended prayer meeting at Big Bone Springs, last Thursday.

Mrs. Maggie Sherwood returned home to Cincinnati, Saturday morning, after spending a pleasant week with Mrs. S. H. Marshall and Mrs. M. H. Clements.

Girls, you ought to see Davy Marshall wait on the table, wash and wipe dishes. Since his mother has her boarders he is up to date with his big apron on and his sleeves rolled up.

A merry crowd left Samuel Marshalls early Friday morning enroute for Big Bone Springs, with well filled baskets, consisting of fried chicken and fruits of all kind, cake, pies, pickles and bread and etc. They spread their dinner in the grove and had a delightful time, which will long be remembered by the crowd.

COMMISSARY.

Aug. 8—Plenty of rain, and farmers are happy.

Mrs. H. P. Parsons spent the past week in Cincinnati, visiting her son.

Miss Clove Cantwell is spending two or three weeks with Mrs. James Nettles.

T. J. Walton purchased a horse of Tony Bethel, this week. Price, $175.

Mrs. Robert Rice, of Bellevue, spent last Thursday with her aunt, Mrs. W. T. Ryle.

We had the pleasure of meeting Mr. H. W. Northcutt at the Institute, Monday and Wednesday.

Chas. Snelling went to Rising Sun, last Saturday, and bought a runabout of Gibsons, and now the girls will get to rideabout.

Miss Lutie Gaines, of Rising Sun, Johnnie Moody, Miss Flo Arnold, and Mr. Wilber Scott, of Bellevue, were pleasant guests of Miss Artie and Stella Ryle, last Sunday.

T. J. Walton and tenants had 545 bushels of wheat, an average per acre of 12½ bushels. Mr. Walton had 98 bushels of rye which averaged per acre about the same as the wheat.

James Beard is considerably puffed up since his was voted the most popular baby. Rats! Every married couple that is able to afford a baby has the best, sweetest and most popular baby.

Zimmer & Tanner, who are camped on Clyde Berkshire's farm, buying berries and other fruit, have been receiving berries at the Commissary everyother day. They closed the season here last Wednesday.

We heard the teachers talk on discipline in the school room Monday, and would have been pleased to have said a few words to the teachers of Boone county, but not being a teacher I didn't know whether I would be permitted; besides I am not used to speaking in public, and was afraid I would get embarrassed and make a failure. I believe it best for teachers not to have any rules until they have been a few weeks. It takes this length of time to learn the disposition of their pupils in order to know what rules, if any, is needed; then if they are competent teachers they will have, by this time, gained the respect, good will, and love of their pupils and rules will not be needed. The teacher who reads as a long list of rules to his or her pupils the first day of school is an old fogy. The best and only rule needed, is as Superintendent Snyder said, "do right."

Since our telephone line has been in operation the people have added another duty to the Commissary mail carrier that of delivering goods. He is glad to be able to accommodate his neighbors, and will do so whenever he can, but when to do so takes him where there is ladies, he thinks it unfair and unjust to be accused of entertaining a kinder feeling for some of the ladies than that of a brother's love. He don't deny loving the ladies. He loves them for their beauty and purity, and if he loves one more than another, its because one is better and more deserving, such love is honorable; if not then beauty and purity is dishonorable. His is not compound love, and is not such as a young man gives his best girl; although they are closely related, but to a close student there is a distinguishing difference. His is based on merit, and is given to all alike equally deserving; the young man's is given to but one, and that one is the one, and only one.

WALTON.

Miss Carrie Watson is having such a good time at her uncle, John Harris' at Nicholson.

Mrs. Orville Bagby was the pleasant guest of her sister, Mrs. John Mayhue, during the past week.

Mr. Elbert (better known as Bert) Berkshire was visiting at Mr. Britt Senior's the past week.

Atty. J. G. Tomlin will attend the National Bar Association at Hot Springs, Va., August 26, 27 and 28.

Miss Cecil Menifee is having a very good time at her grandfather's, our old friend Klacamp's, of Gardnersville.

J. A. Sanders had four cattle killed last Friday night by a locomotive on the Southern road. Damages assessed $100.

Miss Kate Bense has had a pleasant visit of several days during the past week to the Misses Stephens at Atwood.

Everett D. Jones, of Idlewild, was visiting relatives here on Saturday and Sunday. Yes, he also visited one other to whom he would like to be related.

Miss Virginia Smith was the highly delighted guest of Miss Grace Bullock, of Hebron, a few days since, and she thinks it is one of the most pleasant spots in the county.

The Christian church Sunday school picnic at Rich's Grove, was an immense success. Twenty-five went from here in the band wagon, while many others went in buggies.

John Turner, of Williamstown, is a frequent visitor to our place—attracted, no doubt, by the elegant sidewalks affording such easy promenades these beautiful moonlight nights.

Mrs. Jas. Milner, of 706 W. 5th st., Cincinnati, had a very pleasant visit to her friend, Miss Emma Lormond, on High street, and their reminiscences of the early years of Walton were very interesting.

Miss Emma Osborn will sell, or rent to a good tenant, the neat residence near the south line of the town. There are seven acres of ground and a large pouch. The place is well set to blue grass and has very thrifty fruit trees.

A large party of our citizens, Mrs. Dr. Jones and son, Cecil, Mrs. Everett Stephens, Mrs. Geo. Ransier and her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Brice Metcalfe; Miss Myrtle Murphy, and Master Wayne Byland, made a trip to Coney Island, last week, and had any amount of enjoyment.

Base ball fever is raging here as well as in other parts of the county. There was a contest today between the second nine of Williamstown and Walton. The home plays hammer the Grant county plays 18 to 12. The first nine of Walton offers to play any regular nine in the county, and would like to make a match with any of its crack clubs.

Our young friends, J. H. Codey, A. W. Granger and W. J. Hill were "auto ed" about midnight on the Covington and Lexington road, some miles north of here. They were taking a night ride to Lexington, when their machine came to a stand, and, as they could go no further without repairing, they made the best of it and went into the literature, promised him when he purchased the right, a few weeks ago, for putting cold tires on wagon wheels. It rather looks as if the fellow who sold the right is a fakir.

GUNPOWDER.

August 10.—James M. Utz is visiting his sister, Mrs. Blankenbeker, at Rensler, Indiana.

B. A. Rouse has a sow and eleven pigs for sale.

Miss Lottie Utz returned home last week after a two weeks' visit with friends at Lexington.

George Barlow shipped his last consignment of lambs, last week. He has handled a profitable lamb season.

The communion services, last Sunday, were attended by a large congregation. Several from Hebron were present.

The Joint Council of the Boone Co. Charge, will meet at Hebron church on the 4th Saturday of this month at 10 a. m.

The meeting at Ebenezer is still in progress, and while great interest has been manifested there have been no additions.

Ed Utz passed through our burg, last Thursday, with a drove of nice, stock sheep which he purchased at Union Stock Yards, Cincinnati.

Joe Scott left, last Monday with his herd of Jersey cattle to attend the Carthage fair. He expects to attend the fair at Oakly, Ohio. He will be gone two weeks.

LUDLOW.

The many friends of John Bell will be glad to hear that he received notice, Saturday, that he had been granted a pension of $6 a month with three years' back pay. He has moved into his new residence in the first ward, where the citizens are urging him to become an anti-license candidate for councilman.

At its last meeting council refused to grant the request of the citizens and business people to repeal the vehicle license ordinance. The law committee reported that the people did not know what they were doing when they signed the petition, and it was consigned to the waste basket. All the knowledge of the town is concentrated in the council. The petition was signed by all the largest property owners, one name on the petition representing three times as much property as is owned by the combined council.

The chief of police says he has instructions to make every person stopping in town with a vehicle, to do any business, to pay a license, except when the business be with the bank. The citizens are now talking of holding an indignation meeting in the council chamber at the next meeting, and let them know who the citizens are that petitioned and were turned down.

Our druggist, J. S. McCormac and wife, have returned from a trip to the sea shore, much improved in health.

HATHAWAY.

Aug. 10.—G. L. Smith went to Rising Sun, Saturday.

There is prospects of a beef wagon starting here.

J. D. McNeely has for sale a yearling short horn bull.

Marcus W. Ryle and family spent last Thursday at Chas. B. Mason's.

J. H. Mason and wife called on B. H. Stephens and wife, Tuesday evening.

Miss Edna McElroy returned home last week from a pleasant visit in Owen county.

Nathan Smith has had his residence painted. Geo. Hillis was the knight of the brush.

Joe Huey and wife were guests of C. B. Mason and family Saturday night and Sunday.

W. E. Vest, of the hub, was in this neighborhood last Friday, transacting some business.

Miss Daisy Schooley, of Lebanon, Ohio, is the pleasant guest of Miss Edna McElroy, this week.

Miss Edna McElroy accompanied by Miss Daisy Schooley attended the Institute at Burlington, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stephens of Locust Grove presented to their daughter Miss Pearl, a new organ, recently.

The heirs of the late E. R. Smith, met at G. L. Smith's, last Friday, and acknowledged deeds to one another.

W. H. White and wife, of this place, visited their son, James White and family, of near Petersburg, Saturday and Sunday.

G. L. Smith and wife B. H. Stephens and wife and Mrs. Cynthia Mason were pleasant guests of your writer and family last Thursday.

Hal Presser and family, of Millidale, returned to their home Sunday week, after a visit of several days with his friends and relatives in this neighborhood.

Mr. Ben Douglas and family, of Cincinnati, were pleasant guests of R. R. Houston and family and Joe Weaver, Saturday night and Sunday. Mr. Douglas brought with him his graphophone and gave a delightful entertainment to our burg Saturday night. It was enjoyed by all present.

One of the most enjoyable affairs spent by us last week was the supper at the house of W. S. White's, on Thursday night. It consisted of nice river fish with coffee and corn bread, ice tea and ice cream, which all present enjoyed very much. Those present were W. M. Rector and family, J. C. White and family, H. Clay White, jr., and the host and hostess.

UNION.

Mrs. Sophia Terrill, of Covington, is Mrs. Lizzie Huey's guest this week.

Lizzie Stepheus, of Bullittsville spent several days last week with Mrs. J. W. Conner.

The Ladies Society meets at the Presbyterian church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Miss Ella Normau has gone for a ten days' visit with her sister, Mrs J. S. Asbury, of Fern Leaf.

Mrs. J. N. Gibson, last Saturday entertained from 3 to 6 o'clock in honor of her cousin, Miss Joy Frazier.

Mr. Lou Wilson, of Bagdad, has been the guest of his sisters, Mesdames Bristow and Rice, for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Poyndexter, of Cynthiana, arrived Sunday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

J. L. Frazier, cashier of the Union Deposit Bank, is now in Warsaw on a business trip, and will be gone several days.

Misses Martha Lassing and Lillian Scott and Mrs. Robert Rice, were the guests of Miss James Huey this past week.

Dr. W. C. Clark, of Augusta, will begin a meeting of several days at the Presbyterian church, Friday night, August 14th.

Victor Norman left Monday, for Anniston, Alabama, to receive the title to the L. & N. R. R. He has been home several months, having his eyes treated.

Lost between Union and George Clarkson's, a black silk hand satchel. It contained two pocket books with $11 and some cents, several tax receipts, also a blue gingham apron. Is belouge to Lin Wilson and he would be glad if the finder would leave same at W. M. Rachal's store.

Dysentery Cured Without the Aid of a Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux" (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn., "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For Sale by All Druggists.

HEBRON.

Get ready for the Boone county fair. It is only two weeks off.

Walter Closson, of Ludlow, attended Sunday school at this place, Sunday.

Not Over-Wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl seared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is parallel by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by All Druggists.

The Summer-Time Excess

Period of the Year When the Spiritual Life Is at a Low Ebb.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, August 9, 1903.

Text:—"Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."—I. Cor. 9:25.

NATURE apparently loses control of her forces at times, and the rainfall becomes a cloudburst, or the days of glaring sunshine and excessive heat lengthen into the blighting drought. The flooded valleys and the washed-out grain fields, or the parched ground and withering crops, tell the sad story of excess and destruction, and one realizes that the needful refreshing rain and life-giving sunshine may become messengers of ill when given with unrestrained hand. It is so with all good things in life. That which is necessary and beneficent within reasonable bounds becomes a positive evil when it leaps those bounds and runs riot in the limitless field of excess. Man is in constant danger of converting good into evil by reason of excess. Where the desires and appetites are allowed to control the life this is readily apparent. One excess follows another; desire leads an eager race in one direction to-day, and to-morrow it is something else that consumes the time and attention. It is said that no good thing has ever come into the world but that it has been put to base and unwholesome use by some. The people of the world, as distinguished from the professing Christian, are not expected to be governed by the same high standards and which should control the latter. The man in whose life Christ is not the supreme hope and ruling motive must look within himself for the control and conduct of his life, and to the degree that he permits his desires and appetites to rule, to that degree will good become evil. And yet he is not subject to the same condemnation as the Christian, who might go to the same degree of excess, for, as we have said, there is a higher and holier motive ruling in the latter life. Our text gives us the ideal as well as the practical picture of the Christian. He should be temperate in all things, because striving for victory and a crown. The race is not run until death is swallowed up in victory; the crown is not won until the presence of Jesus is gained, from Whose hands the reward of service is obtained.

PAUL takes his illustration of the attitude and life of the Christian from the Roman arena, or the Greek stadium. The contestant must, by weeks of plain diet, temperate habits and careful training, prepare for the conflict or the race. If he would strive for the mastery he must be temperate in all things. And he does all this, Paul goes on to say, to win a perishable chaplet of fig or laurel leaves. But the Christian trains and strives that he may win a crown that is incorruptible. Many ran over the Greek course, but only one could win the prize. Not so with the Christian who runs! For Paul says: "I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air." He knew there was a crown for him, for at the end of his course, he exclaimed, as the celestial city began to break upon his vision: "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day." And then, as he realizes how all Christians may "so run as to obtain," he adds: "And not to me only, but unto all them that love His appearing."

THE Christian life is a battlefield; it is a conflict constantly, within and without. It is not a pleasure park laid out with flowery beds of ease on which to rest in idle content. It is not a safe retreat, in which to hide while the soul sings and sleeps itself into everlasting bliss! It is a battlefield! It means conflict! It means self-denial, trial and danger! It means earnest endeavor, and persistency! And the one who does not find the Christian life such an experience has missed the right road and is not traveling in the direction of the Heavenly goal. He may have a name to live, but he is dead. He may be identified with the great army of the cross of Jesus Christ which is marching through the conflict of life, enduring the persecutions, and trials, and dangers ever to be met with, but if he is not sharing in the conflict, in the persecutions, the trials and the dangers he is not a true soldier, and his false position will be revealed in the light of eternity. And if the Christian life is such an inward and outward conflict with the world, the flesh and the devil, then every Christian who would strive for the mastery must be temperate in all things.

THE summertime always emphasizes one thing—the lapse of Christian zeal and endeavor. The Christian of the summer time is a different person from the Christian of the fall and winter time. The latter holds himself to his Christian duty, and receives his home associates and meets the walks in Christian livery. He is known as a Christian, and he is not ashamed. But with the coming of the summer time comes the letting down of the bars, and in the fields of the world's pleasures the Christian roams in careless abandon. The summer time is considered a period of careless ease and license. The vacation period is welcomed as a time in which all religious restraint may be properly thrown off, and rest and recreation become synonyms for unrestrained indulgence in every whim and desire. The conscience may be uneasy, but a nervous laugh and the words: "Oh, it is my vacation, and I can do as I please, now," puts the conscience to sleep, while the Christian continues on his free and easy way. I know Christians who do things in the summer time, and when away on their vacations, which they would never think of doing during other times of the year, and who try to make themselves believe they are all right because summer time and vacation bring peculiar license. I know Christians who are thoughtful of the Lord's day and deplore its desecration at all times except when on their vacations.

DO NOT misunderstand me. I am not defending the Pharisaical Sabbath, in which the letter is observed and the spirit forgotten. Sunday observance at home or away from home is not constituted by so many attendances upon church, the Sunday school class taught, and so many chapters in the Bible read. Man was not made for the Sabbath, but the Sabbath was made for man, in which he might, by whatever he did, draw nearer to God and rest in Him. One may do nothing worse on the Sabbath day than seek physical rest and ease, and yet, by that attitude, desecrate the day and dishonor God, unless in that seeking of the physical need there were purpose and desire to profit and enrich the spiritual life. Jesus' Sabbath days were filled with activity, but it was to the blessing of man and the glorifying of God. It is not so much what you do on the Lord's day, but the motive which lies back of the conduct which determines whether you, as a Christian, have desecrated the day or not. But not only Sunday, but the other days of the week, are marred by the summer-time excess. Let us see wherein this excess lies. Let us see if the Christian life and conflict are to be laid aside during the summer and vacation time. Let us see if it is needful that they should be, to have a jolly, good and refreshing time. "Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things." Temperate in all things, whether it is while the languor of summer heat is felt and the voice of fair Nature is calling away to change and rest, or while the vigorous air of fall and winter is urging to fresh activities.

THE summer-time excess of the Christian finds expression in his life in two directions: In the neglect of the accustomed devotions and activities of the Christian life, and in the indulgence in pleasures and associations which are demoralizing and questionable. Many a promising Christian life is wrecked upon the rocks of summer-time excess. It begins with the passive attitude of neglect and ends with the active participation in the questionable and hurtful. It begins with the excessive indulgence in summer-time pleasures of a wholesome sort, to the utter crowding out of the Lord and intercourse with Him, and prepares the feet later to tread in the by-paths of sin. Why is it that it takes weeks and months after the summer is passed to bring the church back to a spiritual condition where it is ready to do effective work? Why is it that the summer time is not contributive to the Christian work of the fall, but is destructive of it? Why is it so commonly charged, and justly so, that the Christian takes a vacation, but the devil never? Is there not one answer to all these questions? Is is not because of the summer-time excess? The Christian ought to enjoy the summer time! He needs and is entitled to his vacation! But his enjoyment of the summer should be of such a temperate character that as the golden days of summer unfold into the hazy days of autumn he will be in better spiritual condition than ever before, and more fitted for the new and larger demands which the Lord is always making of His followers.

SUMMER-TIME attractions and distractions are multiplying so rapidly in these days, and the vacation period has taken such universal and prominent place in the lives of the people of this nation, that it is not surprising that their influence should be felt in the life of the church and in the life of the Christian. It is becoming more and more apparent—in the churches of the cities, more particularly—that a new distracting tendency must be dealt with. The summer season and the vacation period are being so emphasized that religious obligations are lost sight of. Everything is sacrificed that the summer plans may be carried out. Excess marks every step of the way, from the time in the late winter or early spring when plans and thoughts for the summer are allowed to monopolize the attention, down through the actual days of the summer indulgences. And somehow the Christian is coming to believe that the summer time and vacation to be real and beneficial must be entirely separated from religious thought and activity.

HOW many Christians are careful to put their Bibles in their grips when starting off on their vacations? You can help answer this question by telling what you yourself have done. The bodily needs and comforts are assiduously looked after when the trunk is being packed, and everything which possibly may be needed for the better enjoyment of the trip are taken along. Why should the needs of the soul be neglected? Why should the physical be considered to the utter forgetfulness of the spiritual? "Oh," you say, "I am not going off to read my Bible. I can do that at home." To be sure you can and ought, but you may not read your Bible in the heart of Nature when at home. You may not be so situated as to have God's Word mingle in sweet harmony with the voice and expression of Nature as you are when away on your vacation. You may lose fresh visions of God and new glimpses of the birds, and trees and flowers, if you shut the Lord out of your vacation, and set off to have a good time at all hazards. It is unsafe and unwise to go away on the vacation without the conscious presence of Jesus accompany you. We sing: "Anywhere with Jesus I can safely go," and have in mind the place of trial and danger and distress, but into the pleasures of life and upon the vacations we somehow feel that we can walk safely alone. But the Christian needs the Lord with him upon his vacation as at no other time, for it is then that myriad temptations come, when the conventionalities and restraints of home are severed.

"EVERY man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things." What would you think of the athlete who indulged in his every whim until the day of the race and then, suddenly realizing that he must get himself into condition, would agonize and fret in the effort? Could he expect to win? Could he hope to make creditable showing? What can the Christian expect in the fall if the summer has shattered his spiritual health by its excesses? He cannot hope to be in condition for the work his Lord would have him do. At the last moment he cannot agonize in prayer and cram God's Word into his soul so as to be equipped for service. Christians too little realize that the reason for many a failure and defeat dates away back to the indulgence and neglect of days gone by. The summer-time excess bears fruit in a fall and winter barren of spiritual results.

The Divine admonitions: "Be instant in season and out of season." "Pray without ceasing." "Do good unto all men," are in force as much during the summertime as during the other seasons of the year. Your prayers during the summer will determine how much blessing you and your church are to have in the fall. Your faithfulness to religious obligations in the summer will determine how well prepared you are for the work of the fall. But it must not be supposed that this intensity of Christian life and service, this ceaseless prayer, this constant attitude of helpfulness to those about are in conflict with the keenest enjoyment of the summer time, or is a handicap to the most refreshing and restful vacation. To be instant in season and out of season does not mean that you may not leave the present work in hand and seek new scenes and surroundings. To pray without ceasing does not mean that you must go around with a prayer rug in your hands and your eyes rolling into Heaven. These are not so much admonitions to outward expression as to inward attitude. And if the inward state of the soul is one of prayer and eager yearning for service, there will be the constant and refreshing expression in the life of that temperate enjoyment of all things which Paul urges in our text.

ONE other thing which is often included in the Christian's summertime excess. That is the extravagance which is encouraged and allowed during the vacation time. Many a debt is contracted in the summer which brings worry and trouble all the rest of the year. The desire and ambition have been to go to a certain place, to enjoy certain things, and when the funds are not adequate to cover the expenses, the temptation comes to run into debt, and the pricking conscience is quieted with the assertion that change and rest must be had, and one is justified in extravagance when the health demands it. Speaking generally, it can be asserted safely that one never ought to obtain rest and change on borrowed capital. As surely as you do, you saddle yourself with a burden which may ride you into distress and trouble which will more than offset the benefit you gained by the expenditure. The body cannot be genuinely refreshed while the inner conscience is condemning you. One of the alarming tendencies of our day is the reckless extravagance of people generally. The Christian is becoming more and more careless of observing the Divine command: "Owe no man anything, but to love one another."

It is not possible to be a Christian on Sunday and plunge into the world and its indulgences during the other days of the week. It is not possible to do good and effective work nine months of the year if the other three months are spent in careless neglect of God's claims upon you. The Christian, if Christian he be, is striving for the mastery, whether during summer heat or winter's cold, and there is no period of the year in which he may slacken his vigil or cease to fight. He must be temperate in all things if he would win. He may not yield himself to unrestricted indulgence in rest and pleasure during the summer time, any more than during the winter time. "Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."

The Divine Presence.

I find that His sweet presence eateth out the bitterness of sorrow and suffering.—Samuel Rutherford.

DISASTER IMPENDING.

The Republican Policy of "Letting Well Enough Alone" Will Bring Bad Enough.

There is something rotten about the financial condition of the railroads, if the various reports of their conditions are to be believed. The interstate commerce commission gives the official figures to show that the railroads have increased their net earnings during the past five years 62 per cent. The annual statement of the Baltimore & Ohio for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, shows an increase of the net earnings over the previous year of $2,798,321. Yet with this unparalleled increase of the B. & O., which, for the month of June, was a new high record, the market price of the stock has declined during this year 23 per cent. All the railroad stocks have declined. Chicago & Northwestern, one of the Vanderbilt group, has declined over 30 per cent. during the same period, and this stock is looked upon as representing one of the most stable and conservatively managed roads in the United States. The Pennsylvania railroad stock has declined 40 per cent. during the present year, and this stock has been regarded as good as government bonds, and its earnings have increased beyond all previous records.

The railroads included in the Northern Securities company, the merger of which the administration has attempted to prevent, have a surplus of over $41,000,000 for the last fiscal year, and yet that stock is rapidly declining in value. One of the roads leased by the merger is the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, and it has just borrowed $5,000,000, for which six per cent. was paid, the loan to run until next March. The Union Pacific has also just borrowed $10,000,000 on short-time notes. What possible need can there be for railroads to borrow money and pay big interest when they have, according to their own reports, a vast surplus? There must be something rotten in the state of Denmark. Are all these railroad reports of vast earnings and their large surplus tricks of bookkeeping to induce the lambs to buy their stock in Wall street?

There is no doubt the railroads are doing more business than ever before, and are charging exorbitant rates for carrying freight and passengers. So they have undoubtedly earned the increased money, and their expenses have not kept pace with their earnings.

What have they done with the money? Have the managers invested it in Wall street or loaned it to the banks, those with which they are connected? Wall street is in a bad way, and the New York banks are inextricably mixed up with speculation; they are loaded down with vast amounts of undigested securities—the watered stocks of the trusts and corporations. The ephemeral prosperity of Wall street and the New York banks has turned to tight times that forebodes disaster.

Those of us who are not interested in Wall street could view the discomfiture of the speculators and the extremity of the banks with composure if it did not affect business elsewhere, but, unfortunately it does. Wall street and the New York banks and the railroad magnates are also the trust managers; they control directly or indirectly about all the products that compose the necessaries of life. Their tentacles extend to the uttermost ends of the United States. Disaster in Wall street stops the wheels of commerce; the banks all over the country draw in their horns and decline to make loans. Even the farmer feels the impending disaster, for he cannot borrow a few dollars to pay the hired man. The country merchant stops buying goods, and the wholesale houses reduce stocks and the manufacturer and the importer do a restricted business. Hard times come on. Real estate is unsalable and mortgages and interest are impaired.

The republican policy of letting well enough alone when the impending panic materializes, will be viewed by the people as letting bad enough alone, and the cry for reform will be sharp and urgent. The protection to the trusts and the millions they have piled up cannot stem the tide of disaster, for in hard times high trust prices fall more heavily on the consumer. That such a revulsion is coming no one with his eyes open can doubt. The wise will prepare for it. The many will suffer for their lack of observation. The trust and railroad magnates are at the bottom of the impending evil. They have controlled the policy of the dominant party and have supplied the funds to keep it in power for their own selfish ends. The republican leaders are responsible; they have had full swing, and must abide by the result of their own work.

Provide for Their Friends.

Another assistant attorney has been appointed to represent the government in suits and cases before the Spanish treaty claims commission. There are ten other attorneys holding the same positions. Some of these attorneys are in Spain, some in Cuba, and others elsewhere, supposed to be looking up facts and testimony. How long the commission will be doing business is unknown, but it is safe to say it will continue at the job as long as there is an appropriation available. Congress made a provision that the president should continue the life of the commission for periods of six months until it was certain the commission had finished its labors. The appointment by the president of an additional attorney indicates one of two things, either there must be more business before the commission than was expected, or such a soft snap, with large salaries and ample traveling expense fund is a loadstone that attracts republican politicians, and the magnetism is so great that they cannot be shaken from their hold when once fast to it. A little strenuous advice by a thoroughbred reformer would hasten matters, or congress might stop the supplies, which would have an immediate effect.

PROTECTION DERIDED.

Workers Want Their Share of Prosperity as Well as the Pampered Trusts.

The prolonged strike of the textile workers at Philadelphia is having one good effect that will aid the whole country in throwing off the incubus of the protective tariff. Special dispatches from the Quaker city report that during the last few weeks the trend of political feeling has been changing rapidly, and in every street parade made by the strikers banners are carried bearing sarcastic announcements and questions such as: "We are protected by a tariff, but the republican mill owners say we will be starved into submission." "Why are the tariff protected mills closed?" and many others of a like nature. One motto was especially significant: "If prosperity is so general, why can't we have a bit of it?"

The workers are at last discovering that the protective tariff means high prices for what they have to buy and tariffing the many for the profits of the few. They now discover what it has been difficult to make them before believe, that the trusts and combines are unwilling to increase wages to a par with the increased cost of living, or indeed anywhere near it.

Only two excuses have been made for protection; first to control the home market for American manufacturers, and, second, to protect American labor. The first excuse has been pretty fully accomplished at the expense of the consumer. The tariff has prevented competition and has allowed the trusts to raise prices until the average cost of living has increased about 40 per cent. The second excuse has been an arrant failure, or the working man would not be striking for a fair share of the prosperity that the trusts enjoy. The wages received by these workers are certainly less than will keep them in comfort at the present high price of living.

The hours of labor of the Philadelphia textile workers have been too long, when it is considered that a majority of the workers are women, girls and children, and ten hours a day or 60 hours a week, in badly ventilated work shops, is more than their tender years should be asked to endure. The wages paid range from $13 a week for the expert weavers to two dollars a week for the children. Do the hours or the wages protect these workers as the protectionists would have us believe? The manufacturers have advanced the price of the products of the mills, and carpets and the other textiles the workers produce have increased fully 25 per cent, and those who buy them have to pay that increase. So in Philadelphia we have an acute exposure of the workings of the protective tariff. The workers, dissatisfied with their condition, instead of the good wages and comfort that the champions of the protective system would have us believe always accompanies it.

The manufacturers, who are mostly combined into trusts, are the sole beneficiaries of this extraordinary system, have become rich, and are still growing richer. They sell to the American people at exorbitant prices, and export similar goods and sell them in Europe and elsewhere at a much less price. And yet the republican leaders say "stand pat," "let well enough alone." "The friends of protection only must reform the tariff." When some inquisitive or impatient voter asks when reformation will begin, the answer always is—after election, and like the Spanish "Manana," to-morrow never comes. The tariff will never be reformed, until the people elect a majority of congress that are free from the trust taint and who the corporations are opposed to. It is not human nature to expect those who are receiving trust and corporation favors to legislate against them.

HE WENT TO CHURCH.

His Collar Didn't Fit and He Was Not Happy, But He Went Along.

"James," she said, as they were packing for a short trip into the country, relates Elliott Flower, in Brooklyn Eagle, "are you going to wear that outing shirt?"

"Certainly," he responded. "You don't suppose I'm going to loaf around in a starched one, do you?"

"Oh, no; but you must put in one white one, you know. We'll be there over Sunday."

"What of it?" he asked, irritably.

"What of it!" she repeated in surprise. "Why, James, you can't go to church in an outing shirt, and you must go to church, you know. Aunt Maria would think it awful if you didn't."

"But if I forgot to bring the white shirt," he suggested, "she—"

"But you mustn't forget it," she interrupted. "You must go, really. You promised you'd do what I wanted you to on this trip."

He sat down in a corner of the room with his grip in front of him and thought it all over for a minute. Then he said:

"All right, Jennie. If it'll please you I'll take one."

He took a shirt out of the drawer and jammed it into a grip, and to show her appreciation of the act she put her arms around his neck and kissed him.

And the following Sunday morning while he was getting his last doze, she took the shirt out of the valise and laid it on a chair. Then she went back to the valise and a moment later her voice rang out clear and sharp:

"James, where are your collars and cuffs?"

"Hey?" he said, partially awakened. "Oh, collars and cuffs. Aren't they there?"

"No; they're not there."

"I must have forgotten them," he said, yawning and turning over.

"You certainly didn't bring them."

There was a menacing ring to her voice, but he failed to notice it.

"Then I can't go to church," he said.

"Yes, you can," she retorted. "I know you, James Stringer, and you can't fool me that way."

And he went, wearing a 17 collar belonging to "Uncle Henry" on a 15 neck belonging to himself. And the cuffs could have been put on outside his coat sleeves.

But he went just the same, and the next time he tells his wife he will go anywhere he will make preparations accordingly.

THROUGH WITH ROPES.

Commercial Traveler Had Tried One as a Fire-Escape and Once Was Enough.

"Yes, I know that most of the boys carry a rope around with 'em," said the commercial traveler, according to the Detroit Free Press, "and the time was when I would not have taken the road without one, but I gave mine to my wife for an extra clothes-line three or four years ago. I read occasionally of a rope saving somebody from a burning hotel, but I don't care to be saved that way."

"But you don't want to be burned with the hotel, do you?" was asked.

"Of course not, but if I can't get down by the stairs or the iron fire-escape I'll take my chances on a mattress or a fireman's ladder."

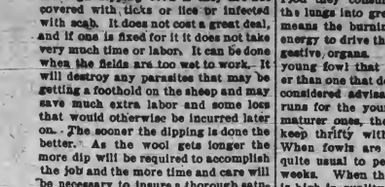
"But what's the matter with a knotted rope?"

"I didn't think anything was the matter for many years. I used to go to bed feeling as safe as a baby in his crib, and if I found a traveler who didn't carry a 50-foot rope in his grip I set him down as a very reckless man. One day, when I was in an Indiana town, a lot of us got to talking about ropes and burning hotels, and a wall-eyed bluffer offered to bet me five dollars to one that I couldn't slide down my rope from a third-story window and not half kill myself. Of course I jumped at the bet, but he knew what he was talking about. I hadn't lowered myself six feet before the rope burned my hands and I let go and broke a leg. The trick was tried by three others, and though they escaped broken bones they were badly shaken up and tongue-bitten. After my leg mended I bluffed everybody I met on that rope business, and I never found a chap who could slide down two stories and feel good for a month after. A sailor could do it, of course, but I'm no sailor, and if ever I'm cut off by fire I'll take a header for the sidewalk and hope to hit a fat man as I come down."

To Iron Lawns.

To give lawns, white or printed, a look of newness that nothing else can impart, take two ounces of fine gum arabic, powder it, put it into an earthen jar and pour over it a pint of boiling water, cover and let it stand over night. In the morning pour it carefully from the dregs into a clean bottle and cork it. Make your starch in the usual way and stir into it a tablespoonful of this gum water. To whiten soiled white lace, baste the lace to a sheet folded twice. Mix starch and water to a paste in a bowl; spread this paste on the lace and put it in the sun. When the starch is perfectly dry rub it from the lace carefully. If the lace is not clean repeat the process.—N. Y. Herald.

Candied Cherries.



For two quarts of cherries make a sirup of two pounds of cut sugar and a teacupful of water; boil until it reaches the "pull," or candy stage, stirring frequently. Draw the basin or kettle away from the heat, and stir until grains show on the spoon; then drop in the stoned cherries, a few at a time, for two minutes, and skim out on to a sieve. Shake the sieve gently a few minutes; then turn on a platter and dry in a sunny window.—Sarah E. Wilcox, in Country Gentleman.

HANDY DIPPING TANK.

It Will Answer All Ordinary Purposes and Is Sure to Last Quite a Long Time.

It is a good plan to give the sheep a thorough dipping even if they are not covered with ticks or lice or infected with scab. It does not cost a great deal, and if one is fixed for it it does not take very much time or labor. It can be done when the fields are too wet to work. It will destroy any parasites that may be getting a foothold on the sheep and may save much extra labor and some loss that would otherwise be incurred later on. The sooner the dipping is done the better. As the wool gets longer the more dip will be required to accomplish the job and the more time and care will be necessary to insure a thorough saturation of every part of the sheep. More time will also be required for them to drain properly. There are very many dips on the market that are effective in the destruction of parasites and harmless to the sheep and its coat. Any of the tobacco or coal tar preparations are all right in this respect so far as we are aware. Do not use any dip containing lime, as that subtance injures the fleece. To the amateur we would say be sure that the operation is thoroughly performed. See that every part of the body is thoroughly wet. Keep the body, except the eyes and nose, under the liquid for at least one minute. A tank should be kept on hand for this use. It may also be used for the dipping of hogs. A galvanized steel tank, made especially for this work, can be purchased; or one can be made of two-inch matched lumber that will answer every purpose and last a long time if properly taken care of. The accompanying cut represents a form of tank that is convenient and also economical in the amount of liquid required. The tank should be 18 inches wide at the top and six inches at the bottom and four feet in depth. For a small flock a length of six feet at top and two at bottom is sufficient and can be increased according to the size of the flock. The sloping surface should be cleated to enable the animal to assist itself out of the tank and thus lessen the lifting. In larger sizes of tanks the inclined end may be made more sloping. For the small flock a tight wagon box may be used for a draining pen, having it arranged that the liquid will run back into the tank. When larger numbers are to be handled it will be desirable to construct a special draining floor and pen that will accommodate a larger number of animals and divided in the middle so that one part can be filled while those in the other division are draining. The tank should be set in the ground about three feet and where large numbers are to be run through a long vat there should be a pen with a chute leading up to the end of the vat. There should be a gate to close this chute when filled. There should also be a floor in the chute on a level with the top of the tank. This is especially true in the dipping of hogs, and if it can slope toward the tank all the better. The liquid may be economized by putting the larger animals through the tank first, saving the lambs or pigs as the case may be until the last, as they can be handled with less amount of liquid in the vat.—Prairie Farmer.

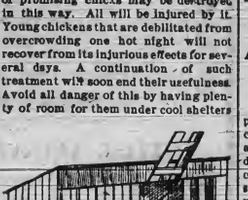
PRESERVE THE MANURE.

The Farmer Who Is Derelict in This Duty Is Robbing His Soil of Needed Nourishment.

Farmers will find that it will pay to give more attention to the preservation of barnyard manure; first, by guarding it from the sources of loss which occur in the ordinary open barnyard, and, second, by treating it with materials calculated to reduce the losses from escaping ammonia on the one hand, and to increase its content of phosphoric acid on the other.—To accomplish this purpose, acid phosphate appears to be the material producing the largest and most profitable immediate increase in effectiveness of the manure; but experiments strongly suggest the possibility that finely ground phosphatic rock from which acid phosphate is made may be found an economical substitute for the latter, by using it as an absorbent in the stables, and thus securing an intimate mixture with the manure in its fresh condition. The yields will be found larger and the increase due to the addition of the preservatives smaller in case of the stall manure than in case of the open-yard manure, thus showing that either with or without the addition of preservatives, stall manure suffers less loss and is richer in fertilizing constituents than open-yard manure.—Midland Farmer.

The eager demand and high prices for big draft horses are encouraging farmers to breed to the best draft stallions and grade up as fast as possible to the heavy draft size and type.

EXERCISE FOR HENS.



All Poultry Raisers Agree They Must Have Some, But Can't Agree on How Much.

How much exercise a fowl needs is a matter of sharp dispute. Some contend that the requirement is large, while others are just as sure that it is small. About all are united in saying that some exercise is required, unless the fowl is being put through her final fattening period for the market. Young and growing fowls seem to need a good deal of exercise to assist them in the digestion of the very large amount of food they consume. Exercise brings the lungs into greater activity and this means the burning up of fat to make energy to drive the machinery of the digestive organs. It is probable that a young fowl that exercises grows faster than one that does not exercise. It is considered advisable to have larger runs for the young fowls than for the maturer ones, the latter being able to keep thrifty with very little exercise. When fowls are to be fattened it is quite usual to pen them up for a few weeks. When this is done and the feed is high in quality, it will be found dangerous to carry the feeding operations and non-exercise too far. In European countries when birds are to be fattened they often place them in cages in darkened rooms and cram them with food at stated intervals. If this is kept up too long, however, the birds collapse. Their digestive organs do not receive the energy necessary to drive them, as the lungs operate but slowly, and thus carbon is not changed into force. Laying hens seem to need little exercise, public opinion to the contrary notwithstanding. While it is taught by many poultry-wise people that the hen to lay well must be constantly exercising, experiments at our stations have shown the hens that got no exercise laid as well as those that got exercise. But it must be remembered that their feed was properly balanced. If hens be fed a corn ration and given no exercise, they are very likely to cease laying on account of becoming too fat.—Farmers' Review.

COMFORT FOR CHICKENS.

First Requisite Is a Good Coop and This Article Tells You How to Make One.

Do not crowd the growing stock so they will suffer during hot nights. Bad results follow over-crowding; a fine lot of promising chicks may be destroyed in this way. All will be injured by it. Young chickens that are debilitated from overcrowding one hot night will not recover from its injurious effects for several days. A continuation of such treatment will soon end their usefulness. Avoid all danger of this by having plenty of room for them under cool shelters where cold drafts and wet cannot injure them. Keep them comfortable, free from over-crowding, away from the wet at night.

The illustration shows a good style of coop for a lot of growing chicks. Anyone can make coops like this. The slats may be close enough so as to keep within partly-grown chicks. When shut in, this style of coop can have a roost within and can be made large enough for 40 or 50 chicks, and will shelter two hens and their broods when young, and after weaning time will do for their home till winter comes. They can be made in any size to suit your needs. It is always best to have a good supply of all kinds of coops for growing stock; it pays in the end. A coop like this can be used for one or more hens and their broods of young chicks. After the hens have been removed and the chicks are weaned, place a roost inside and it will do for a colony house for these growing chickens until winter comes.—Country Gentleman.

NOTES ABOUT HORSES.

Ground feed is better for the growing colt the first year than whole grain.

Blood, food, care and training are the requisites for producing a first-class horse.

Flax seed facilitates the work of making the coat of the horse smooth and glossy, but it is not the whole thing. Elbow grease needs to be mixed with the oil of the seed.

It should be the ambition of every farmer to improve his horses up to the high market standard for the best draft horses. Select the bred of your choice and stick to it. Grade up to the best pure-bred stallions. — Midland Farmer.

Fattening Horses for Sale.

Fattening horses so that they will reach market in good condition for sale is quite an important industry in some regions, says C. F. Langworthy. For instance, in Iowa, there are a number of feeders who thus prepare large numbers of horses for the Chicago market, and officials of the Iowa experiment station have gathered some data on the subject. The general practice is to feed generously and give little exercise. With proper feeding and care, as many as a dozen horses of a lot fed for market have in some instances made an average gain of 3.75 pounds per head per day. Somewhat larger gains have been made under exceptional circumstances throughout a period of 90 days.

MIRACLE OF THE SEA.

Ship Captain Sealed Up in Wreck Exists for Twelve Days and Is Finally Rescued.

A wonderful story was lately told to the maritime court at Danzig by the captain of the steel sailing ship Erndte, reports the London Leader. He left Memel with a cargo of planks on April 18 for Oldenburg. Capt. Engellandt, who is also the owner, remained at the wheel during a gale which overtook the vessel next night, and at four in the morning went to his cabin to change his wet clothes. He had just got into dry underclothing when the vessel tipped over, and he found himself standing on the roof of the cabin, of which the sea had hermetically closed the door.

By unloosening the boards of what was now the floor he got into the hold, which contained only loose sails. Fortunately some shelves of a high cupboard standing in the cabin remained intact, and from them he collected two tins of condensed milk, three pounds of prunes, some rice, sugar and sausage. He also found a hammer. For 12 days the man lived in his prison, eating as sparingly as possible and drinking sea water, which appears to have had no ill effect. He spent his free time in hammering on the steel bottom of the ship to attract the attention of chance passing vessels, and slept quite well at nights, for, after the first few days, the sea was smooth. He knew when it was day, for a dim light penetrated the water.

On the twelfth day the Norwegian steamer Aurora saw the wreck and sent a boat to take it in tow. Engellandt had fallen asleep, but hearing footsteps over his head he began knocking with his hammer and shouting. The Aurora's men returned to their ship for tools and bored a hole through the wreck's keel, where they had heard the knocking. When they drew out their borer a man's finger followed, and they soon learned that Eigellandt had food for four days more and wished to be towed to land, for it was impossible to release him in the open sea. He also desired to have the hole plugged again, as he was afraid that the loss of air would cause the ship to sink lower in the water.

The Aurora towed the wreck safely to Neufahrwasser, where, with considerable difficulty, it was attached to a huge crane, a plate was unloosed, and the imprisoned captain freed. Engellandt was perfectly conscious, and even able to walk alone.

NATURAL HISTORY RAMBLE.

A Profitable Pleasure That Is Indulged by But Few in These Bustling Times.

Much has been written about the pleasures and advantages of getting close to nature, says Current Literature, and yet, how many opportunities of doing so are neglected! In these days of travel and excursions, when thousands of us visit regions which, a few years ago, would have been regarded as being as inaccessible to us as the very poles; in these days, when thousands of us, who, a few years ago, would have been content to live the humdrum life of home from year's end to year's end, must have our annual "change," we have opportunities of observing faunas and floras of many districts and regions. How many, however, avail themselves of the privilege of familiarizing themselves with nature's varied processes and products, and of enriching the treasuries of knowledge? The board walk and pavilion of the shore have more attractions than the pine grove and the sand dunes; the lawn tennis ground and golf links of the inland resort allure far more than a ramble through forest and field in mountain glen and along lake shore. If it is true, as a certain wise man has said, that there is a time for everything, let us, in all fairness, give some time to the natural history ramble. It is certainly as refreshing, to say the least, as some other recreations.

COST OF TRAIN LUXURY.

Room and Comfort for Passengers Materially Adds to the Expense of Travel.

It may be asked why the railway locomotive does not pull passengers at a lower rate. Because, says the Engineering Magazine, it gives passengers so much room, comfort and big speed that it has to carry a ton of dead weight for each passenger. A locomotive weighing 100 tons pulls, at 45 miles per hour, 12 cars weighing 600 tons and containing 760 people, weighing 50 tons, assuming the passengers to be men, women and children, but chiefly men, and to average 131 pounds each; 1,400 pounds of dead weight per passenger, when every seat is taken. But cars cannot average more than seven-tenths full.

The railway carries free the passenger's 150-pound trunk, and sends with him toilet rooms, heating stoves and bedrooms. These houses on wheels, and the locomotive which draws them, have to be made very heavy in order to get the great strength made necessary by high speed. If the railway could dispense with these comforts and luxuries, and carry passengers packed closely inside and on top of low-roofed, ramshackle, unheated vehicles, like the old stage, and at slow speed, it could put passengers at one-tenth to one-twentieth the price of the old stage.

His Harvest Moon.

"A young friend of mine," said Senator Joseph W. Bailey, "married, not long ago, a woman of no means. She was rich and well; he was handsome and poor.

"The day after their wedding I met the bride and bridegroom on a Pullman train, traveling west. The bridegroom went into the smoking compartment with me, and we lighted up. He smoked gloomily. He was silent a long while.

"'Well, Jack,' said I, 'so this is your honeymoon, eh?'

"He smiled grimly. 'Don't call it my honeymoon,' he said. 'It's the harvest moon with me.'"—N. Y. Tribune.

Didn't Like to Boast.

"How are you getting on with your music, my dear?" inquired a lady of her niece.

"Well, of course," replied the niece, diffidently, "it wouldn't be proper for me to compliment myself, but some of the neighbors have told me they have staid awake at night for hours, listening to my playing."—Stray Stories.

She Didn't Care.

Maplehill, Ia., Aug. 10th.—"I felt as though I didn't care whether I lived or died, I was so miserable all the time."

In these words does Miss Nellie Barfoot, of this place, describe her condition. Every woman who is or has been, sick and suffering will understand and appreciate just how Miss Barfoot felt, and there are no doubt many thousands of similar cases.

It is truly sad indeed when a woman gets so low that she can say "I don't care whether I live or die."

But Miss Barfoot tells a different story today, and her words should guide every suffering woman to the path of health and happiness.

"I used Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I am cured. I feel like a new person, and I would say to every woman suffering as I did, give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial, and you will not be disappointed. They are worthy of the highest praise."

Get What You Ask For.

When you see an article well-advertised in the newspapers, you may be sure it's a good article, for advertising only pays if the goods are honest and possess merit. The people who make a specialty of one advertised article, like Cascarets, Candy Cathartic, for example, stake their whole business existence on its doing what they say it will. They must "make good," as the saying is. Readers of this paper are urged to be sure that they get what they ask for, when they ask for an advertised article, for it's the good thing that is imitated and counterfeited. Don't accept substitutes! Insist on getting the genuine!

For Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Catarrh of the Stomach is Generally Called Dyspepsia—Something to Produce Artificial Digestion is Generally Taken.

These Remedies Do Not Reach the Seat of the Difficulty, Which is Really Catarrh.

EX. U. S. Senator M. C. Butler from South Carolina, was Senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., says:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh. Peruna does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods.

Peruna has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh is located in the head, Peruna cures it. If catarrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peruna cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peruna cures it, as well in this location as in any other.

Peruna is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Peruna cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advise gratis.

A clock with a graphophone attached to it, which delivers its message on exactly the same principal as the alarm of an alarm-clock, is the latest piece of mechanical ingenuity in Geneva. Into the receiver of the graphophone all that is necessary is to speak the message of which one desires to be reminded the next day at a certain time and at that hour the graphophone speaks the words. Thus if one has an appointment at 5 o'clock to-morrow one merely says, "I have to keep an appointment at 5 o'clock," and by setting the message to "go off" at 4 the intelligent machine makes the announcement and enables its possessor to be in time.

Quail hunters expect this fall to be one of the best seasons they have had for many years. Quails do not migrate and hunters can tell in the summer how the hunting will be during the winter. The past winter and spring in this section have been very favorable for the breeding of the quail. Snow did not stay on the ground long enough at one time to keep them from feeding or to starve any of the birds. Spring was most satisfactory for nesting. In some sections of the country thousands of young birds were drowned by floods or excessive rains, but in Kentucky there has been no trouble of this kind. A few young birds may have been drowned during the heavy rains of the early spring, but there are still an unusual number of live birds. Quails hatch out two broods every year, so the second one is just large enough to shoot when the season opens.

While in many sections grain feeding must be done this summer the ordinary practice is not to feed grain to cows that are on pasture. This is acknowledged to be a mistake by those who have tried both methods, provided their cows were grade or thoroughbreds. In some sections the belief in grain has been carried to the extent that the cows are barn-fed the year through. This results in a good milk flow cannot be denied but there is some question as to the advisability of depriving cows of grass entirely. On the other hand, there can be no question about the value of graining to a moderate extent in connection with pasturing. To commence with, the supply of grain should be small, say a piut a day, increasing the quantity as the value of the grass decreases. The expenses of this plan is certainly small compared with the results, and during this month and August is a good time to test it.—St. Paul Dispatch.

One of the simplest methods of ascertaining what plant foods is needed in a soil is to test the soil with a growing plant. If the soil is deficient in nitrogen the leaves of grasses and cereal grains will be either bluish or yellowish, the latter in the case of the grain, while a deep, vivid green indicates a good supply of nitrogen in the soil. Any soil in which rape, cabbages and other members of the turnip family thrive indicates that such soil has a good supply of phosphoric acid. Where potash in the soil is abundant the leaves of the growing plants have a yellowish green cast, while if potash is deficient the shade of green is of a bluish cloror. Naturally it requires a practiced and observant eye to determine accurately these things, but the plan is correct and worth following. The indication of sorrel in a meadow seeded to mixtures such as redtop, timothy and clovers, is a pretty good indication that the soil needs lime. However, the litmus paper test for acid soil is the quickest and is thoroughly reliable.—Indianapolis News.

Most cattle growers who take careful notice of the stuff they feed, grown on valuable land, have long ago found that they must have good grades if they are to make anything at feeding and so for beef-purposes must have Shorthorn, Hereford, Angus, Red Polled or some other good beef bred blood and grades of these, which they can be finished for the markets in 20 to 24 months. The feeding of common or scrub cattle is done on such land at a loss. An old cattle feeder has emphatic views on this subject. He says:

"If inferior cattle should make equal gains for the food consumed they still produce an inferior grade of carcass which is worth from 20 to 25 per cent less than the well bred and well-grown steer. If the inferior steer is produced without loss, the premium on the better steer is profit.

"There is a very great difference in the value per pound of a well bred calf and a scrub. The well bred calf pays you a profit on every bushel of corn and every ton of alfalfa he eats. He is an embryo gold mine as he waits to be shunted down prosperity track.

The feeder of mature cattle often selects inferior grades of steers, off colors on account of their lower cost as feeders, and claims there is greater profit in them. This may be true with the man who feeds, but how about the man who raised the feeder? If good feeders sometimes sell for more than they are worth this is a convincing argument in favor of raising them."

CIRCUIT COURT.

The August term of the Boone circuit court convened last Monday with Judge John M. Lassing presiding. The following grand jury was empaneled: Ben Stephens, foreman; John H. Aylor, C. C. Talbott, A. W. Corn, L. B. Dickerson, Geo. W. Gaines, Jno. D. White, James Popham, C. H. Vest, E. H. Surface, Henry Aylor, G. T. Gaines.

The petit juries for the term are composed as follows:

No. 1.—W. B. Rogers, N. W. Carpenter, W. T. Stott, Thos. Randall, E. E. Clegg, H. R Hearn, Jas. A. Huey, P. P. Neal, Geo. Ward, B. L. Cleek, J. H. Jarrell.

No. 2.—Edgar Cropper, J. B. Dixon, W. E. Walton, W. H. Moore, Harry Stephens, R. S. Cowen, Ezra Rouse, W. S. White, Joseph Love, John Clore, Thos. Bradford, Wallace Tanner.

The following fines were assessed yesterday:

For selling liquor to a minor—Mike Cahill and J. M. Finch, $50 each.

For breech of the peace—Kite Story, $25.

Gaming—James Sleet, $20.

Carrying a pistol—Lehomer Louden, $25 and 10 days imprisonment.

J. F. Blyth was tried for selling liquor unlawfully, and the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

The following attorneys have put in their appearance for this term: Commonwealth's Attorney M. D. Gray, John S. Gaunt, B. F. Menifee, J. G. Tomlin, John L. Vest.

MISS MARY ANN THOMPSON

Handsomely Remembered by Her Old Pupils.

The happiest incident during the Institute, last week, was the surprise a large number of her pupils in years long since passed, gave Miss Mary Ann Thompson, whom they have loved and esteemed from their school days. For several weeks Mrs. J. C. Revill had been calling on and in correspondence with Miss Mary's old pupils, and her success was very gratifying in securing contributions for the occasion, which was kept an profound secret from Miss Mary. The presents obtained for the occasion were brought into the Institute Friday afternoon, and consisted of a complete outfit of material for a black sick dress and money with which to have it made, a brooch, a heavy plain gold ring and a handsome easy chair. Miss Mary had not been attending the Institute, but by a piece of strategy her presence was obtained Friday afternoon, and when Joe C. Revill began his happy presentation speech Miss Mary was nonplussed, but responded in a most graceful manner. It was an occasion the fitness of which will cause it long to be remembered by those present. Miss Mary is a lady who is held in the highest regard not only by those whose early training she began, but by all who know her as well, and all join in the wish that she may live long to enjoy the testimonials of esteem she received from her old pupils last Friday.

A Sure Cure for Diarrhoea.

Coming as it does, in the busiest season, when a man can least afford to lose time, a sure and quick cure for diarrhoea is very desirable. Anyone who has given it a trial will tell you that the quickest, surest and most pleasant remedy in use for this disease is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is no loss of time when it is used, as one or two doses of it will cure any ordinary attack. It never fails, not even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For Sale by All Druggists.

"A farmer's life is not a happy one these days," said a broad shouldered tiller of the soil who owns a nice lot of broad acres, to the Harrodsburg Democrat. "You see it is like this," he replied to the assertion of the pencilite that it seemed to be a pleasant occupation to own a large farm, "we can't get help and as a result it is a case of up at 3 o'clock in the morning in order to get through all our work by 9 o'clock in the evening. Many farmers are paying as high as $30 a month and keep for help, while others are unable to secure a hired man at any price. Wagons were never so high in this part of the country and men never so scarce as at the present time. Even if we are able to pay the price, the chances of securing help are small. The cows have to be milked and so it is up to the owners to make slaves of themselves in order to keep up with the demands of the farm. It is work, work, work, from early morning until late at night."

An experienced tobacco grower of Gallatin, gives the following hints to growers, in a communication to the Warsaw Independent:

"One thing should be done to make money out of the crop and that is to carefully cultivate it from now until it is cut. Do not let a worm or sucker get on the crop, and keep the hoe in it, and you will have high priced tobacco that the buyer will run after at a fancy price, in place of a lot of nondescript stuff that nobody wants and when sold brings the lowest price and unprofitable one at that. By proper cultivation you get double the amount of money and every penny you get additional means that much clear profit. Another feature we wish to call attention to is most of the farmers top their tobacco too high and while they have more leaves they have too many grades and too much short tobacco. It may be well enough to top early tobacco or that on extra good ground a trifle high, but late tobacco or that on weak ground had better be topped low. There is going to be an enormous crop of tobacco raised this year and remember under such conditions there is always a good market for fine tobacco while common and trashy tobacco can hardly find a buyer at any price."

The German Medicine Show, Jas. Welsh manager, which has made a successful tour of the county, will open in Walton next Monday night. The show gives satisfaction and the show people make friends of all.

Edward S. McKim, son and only child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKim, died at Lakeland Asylum, last Wednesday afternoon, aged 35 years. He was sent to the asylum a few months ago, hoping that his mind, which had become unbalanced, could be restored, but his mental condition continued to grow worse until death relieved him. The remains were brought home last Thursday, and after a brief service conducted at the home of his parents at 1 p. m., last Friday, by Rev. Sproles, the remains were placed in the vault to await final interment. The bereaved father and mother, who adored their child, have the sympathy of all in this their hour of grief.

About 500 people assembled at the ball park last Saturday afternoon to witness the game between the Boones and the Home City, O., team, which presented the following strong line up: Gray, third base; Macbrair, A., short stop; Macbrair, H., left field; Leonard, second base, Loose, pitcher; Brauer, center field; Binder, right field; Spillie, catcher. At first the visitors had things all their own way, the score standing 4 to 0 in their favor at the beginning of the fourth inning, in which the Boones pulled themselves together and began a batting carnival, the equal of which was never before witnessed on the local grounds, and which the visitors acknowledged surpassed anything they ever saw in that line. In the remainder of the game the Boones, besides numerous singles, made 2 two baggers, 1 three bagger and 3 home runs, going to the bat 8 times and making 12 runs, while the visitors succeeded in landing 6.

The visitors did splendid fielding but the balls were simply knocked beyond their reach. Their left fielder did considerable sensational work.

Luck made a long run and catch of a fly in the right field that was pronounced the greatest catch ever made on the home grounds. The battery work of Hogan and Honston was fine.

Following is the score:

Boones	0	0	0	1	1	2	4	4	*	—	12
Home-City	1	3	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	—	6

Struck out—Houston, 7; Loose, 5.
Base Hits—Boones, 9; Home City, 7.
Two Base Hits—Souther, Clutterbuck,
Three Base Hits—Kirk, Mcbrair.
Home Runs—Houston, Slayback, Bullock.

NOTES.

Several Home City people came over to root for their club.

Jesse Kirk, who was on trial for the Boones made a great record—two singles, a three bagger and one run.

The Home City team is composed of good ball tossers and nice gentlemen.

It looked awful blue for the Boones for four innings.

The standing of the Boones is considerably below 500 per cent.

The Woolper team defeated the Egypt team last Saturday, score, 12 to 9.

The Teachers' Institute.

Wednesday morning, after music and devotional exercises, Primary Reading was introduced by Miss Elizabeth Rogers, and the interesting discussions that followed, was participated in by a great many of the teachers. This was followed after recess by a delightful musical selection by Miss Hoffmeyer.

Arithmetic was introduced by Mr. Hughes, and the lively discussion that followed consumed the remainder of the morning session.

Writing was taken up afternoon and thoroughly discussed, Rev. Sproles and D. E. Castleman taking part, and advancing several good ideas in connection with the subject.

A library committee composed of Wm. Gaines and W. P. Dickey, was chosen, and the library report for last year was received, and the Institute adjourned for the day. During the day the exercises were interspersed by a solo by Mr. Riley, a trio by Miss Gaines, Rev. Sproles and Mr. Castleman. Thursday's session was opened with the inspiring words of the Battle Hymn of the Republic, followed by prayer, by the Superintendent.

Geography was the first subject to claim the attention of the Institute, being introduced by Prof. Brough. An instructive discussion resulted, several teachers taking part.

Primary Language, introduced by Mr. Hughes was discussed by Miss Elizebeth Rogers.

History proved an interesting subject and was discussed in a most entertaining manner by a large number of teachers, all agreeing that no one method could be used successfully.

A course of study to be used by the common schools in this county was adapted after a thorough discussion by the teachers.

Mrs. Pickelheimer, Miss Hoffmyer, Miss Duncan, Rev. Sproles and Miss Bullock, contributed largely to the interest of the days proceedings by their music and recitations.

Friday's session was opened by music, and prayer by Rev. Pettigrew. The superintendent addressed the Institute, urging upon the teachers the importance of attending the District Association. Mrs. Wood and Miss Craig emphasized the Superintendent's remarks.

Reading was discussed by Prof. Dickey in a very entertaining manner. He was followed by Prof. Bondurant, who called especial attention to the teaching of biography.

At this point in the proceedings Rev. Sproles favored the Institute with a solo.

Civics was introduced by Mr. Northcutt, and was fully discussed by other teachers.

The recitation by Miss Fannie Clore was one the entertaining features of this day's exercises.

The morning session closed after the Superintendent called attention to the necessity of properly filling out the school blanks.

When the Institute reassembled in the afternoon, the committee on resolutions, Misses Wolfe, Youell and Mr. Gaines offered the following resolutions which were adopted:

We, the teachers of Boone County Institute, in session at Burlington, Ky., from Aug. 3 to the 7th inclusive, have, during our stay in Burlington this week, been the recipients of so many kind hospitalities, that we submit the following resolutions:

That we thank Mr. Snyder for his untiring efforts to make the Institute a success.

We especially express our appreciation of the kindness shown us by the John Church Co., of Cincinnati, for the free use of their piano.

We are very grateful to the participants for the pleasing selections of vocal and instrumental music rendered during this Institute.

We further express our thanks to Mr Bruce Clore and his sister, Miss Mae for the charming entertainment furnished the members of this Institute, free of cost, on their Phonograph, and to the Burlington talent, assisted by Mr. Grubbs, Mrs. Pickelheimer, and Miss Helm, piano accompanist, for the delightful entertainment of Wednesday evening, which surpassed amateur standard.

That we, the teachers and the graduates, tender a special vote of thanks to Attorney D. E. Castleman for his welcome address and greatness of heart in being the originator of the Teachers' and Graduates' Banquet, and to the people of Burlington for their hearty response and cooperation in the same.

That we ever hold in grateful remembrance the many acts of courtesy which we have so generously received at the hands of the citizens of Burlington.

Rules and regulations governing the use of the books in the library were adopted.

The committee on District associations reported the following times and places for meeting:

Rabbit Hash—Sept. 26.
Union—October 10.
Walton—October 24.
Burlington—November 7.
Florence—November 28.
Petersburg—December 12.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Institute:

Whereas, the recent extinguishment of practically all of the State's debt renders it unnecessary to set aside five cents of the State revenue for Sinking Fund purposes, as provided in present apportionment, and,

Whereas, the present School Fund is inadequate to the demands of the system, only a five months term being maintained, and at extremely low salaries, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Institute that the coming General Assembly should enact a law so changing the apportionment that at least 50c be transferred from the Sinking Fund to the School Fund.

Resolved, That we recommend that Boone County levy and collect a tax of fifteen cents on the hundred dollars to supplement the school fund and extend the term

Resolved, That this Institute recommend and endorse the county Board Proposition.

Miss Mary Thompson, a true and tried veteran in our profession, was most agreeably surprised by a number of handsome presents from more than one hundred of her former pupils.

After expressing thanks to the citizens of Burlington and teachers, Mr. Snyder declared the Institute adjourned sine die.

THE GRADUATING EXERCISES

Were Witnessed and Enjoyed by a Large Audience.

The large circuit court room was crowded last Thursday night with persons who came from every neighborhood in the county to witness the common school graduating exercises, for which considerable preparations had been made. The yard at the south side of the court house was illuminated with Chinese lanters, while benches had been placed at convenient positions therein. Here it was that ice cream, cake and lemonade were served after the exercises in the court room, and the mellow light from the lanterns which were suspended high in the air made the scene one of beauty as the handsome young ladies and their gallants passed two and fro. The exercises in the court room began promptly at 7 o'clock, when the following program was rendered:

Instrumental Solo, Miss Hoffmeier, Ludlow;
"What the world owes to the Jew"—Anna Hearne.
Vocal Duet—Misses Rouse.
"Curfew shall not ring tonight"—Grace G. Anderson.
Violin Solo—Hughes Johnson and Miss Hoffmeyer.
"School two hundred years from now"—Effie Beemon.
"A Warning"—Lucy Russell.
"Acquaint yourself"—Anna Miller.
"The day is done"—Katie Swartz.

At the conclusion of the above program Rev. Sproles addressed the graduates, Misses Anna Hearn, Grace G. Anderson, Hughes Johnson, Effie Beemon, Lucy Russell Annie Miller and Katie Swartz. His remarks were well timed and contained much food for thought not only for the graduates, but for the large audience as well.

The diplomas were then presented by Supt. Snyder, after which he gave the graduates some timely advice.

While the refreshments were being enjoyed out in the yard and for some time thereafter, James Clore contributed to the entertainment with his graphophone.

The graduates fully appreciated the reception given them and their friends, and its a feature which the people of Burlington should make more prominent every year as each occasion will make suggestions for the one to follow. The program last Thursday evening gave the graduating exercises a prominence to which they are justly entitled.

THE MUSICALE.

The musicale Wednesday night was a grand success. Each of those who rendered instrumental music acquitted himself or herself in a most creditable manner, especially is this true of Master Miles Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Smith, of Cincinnati. Master Miles Smith is a coming pianist.

Miss Daisy Harding's recitations were par excellence. She recites with a grace and ease seldom seen in an amateur and her rendition of either pathetic, humorous or sentimental selections are all good, it being difficult to decide at which she is best. The singing of Mr. Periclese Grubbs and his sister, Mrs. Pickleheimer, was a great feature of the evening, and they were compelled to respond to numerous encores. They are sweet singers, and their first efforts never fail to capture their audience, which grows more enthusiastic, as they continue to entertain. They are certainly the most accommodating vocalists to be found, and always readily respond to the requests of friends to assist in musicals.

The large stock barn of George W. Sleet, an ex-Boone countian, was destroyed by fire on Monday night of last week, together with several hundred bushels of old corn and a horse. Origin of fire unknown. Loss partially covered by insurance. One of his sons arrived at home about 11 o'clock that night and stabled his horse in the barn, but noticed nothing wrong. In about two hours the barn was discovered on fire and falling in.

UNDER HORSES' HOOFS

The Cavalry Rode Down Strikers in South Russia.

About a Dozen Men Were Killed and 600 Injured—Quarter of a Million Men Are Affected By the Gigantic Strike.

London, Aug. 7.—The Daily Mail's Nikolaiff correspondent, under date of August 2, fully confirms the Times correspondent's accounts of strikes in South Russia. The correspondent says that a quarter of a million men are affected and that simultaneously strikes occurred over a vast industrial area. He says that the amount of studied organization and well concealed preparations was unprecedented in the troubled annals of Russian labor.

Prices of the necessaries of life are rising by leaps and bounds. Groups of men who assembled last Saturday with the intention of holding a meeting were driven into a solid mass by 500 Cossacks, backed by two lines of infantry with fixed bayonets. About 2,000 strikers being thus enclosed by a double cordon.

The Cossacks rode through them, striking right and left with heavy whips, the fallen men being trampled under the horses' feet.

When the living mass had been thoroughly kneaded to the governor's will, continues the correspondent, numerous men were arrested as suspected agitators. The infantry then marched off and the strikers scattered in a dozen directions with Cossacks at their heels. It is reported that 600 strikers were more or less seriously injured and that from six to a dozen succumbed. The whole affair is a typical piece of administrative savagery. The extraordinary feature of the movement at Odessa is that the police and gendarmes belonging to one depot threatened to throw off their uniforms and risk all the terrors of insubordination unless the miserable pittance of 11 to 14 pence, which they are allowed daily, was increased and the hours of labor reduced. Siberia is losing its terrors even for Russian policemen.

The epidemic of incendiarism is spreading through Russia. Scarcely a day passes without news of conflagrations. At Baku alone, the destruction has been colossal. Tens of millions of gallons of naptha have been burned. In 24 of the largest towns the damage from fire during the past month is estimated at $30,000,000 to $35,000,000. The object of most of the fires is to get insurance money. Many of the incendiaries are Jews and the insurance companies in some cases have raised premiums 50 per cent. Public opinion in Odessa is entirely on the side of the striking sailors and strikers. A wealthy company which has been employing men for years has only paid sailors at the rate of 28 shillings a month.

BARGE FOUNDERED.

Captain's Wife, Two Boys, Engineer and the Cook Drowned.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 7.—The barge Florrie, in tow of the tug Boswell, while on its way from Norfolk to Providence, foundered early Wednesday morning between Barnegat and Fire Island during a heavy northeast storm. Capt. Cobb, of the barge, and one of the deck hands were saved, but Mrs. Cobb, a 10-year-old son, a boy of the name of Jones, who was making the trip with the captain, the engineer and the cook of the barge went down with the vessel and were lost.

COLOR LINE DRAWN.

Petty Officers on Board the Columbia Refuse to Mess With a Negro.

New York, Aug. 7.—The color line has been drawn on board the United States receiving ship Columbia, at the Brooklyn navy yard. The chief petty officers have refused to mess with a Negro who has just been sworn in as chief carpenter's mate. They have asserted their unwillingness to associate with him in any way, or to receive or carry out any orders that may come to them through him in the line of duty.

Isaac Miller, the chief carpenter's mate, is not a full blooded Negro. He has been in the navy many years and has a good record. For a long time prior to his recent promotion, which was for merit, he ranked as carpenter's mate of the first-class. When Miller appeared at the chief petty officers' mess on Wednesday eight other members of the mess arose and left the table when he sat down. Miller ate his dinner as if nothing out of the ordinary had happened. Since then he has had no company at his meals. He has been allowed, when he reached the table first, to eat alone, and when others have preceded him, he has waited until they finished eating. Capt. Snow said Miller's rights would be protected as the navy makes no distinction as to color.

NEW KIND OF MONEY.

Government About to Adopt New Process For Making Paper.

Washington, Aug. 7.—It is safe to say that the days of the "crisp banknote" are numbered. Instead of being crisp, the money which the government bureau of engraving and printing will hereafter turn out will be soft and velvety. The prediction is made that the experiments which have been carried on for some time will prove satisfactory, as they have been almost entirely completed. The result of the adoption of the new secret process will be to revolutionize a portion of the work connected with the printing of paper money of the United States. Under the new process it will take just 60 days less time to manufacture a banknote than under the present method, which is regarded as extremely important in the present commercial era, when new money is sometimes demand immediately, and to supply which the government has to lay most careful plans and keep banknotes printed ahead. Besides rendering the paper soft and velvety, the new process also makes it non-shrinkable.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH.

A Successful Test Made of the Overland System.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 7.—A practical test overland of the De Forest wireless telegraph system was made Thursday. Signals were received from Buffalo, a distance of 180 miles, direct, three-fourths of this distance being overland. The tests were conducted personally by Lee De Forest, who came to Cleveland for that purpose. The experiments lasted several hours, the communications received consisting of cipher and wireless code messages. No attempt was made at sending replies, the sending apparatus not being as yet properly adjusted. It is said that the messages received Thursday were sent a longer distance overland than has heretofore been accomplished.

DELAYED THE MAILS.

Steamship Fireman on Adm. Schley Placed Under Arrest.

Boston, Aug. 7.—John Keenan, a steamship fireman, who after signing articles to ship with the steamship Adm. Schley, a vessel carrying mail to Port Antonio, Jamaica, declined to make the trip and in so doing, delayed the mail about three-quarters of an hour on Wednesday, was held for the grand jury by United States Commissioner Fiske Thursday, charged with retarding the United States mails.

NEW RAILROAD LINE.

It Is to Run From Galveston, Tex., to Winnipeg, Man.,

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 7.—The Kansas Central, Oklahoma & Gulf Railroad Co., with a capital stock of $20,000,000, was granted a charter Thursday. The purpose of the company is to construct a line of railroad from Enid, Okla., to a terminal of the Cuban Eastern railway on the United States naval reservation at Guantanamo bay, were warned off by the American officers there, but refused to go. Adm. Coghlan thereupon notified the Cuban government and President Palma sent a revenue cutter which forcibly ejected the trespassers. The railway, having acquired the land, claims heavy damages.

CIRCUS TRAIN WRECK.

Twenty-Three People Killed and a Large Number Hurt.

One Elephant and Two Camels Were Killed Outright, While the Other Animals of the Menagerie and Their Trainer Escaped.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 8.—An air brake on the second section of Wallace Bros.' circus train refused to work in the Grand Trunk railway yards here early Friday, causing a collision between the two sections. The circus train was in two sections of about 25 cars each. After Thursday night's exhibition at Charlotte the two trains left for Lapeer over the Grand Trunk road, the second section leaving a half hour after the first. It was 3:45 o'clock when the first section pulled into the west end of the Grand Trunk yards here. A red light was hung on the rear car to stop the second section. Engineer Probst, of Battle Creek, who was running the engine of the rear train, says he saw this light and applied the air brakes. To his horror, it refused to work. He reversed his engine, but the momentum of the train behind was too great, and with a crash that aroused all of the town near the yards, the two trains met. Three cars of the stationary first section were telescoped and the engine and five cars of the moving train were demolished. The rear car of the first section was a caboose, in which the trainmen were sleeping, and the next two were filled with sleeping circus employes.

The greatest loss of life was in the caboose. One of the wrecked cars of the second section was occupied by five elephants and several camels. One of the elephants and two camels were killed outright, while the other animals and their trainer escaped. With the exception of this car none of the menagerie was wrecked, the other demolished cars containing canvas or wagons, and there was comparatively little excitement among the wild animals.

The death list stood Friday night at 23, seven of whom are in the morgue unidentified. Coroner Farrer Friday afternoon impaneled a jury, viewed the remains and adjourned until August 14, when the inquest will be held.

In discussing the question of responsibility for the horror the railroad officials unhesitatingly lay it to Engineer Probst, of the second section of the train, whose home is in Battle Creek. Probst says that the air brakes on his train refused to work, but the officials declare that he could have stopped the train in time to avoid serious consequences. General Manager F. H. McGuigan said Friday afternoon:

"Probst knew that he was coming into a yard where trains usually stand and take on coal and water. The rules say plainly that engineers shall approach such yards with the trains under control. A brakeman sent back by the first train warned him of the danger three-quarters of a mile before he got to the standing section. For nearly half a mile before he got to the first train the track is straight and clear and he should have been able to see the red light on the back of the train ahead in time to stop his train."

The official report on the accident issued by Superintendent Brownlee declares positively that the airbrakes have been tested since the accident and found to be in perfect condition and there is evidence that they were not applied.

E. A. Guillame, of Louisville, has telegraphed to Mayor Potter inquiring whether his brother was killed, and it is believed that he may be one of the unidentified dead.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—Twenty-two of the injured circus men were brought to Detroit Friday afternoon in a special hospital train and taken to Harper hospital. At the hospital it was stated that none of them was likely to die Friday night, although John Thomson, of Peru, Ind.; Geo. Clough, of Geneva, O., and James Stewart, of Denver, are in a serious condition and may not recover.

TRIP AROUND THE WORLD.

A Newspaper Man Making An Effort to Break the Record.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 8.—According to a cable received Friday, J. W. Sayer, who is traveling around the world for the Seattle Times in an effort to break the best previous record, sailed Friday from German on the steamer Campania and will reach Seattle in just 55 days after he left. If he makes it in 55 days he will have broken the world's record of 60 days 16½ hours, made by Charles C. Fitzmorris. Mr. Sayer is making his trip entirely by public conveyances.

TESTIMONY IS ALL IN.

The Defense in the Marcum Murder Trial Rested.

Eight Arguments Will Be Made, Four For the Prosecution and Four For the Defense—Case Will Go to the Jury in a Few Days.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 7.—Thursday afternoon Capt. B. B. Golden, one of the attorneys for the defense, announced that their side rested as to evidence in chief.

In the case of commonwealth of Kentucky against Curtis Jett and Tom White, on trial here for the killing of James B. Marcum, the day was principally taken up in the impeaching of the morality and truthfulness of Capt. B. J. Ewen, one of the main witnesses for the prosecution. Some 25 witnesses from his own county and other witnesses from Powell county, where he resided until he moved to Jackson, some ten years ago, testified that his morality was bad as well as his reputation for truthfulness. At the same time some of them testified that he was a church goer, a constant attendant on Sunday-school, that he never drank whisky or gambled at all.

Many of them were confused on cross-examination, especially those from Breathitt county, by the fact of their being strongly allied to the Hargis faction in Breathitt county, and attempting to prove what was said to them about Ewen's character by men who had a criminal record. The best impeaching evidence was offered by a number of citizens of Powell county, including among their number the county judge, the sheriff and others who had the appearance of being well to do men who testified to Ewen's bad reputation as to morality and truthfulness among his neighbors, although each of these witnesses as far as their personal opinion was concerned testified without exception that he paid his debts promptly, never drank, never gambled and attended church regularly while residing among them.

"Tickle" Jim Bach, who testified several days ago for the defense, was contradicted by the witnesses Russell, for the prosecution, and also by Cy Holland. Tickle swore he had seen the killing several days ago, and these witnesses say that Tickle told them that he did not see the killing and that he was glad he did not see it.

The commonwealth is making preparations to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Tickle Bach and John L. Noble, called "Rat Ankle." They will be charged with false swearing.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 8.—In the famous case of the commonwealth of Kentucky against Curtis Jett and Thomas White, after 11 days trial of the case, and in which all points were hotly contested by able attorneys representing both sides, the commonwealth rested its case on rebuttal at 4:01 Friday afternoon. The defense at 4:30 announced that they were through with their side of the case.

The day was entirely taken up in introducing witnesses on rebuttal by both sides and at times very acrimonious debates were had by the opposing counsel on disputed points at law.

Robert Davidson, Abner Eversole, James B. Little, Abe Short, L. T. Bolin, Robert Fulkerson, Hardin Childers, Wiley H. Combs, N. E. Combs, J. H. Blanton and M. Forbes, witnesses for the rebuttal on prosecution, all of whom presented a very respectable appearance, testified to the good character and truthfulness of B. J. Ewen, the leading witness for the prosecution and the only one who testified that he saw the man who fired the shot that killed Marcum. They were rigidly cross-examined but stood their examination well.

Joe Moore was placed on the stand by the defense to prove that on the morning of the killing Jett was holding his hand in such a manner to his front side as to indicate that the right hand was crippled. One of the grounds of the defense is that Jett's hand was so crippled by being mashed by a log a few weeks before the killing of Marcum, that it was a physical impossibility for him to use a pistol.

Eight arguments will be made in the case, four on each side. Messrs. J. I. Blanton, W. T. Lafferty, B. B. Golden and James D. Black will speak for the defense. Messrs. Thomas D. Marcum, brother of the dead man, and a criminal lawyer of some note in Muscogee, I. T., and County Attorney J. Stanley Webster, Col. A. F. Byrd and Commonwealths Attorney Fryer will address the jury for the prosecution. The arguments will begin in the case Saturday morning at 8:30. Instructions were not given to the jury Friday evening, but will be read to them immediately upon the convening of court Saturday morning and before the first argument.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

POPE'S CORONATION.

Seventy Thousand People Witness the Ceremony.

It is 57 Years Since the Romans and Europe Assisted in Such a Function—Roman Nobles and Diplomats Were Present.

Rome, Aug. 10.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X. took place Sunday in the basilica of St. Peter's in the presence of the princes and high dignitaries of the church, diplomats and Roman nobles, and with all the solemnity and splendor associated with this, the most magnificent rite in the Roman Catholic church. As Cardinal Macchi, the dean of the cardinal deacons, placed the triple crown on the head of the venerable pontiff, the throng of 70,000 persons gathered within the cathedral burst into unrestrained acclamations, the choir intoned a hymn of triumph and the bells of Rome rang out a joyful peel.

THE CORONATION.
Placing the Tiara Upon the Pope's Head.

Europe assisted in such a function as was held in St. Peter's Sunday.

The Papal Procession.

Inside the vatican palace there was movement and bustle as the papal procession, composed of about 500 persons, all of whom had gathered early in the apostolic palace, was formed. As the procession moved through the magnificent halls and corridors of the vatican it recalled former days when all was color and picturesqueness within the palace. The central figure in the long procession was Pius X.

Another figure which evoked murmurs of admiration and craning of necks was the chaplain in his crimson cape, proudly bearing the cushion on which reposed the famous triple crown so soon to rest on the head of Pius.

THE PONTIFF ENTERS.

He Was Received By the Audience With Great Acclamations.

The low ceiling sent back an exquisite echo of the "Tues Petrus" sung by the Sistine choir, whose voices were heard outside in the plazzaz of St. Peters. Cardinal Rampolla advanced with dignity, knelt and kissed the foot of the pontiff. He then presented in a firm voice the wishes and greetings of the chapter of St. Peter's, which he said, "I offer an act of obedience to your holiness and wish you a prosperous and glorious pontificate."

The procession re-formed and proceeded to the door of the basilica. On the appearance of the pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him in their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Plus, our pope, our father," and "Long live Pius X." were raised notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the basilica saying, "Acclamations are forbidden."

A quaint ceremony was then carried out. The master of the ceremonies knelt three times before the pontiff, each time lighting a handful of hemp which surmounted a silver torch, and as the flame flashed and then died out he chanted, "Holy Father, thus passeth away the glory of the world."

The procession then proceeded. At the chapel of the sacrament there was another halt, and his holiness left the Sedan chair and prayed at the altar. On re-entering the chair he was carried to the chapel at St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass. The pope was then borne to the throne amid renewed acclamations.

Pontiff Seated on the Throne.

The central figure was the venerable pontiff seated on the throne. Two lines of cardinals clad in silver and scarlet reached to the high altar with its burden of burning candles and sacred vessels, while around stood the papal guards, the pontifical court, monks and officials.

From the throne Pius X., surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. The appearance of the pope in that elevated position called forth another burst of enthusiasm. The pope then blessed the altar, and after saying the "Indulgentiam" the maniple, a symbol of the cord with which Christ was bound on his capture was placed, with great ceremony, upon the pope's arm. At the same time prayers for the coronation were recited by four cardinals. Returning from the crypt, Cardinal Macchi placed upon the shoulders of the pope the pontifical pallium and attached it with three golden jeweled pins, saying:

"Receive this sacred pallium as a symbol of the fulness of the pontifical office, in honor of Almighty God, the most glorious Virgin Mary, his mother, the Blessed Apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and the Holy Roman Catholic Church."

Mass was then celebrated with great

KISSED HIS HANDS AND FEET.

Cardinals Offer Their Last Obedience to the Pontiff.

On the pope's return to the throne the cardinals offered their last obedience to the pontiff, kissing his hands and feet, and receiving embrace by him twice in turn. The bishops and archbishops kissed his foot and right knee, while the abbots kissed only his foot. The holy father then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony.

Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the pontiff's mitre, and Senior Cardinal Deacon Macchi placed on the white head the triple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir.

When comparative silence had been restored Cardinal Macchi addressed the pope in Latin as follows:

"Receive the tiara ornamented with three crowns. Remember thou art the father of princes and kings, the rector of the world, the vicar on earth of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who is the honor and glory of all centuries."

"Amen" again burst forth from the concourse.

NINE VICTIMS ARE DEAD

During a Ball Game Portion of a Grand Stand Fell.

The Club Officials Express Sympathy and Announce That the Immediate Games at the Grounds Will Be Postponed.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—Five additional deaths occurred Sunday as the result of an accident Saturday at the Philadelphia National league baseball park, making a total of nine fatalities. Two hundred victims were treated at the various hospitals and it is believed that fully 100 more received attention at various drug stores in the vicinity of the baseball grounds. Of the injured still in the hospitals four are said to be in a critical condition.

The physicians and nurses at the several hospitals to which the injured were conveyed worked unceasingly throughout Saturday night, securing no rest and taking but little nourishment. Coroner Dugan Sunday began an investigation into the causes of the accident. No date has been set for the inquests, but the coroner said they would be held within ten days.

President Potter of the Philadelphia baseball club, who has been out of the city, arrived Sunday night, accompanied by President Pulliam, of the National league.

Shortly after their arrival a statement was issued by the club officials expressing sympathy for the injured and for the families of the dead and announcing that immediate games would be postponed.

Two games were scheduled between Boston and Philadelphia Saturday afternoon, and the attraction drew over 10,000 persons to the ball park. The accident occurred during the fourth inning of the second game, and was indirectly due to a quarrel between drunken men in the street. The National league stands are built of steel and brick, the brick wall extending entirely around the grounds. At the top of the left field seats and extending from the grand stand to the end of the bleachers there was a walk about three feet wide, which overhung the street. It was this walk that gave way under the heavy weight.

Men who were standing on the walk were attracted by a disturbance in the street. They leaned over the side of the railing to see what was the trouble, and this drew the attention of other spectators, who rushed to the walk to see what was going on below. There were 3,000 persons sitting in the left field bleachers and the roar made by the falling timber caused a panic.

The spectators made a rush down the stand and into the field. Men and boys climbed over one another in an effort to escape, and several persons were hurt in the crush. Outside the grounds for an entire block on Fifteenth street, from Huntington street to Lehigh avenue, men and boys were writhing in pain. Some were buried under the wreckage, others were lying in the gutters and dozens were stretched out on Fifteenth street on the car tracks.

THE PRESIDENT ON LYNCHING.

Gov. Durbin Commended For the Attitude Resumed Recently.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 10.—In a letter, the publication of which was authorized Sunday, President Roosevelt commends Gov. Durbin, of Indiana, for the attitude he assumed recently respecting lynching. The president also embraces the opportunity to express his own views in reference to lynching and mob violence, generally, pointing out that mob violence is merely one form of anarchy and that anarchy is the forerunner of tyranny. The president vigorously urges that the penalty for that crime which most frequently induces a resort to lynching shall be applied swiftly and surely, but by due process of the courts, so that it may be demonstrated "that the law is adequate to deal with crime by freeing it from every vestige of technicality and delay."

"All thoughtful men," says the president, "must feel the gravest alarm over the growth of lynching in this country, and especially over the peculiarly hideous form so often taken by mob violence when colored men are the victims—on which occasions the mob seems to lay most weight, not on the crime, but on the color of the criminal."

WILLIAM E. DODGE.

The New York Millionaire and Philanthropist Dead.

issued, one assigning Lieut. Gen. Young to the command of the army until August 15, when he will assume the duties of chief of staff, another assigning Maj. Gen. Corbin as president of the soldiers' home board, another Brig. Gen. Gillespie as president of the board on ordinance and fortification and still another assigning Lieut. Gen. Young as a member of the Sherman statue commission.

FASTEST TIME ON RECORD.

Run Made From Ocean to Ocean in 73 Hours and 21 Minutes.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 8.—At 1:06 o'clock Friday evening the special train bearing Henry P. Lowe, chief engineer of the United States steel corporation, drew in at LaGrande station, having completed a run from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, a distance of more than 3,300 miles, in the fastest time on record.

Mr. Lowe left New York on Tuesday, August 4, at 2:45 p. m., and arrived in Los Angeles 73 hours and 21 minutes later, one hour and 21 minutes more than three days of actual running time, which includes the three hours gained by running from east to west.

The record breaking run just finished by Mr. Lowe was undertaken to gain the bedside of his 11-year-old daughter, who was dying in Los Angeles. The child died early Thursday morning, but Mr. Lowe was not advised of her death until well on his way.

LOST MONEY IN SPECULATION.

Treasurer of a Preacher's Aid Society a Confessed Defaulter.

Boston, Aug. 8.—In a letter written last Tuesday from Montreal to the pastor of his church in East Boston, Willard S. Allen, treasurer of the Preachers' Aid society of the New England conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, confessed that he was a defaulter to the amount of more than $80,000 of the society's funds.

Mr. Allen has been treasurer of the society for 12 years and clerk of the East Boston district court for 29 years, and for 16 years was a prominent member of the school committee of Boston. He left home about a week ago, without announcing his destination, and the first heard from him was the letter to the East Boston clergyman. Mr. Allen said that he had lost the money in speculation. He requests the minister to notify the members of the Allen family and the officers of the society of his confession.

CHAMPION JEFFRIES.

Appeared at An Entertainment For the Benefit of a Cripple.

San Francisco, Aug. 8.—For the first time since he has been in training, Champion Jeffries sparred in public at Harbin Springs Thursday night. He appeared at an entertainment given for the benefit of a cripple, and boxed three rounds each with Fitzsimmons, Joe Kennedy and Jack Jeffries. He appeared to be in splendid condition, and apparently quicker on his feet than formerly.

DEMAND A NEW VENIRE.

Powers' Attorneys Claim Only Democrats Were Summoned.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 5.—When court convened Tuesday the attorneys for Caleb Powers began a determined fight to prevent going into his third trial for alleged conspiracy in the Goebel killing at this time. Their first step was to offer an affidavit for a continuance, setting forth what certain absent witnesses would prove if present. Simultaneously they offered a plea of abatement, supported by another affidavit, dealing with the matter of the Taylor pardon to Powers. It acts up that, while that pardon was held by the court of appeals to be invalid, the higher court based its decision on the journals of the general assembly, as kept by the officials of the two bodies. It maintains that these journals are in error, and asks the trial judge now to permit them to go behind these records and show that Taylor was not legally unseated and that the pardons he granted are valid. Judge Robbins overruled the motions.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 6.—The 100 veniremen summoned from Bourbon county appeared in court. The day was occupied in their examination. Twelve men were selected, including Charles Penn, who was later excused because of defective hearing. Seven ages were examined and excused before the vacancy was finally filled by George W. Wyatt. The jury as accepted by the commonwealth is as follows:

J. H. Wilson, W. S. Williams, Frank Hazelwood, Albert Mitchell, George Estes, Clay Estes, Tacs. Pagett, John Doty, George Faulconer, Wesley Higgins, Jack Howard and George W. Wyatt.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 7.—When court convened Thursday the attorneys for Caleb Powers stated to the trial judge that they desired to be heard on a motion to dismiss the entire venire of Bourbon county citizens called for jury service, charging the deputy sheriffs had not performed their duty impartially. Judge Robbins heard the matter away from the partially accepted jurors.

The affidavits in support of the motion are by Caleb Powers and Thomas C. Walley, a Bourbon county republican. Both affidavits charge that of 90 veniremen summoned all but two are democrats. They charge that William Rogers and Zach D. Lusby, the deputy sheriffs who summoned the venire, went to Paris and there consulted Jim Burk and Joe Williams, a deputy sheriff and constable respectively, of Bourbon county, and, together with them, summoned the veniremen, purposely passing by republicans to get democrats.

The court, in overruling the motion for a new venire, said: "The sheriff is as much an officer of the court as the judge, and it is presumed will do his duty under his oath. To let the affidavit of a defendant set his work at naught would be expressing no confidence in his work as an officer. Who this other affiant is I do not know, but to have sworn as he did he must have accompanied the sheriff through the county. If you should dismiss a man, reputable and qualified for jury service because of his politics, we could never get a jury to try this or any other case in the commonwealth. I will overrule the motion."

The attorneys for Powers challenged Jurors J. C. Howard, Thos. Padgett, J. F. Hazelwood, J. W. Doty, G. W. Falconer, L. W. Hagan and W. S. Williams. This left five jurors finally accepted by both sides.

J. S. Munson, L. J. Mitchell, Dennis Hanley and Tom Redmond were accepted, and court took a recess, the first 100 veniremen having been exhausted.

Effort to Protect Bull Bats.

Bowling Green, Ky., Aug. 8.—Hunters who are killing bull bats in the absence of doves are to be prosecuted in this county by the League of American Sportsmen, of which R. L. Brashear, of this city, is the local representative. These birds can not be used as food, and, being great destroyers of bugs and insects, are protected by law.

To Auction the Flag.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8.—C. Baumberger, the Swiss consul here, has refused to pay $2.25 duty on a Swiss flag he imported for his office. The flag has been stored in the government bonded warehouse, where it will remain for a year. Then it will be sold at auction.

Toy Pistols Tabooed.

BIG FIRE IN COVINGTON.

Property to the Amount of $175,000 Went Up in Smoke.

Covington, Ky., Aug. 8.—A disastrous fire in this city Friday night caused a loss of over $175,000. The following buildings were destroyed: Consumers Ice Co., Jos Hartke & Co., carriage factory, H. Heile, feed store, New England distillery, Hagers' saloon and the F. Steudebeck & Co. spice mills. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A call for help was sent to the Cincinnati fire department, which responded by sending several engines across the river. With this assistance the fire was gotten under control in a few hours.

The fire originated, apparently, in the carriage manufacturing establishment of J. H. Hartke & Sons, at 69 and 71 Pike street.

Fourteen horses were burned, a corpse in an undertaking establishment was consumed, and ten persons, overcome and suffocating, were rescued. Of the ten rescued nine are of one family, being Mrs. Henry Glindmeyer and her eight children.

Brands from the burning buildings fell in showers on the surorunding property. Householders organized fire brigades, and, armed with garden hose and buckets, they fought the flames on the roofs.

DOERHOEFER'S WILL.

He Leaves His Large Estate in Trust For His Two Sons.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8.—The will of the late John Doerhoefer was probated Friday morning. With the exception of $2,000 for the care of his burial lot and $4,000 to his sister, Fredricka Schindler, Mr. Doerhoefer leaves his estate in trust for his two sons, Louis Peter and John Edward. The estate is valued at from $700,000 to $1,600,000. When the sons reach the age of 30 years each is to receive one-half of his share, and when they reach the age of 40 years they are to receive the other half. However, from the share of each the sum of $25,000 is to be deducted, all to be held in trust during the lives of the sons, they to receive the income. At their death the sum is to go to their heirs.

CASSADY'S THREAT.

Death to Any One Who Bothered Him, But He Was Killed.

Inez, Ky., Aug. 6.—Jacob Cassady was shot and instantly killed by Samuel Rouk at the mouth of Bull creek. Cassady, it is said, stepped into Rouk's restaurant with a shotgun and threatened to kill the first one who bothered him. Rouk's wife attempted to wrench the gun from him, and he filled her face full of shot, whereupon Rouk seized a 22-caliber target rifle and shot him in the head, killing him instantly. No arrests as yet.

Storm Damaged Crops.

Owensboro, Ky., Aug. 6.—The heavy rain storm, accompanied by wind, did great damage to crops Wednesday afternoon. George Birk's store was blown down at Yelvington. Hail fell, beating down corn and tobacco, which was damaged greatly two days ago. Small streams are overflowing the low lands.

Wilbur Hopkins Arrested.

Pineville, Ky., Aug. 8.—Wilbur Hopkins, charged with killing Geo. Cole, at Barbourville, about three years ago, has been arrested by Sheriff Howard near this place. SCHOLARS TO GATHER.

International Congress a Feature at 1904 World's Fair.

WILL ASSEMBLE IN SEPTEMBER.

Most of Science From All Parts of the World Will Convene in St. Louis and in One Week Will Deliver 300 Addresses.

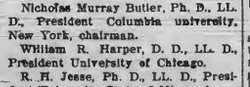
A series of international congresses will be held Sept. 19-25, 1904, at the World's fair. The sum of $200,000 is appropriated to cover the expenses of the international congresses. Such scholars as accept invitations to participate in the congress, and do a specified piece of work in accordance with the plan adopted, will receive an honorarium for papers and traveling expenses. The authorities of the universal exposition have from the first recognized the desirability of providing for a congress which should exceed in its scope anything heretofore attempted. Such a series of congresses is particularly appropriate for the St. Louis exposition, where for the first time the educational influences of an exposition are made the dominant factor, and the classification and installation of exhibits made contributory to that principle.

The administrative work was organized in November, 1902, by the appointment of Howard J. Rogers as Director of Congresses and the election of the following administrative board:

Nicholas Murray Butler, Ph. D., LL. D., President Columbia university, New York, chairman.

William R. Harper, D. D., LL. D., President University of Chicago.

R. H. Jesse, Ph. D., LL. D., President University State of Missouri.



Henry S. Pritchett, Ph. D., LL. D., President Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston.

Herbert Putnam, Litt. D., Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

Frederick J. V. Skiff, Director Field Columbian Museum, Chicago.

Frederick W. Holls, D. C. L., New York, member Hague tribunal.

Dr. Simon Newcomb of Washington, D. C., will be the presiding officer of the International Congress of Arts and Sciences, and for vice presidents will have the assistance of Professor Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard university and Professor Albion W. Small of the University of Chicago.

The Congress of Arts and Sciences will have one definite task: to demonstrate the unity of knowledge, and thus bring harmony and interrelation into the scattered scientific work of our day. Leading scholars from the whole world are to deliver lectures.

The widest group will be the Science of Knowledge, divided into theoretical sciences and practical sciences. The theoretical sciences are divided according to purposes and phenomena into four main divisions: Normative sciences (absolute purposes); historical sciences (individual purposes); physical sciences (absolute phenomena); mental sciences (mental phenomena).

The practical sciences are divided into three main divisions: Utilitarian sciences; regulative sciences; cultural sciences.

These seven main divisions are then subdivided into the following general topics:

Normative Sciences — Philosophy, Mathematics.

Historical Sciences—Politics, Law, Economics, Language and Literature, Education, Art, Religion.

Physical Sciences — Physics and Chemistry, Astronomy, Geology, Biology, Anthropology.

Mental Sciences—Psychology, Sociology.

Utilitarian Sciences—Medical Sciences, Practical Economic Sciences, Technological Sciences.

Regulative Sciences—Practical Political Sciences, Practical Social Sciences, Practical Legal Sciences.

Cultural Sciences—Practical Educational Sciences, Practical Aesthetic Sciences, Practical Religious Sciences.

On Monday the congress will be opened by one address on the "Relation of the Congress to Scientific Progress"; another on the "Unity of Theoretical Sciences." The seven main divisions will also be discussed during the afternoon by an introductory address on the "Fundamental Conceptions" of each special division. Tuesday will be devoted to a consideration of the twenty-five departments of the congress, upon each of which two official addresses will be delivered, one on the history of that special department of knowledge during the last century, and one on its methods. On the remaining four days of the week, two official addresses, one on the relation to other sciences and one on the problems of today, will be delivered, on all but one of the one hundred and thirty sections into which the twenty-five departments are divided. Sunday, the 25th, will be given over to the remaining section, and three addresses made on the "Influence of Religion on Civilization." This will provide for 321 official addresses.

Gained forty Pounds in thirty days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds of flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade on the Tablets.—Holley Bros., Merchants, Long Branch, Mo. For Sale by all Druggists.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE

Thedford's Black-Draught has stood doctors' bills for more than sixty years. For the common family ailments, such as constipation, indigestion, hard colds, bowel complaints, chills and fever, biliousness, headaches and other like complaints no other medicine is necessary. It invigorates and regulates the liver, assists digestion, stimulates action of the kidneys, purifies the blood, and purges the bowels of foul accumulations. It cures liver complaint, indigestion, sour stomach, dizziness, chills, rheumatic pains, sideache, backache, kidney troubles, constipation, diarrhœa, biliousness, piles, hard colds and headache. Every druggist has Thedford's Black-Draught in 25 cent packages and in mammoth size for $1.00. Never accept a substitute. Insist on having the original made by the Chattanooga Medicine Company.

I believe Thedford's Black-Draught is the best medicine on earth. It is good for any and everything. I have a family of twelve children, and for four years I have kept them on foot and healthy with no doctor but Black-Draught. A. J. GREEN, Silvara, La.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19, 1903. NO. 44

County Correspondence.

WALTON.

Luther West has moved to Erlanger.

Miss Ida Graham, the popular dressmaker, has returned home after a pleasant visit in the blue grass regions.

Frank Rouse and wife, of Limaburg, were visiting Mrs. Rouse's parents, Jas Hedges and wife, of this place, last Sunday.

Miss Effie J. Lemond is enjoying her well earned vacation in a visit to her brother, Charles A. Lermond, at Elwood, Ind.

Noah Glasscock has for the past two weeks been very busy at the South Fork getting John Stall's tobacco ready for the Louisville market.

Brithelm Bros., have bought of Fritz Voltz, and his daughter, Mrs. Pangle, the property north of Dr. Bagby's residence, for the sum of $900.

Tom Stevens caught a 3 pound bass at the canning factory pond, and it attracted as much attention while he was coming home, as a dog fight.

J. J. Cleek has sold from his farm just north of town, this season, $175 worth of damsons, and $100 worth of blue plums. The damson crop is not exhausted yet.

Mr. Geo. Laws drove down to South Fork on Saturday, and says there has never been raised such a crop of tobacco in that part of the county as will be grown there this year.

There was a pleasant reunion of the Roberts family at the old homestead on last Sunday. Mr. Hugh Roberts and sister, Miss Graham, did the honors on the occasion in the most approved style.

Miss Sallie Rogers, Mrs. Ruth Hind and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rogers attended the Primitive Baptist Association at Connersville, Ind., last week. They are loud in their approbation of the hospitality and brotherly affection manifested by the Association.

Mr. and Mrs. John Watson and family, excepting Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Byland, Howard Byland, Mrs. Moda and Miss Lillie Ingram, Mrs. DeJarnette and Mr. and Mrs. Jones, constituted the agreeable party that made the trip to High Bridge on Sunday the 9th inst.

Miss Gertrude Curley has returned from a six weeks' visit to relatives in Covington. Her sister, Pauline, thinking that her older sister was staying too long, went down after four weeks ago, and is there yet, determined, as her father says, to get the most out of her vacation. So Miss Pauline may be expected home a short time before the school begins. Least Mr. Curley should feel lonely during the absence of his daughter, Mrs. Curley has three or four of Will Northcutt's daughters from Covington, and the house doesn't seem to be deserted.

ERLANGER

Aug 17.—Miss Ida Zinn, of Erlanger road, had for her guests this last week, Misses Anna and Ida Smith, of Cincinnati.

Dr. Neal Duval, of Elliston, Ky., was visiting friends here last week.

Miss Minnie Hilker has for her guest Mr. John Rohlmoon, of Columbus, O.

Mrs. Minnie Wolfe, of Georgetown, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Rosa Finnell.

Jack Johnson, is having a pleasant visit in Frankfort, the guest of his mother.

Mr. Mathew Huerkamp, one of our most prominent citizens, died Saturday night of blood poison.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tanner, of Richwood, were pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Sarah Ballard, last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Tanner and daughter, Miss Muree, are visiting their mother, Mrs. J. C. Tanner.

The Camping Club gave an ice cream Social, Saturday evening, at the home of Mr. Warner Sayers. It was quite a success.

LUDLOW.

A farmer came to town a few days ago and bought a load of coal, but, before he got out of town he was notified that he would have to deposit $10 in bank to the city's credit. Not being willing for the load of coal to cost him $13, it was agreed that he might take the coal back to the yard and dump it, and quietly leave the town.

W. D. Collins drives into Ludlow from his country residence, and takes the street cars to his place of business. He has been ordered to pay his license. He now wants to sell his stock in the bank, so that he can withdraw his deposits and shake the dust of Ludlow from his feet.

E. S. Lee, cashier of the First National Bank, Covington, drives into Ludlow and leaves his vehicle. He has been informed that he can get his mail and transact business at the bank without paying a license. He thought of some medicine he wanted, and was told he could not buy it here without violating a city law.

Spinks' wagons are hauling 5 tons of cement at a load over the streets, and pay no license. He does business with the sand bank, which is closely connected with the National Bank.

The bank officials enjoy telling that their watchman is laying for McNeal when he comes out in his buggy.

At the urgent request of his friends John Bell has consented to become a candidate for council on the anti-license ticket. The citizens are sorry that the term of the present mayor does not expire this fall so they could elect Mr. Bell to that office, as they have great confidence in his ability to manage the affairs of the city.

J. H. Lahman, of the Globe Tea Co., has established a market at Bromley, where he meets the farmers and buys their produce. His lady clerks have returned from the sea shore, looking like American beauties.

PETERSBURG.

Aug. 17.—W. F. Hensly bought A. J. Buchanan's property in the New Addition.

Mr. and Mrs. D. James French Strother, of Baltimore, Md.; Miss Birdie Burnett, of Louisville, and Ernest Grant and family, visited Mrs. Agnes Grant, last Thursday.

The large building occupied by Berkshire, McWethy & Co. as a warehouse, was destroyed by fire last night. It contained about 12,000 pounds of tobacco valued at $800, on which there was no insurance. The building belonged to Freiburg & Workum, of Cincinnati. Origin of the fire is a mystery.

A Tribute of Respect to the Memory of Mrs. Maria Terrill, who Departed this Life July 20th, 1903, aged 60 yrs. and 7 months.

Whereas, God called sister Terrill to "come up higher," a gloom was cast over the entire community, a vacancy was made in both church and community, as she was a good neighbor, kind in works of charity, strong in the faith of her church (Methodist), decided and conscientious in the discharge of her duty; always at her post, ready to perform every duty in church or community. Active in every pursuit of life, she will be missed. She had a kind and tender heart, full of love and sympathy. She being one of the charter members of the Epworth League of Petersburg (Terrill Chapter), an oldest member and one always interested in its every department of work, we therefore offer the following resolutions:

1st. That in the departure of sister Maria Terrill from among us, the Epworth League of the M. E. Church South suffers the loss of one of its best and most faithful supporters—one who was first and foremost in all of its interests; was ever active in the "Mercy and Help Department," as well as contributing to its social and financial interests. Her place can not be filled. Having been a faithful worker in the Master's vineyard, she has gone to her reward—an inheritance incorruptible.

2d. That these resolutions be spread upon the pages of the Secretary's book and a copy be given the family, and, also, be published in the Central Methodhist and the Boone Co. Recorder.

WATERLOO.

Died, August 10th, 1903, Alma Nora, daughter of Plummer and Eliza Gully. She died of Cholera Infamtum, aged 9 months and 10 days. She was sick only a few hours. The remains were interred in the cemetery at Bellevue at 2 p. m., last Tuesday. We feel much grieved because of the death of our loved one, but trust to God Who does all things well; for it is God that giveth and God that taketh away. She has left a vacant place in our home that can not be filled. But we are comforted by the Spirit of God. She passed quietly from this world of sin to that Heavenly Kingdom to dwell forever with God and His angels. At times we have all felt that we have nothing to live for, but this sorrow has brought us nearer to God, and we hope to meet her in that sweet home of glory. We feel very grateful to our friends and neighbors and heartily thank them for their kindness during this time of need. As I am thinking of the dear one these words come to me:

Sleep on, dear Alma,
Take thy rest.
God called thee home—
He thought it best.

—Written by her sister, Cecil C. McMullen.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes, of DuPont, Ga., "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by All Druggists.

Not Over-Wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognised as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by All Druggists.

Pastor Slater appealed very earnestly to those who had never confessed Christ and his labors were rewarded by three additions to the church, Mr. and Mrs. Webber, and Noah Zimmerman.

BEAVER.

Friday evening August 14th was a gladsome occasion for the "D. Q. R." club of Beaverlick neighborhood, and its many pleasant guests from other places. The event was the entertainment by the club at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Garrison, whose palatial home was thrown open for this festive gathering. Progressive games and recitations by Miss Bessie Bedinger constituted the program of entertainment for the evening.

The dining room was artistically decorated with rare and seasonable cut flowers and smilax with nooks and corners beautifully set off with palms and ferns. A most delicious lunch was served.

It was a typical Southron's openhouse festivity and the old time Kentucky hospitality reigned supreme. The chivalric gallant was everywhere and superlative Southern beauty, clad in the flimiest and dauntiest of summer gowns with becoming creations was truly such a prominent feature and so universal of this assemblage that in justice, no special mention could be made. The members of this club are Mrs. E. C. Garrison, Misses Alva Williams, Helen Dickey, Nellie Cleek, Martha Lassing, Anna Hudson, Katheryn Green, Mattie Hudson, Sara Bedinger, Bessie Bedinger, Alpha Hance, Pearl Hughes, and the guests were Misses Lillian Scott, Lydia Shinkle, Nina Dickey, Jeanette Chambers, Messrs. John Bedinger, Sydney Hudson, Jim Huey, Robert Green, Arthur Rouse, Marion Hudson, David Marshall Joseph Huey, Clint Blankenbeker, Jake Cleek, Chas. Roberts, Elbert Rouse, Boyd Hudson and Kerk West.

BELLEVIEW.

The roof is on the Baptist church.

Mrs. Pearl Rice has a good milch cow for sale.

Chas. Deck has about recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

James Rogers has the slate roof on his new residence completed.

Watermelon wagons are on the move, and melons are bringing fair prices.

Archie Rouse and wife, of Hathaway, were guests of G. T. Rue and wife, last Sunday.

Next Saturday the stock of drugs, &c. of the late O. Grant, of this place, will be sold at public sale.

Not as large crowd attended the Lawrenceburg fair from here, last Saturday, as usual on that day.

Miss Rose Lindenburn, and Henry Lindenburn and wife, of Newport, are visiting friends here.

L. L. Snyder and wife of spent several days last week with their daughter, Mrs. Ira Powell, of Indiana.

Elbert Clore is now ready to accept contracts for hauling. His mother has purchased him a horse and wagon.

Miss Sallie Cutchen, who was the guest of her aunt, Miss Julia Dinamore, for a week or more, returned to her home in New York, last Thursday.

Al Rogers has been installed as postmaster here. Al is the man for the place. Mrs. Josie Grant will assist him for a few days until he becomes better acquainted with the duties.

The Church and Sunday School election of officers resulted as follows: Sister Clara Smith, church treas.; Clarence McCarty, sec'y.; Chas. H. Acra, treasurer of Sunday School.

Died—On last Thursday, of flux, infant child of Perry Presser and wife. Its remains were interred in the new cemetery Friday at 3 p. m., in the presence of a large crowd, who sympathize with the bereaved parents.

HEBRON.

C. T. Davis, of Ludlow, spent Sunday with his mother here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Newman are the guests of Wm. Clayton and family.

Mrs. J. C. Cornelius, of Ludlow, is spending a week with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tanner, of Limaburg, were visiting relatives here Sunday.

Miss Carrie Aylor entertained the young people of this vicinity with a party Saturday night.

Geo. Gordon attended the Souther reunion at the home of his sister, Mrs. Malcus Heather, Sunday.

—B. S. Clore and J. W. Riddell, two former Boone countians, made a flying trip to Hebron, Sunday.

Misses Carrie and Callie Lee Clore were visiting at Crescent Springs, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Miss Blanch Hicks, of Covington, returned to her home in Covington, after a months' visit with relatives here.

Every one started out Monday morning making arrangements to attend the big Boone County fair, next week.

A number from here went to Constance to witness the balloon ascension at Riverview Park, Sunday afternoon. The aeronaut came across the river and came down just south of Bruce Anderson's, on the river hill.

FLICKERTOWN

Very few from here attended the Lawrenceburg fair last week.

Jim Snyder sold a horse to Indiana parties last week. Price, $50.

The Woolper and Gasburg teams will play a game of ball here Saturday, the 22d.

Wm. Smith, of Addyston, Ohio, was looking after his interests here last week.

W. C. Hensley recently purchased a driving horse from Gilly Weistcie. Price not known.

Bee men say the bees have made more honey this year than they have for several years.

George Weindel and bride will go to Milldale next week, where he will work at the coopers trade.

The recent rains have been of great benefit to the crops here, and most of the corn will make a fair yield.

Miss Karma Cason returned to her home in Covington, last Friday, after a pleasant visit with relatives here.

Wheat in this neighborhood made a poor yield. Gaines Bros. had the largest crop in the neighborhood, 659 bushels.

Noah Clore and Leslie Nichols passed here last Thursday on their way to the Lawrenceburg fair with a couple of fine colts.

Charlie Hensley says his bees have made about 300 lbs. of honey this season. He has sold nearly all of it at 15c per pound.

A game of ball was played here last Thursday between the home team and a picked nine—score 9 to 8 in favor of the picked nine.

D. M. Hewett and Sons finished threshing and pulled their machine home last week. They did much better work than the machine that threshed here last year.

Our old friend, George Weindel, formerly of the U. S. Navy, and Miss Pearl Sebree, of this neighborhood, were quietly married at the residence of Dr. W. J. Weindel in Petersburg, Sunday evening the 9th, inst. They were serenaded Monday night by the 11th pan brigade, and Tuesday night they were visited by about 25 of their friends from Petersburg, who made things lively with all kinds of instrumeutal music until a late hour. Your scribe joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy life.

J. R. Carpenter is shipping milk to French Bros., of Cincinnati.

Rev. Dilley preached his farewell sermon Sunday morning at Mt. Zion church.

Miss Virginia Conner, of Union, was the pleasant guest of Miss Johnnie Carpenter, last week.

Miss Georgie Woodyard, of Covington, is the pleasant guest of Misses Clara and Nellie Tanner.

Rev. Gibbs, Miss DeMarques and Miss Ransalaer, of Ludlow, were guests of John Ransalaer, last week.

Dogs got into Hartsock and Webers sheep and killed 4 and crippled nearly all the remainder of their bunch of 14.

B. F. Norman has made quite an improvement in the road adjoining the Aunt Betsy Marshall homestead, by widening it and cutting the rock steps out and leveling the road.

Excelsior Grange met Saturday and elected Walter Grubbs and wife delegates to the State Grange in Bracken. Jerry W. Dixon and Miss Lillie Hammond were elected alternates.

Ed Rice is trying to sell his 5 year old mare, A funny thing happened here, one day last week. Ed was here and someone called him upon Ben Bedinger's phone. Ed was asked all about his mare, and finally made engagement to meet the buyer next Sunday. Eli Carpenter had gone across the road to Jackson's store and called Ed up, and gave him tatty for ten minutes or more, when they were not a 100 feet apart.

For Sale—20 nice shoats. Address Clayton Walton, R. R. 1, Ludlow, Ky.

A good rain any time this week will be a great benefit to the fair next week.

Supt. Snyder attended the Dearborn county, Indiana, Teachers' Institute in session at Lawrenceburg, yesterday. He was very much entertained by the proceedings.

Getting Back Into the Harness

David in the Fifty-First Psalm Points the Way Back to God and His Service.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, Aug. 16, 1903.

Text—"Create for me a clean heart, O God; and renew a steadfast spirit within me. Cast me not away from Thy presence; and take not Thy Holy Spirit from me. Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation; and uphold me with a willing spirit. Then will I teach transgressors Thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto Thee." Psalm 51:10-13. (Revised version, marginal reading.)

OUR text is a prayer—a fervid prayer rising from the lips of a man whose heart is crushed with a sense of his own miserable failure and awful sin, but whose faith and repentance pave the way which leads back to God and His blessed service. The Psalm from which it is taken is the concluding chapter of a story of sin and its deplorable consequences. Sin had severed fellowship with God, and terminated acceptable and efficient service. In an unguarded moment, while yielding to the ease and luxury of his royal state, he slipped the traces of uprightness and bolted off into the enticing meadows of sin. He gratified his desires, but at fearful cost. He sacrificed his peace of mind and heart, and destroyed his power for good. As the days came and went he groped in the dark, while he sought to find light in himself and tried to justify himself by the conduct of the kings of the nations about him. That which he had done was only the common practice of kings and rulers of his day. No one in the kingdom dared call into question the acts of the great King David. He was not in danger of punishment at the hands of the nation. But, notwithstanding this, those were days of darkness to the king who had fellowshiped with God and performed His service. The distress and disquiet and darkness of those days can be realized only in the light of David's open confession and his yearning appeal.

HOW common is the experience of David among Christians, of sinful indulgence, of separation from God. Days of darkness come. The inspiration for service has died out. The sense of joy in the salvation of the Lord has been lost. There may be the perfunctory discharge of religious duties, even as there was probably with David during the period of his sinfulness and separation from God. Oh! how often the Christian goes on in this condition! No wonder he gets no joy out of his service. No wonder there is dissatisfaction and discouragement. No wonder that, if he fails to go to God with full confession of sin against Him, and pleads not for the cleansed heart and the new infilling of the Spirit, gradually he gets farther and farther away in the darkness and finally gives up even the outward display of devotion and service to God and His cause. Nearly every Christian has the experience of slipping from the blessed yoke which he is sharing with the Christ who has redeemed him, and of wandering off and browsing in the attractive fields of the world's pleasures and sins, but so few, comparatively, are like David in humble confession and earnest pleading in faith for cleansing and reinstatement. There is a great deal of unyoking, but so little yoking up again. The Christian gets out of the harness which enables him to do effective service for the Lord, but he does not always get back into the harness again. As we have said, he goes on with his accustomed religious duties and devotions, but the inspiration and joy of service are lost because of unconfessed sin and separation from God. No amount of subsequent service and faithfulness can cover up the sin that is festering in the heart, or restore to working fellowship with God.

IT TAKES a heart that is cleansed from all sin and hands which have been washed from iniquity to render acceptable service to God. In the twenty-fourth Psalm David asks: "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully." This was the spirit and purpose of Jesus' teaching when He said: "If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." The gift on the altar is representative of Christian service, but before it can be accepted there must be a cleaning up of old scores; wrongs must be righted; confessions must be made; sins must be cleansed; hands must be purified. It was the consciousness of this which bowed a great and mighty king in the dust of confession and repentance, and made him plead the prayer of our text: "Create for me a clean heart, O God; and renew a steadfast spirit within me. Cast me not away from Thy presence, and take not Thy Holy Spirit from me. Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation; and uphold me with a willing spirit." Why? Listen: "Then will I teach transgressors Thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto Thee." David was conscious that his sin had separated him from God and unfitted him for service. He was no longer able to teach transgressors the ways of the Lord, nor lead sinners into the light of salvation. And instead of persisting in the effort of a Christian life and service which would be painful, and unsatisfactory and unfruitful, he sought with earnestness of purpose to get back into the harness where he could feel the comradeship and fellowship of his Lord and know that he was working effectively for Him.

MY CHRISTIAN friend, my brother or sister in Christ, has sinful indulgence of the inner life or the outward conduct, has sin of omission or of commission, has neglect or indifference, or willful desire, interrupted your fellowship with your Lord, and taken away your sense of joy in the saving Lord and His blessed service? Has there come a deadness in your Christian life, which makes of the Christian life and service a painful duty? Have you gone on in blind desperation and discouragement? Have you somehow thought to earn your way back to the Lord? He is for you by your feverish zeal endeavored to wipe out past sins and failures? Perhaps you have. We all are so apt to do so. It is so hard to get away down in the dust of humility and confess sin and plead for forgiveness and cleansing. The pride of the heart keeps us from bending our knees and opening our hearts to the searchlight of God's purity and the cleansing of Christ's shed blood. We go on, and on, but transgressors are not taught the way of the Lord, and sinners are not converted. What we need is what David needed. The cry of the Psalmist must pour from our lips. We must walk the pathway of confession and repentance so that we may again be yoked up with Christ and with Him perform joyful and efficient service.

HAVING gained the presence of the Lord by confession and repentance, David pleads for six things as essential to equipment for service. He longs to get back into the harness of his Lord's service again. He wants to teach transgressors the ways of the Lord; he wants to lead sinners to salvation. He knows he is not fitted to do so, but he knows the Lord can equip him. He asks first for a clean heart. "Create for me a clean heart, O God!" This God only can do. Man can sweep and garnish the old natural heart, but it takes God to creat a clean heart. You remember Jesus' parable of the man who drove out the unclean spirit from his heart and swept and garnished it, and how later seven other spirits more evil than the first came back in his company and took possession of the heart which the man had cleaned. It is always so when man undertakes the task of his own heart cleaning. Failure and disappointment must always mark such attempt, for God is the only one who can successfully perform the task. David does not ask God to patch up the old heart, but pleads for the creation of a clean heart, as though there was nothing which David could provide which would make any kind of a presentable heart. What is needed in his case is a creation, not a making over.

During house-cleaning time last spring wife and I spread out an old rug which we thought contained abundant good material for a smaller made-over rug, but when we came to examine carefully preparatory to the making of the new rug we found that the remnants of the old rug were so utterly worthless that it was out of the question to use it. David spread his heart out before the Lord and when he saw its filth and worthlessness he gave up the thought of reconstruction and at once pleaded for the creation of something new. Somehow or other these hearts of ours appear pretty good and able to supply abundant material out of which to construct a clean heart, but when we put it into God's hands for remaking He begins to show us that what He has declared regarding the human heart—that it is "deceitful above all things and desperately wicked"—is true, and we turn hopelessly from ourselves and plead David's prayer: "Create for me a clean heart, O God."

DAVID'S second request was for a "steadfast spirit." With David it was a desire for renewal of that which he had known in the days that were behind. The steadfast spirit had kept him faithfully watching over his flocks until called by God and anointed to be king. It had made him patient all through the years of persecution and trial at the hands of Saul. It had made him brave in the hour of danger. It had given him a generous, forgiving spirit when Saul was within his power and when victory finally gave him the kingdom. It is a blessed thing to be able to plead for a renewal of a steadfast spirit. The past life speaks much of hopefulness for the future. But even if the Christian cannot plead for renewal, though the past Christian life has been all written over with weakness and failure, still he may ask God to GIVE a steadfast spirit. And "this," says F. B. Meyer, "God can give and will give to us by His Holy Spirit. He can renew our will from day to day, and infuse into us His own unaltering, unalterable purpose. He can make possible obedience to the apostolic injunction, 'Be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord.' Hear what comfortable words the Apostle Peter saith: 'The God of all grace, Who called you unto His eternal glory in Christ, after that ye have suffered a little while, shall Himself restore, stablish, and settle you.' Then we shall move resolutely and unfalteringly onward. Like Columbus, undaunted by discouragement, we shall cross unknown seas, till the scent of the land we seek is wafted across the brief intervening distance."

BUT David wanted something more than a clean heart and a steadfast spirit. He longed for the joy which had surged and swelled in his soul as he realized that "The Lord is My light and My salvation." His songs out on the mountain side thrilled and pulsated with the inner strains of faith which made ever fresh and new the way of salvation. "The joy of Thy salvation." Oh, how real! Oh, how full and at times well-nigh overwhelming! Every redeemed soul knows that experience. When the angels begin to sing in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth, there is a new song breaking out in that sinner's soul which is new and blessed and real, and which he will never forget. The joy of salvation is not abiding, because sin enters in to dim the vision and dull the heart wayward to the Heavenly music. David longed to hear those strains again. He longed to feel the touch of His Lord as He drew music from his soul. The joy of the Lord's salvation had vanished from his soul. Oh, that he might feel that joy again! Is not that the yearnings which you have at times, dear Christian? You recall the fervor with which you sang:

"O happy day, that fixed my choice
On Thee, my Saviour and my God!
Well may this glowing heart rejoice,
And tell its raptures all abroad.
Happy day, happy day,
When Jesus washed my sins away;
He taught me how to watch and pray,
And live rejoicing every day;
Happy day, happy day,
When Jesus washed my sins away."

And you long for the joy which swelled in your heart then and made you anxious to lead others to Christ. You have lost that joy and sense of nearness of your Saviour because you have allowed other things, sin and the desires of the heart, to come between yourself and your Lord. That joy of salvation may be restored to you even as it was to David.

"JOY of salvation" and a "willing spirit." David wanted joy of salvation restored to him. He wanted God to uphold him with a willing spirit. This was the fourth petition of the Psalmist. A willing spirit is that which makes the Christian obedient to the leading of the Holy Spirit. The spirit of man is naturally willful and disobedient. It takes long schooling and earnest effort for the Christian to stifle the self spirit and give place to the willing spirit. The willing spirit is always the blessed twin of the joy of salvation. The two go hand in hand. While the heart sings of Jesus and salvation, the life yields willing obedience to the indwelling Spirit and the exalted Christ. But when the Christian is far away from God and has lost his joy of salvation, the self spirit is in control. God wants the Christian to walk upright. How sad is the picture of the Christian who is all twisted and distorted in his life because the self spirit has carried him hither and thither, irrespective of God's will and desire concerning him. It takes the willing spirit to make a Christian walk upright. David pleads: "Uphold me with a willing spirit." Hold me up with a spirit which will make me willing to abide in the will of God my Father, and Jesus my Saviour.

TWO other things David pleaded for that he might be again equipped for his Lord's service. Because of unfaithfulness he feared that God might cast him from Him and that He might withdraw His Holy Spirit. Against these two awful conditions he pleaded. The guilty soul always realizes that it received its just due it would be banished from the presence of the Lord and cease to feel the working and leading of the Holy Spirit. Being cast off by God means the hopeless despair of the outer darkness; the withdrawing of the Holy Spirit means utter and final deadness to sin and righteousness and judgment to come. The prodigal son in the far country, while he was enjoying life there, did not dread being cast off by his father, but when he came back the penitent the dread was in his heart that his father might cast him off, because it was no more than he deserved. The soul in the presence of God realizes what an awful thing it would be to be cast off by God and to have Him withdraw His Holy Spirit. And God lets the anguish of this fear sweep over the soul that it may learn more clearly how blessed it is to be near the Lord and to have the Holy Spirit as the indwelling presence to lead us and strengthen us and plead with God for us for those things which the natural self does not realize are needed. It is said that we do not appreciate our blessings and treasures until they have vanished. God lets the soul feel that it it has lost God and His Holy Spirit by its faithlessness, that He may awaken it to a realization of what fellowship with God and the possession of the Holy Spirit mean.

AND all that David pleaded for were essential to service for his Lord. He wanted to teach transgressors the way of the Lord; he wanted to lead sinners to salvation. He must be restored. Yielding to his own desires unfitted him for service. He could not go on making a pretense of his religious life. One thing, David never was a hypocrite. The satisfaction of his religious life was not in outward service, but in inward relationship to God. And so in order that he might render again unto the Lord an acceptable and efficient service he asks for a clean heart, a steadfast spirit, a new sense of the joy of salvation, a willing spirit, and these are what every Christian needs. If sin has stripped you of your harness, if it has driven you from the yoke which Christ has invited you to wear with Him, then, oh, Christian! do not go blindly on in your Christian life and service, do not strive by fleshly zeal to get back into the harness again, but let David teach you how you may be yoked with Christ and again teach transgressors the way of the Lord and lead sinners unto Him.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

Attractive Features of the Season's Toilettes, Odd Bits of Finery, Etc.

Large lace veils falling straight from the hat rim almost to the waist line are worn in Paris, reports the New York Sun.

Ivory combs studded with gems are especially designed for wear in white hair.

Plumes of exaggerated length, formed by putting together several ordinary plumes, are used upon many of the French hats, and fall far down over the shoulders.

Prophets are foretelling a military note in the street gowns and coats of the coming season. Military coats, cuffs, collars, pipings are, it is said, to be much in evidence.

Colored handkerchiefs to accompany morning frocks are enjoying greater vogue than they have ever known on this side the water. They are shown in stripes, checks, plaids and in all the colorings common to tub frocks. There are also sheer and elaborate kerchiefs in color made to accompany more pretentious toilets, but American women have not yet adopted the colored kerchief of this type.

Colored silk mousseline, splashed all over with white, is finding great favor with French dressmakers.

A new and popular material of the net class is tulle avaignee, a fine silk tulle with meshes forming symmetrical lace designs. It is much more durable than the ordinary tulle.

A novel pendant for the ubiquitous long chain is the enamel perfume charm. The pendant may be as exquisite as the wearer's purse and taste admit, and must inclose a delicately perfumed sachet, whose odor escapes through perforations in the charm.

White open-work stockings have once more become exceedingly popular.

The shoes of the season are more varied and elaborate than they have been within many years. Colored kid in both suede and glace finish is freely used, and white, gray, pale yellow, blue, red and green low shoes are worn with frocks of the same colors.

Louis XV. shoes in rose red, with huge silver and gold buckles, Richelieu shoes of green glace kid, with rouveau art buckles, shoes of pale yellow doeskin—these are not stage properties now, but are worn by fashionable women.

BABY AND NURSE.

Mothers Should Not Leave Little Ones to the Exclusive Care of Help.

When engaging a nurse the mother should be able to judge of certain qualifications quite apart from the purely professional ones. There are many so-called "minor points" that are really of much importance. The nurse should be a really tidy, presentable person, as distinguished from the nurse who makes herself so for the occasion of seeking employment. She should have a clear, healthy complexion and an amiable disposition. Children retain early impressions; hence the individual who controls their early life should be instinctively refined and fairly educated, says the American Queen.

Unreliable nurses often give babies soothing draughts to keep them quiet, and unless the parent is very watchful this sort of criminal treatment—for it is criminal—may continue to the permanent injury of the child. No such thing should ever be given without the knowledge of the parent, and a nurse should be made to understand that any infringement of this rule would result in her immediate discharge.

No mother should leave her baby to the exclusive charge of the nurse, no matter what the former's responsibilities and engagements may be. She should make a daily visit to the nursery to see that the child is being properly cared for. The nurse who objects to frequent and unannounced visits should have a watch set upon her movements, for if she is performing her duties she will not object to inspection at any time.

There should be impressed upon the nurse the great evil of exciting a baby. This is frequently done to amuse it, or to "bring out its intelligence." It has, however, just the opposite effect, and noises, jingling bells, whistling and calling in its ears, besides all other forms of excitement, sow seeds for future nervous disorders.

To Preserve Eggs.

Have a kettle of boiling water on the stove, and into that dip the eggs. Let them remain as long as it takes you to count ten fast. This recipe has been in use in my family for 40 or 50 years. The eggs cannot be told from perfectly fresh eggs, as the hot water cooks that fine inner skin, and there can be no evaporation. There is no taste of lime about them put up in this way. It is a fine thing for country women who want to hold for better prices, and also for the city woman who wants to purchase for future use while eggs are cheap.—Woman's Home Companion.

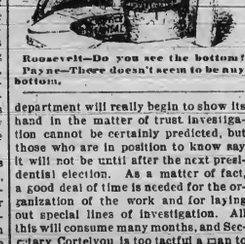
Raspberry Trifle in Cup.

Put some sponge cake or macaroon crumbs in the bottom of some glass custard cups. Flavor a rich boiled custard with almond and add a few chopped almonds to it. Put some fine ripe red raspberries in the cups and fill them up with custard, while it is still warm. When quite cold garnish with a few fine berries rolled in powdered sugar, and put in a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each. This makes a very delicious combination.—Home Magazine.

Tomato Sandwiches.

Cut whole wheat bread into circular slices, using a cake cutter for the purpose. Butter, lay on it a round tomato of the same size, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and a little grated cheese, and press the rounds together.—Washington Star.

CONTROLLED BY TRUSTS.



Bureau of Corporations Operated by Roosevelt to Perpetuate Their Graft.

If President Roosevelt is reelected next year it will be simply and solely because a majority of the voters sincerely believe that he is helping them to fight their battle with the trusts. So odious have the hundreds of protected trusts become, both in the eyes of consumers and investors, that no man who openly favors them can hope to be elected to any kind of public office. It is not strange, then, that President Roosevelt is seeking to have the public believe that he is an enemy of all bad trusts—assuming that there are some good ones.

But what did the president ever do to really injure great corporations? Although he began political life as a strenuous free trader, yet he recently, under pressure from the Protective Tariff league, joined the standpatters, and thus stands opposed to the most certain way of curbing the trusts and giving relief to the people—by reducing the tariff duties. As governor of New York he called an extra session of the legislature to pass amendments to the Ford bill to tax the franchises of the public service corporations. The amendments were prepared by the corporation attorneys, and were intended to make the act unconstitutional. The courts have not yet, after four years of lost time, fully decided the case. It was the president's voice that killed the Littlefield anti-trust bill in the last congress and caused the passage of two sham anti-trust bills, the Elkins anti-rebate bill and the department of commerce bill with its bureau of corporations to give publicity to trusts.

The facts that are slowly coming to light in regard to this new bureau should open the eyes of the voters to the real position of the president on the trust question. In discussing the "Present Statistical Outlook in Washington," the correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin said on July 27 of this new bureau:

"The work now laid out for this bureau is of a really thorough type, and if it is pursued with vigor on the lines now suggested there will be a good deal of complaint in the near future when the methods now contemplated are actually applied. Pressure of the most strenuous sort will undoubtedly be brought to bear at the white house. Just how soon the department will really begin to show its hand in the matter of trust investigation cannot be certainly predicted, but those who are in position to know say it will not be until after the next presidential election. As a matter of fact, a good deal of time is needed for the organization of the work and for laying out special lines of investigation. All this will consume many months, and Secretary Cortelyou is too tactful a man to weaken his strategic position by opening fire in a presidential campaign, if there would be any danger of hurting his party thereby. It will, therefore, be a good while before there are any definite results of the inquiries of the bureau of corporations."

Is there anything in this statement to frighten the trusts? Is it not clear that this new bureau will give the trusts two years more leeway—two years more license to squeeze the people and extract money from their pockets—two years at $1,000,000,000 a year? And what then? Publicity. That's all, and more than all, for it is entirely optional with the president whether any of the facts gathered by the bureau are ever published or not. But the facts, when published, are intended to serve only as a basis for "conservative" anti-trust legislation sometime in the dim and distant future.

President Roosevelt fighting the trusts? He is their best friend. He, as no other man living, knows how to tackle them and at the same time make the multitude, who sees his fierce face and vigorous gestures, believe that he is mauling the life out of them. The trusts have great need of just such a man at this juncture to save them from the wrath of an outraged people. It is part of their game that Wall street and the trusts are to be against Roosevelt this year. Next year when the campaign is on it will be found that the G. O. P. is getting financial suoport from its old-time friends—the trusts.—BYRON W. HOLT.

FIGURES AND THE TARIFF.

Evidence of Administration's Active Participation in the Game of Politics.

It having been decreed that the republican party is to "stand pat" on the tariff, and the decree having been entered without reference to the party's wishes, it is, of course, necessary that nothing be permitted to happen that is calculated to prejudice the "standpat" policy in the republican mind. It has been asserted that there is no present necessity for any change in the tariff, and the public has been told that no changes will be made until after the election next year; and it is expedient that care be taken to obviate the danger of the public's getting hold of any official information that would tend to discredit the assertion that the circumstances are such that tariff revision can wait, says the Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader. In view of all this, the following from the Springfield (Mass.) Republican is pertinent and significant:

"It is very well known in newspaper offices, if not elsewhere, that the treasury bureau of statistics is being used by the present chief, in the most unblushing manner, to promote the high tariff propaganda. All trade figures calculated to show that the tariff is working as a theory would have it work are promptly spread out in specially prepared articles and mailed to the press for publication on a specified day. All other statistics are carefully kept in the background unnoticed. These government specials to the newspapers average two or three a week, and as high tariff preachments they are not excelled by anything the American protective tariff league is doing. This bureau of statistics has now been transferred to the new department of commerce and labor, and the report comes from Washington that Secretary Cortelyou intends to stop the practice, believing that the department should not expose itself to charges of undue partisanship."

It has for some time been evident that the present administration is applying itself with unusual industry and zeal to the game of politics, Mr. Roosevelt having, apparently, conceived the idea that it is necessary to the removal of all obstacles to the gratification of his ambition to succeed himself. A part of this game is the cooking of reports from the bureau of statistics in the interest of the "standpat" programme. If the figures and the facts fail to justify this programme, then the figures and the facts are suppressed, and the reports are confined to such showings as are calculated to make it appear that the tariff is doing quite well, thank you! As to Secretary Cortelyou's reported intention regarding a change of tactics in the bureau, it is possible that the secretary will be induced to defer making a change until the second-term project and the "stand-pat" idea are able to stand without being propped up. The people must be fooled to the top of their bent, even if the figures of trade have to be doctored in the effort to reach that end.

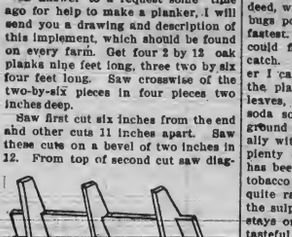
NOT MUCH PROTECTION.

The Tariff Protected Steel Trust in a Bad Way and Stock Depreciated.

When the idustrial trust boom was in full blast and corporations were being manufactured with millions of capital every day in the week, the protectionists cited the fact as the result of the great system of protection to American industries. Now the stocks of these trusts are in a state of collapse and the water has been squeezed out of them with remorseless energy, what will the protectionists say? The prostration of the boom in Wall street cannot be blamed on the democrats, neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Cleveland can be held responsible. "The blighting influence of free trade" has had no part or lot in the matter and yet the "marvelous prosperity" of these trust corporations—railroad and industrial, have received a check which is but the index finger pointing to the prostration of general business that will follow in its wake. The abnormally high prices that now prevail of all the necessities of life must result in reduced consumption and even a protected trust cannot pay big dividends unless the public will pay high prices for its productions.

Wall street generally discounts in advance the falling off in demand for products or the reduction in earnings of railroads and these bear raids are but indications of worse that may happen. When a stock like the steel trust that pays dividends of four per cent. sells around 23 there must be something radically wrong. With every one of its products protected by the tariff and with nearly complete control of the market the protectionists should be able to give, at least, a plausible reason for the enormous decline in its prosperity. Can it be that protection does not protect its beneficiaries and yet compels the American people to pay extortionate prices? If is the more exasperating to those who use steel trust products that the foreigner is able to purchase them for a much less price than obtained in the home market. The tariff should certainly be reformed to the extent that we should be able to buy our own goods as cheaply as the people of other countries can buy them of us.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS



STRONG CLOD CRUSHER.

How One of These Useful Implements Can Be Made at Home at Small Expense.

Mr. I. G. W. McCormick, manager of a large Kansas farm, gives in the Kansas Farmer the following description and illustration of one of the most useful implements that can be had on a farm:

In answer to a request some time ago for help to make a planker, I will send you a drawing and description of this implement, which should be found on every farm. Get four 2 by 12 oak planks nine feet long, three two by six four feet long. Saw crosswise of the two-by-six pieces in four pieces two inches deep.

Saw first cut six inches from the end and other cuts 11 inches apart. Saw these cuts on a bevel of two inches in 12. From top of second cut saw diagonally to bottom of first cut. Saw the other cuts in same way. Place these notched pieces parallel about three feet ten inches apart, notched sides up. Spike one of the 2 by 12 planks to long notches at rear end (21), then spike the other planks on in same way, overlapping each other like siding on a house. Turn over, bore two five-eighths-inch holes 30 inches apart in front plank and put on two clevises with rings. Attach chains two feet long for whiffletree for three horses. This planker can be drawn across a plowed field when dry while the driver stands astride the middle runner. When the ground is rough and clods are hard, the driver can change the weight of his body from one foot to the other, producing a zig-zag movement, which will add much to the effectiveness of the work. The clods will be crushed, greatly reducing evaporation of the stored moisture of the soil and subsoil. If the soil is inclined to drift with the wind, plank east and west and leave three feet unplanked at each passage. This projecting uneven surface forms a wind and snow break; and in the spring, if on fall or winter plowing, the interstices will be found filled with the drifting soil. For the conservation of moisture in the soil, the planker is better than a much more costly roller.

When passing from one field to another it is turned over and drawn on the runners, otherwise the sharp corners will be worn off. The two by six notched pieces are sloped off at the front ends and can be used also to mark off corn and potato land. When the land is freshly plowed and moist a spade should be carried to clean when clogged. Otherwise it will draw very heavy on the team.

BRICK TRACK ROADS.

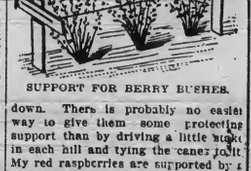
Bureau of Public Road Inquiry Claims Important Advantages for That System.

The director of the bureau of public road inquiry under the department of agriculture, after an exhaustive study of the subject, has come out strongly in favor of the "brick track" road. It is estimated that the roads cost the people of this country about $650,000,000 annually, a good part of which is sunk in mud roads with very poor results. The advantages claimed for the brick track road are as follows: It can be built far more cheaply than a stone road; four or five times as heavy a load can be hauled on it with the same team force; they can be maintained for about one-tenth of the expense for repairs; they prevent the formation of ruts, dust and mud, which result from the grinding of wagon wheels on stone roads, and of mud holes and dust, which occur on country roads; the material for their construction is also much more easily accessible in most parts of the country than for stone roads. The requirements for a first-class highway are as follows: A smooth, non-wearing surface for wheels; a firm, non-slipping footing for horses; low cost for building and repairs; and absence of dust, mud and noise. It will be seen that the brick track road comes nearer fulfilling these requirements than anything yet invented.

Convicts as Road Builders.

In the building of good roads lies the solution of the convict problem, says the Washington Post. The convicts we have always with us. The crop is constant as it is abundant. Why not use them to construct enduring turnpikes instead of cooping them up in prison shops or leasing them out to private speculators in human flesh and blood? In the one case we put criminals in competition with honest labor. In the other, we traffic in scandal, cruelty and demoralization. Were the able-bodied convicts throughout the country employed upon the public roads as we suggest, we should have within ten years as excellent highways as those of France, Germany or England. Moreover it would be a legitimate employment that would operate injury to none and benefit to all.

VEGETABLE PARASITES.



Eastern Market Gardener Tells How He Carried On a Successful War Against Them.

Of late I have been using nitrate of soda solution to considerable extent, and in every case the results have been far beyond my expectations. We planted a patch of Hubbard squashes near the early tomato ground, and as the soil was good and the hills were fertilized we were expecting good things from them. The next news I received was that they were up and growing finely, but in a few days the men reported that the bugs had destroyed them all. I packed my kit of soda solution, sulphur, tobacco dust and weeder, and went over to view the ruin. They were a sorry looking lot, indeed, with cucumber beetles and stinkbugs pooled to see which could work fastest. I killed all the stinkbugs I could find, and what beetles I could catch. Then with my table-fork weeder I carefully stirred the soil around the plants, pinched off the ruined leaves, and we dosed them with the soda solution. Next I sprinkled the ground around the plants quite liberally with sulphur and then gave them plenty of tobacco dust. The growth has been astonishing. I find that the tobacco dust goes into the ground quite rapidly, which is all right, but the sulphur for the most part at least stays on the surface. Both seem distasteful to the beetles, and the two seem to work nicely together, with result that the beetles disappear, and are giving me very little trouble. As long as this works so well I shall stick by the plan. I found the same treatment worked well with the early cucumbers. At first the beetles disputed my right to any portion of the proceeds, but of late they seem to view things in another light, and have vacated the premises. I consider rapid and vigorous growth one of the surest preventives against their ravages. The nitrate of soda gives this, and as I think, is a valuable aid in keeping them in check. Its use on beans has always brought the best of results with me, but wherever practicable I always prefer the solution to the crystal form. Of course broadcasting is the only practical method of application upon large areas, but it can be very successfully applied with the sprayer even in field use. With present experience, and I have used it considerably here and there, I vote early and often for nitrate of soda.—Rural New Yorker.

THEY REQUIRE SUPPORT.

Raspberry and Blackberry Bushes Suffer Unless Protected by Some Sort of Device.

My raspberries and blackberries have made an unusually rank growth, and many of the large blackcap canes have been knocked over and wholly or partially broken off near the roots. What is left of them I have given a severe trimming, so as to make them short and to prevent further breaking down. There is probably no easier way to give them some protecting support than by driving a little stake in each hill and tying the canes to it. My red raspberries are supported by a line of slats on each side, the two lines being about a foot apart and three feet high. The raspberry and blackberry bushes on the New York experiment station grounds are nicely supported by a still simpler and cheaper device. A stout stake is driven firmly into the ground at the end of each of the rather short rows, and provided with a strong cross-arm, say about two feet from the ground. A stout wire is then stretched from arm to arm on each side, and it seems to hold the bushes up very well.—Farm and Fireside.

Comments on Rhubarb.

Rhubarb is one of the first plants of the garden to come into use in the spring, and the stalks make an excellent sauce at a time when apples of the year have become scarce and out of season. It is very easily propagated, and only a few plants are required to furnish a supply for a family. A piece of root separated from an existing plant is quite sure to grow where planted, either in the fall or spring, and this is the best plan for multiplying the number of plants. Early growth may be forced in a greenhouse or cellar, but a less troublesome way is to surround each plant with fermenting stable manure, a part of which may be raked off when the ground grows warm and a part remain as a fertilizer.

National Aid for Roads.

The Washington Post in a leading editorial condemns both national and state aid as paternalistic. It says that "the duty of road building attaches solely to the communities immediately concerned." This is a narrow view. The same view applied to education would make the local communities pay all the expenses of the schools; yet state aid to education is the rule, not the exception. If the Post's contention is right, the local community should be required to establish its own post office, and hire its postmaster and mail carriers. In fact nearly everything the state and national governments are doing for the people would be condemned as paternalism viewed from the same standpoint.

TELEPHONE PROPOSAL.

An Instance Which Illustrates the Danger of Getting Things Mixed.

A Chicago banker, so the paper says, recently made a proposal of marriage to a lady in Cadiz, O., over the long-distance telephone, and received an acceptance of his proposal in the same manner. It worked all right in this instance, and they will soon be married, no doubt, and live happy ever after, says the Los Angeles Herald.

But think of the risks a man runs when he proposes over the telephone. He might get the wrong party, by mistake, and being unaware of it propose to the wrong party. It requires no strain on the imagination to see where that would land him.

That, however, is not where the great danger lies. We'll assume that he already has got the right party, and the first greetings are over, and he has again reassured her on the subject of his undying love, and she has come back at him, good and strong, with an avowal of her great faith in him, and some expressions of unbounded affection. That's all over with, remember, and he is trying to think what to say next, and just about at the point of risking all, and saying the fateful words. He clears his throat and says: "Er—ahem!—Clara, I—"

"Bur-r-r-r-r-r-rup!" goes the telephone. Then a strange, girlish voice comes; a voice that he has never heard before. It says: "Did you get the party you asked for?"

"Hang it all; no, I hadn't asked her yet—that is—no, yes, I mean—what the devil is it to you, anyhow?"

"I asked if you got your party?" The tone is a trifle resentful.

"Oh, you mean—yes, yes; I did have her, all right—don't cut me off again."

"Bing! Chuck!" Then a long silence.

"Hello."

"Hello."

"Is that you, dear?"

"Yes, this is me. Is that you?"

"Yes. I was just about to say—that is, I was going to ask—"

"Bur-r-r-r-r-r-rup!"

"There's your party again."

"Here, what the deuce do you mean by—"

"O, George! What are you saying? I—"

"Hello, is that you? I thought it was that other girl."

"Why, George, you just said—"

"Bur-z-z-z-z-zip!"

"I want Main 94257, please."

"Main, 942-z-z-z-zip!"

"Chug!"

—"and I don't know what to make of it, dear."

"Neither do I; this 'phone isn't working right. I had something very important to say to you, darling, but—"

"Are you sure it wasn't that other girl you were going to say it to?"

"Nope, ain't sure of anything. I've forgotten what it was, anyhow. I'll call you up again, later. Good-by."

"Good-by."

And that might be the end of it all.

SUMMER WILD FLOWERS.

Their Haunts Differ as Much as the Haunts of Birds—Where to Find Them.

As a class the wild flowers of summer differ greatly from those of early spring. They certainly lack the delicacy — one might almost say the modesty— of the blossoms which hide so shyly among the brown leaves in the April woods. Perhaps this is an advantage, looking at it from our standpoint, says Woman's Home Companion. Our minds are no longer so susceptible to delicate beauty as they were at the dawn of spring, and, moreover, it requires something more brilliant—more startling, perhaps—to attract our attention at a season when the thermometer stands at 90 degrees in the shade. And now comes this gorgeous pageant of flowers, so strikingly beautiful in form and coloring that they interest us in spite of the heat, the glare and the dust, and we enjoy our walks, although the birds are silent and although the foliage is darkening beneath the burning rays of the sun.

Naturally, the haunts of flowers differ as much as the haunts of birds, and if we wish to see a great many species in a single walk, we must choose our direction with a view to covering a great variety of country. Many of the most beautiful blossoms are to be found at this season along the rivers and brooks, and in the woods through which they wind.

Weather and the Blood.

In the dry, sultry weather the heat should be counteracted by a cooling diet. To this purpose cucumbers, melons and juicy fruits contribute. The preference should be given to such alimentary substances as tend to contract the forces which are too much expanded by the heat. This property is possessed by all acid foods and drink, such as salads, lemons, pomegranates, oranges, cherries and strawberries. Lemonade and Rhenish or Moselle wines mixed with water are also very cooling and beneficial.—American Queen.

String Bean Salad.

Cook young string beans in salted water until tender, drain and lay on a folded cloth to become as dry as possible. As soon as cool put in the ice chest. Arrange lightly on a bed of lettuce leaves and use a French dressing to which onion juice, mustard and sugar have been added in small quantities.—Detroit Free Press.

Corn Custard.

Scrape the corn from the cob, mix it —not too finely—with milk, add two or three well-beaten eggs, with salt and pepper to taste, and bake one-half hour.—People's Home Journal.

MAKE FIGURES LOOK SMALL

Mental Mathematician Set to Work to Find Some Things Down to Nearly Nothing.

Whitelaw Reid, of New York, in the annual address before Phi Beta Kappa society, of Vassar college, discussed divorce and its attendant evils. He said: "Six hundred and fifty-four thousand persons divorced in this country during the last 20 years."

This statement, says the narrator of the story, caused wrinkles and furrows to form on the forehead of one prim maiden. A flash of the eye, and then a whisper to an attentive classmate: "That's equal to 32,700 persons a year."

The classmate's brow now began to denote activity: "Or 2,725 persons a month."

"Or 681 persons a week," said the first mental arithmetician.

"Ninety-seven persons each day letter marital relations," was the next computation.

"Why, that's only four persons an hour," came as a cheerful rejoinder.

"Pooh, only one couple every half hour."

"And they say there are 70,000,000 people in this country."

"What a narrow view some men take of life." And the other nodded an agreement.

Merit Makes It the World's Leader.

Merit, greatest medicine ever put into convenient form for quick, easy, pleasant use—backed by the right kind of advertising, has given Cascarets the greatest sale in the world among laxative medicines. Over ten million boxes a year are now being bought by the American people. Great success always brings out imitators, and readers are warned that when it comes to buying medicine the best is none too good, and whenever a dealer offers to sell you something just as good, put it down as a worthless fake, put your money in your pocket, and go to a store where you will be treated fairly, and where when you ask for Cascarets, you will get what you ask for.

"But I thought they had everything that was fashionable."

"Yes, but they are a little sensitive about hay fever. Their father used to run a feed store, you know."—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

COMPELLED TO USE A CRUTCH FOR EIGHT MONTHS. DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED MRS. P. CONLIN, CARBONDALE, PA.

Mrs. P. Conlin, 88 Greenfield Avenue, Carbondale, Pa., says: "I suffered with backache, and, despite the use of medicines, I could not get rid of it. I was compelled to use a crutch for eight months, and a part of the time was unable to walk at all. I fairly screamed if I attempted to lift my feet from the floor, and, finally, I lost control of my limbs through weakness, as I could neither bend nor straighten up to my full height, and if over a woman was in a serious condition, I was. My husband went to Kelly's drug store and brought home a box of Doan's Pills. I felt easier in a few days, and, continuing the treatment, I was soon able to walk. At the end of two weeks the pains in my loins left. When I had completed the treatment, I had not an ache nor a pain, and I have been in that condition ever since.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs and dropsy signs vanish.

They correct urine with brick dust sediment, high colored, pain in passing, dribbling, frequency, bed wetting. Doan's Kidney Pills remove calculi and gravel. Relieve heart palpitation, sleeplessness, headache, nervousness, dizziness.

THE SALESWOMAN

Compelled to Be on Her Feet the Larger Part of the Day Finds a Tonic In Pe-ru-na.

Miss Curtain, of St. Paul, Gives Her Experience.

Miss Nellie Curtain.

MISS NELLIE CURTAIN, 646 Pearl street, St. Paul, Minn., head saleswoman in a department store, writes:

"I have charge of a department in a dry goods store, and after standing the larger part of the day, I would go home with a dull ache, generally through my entire body. I used Peruna and feel so much better that I walk to and from the store now. I know Peruna to be the best medicine on the market for the diseases peculiar to women."—Miss Nellie Curtain.

Nothing is so weakening to the human system as the constant loss of mucus. Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membrane produces an excessive formation of mucus. Whether the mucous membrane be located in the head or pelvic organs, the discharge of mucus is sure to occur.

This discharge of mucus constitutes a weakening drain; the system cannot long withstand the loss of mucus, hence it is that women afflicted with catarrhal affections of the pelvic organs feel tired and languid, with weak back and throbbing brain. A course of Peruna is sure to restore health by cutting off the weakening drain of the daily loss of mucus.

An Admirable Tonic.

Congressman Mark H. Dunnell, National Hotel, Washington, D. C., writes: "Your Peruna being used by myself and many of my friends and acquaintances not only as a cure for catarrh but also as an admirable tonic for physical recuperation, I gladly recommend it to all persons requiring such remedies."—Mark H. Dunnell.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

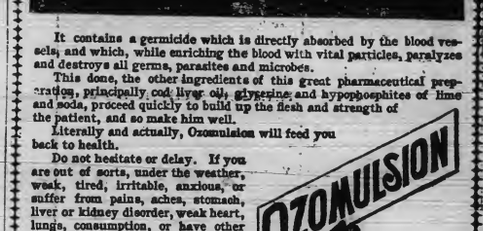
THE BULL DOG GERM

You know how a bull dog bites.

When he sets his jaw, hardly anything but death will cause him to let go his hold.



Same with a microbe; only more so.

Get rid of him, or he'll get rid of you. By degrees, as he continues to live and multiply, he will so poison your blood, as to make you very sick indeed.

The only way to drive out microbes, is to take some medicine which will go right into, and sterilize, the blood.

Nothing will do this like

Ozomulsion

It contains a germicide which is directly absorbed by the blood vessels, and which, while enriching the blood with vital particles, paralyzes and destroys all germs, parasites and microbes.

This done, the other ingredients of this great pharmaceutical preparation, principally cod liver oil, glycerine and hypophosphites of lime and soda, proceed quickly to build up the flesh and strength of the patient, and so make him well.

Literally and actually, Ozomulsion will feed you back to health.

BOONE CO., RECORDER
Wednesday, - - Aug. 19, 1903.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Quite a number of Burlingtonians attended the Lawrenceburg fair last Saturday.

Only five indictments, and they for minor offenses, were returned by the grand jury, last week. The jury was in session only three days.

The eleven jurors who went over to the one in the trial of Jett and White, a Cynthiana, ought to have hung the jury. Nothing less than hanging will be justice for the two assassins.

Jimmie Riddell, of Hebron, and John Watson, of Erlanger, had a mixup at the Lawrenceburg fair, one day last week. Riddell got a broken nose and a pair of black eyes. Watson got a $15 fine and the trimmings.

The fine of John Early for striking Ben Luck at the game of base ball here on July 4, was assessed at $58.33 by a jury in the circuit court, last week. Mr. Early was fined $50 in Judge Cason's court for the offense, a few weeks ago, and he appealed to the circuit court.

Persons who desire copies of the illustrated edition of the RECORDER would better send in their orders at once. It will be sent out in tomorrows mail to regular subscribers. As not a great many extra copies have been printed the first who order will be served. Price, 10c a copy. The first page alone is worth the price.

A young man who filled up on bad whisky at Lawrenceburg, last Saturday, came to this side of the river full of fight, and seeing nothing to go up against he attacked, with his knife, a rick of sacked wheat lying on the wharf, and belonging to Geo. W. Terrill, and slashed them in a terrible manner, wasting a large quantity of wheat.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c, at all Drug Stores.

A considerable portion of the stables at Lawrenceburg fair grounds was destroyed by fire, Monday, about one o'clock. It is supposed that the fire was caused by a cigar stub someone had thrown down. It was a very hot fire, and Mr. Cunningham, who had several fine horses in the stables, was severely burnt about his body, while getting his horses out of the burning buildings. He lost all his harness. The loss to the company is estimated at $1,000.

On September 2d and 3d, Robert M. Hopkins, State Sunday School Evangelist, will hold a S. S. Institute at the Christian church, Petersburg. Mr. Hopkins will use blackboard and stereopticon, in his work, making the Institute especially interesting to the children, while, at the same time, instructive and helpful to all Sunday School workers. No admission will be charged, but a free-will offering for the Sunday Missionary Work. Everybody cordially invited.

Base Ball.

There was something doing over at the ball park, last Saturday afternoon. Judge Lassing's picked nine played the Burlington ball team to a tie in the six inning, 10 to 10, when the game was called on account of the arrival of the Macons from Cincinnati, to play the Boones. The first game was replete with sensational plays, and entertained the large crowd of fans from start to finish. Judge Lassing was the boss coacher. Bert Sullivan who had been taking snake oil baths for several weeks, was in first-class condition and put up the game of his life. The picked nine line-up was as follows: Henry Quick, c., Homer Clutterbuck, p., Frank Maxwell, 2nd.; Duley Beall, short, O. W. Gaines, 3d., Dr. Clore, left, John M. Lassing right, C. A. Fowler, center. The Burlington team will have a good game at the Burlington park Saturday.

The game between the Boones and the Macons was a one sided affair. The battery work of Hughes and Hogan was good. The visitors were let down with three hits and a home run, while the Boones made 8 singles, 2 two base and 4 three base hits. Hughes struck out 10 and Apple 5. The fielding on each side was good, not a fly being muffed in the out field to which place quite a number found their way.

Following is the score:

Macons	0	0	1	0	3	0	0	0	0	—	4

One of the vistors hit Hughes for a home run.

The Boones will play at Home again next Saturday.

L. M. Whitehead Dead.

It grieves us to announce the death of Luvette Whitehead, which occured last Saturday, at Texas, where he had been for about two years.

He was born and reared among our people and was greatly beloved by everyone. For a number of years previous to the breaking down of his health he was engaged in the life insurance business, and so successful had been his efforts that he was placed in one of the most important positions in the field, with headquarters in Louisville, but was compelled to give it up on account of that dreaded disease, consumption, which was the cause of his death.

He was one of the truest friends and most clever and polished gentlemen we ever knew, and we sympathize with his brother and sister —James Whitehead, of Owen county, and Mrs. Emma Searcy, of White's Run—in the loss of their devoted brother.

His remains were interred in Texas for the present, but will be brought here for final interment.—Carrollton News.

Mr. Whitehead was well known here, where he had many friends. His wife was Miss Mary Ryle, a niece of Mrs. Legrand Gaines.

Of Interest to Tobacco Growers.

L. H. Voshell, who has been organizing this county in the interest of the Tobacco Growers' Association requests the publication of the following, which explains itself:

Lexington, Ky., August 13, 1903.
Dear Sir:—The committee appointed to finance the Company is ready to report progress, and a large mass meeting is invited for Friday, August 21st, at the court house, at 2 p. m., to hear the report and take action, as on this effort depends the life or death of our enterprise. Your committee has labored as never before, and all that you and we have done goes for nothing if we do not go on. Leave the worm and suckers for a day and attend to this call. Have this letter printed in your county paper, and see that every signer in your county gets notice. If he can't come, let him contribute toward sending a representative.
Yours Truly,
W. B. HAWKINS, Pres't
Burley Tobacco Growers' Ass'n.

The Boone County Fair.

The glory and pleasure of a country fair, such as will be inaugurated by the North Kentucky Agricultural Association at their grounds at Florence next week, must be seen to be appreciated, hence we admonish our people as well as those of the surrounding counties to get ready their exhibits and be on hand to make merry and glad at this festive season. Florence will have on her best bib and tucker and will extend the "glad hand" of welcome to all visitors and will leave nothing undone that will make their stay both pleasant and profitable. Remember the dates, August 26, 27, 28 and 29, and remember you will be welcome.

Gained forty Pounds in thirty days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds of flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade on the Tablets.—Holley Bros., Merchants, Long Branch, Mo. For Sale by all Druggists.

Dysentery Cured Without the Aid of a Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux" (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn., "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For Sale by All Druggists.

For Sale.---Farm of 355 Acres.

$17.500 Will Buy It If Sold in the Next 30 Days.

I offer for sale my farm of 255 acres, adjoining the village of Hebron. It is the finest and best improved farm in Northern Kentucky. It is all in meadow and fine blue grass except about 10 acres. Having decided to move away this fall, I will take for the farm, if sold within the next thirty days, $17,500—not less. It is the greatest bargain in farm lands ever offered in this end of the State. It cost nearly double that sum. I will show the figures.

SPECIAL ILLUSTRATED EDITION.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19, 1903.

BOONE COUNTY.

Brief Historical Sketch of the Much Honored Land.

Sketches of the Leading Institutions and Business Men Who Vie With Each Other in Making Boone County One of the Greatest in the State.

Beautiful Scenery, Fine Macadamized Roads, Good Farms, Excellent Schools, Splendid Churches---Citizens Hospitable, Generous, Energetic and Prosperous.

The purport of this issue is to, in a concise way, without the use of high sounding platitudes and fustian phraseology, to tell the story of Boone County, the historical review being in a great part taken from Collin's Illustrated History of Kentucky.

Boone County, the thirtieth in order, was organized in 1798, and Burlington, the county seat, was incorporated in 1824, it being then quite as large if not larger than the City of Cincinnati. The first authentic history relative to the seed sowing of civilization in Boone County was in 1739, when a Frenchman named Lanquell discoverell Big Bone Lick, where wild animals congregated to lick the morass sediment of the great springs that has figured so prominently in Kentucky's history as being one of the chief supply points for salt, by both the red men and the pioneers.

The first white woman to visit Kentucky (and Boone County) was Mrs. Mary Ingles, who with Mrs. Draper and her two little boys were captured by the Shawnee Indians in old Virginia, and were carried to the Salt Wells (Big Bone Lick). From here, by strategy, she escaped, and by living on grapes, herbs and barks she managed to get back to her old home, having to traverse a trackless forest, not even daring to follow a trail for fear of again falling into the hands of the savages. One of the little boys died in captivity, the other after thirteen years' life with the Indians was ransomed by his father.

The first survey to be made in the county was the Big Bone Creek. This was made July 5, 1773, by Captain Thomas Bullitt. It was then also the discovery was made of the wonderfully well preserved bones of the mammoth, and the mastodon, the place possibly being back in the miocine and pleotocine ages a lick, for these huge and now extinct animals at this place, the largest mastodon bones and tusks yet to be found, were unearthed, and now repose in the British Museum, London, England. One of the first permanent settlements made in the county was at Petersburg, called then Tanner's Station, named in honor of Rev. John Tanner, the first Baptist preacher to set foot on the soil of Boone County, so far as known to history. In May, 1790, John Tanner, a boy of nine, was made prisoner by the Indians, and in 1791, Edward, a brother (both sons of John Tanner) was captured and escaped two days later, but through the Indians, he learned news of his brother, whom it was afterwards learned spent his life with the Indians, and in 1818 became an employe of the Government as an interpreter.

Daniel Boone, after whom the county was named was among the first white men to try to establish permanent citizenship in this section, his keen knowledge of the Indians, his unfearing nature and craftiness were self-installed arguments of his supremacy. The Big Bone Lick (Salt Springs) were inducements not to be overlooked by the frontiersman, for from the water salt could be distilled, a commodity that in those weird days was listed with life's luxuries on the border.

The large game that had been undisturbed for ages, save by Indian hunting, also knew the beneficencies of these springs as a lick, and to the intrepid Daniel Boone was an ideal place to kill such as he most desired.

Pass from the picture of the vast forest, teeming with wild game of every kind, the few log cabins at trading stations, Daniel Boone, playing a game of hide and seek with the Indians with chance of losing his scalp, to the tranquil scene of to-day, with the wonderful stride of progress as contrast. Indeed, it is a far cry and hard to comprehend. Yet to be appreciated.

Boone County to-day can pride herself as being one of the most foremost in the State where religious zeal, industry and education work hand in hand to make happy home and a contented people.

COURT HOUSE BUILT IN 1817.

1817 COURT HOUSE AS REMODELED IN 1878.

FARMS.

The farmers, with exceptions of few, are in excellent financial shape, the per cent of indebtedness being quite small, and it is doubtful if there is another county in the State that can show as few mortgages recorded. This with the fact that Boone is one of the largest counties in the State, speaks volumes for the prudence, sagacity and high standing of our husbandry.

The fine blue grass pastures make stock raising of this section one of the chief revenues.

GOOD ROADS

The splendid macadamized highways of Boone County is ever the source of delight and advantage; the principal roads are maintained by corporations, who charge a light toll for travel, yet with this revenue it is said the receipts are inadequate to cope with the expenditures for increased improvements. A great many who favor free pikes generally change their minds when they compare our fine roads to the free roads of Kenton, Carroll, Grant and Owen Counties, that have undergo usage and slight work become rough and in winter months nearly impassable.

OUR SCHOOLS.

The schools of Boone County are fully up to the standard of any common school district in the State. The buildings are in very good repair and every facility is employed to make the student comfortable—quite different from the old and roomy log school house with wide fireplace and slab seats, such as our forefathers had. Great care is exercised in the selection of competent educators, thus the best possible result is obtained.

CHURCHES.

The churches of the county show the predominating and towering strength of the Christian faith of our people. Nearly every community is represented with commanding church edifices, each being presided over by able and influential pastors, who work in harmony to advance the teaching of Christianity.

TOWNS.

The county is represented with several towns of commercial strength. Burlington is the county-seat, with some 500 population; Florence, Walton, Petersburg, Rabbit Hash, Union, Hebron, Beaver Lick, Verona, Hamilton, Normansville and Bellevue. Erlanger is the principal railway station of the county; in fact, belongs to Kenton County, but so closely is this place identified with Boone County that we enumerate her with our list.

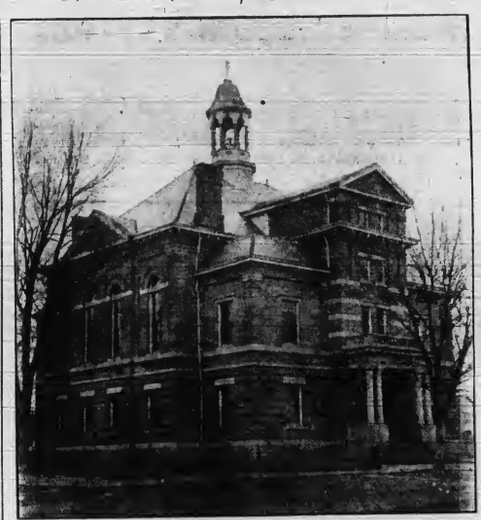
SCENERY.

The picturesque scenery of Boone County is beautiful to the extreme. The pleasing story of the noted novelist, John Uri Lloyd, The "Warwick of the Knobs," was inspired by the rich landscape views in the southern part of the county, and the silvery brooks and creeks that sing sweet notes in their ripple to the lever of nature. Big Bone Spring, with its old-style hotel and waters known far and wide through their great curative power, is a place of great interest to the traveler.

A few miles from Burlington along the cleits, again one comes in contact with ornate creation of diversified scenery. Here, too, is found sparkling springs, with waters pure and remarkably cold. The most admired of these springs is the great "Split Rock," set out seemingly without support, and from which gushes fresh cold water clear as crystal.

OUR COURTS.

Big courts in Boone County seem a thing of the past. The legal business is light inasmuch as litigation is concerned. Like all county-seats a jail is in evidence, but as six months has elapsed since a prisoner has entered its doors, so little is this piece of county property used that weeds have grown up high around the main entrance.



The county officials, without exception, are gentlemen of the highest standing.

FRUIT GROWING.

In the past few years particular attention has been given to fruit culture and the reward has been an excellent return for the investmnt. Many orchards are being set out this year, and the time does not seem distant until Boone County can in this line of commerce claim distinction.

OUR COMMERCIAL LIFE.

In our review of the commercial life of the county it has been our earnest aim to make true and special mention of the several worthy concerns, enterprises and business men. In fact, it is not complete, so far as the entire representation is concerned. Unable to get many to obtain the necessary data needful to compile the articles is accountable for their absence. As a whole our business men are prosperous, energetic and progressive—a class such as to add lustre to the county's good name and fame.

PRESENT COURT HOUSE.

JUDGE P. E. CASON.

The Youngest Man Ever Elected to the Bench in Boone County.

Possibly the Youngest County Judge in the State.

Judge P. E. Cason bears the unique distinction of being the youngest man to have ever been elected to the office of County Judge in Boone County, and it is doubtful if there is another Judge in the State that is not older. Judge Cason was born January 20, 1870. His early education was had in our common schools, passing from the graded school to the University of Law, Louisville, and graduated from the law department with the Class of 1891. Soon thereafter he was admitted to the bar, and a practitioner in the Covington courts as an associate with Hallam & Myers. In this office and under the training of such able jurists as Judge Hallam and Mr. Myers, Judge Cason became more definitely acquainted with law from a practical standpoint, which with his rigid theoric training versed him into a lawyer of both tact and talent. From the office of Hallam & Myers he returned to his home town to practice, and the success attained furnished an excellent testimonial as to the virtue of the trite saying: "Merit is bound to win." From early life the Judge has evinced a keen interest in politics, and is a hard worker for his party. In the last regular election he was chosen by a handsome majority to the office of County Judge—the honor being doubly great from the fact of his age. In fulfilling the duties of this responsible office he has demonstrated young men are equally as capable as older heads. In fact his administration has been one of entire satisfaction, showing his careful ruling, prudence and excellent judgment. Then again, he is the only lawyer to be elected to the Bench since the term of Judge Phelps. In 1894 he was selected by the Government to fill the office of Inspector of Chinese Immigration, with headquarters at Tacoma, Wash. He left Burlington to fill this position March 16, 1894. About fifteen months later he resigned to return home and to again practice law. November 2, 1892, he was married to Miss Blanche Lewis Parker, daughter of one of Boone County's best farmers.

Judge Cason is a very modest appearing gentleman, imbued with a moral high-toned temperament, refined in demeanor, pleasant and interesting in address. In fact, a thorough going gentleman in every sense of the term.

COUNTY INFIRMARY.

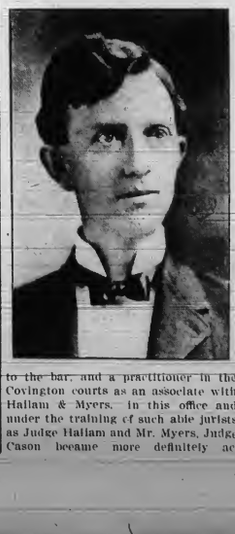
D. E. CASTLEMAN.

Boone County's Popular and Very Efficient Attorney, has Filled the Office With Credit to Himself and Constituents Since 1901.

The bar of Boone County is composed of an array of legal talent, the strength of which radiates high worth and splendor to the exalted bench of jurisprudence in all that the parase implies. Grouped in this assembly and a conspicuous figure therein, is D. E. Castleman, one of the most successful prominent and popular lawyers to represent the Blackstone contingent in this section of the state. Lawyer Castleman was born November 27, 1868, in the town of Glencoe (now West), he hied himself towards the setting sun after being admitted to the bar, and for five years engaged in practice in Kansas and Colorado, concluding his Western experience to return to his old home, Warsaw, where he built up a reputation and practice second to no lawyer in Gallatin County.

In political life his strength to Democracy has been a factor of great importance to the party—always for the party—always for the Democrat, irrespective to measured personality. He was frequently made delegate to state conventions, and was Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee from 1898 to 1902, by virtue of which he was a member of the Sixth Congressional Executive Committee.

In 1893 he was made Master Commissioner of Gallatin County, resigning one year later, when he moved to Burlington. Moving to Burlington, however, did not release him from Gallatin County business; the call for his services for years afterward was of such magnitude as to take up a great portion of his time. In Burlington, the old story of intrinsic merit being a prize winner, again asserted itself in the efforts and progress made by Mr. Castleman, the fight for supremacy became evident early in the launching; however, step by step, he has climbed until now he can well sustain the appellation of being one of the foremost representatives of the Boone County bar. In 1901 he was nominated for County Attorney, but previous to his election, November, 1902, he was appointed to fill the vacancy of County Attorney, made vacant by the resignation of Judge John M. Lassing, and in the conduct of this public charge he has, in a fearless and impartial way, served the county—a service highly appreciated and commended in all circles, regardless of political affiliations and faiths.



BOONE COUNTY JAIL.

In social life his example is one depicting a worthy, conscientious, high-class gentleman; is a member of the Baptist Church, and is the present clerk of the North Bend Baptist Association.

In 1885 he was married to Miss Mary Lee Hawkins of Lawrenceburg. Their three daughters and one son form an interesting family to occupy the beautiful home in which they reside. It is but meet and proper for us to add our prediction that a higher place awaits D. E. Castleman.

Gallatin County. Not being a favored son, born with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth, the toll for success became incumbent in days of boyhood. The combat was early sought and began as a general utility lad on the farm, with extended privilege of attending school during winter months and doing chores, night and morning, to keep his line of expense in curtail.

Through the exercise of hard work in the school room, and regard for diligence on every hand, he succeeded in acquiring an education sufficient to enter Georgetown College, graduating from that seat of learning in literature in 1883, and subsequently graduated from the Cincinnati Law School in 1885, and was admitted to the Gallitin County bar immediately thereafter. Failing in line with Horace Greeley's famous advice to young men (go

Wednesday, - - Aug. 19, 1903.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Quite a number of Burlingtonians attended the Lawrenceburg fair last Saturday.

Only five indictments, and they for minor offenses, were returned by the grand jury, last week. The jury was in session only three days.

The eleven jurors who went over to the one in the trial of Jett and White, a Cynthiana, ought to have hung the jury. Nothing less than hanging will be justice for the two assassins.

Jimmie Riddell, of Hebron, and John Watson, of Erlanger, had a mixup at the Lawrenceburg fair, one day last week. Riddell got a broken nose and a pair of black eyes. Watson got a $15 fine and the trimmings.

The fine of John Early for striking Ben Luck at the game of base ball here on July 4, was assessed at $58.33 by a jury in the circuit court, last week. Mr. Early was fined $50 in Judge Cason's court for the offense, a few weeks ago, and he appealed to the circuit court.

Persons who desire copies of the illustrated edition of the RECORDER would better send in their orders at once. It will be sent out in tomorrows mail to regular subscribers. As not a great many extra copies have been printed the first who order will be served. Price, 10c a copy. The first page alone is worth the price.

A young man who filled up on bad whisky at Lawrenceburg, last Saturday, came to this side of the river full of fight, and seeing nothing to go up against he attacked, with his knife, a rick of sacked wheat lying on the wharf, and belonging to Geo. W. Terrill, and slashed them in a terrible manner, wasting a large quantity of wheat.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c, at all Drug Stores.

A considerable portion of the stables at Lawrenceburg fair grounds was destroyed by fire, Monday, about one o'clock. It is supposed that the fire was caused by a cigar stub someone had thrown down. It was a very hot fire, and Mr. Cunningham, who had several fine horses in the stables, was severely burnt about his body, while getting his horses out of the burning buildings. He lost all his harness. The loss to the company is estimated at $1,000.

On September 2d and 3d, Robert M. Hopkins, State Sunday School Evangelist, will hold a S. S. Institute at the Christian church, Petersburg. Mr. Hopkins will use blackboard and stereopticon, in his work, making the Institute especially interesting to the children, while, at the same time, instructive and helpful to all Sunday School workers. No admission will be charged, but a free-will offering for the Sunday Missionary Work. Everybody cordially invited.

Base Ball.

There was something doing over at the ball park, last Saturday afternoon. Judge Lassing's picked nine played the Burlington ball team to a tie in the six inning, 10 to 10, when the game was called on account of the arrival of the Macons from Cincinnati, to play the Boones. The first game was replete with sensational plays, and entertained the large crowd of fans from start to finish. Judge Lassing was the boss coacher. Bert Sullivan who had been taking snake oil baths for several weeks, was in first-class condition and put up the game of his life. The picked nine line-up was as follows: Henry Quick, c., Homer Clutterbuck, p., Frank Maxwell, 2nd.; Duley Beall, short, O. W. Gaines, 3d., Dr. Clore, left, John M. Lassing right, C. A. Fowler, center. The Burlington team will have a good game at the Burlington park Saturday.

The game between the Boones and the Macons was a one sided affair. The battery work of Hughes and Hogan was good. The visitors were let down with three hits and a home run, while the Boones made 8 singles, 2 two base and 4 three base hits. Hughes struck out 10 and Apple 5. The fielding on each side was good, not a fly being muffed in the out field to which place quite a number found their way.

Following is the score:

Boones	2	2	3	0	1	0	1	*	—	12
Macons	0	0	1	0	3	0	0	0	—	4

One of the vistors hit Hughes for a home run.

The Boones will play at Home again next Saturday.

L. M. Whitehead Dead.

It grieves us to announce the death of Luvette Whitehead, which occured last Saturday, at Texas, where he had been for about two years.

He was born and reared among our people and was greatly beloved by everyone. For a number of years previous to the breaking down of his health he was engaged in the life insurance business, and so successful had been his efforts that he was placed in one of the most important positions in the field, with headquarters in Louisville, but was compelled to give it up on account of that dreaded disease, consumption, which was the cause of his death.

He was one of the truest friends and most clever and polished gentlemen we ever knew, and we sympathise with his brother and sister —James Whitehead, of Owen county, and Mrs. Emma Searcy, of White's Run—in the loss of their devoted brother.

His remains were interred in Texas for the present, but will be brought here for final interment.—Carrollton News.

Mr. Whitehead was well known here, where he had many friends. His wife was Miss Mary Ryle, a niece of Mrs. Legrand Gaines.

Of Interest to Tobacco Growers.

L. H. Voshell, who has been organizing this county in the interest of the Tobacco Growers' Association requests the publication of the following, which explains itself:

Lexington, Ky., August 13, 1903
Dear Sir:—The committee appointed to finance the Company is ready to report progress, and a large mass meeting is invited for Friday, August 21st, at the court house, at 2 p. m., to hear the report and take action, as on this effort depends the life or death of our enterprise. Your committee has labored as never before, and all that you and we have done goes for nothing if we do not go on. Leave the worm and suckers for a day and attend to this call. Have this letter printed in your county paper, and see that every signer in your county gets notice. If he can't come, let him contribute toward sending a representative.

Yours Truly,
W. B. HAWKINS, Pres't
Burley Tobacco Growers' Ass'n.

The Boone County Fair.

The glory and pleasure of a country fair, such as will be inaugurated by the North Kentucky Agricultural Association at their grounds at Florence next week, must be seen to be appreciated, hence we admonish our people as well as those of the surrounding counties to get ready their exhibits and be on hand to make merry and glad at this festive season. Florence will have on her best bib and tucker and will extend the "glad hand" of welcome to all visitors and will leave nothing undone that will make their stay both pleasant and profitable. Remember the dates, August 26, 27, 28 and 29, and remember you will be welcome.

Gained forty Pounds in thirty days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds of flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade on the Tablets.—Holley Bros., Merchants, Long Branch, Mo. For Sale by all Druggists.

Dysentery Cured Without the Aid of a Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux" (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn., "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used; for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For Sale by All Druggists.

For Sale.---Farm of 355 Acres.
$17.500 Will Buy It If Sold in the Next 30 Days.

I offer for sale my farm of 255 acres, adjoining the village of Hebron. It is the finest and best improved farm in Northern Kentucky. It is all in meadow and fine blue grass except about 10 acres. Having decided to move away this fall, I will take for the farm, if sold within the next thirty days, $17,500—not less. It is the greatest bargain in farm lands ever offered in this end of the State. It cost nearly double that sum. I will show the figures.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19, 1903.

BOONE COUNTY.

Brief Historical Sketch of the Much Honored Land.

Sketches of the Leading Institutions and Business Men Who Vie With Each Other in Making Boone County One of the Greatest in the State.

Beautiful Scenery, Fine Macadamized Roads, Good Farms, Excellent Schools, Splendid Churches---Citizens Hospitable, Generous, Energetic and Prosperous.

The purport of this issue is to, in a concise way, without the use of high sounding platitudes and fustian phraseology, to tell the story of Boone County, the historical review being in a great part taken from Collin's Illustrated History of Kentucky.

COURT HOUSE BUILT IN 1817.

Boone County, the thirtieth in order, was organized in 1798, and Burlington, the county seat, was incorporated in 1824, it being then quite as large if not larger than the City of Cincinnati. The first authentic history relative to the seed sowing of civilization in Boone County was in 1739, when a Frenchman named Lanquell discovered Big Bone Lick, where where wild animals congregated to lick the morass sediment of the great springs that has figured so prominently in Kentucky's history as being one of the chief supply points for salt, by both the red men and the pioneers.

The first white woman to visit Kentucky (and Boone County) was Mrs. Mary Ingles, who with Mrs. Draper and her two little boys were captured by the Shawnee Indians in old Virginia, and were carried to the Salt Wells (Big Bone Lick). From here, by strategy, she escaped, and by living on grapes, herbs and barks she managed to get back to her old home, having to traverse a trackless forest, not even daring to follow a trail for fear of again falling into the hands of the savages. One of the little boys died in captivity, the other after thirteen years' life with the Indians was ransomed by his father.

The first survey to be made in the county was the Big Bone Creek. This was made July 5, 1773, by Captain Thomas Bullitt. It was then also the discovery was made of the wonderfully well preserved bones of the mammoth and the mastodon, the place possibly being back in the miocine and pleotocine ages a lick, for these huge and now extinct animals at this place, the largest mastodon bones and tusks yet to be found, were unearthed, and now repose in the British Museum, London, England. One of the first permanent settlements made in the county was at Petersburg, called then Tanner's Station, named in honor of Rev. John Tanner, the first Baptist preacher to set foot on the soil of Boone County, so far as known to history. In May, 1790, John Tanner, a boy of nine, was made prisoner by the Indians, and in 1791, Edward, a brother (both sons of John Tanner) was captured and escaped two days later, but through the Indians he learned news of his brother, whom it was afterward learned spent his life with the Indians, and in 1818 became an employe of the Government as an interpreter.

Daniel Boone, after whom the county was named was among the first white men to try to establish permanent citizenship in this section, his keen knowledge of the Indians, his unfearing nature and craftiness were self-installed arguments of his supremacy. The Big Bone Lick (Salt Springs) were inducements not to be overlooked by the frontiersman, for from the water salt could be distilled, a commodity that in those weird days was listed with life's luxuries on the border.

The large game that had been undisturbed for ages, save by Indian hunting, also knew the beneficencies of these springs as a lick, and to the intrepid Daniel Boone was an ideal place to kill such as he most desired.

Pass from the picture of the vast forest, teeming with wild game of every kind, the few log cabins at trading stations, Daniel Boone, playing a game of hide and seek with the Indians with chance of losing his scalp, to the tranquil scene of to-day, with the wonderful stride of progress as contrast. Indeed, it is a far cry and hard to comprehend. Yet to be appreciated.

1817 COURT HOUSE AS REMODELED IN 1878.

Boone County to-day can pride herself as being one of the most foremost in the State where religious zeal, industry and eduention work hand in hand to make happy home and a contented people.

FARMS.

The farmers, with exceptions of few, are in excellent financial shape, the per cent of indebtedness being quite small, and it is doubtful if there is another county in the State that can show as few mortgages recorded. This with the fact that Boone is one of the largest counties in the State, speaks volumes for the prudence, sagacity and high standing of our husbandry.

The fine blue grass pastures make stock raising of this section one of the chief revenues.

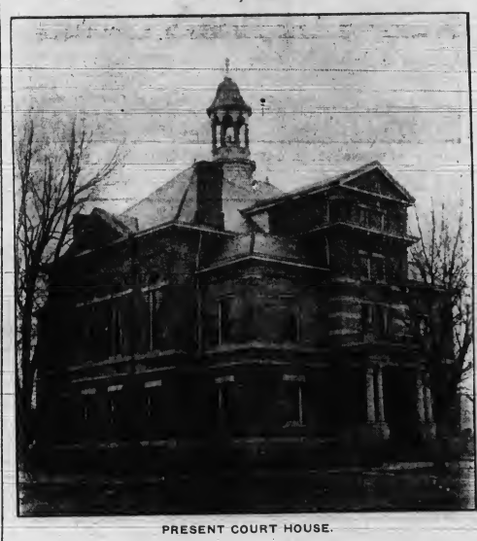
GOOD ROADS



The splendid macadamized highways of Boone County is ever the source of delight and advantage; the principal roads are maintained by corporations, who charge a light toll for travel, yet with this revenue it is said the receipts are inadequate to cope with the expenditures for increased improvements. A great many who favor free pikes generally change their minds when they compare our fine roads to the free roads of Kenton, Carroll, Grant and Owen Counties, that have under use usage and slight work become rough and in winter months nearly impassable.

OUR SCHOOLS.

The schools of Boone County are fully up to the standard of any common school district in the State. The buildings are in very good repair and every facility is employed to make the student comfortable—quite different from the old and roomy log school house with wide fireplace and slab seats, such as our forefathers had. Great care is exercised in the selection of competent educators, thus the best possible result is obtained.

CHURCHES.

The churches of the county show the predominating and towering strength of the Christian faith of our people. Nearly every community is represented with commanding church edifices, each being presided over by able and influential pastors, who work in harmony to advance the teaching of Christianity.

PRESENT COURT HOUSE.

TOWNS.

The county is represented with several towns of commercial strength, Burlington is the county-seat, with some 500 population; Florence, Walton, Petersburg, Rabbit Hash, Union, Hebron, Beaver Lick, Verona, Hamilton, Normansville and Bellevue. Erlanger is the principal railway station of the county; in fact, belongs to Kenton County, but so closely is this place identified with Boone County that we enumerate her with our list.

SCENERY.

The picturesque scenery of Boone County is beautiful to the extreme. The pleasing story of the noted novelist, John Uri Lloyd, The "Warwick of the Knobs," was inspired by the rich landscape views in the southern part of the county, and the silvery brooks and creeks that sing sweet notes in their ripple to the fever of nature. Big Bone Spring, with its old-style hotel and waters known far and wide through their great curative power, is a place of great interest to the traveler.

A few miles from Burlington along the cleifts, again one comes in contact with ornate creation of diversified scenery. Here, too, is found sparkling springs, with waters pure and remarkably cold. The most admired of these springs is the great "Split Rock," set out seemingly without support, and from which gushes fresh cold water clear as crystal.

OUR COURTS.

Big courts in Boone County seem a thing of the past. The legal business is light inasmuch as litigation is concerned. Like all county seats a jail is in evidence, but as six months has elapsed since a prisoner has entered its doors, so little is this piece of county property used that weeds have grown up high around the main entrance.

The county officials, without exception, are gentlemen of the highest standing.

FRUIT GROWING.

In the past few years particular attention has been given to fruit culture, and the reward has been an excellent return for the investmnt. Many orchards are being set out this year, and the time does not seem distant until Boone County can in this line of commerce claim distinction.

OUR COMMERCIAL LIFE.

In our review of the commercial life of the county it has been our earnest aim to make true and special mention of the several worthy concerns, enterprises and businces men. In fact, it is not complete, so far as the entire representation is concerned. Unable to see many to obtain the necessary data needful to compile the articles is accountable for their absence. As a whole our business men are prosperous, energetic and progressive—a class such as to add lustre to the county's good name and fame.

JUDGE P. E. CASON,

The Youngest Man Ever Elected to the Bench in Boone County.

Possibly the Youngest County Judge in the State.

Judge P. E. Cason bears the unique distinction of being the youngest man to have ever been elected to the office of County Judge in Boone County, and it is doubtful if there is another Judge in the State that is not older. Judge Cason was born January 20, 1870. His early education was had in our common schools, passing from the graded school to the University of Law, Louisville, and graduated from the law department with the Class of 1891. Soon thereafter he was admitted to the bar, and a practitioner in the Covington courts as an associate with Hallam & Myers. In this office and under the training of such able jurists as Judge Hallam and Mr. Myers, Judge Cason became more definitely acquainted with law from a practical standpoint, which with his rigid theoric training versed him into a lawyer of both tact and talent. From the office of Hallam & Myers he returned to his home town to practice, and the success attained furnished an excellent testimonial as to the virtue of the trite saying: "Merit is bound to win." From early life the Judge has evinced a keen interest in politics, and is a hard worker for his party. In the last regular election he was chosen by a handsome majority to the office of County Judge—the honor being doubly great from the fact of his age. In fulfilling the duties of this responsible office he has demonstrated young men are equally as capable as older heads. In fact his administration has been one of entire satisfaction, showing his careful ruling, prudence and excellent judgment. Then again, he is the only lawyer to be elected to the Bench since the term of Judge Phelps. In 1894 he was selected by the Government to fill the office of Inspector of Chinese Immigration, with headquarters at Tacoma, Wash. He left Burlington to fill this position March 16, 1894. About fifteen months later he resigned to return home and to again practice law. November 2, 1892, he was married to Miss Blanche Lewis Parker, daughter of one of Boone County's best farmers.

Judge Cason is a very modest appearing gentleman, imbued with a moral high-toned temperament, refined in demeanor, pleasant and interesting in address. In fact, a thorough going gentleman in every sense of the term.

COUNTY INFIRMARY.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,

Boone County's Popular and Very Efficient Attorney, has Filled the Office With Credit to Himself and Constituents Since 1901.

The bar of Boone County is composed of an array of legal talent, the strength of which radiates high worth and splendor to the exalted bench of jurisprudence in all that the parase implies. Grouped in this assembly and a conspicuous figure therein, is D. E. Castleman, one of the most successful, prominent and popular lawyers to represent the Blackstone contingent in this section of the state.

Lawyer Castleman was born November 27, 1868, in the town of Glencoe Gallatin County. Not being a favored son, born with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth, the toil for success became incumbent in days of boyhood. The combat was early sought and began as a general utility lad on the farm, with extended privilege of attending school during winter months and doing chores, night and morning, to keep his line of expense in curtail.

Through the exercise of hard work in the school room, and regard for diligence on every hand, he succeeded in acquiring an education sufficient to enter Georgetown College, graduating from that seat of learning in literature in 1883, and subsequently graduated from the Cincinnati Law School in 1885, and was admitted to the Gallitin County bar immediately thereafter. Falling in line with Horace Greeley's famous advice to young men (go West), he hied himself towards the setting sun after being admitted to the bar, and for five years engaged in practice in Kansas and Colorado, concluding his Western experience to return to his old home, Warsaw, where he built up a reputation and practice second to no lawyer in Gallatin County.

In political life his strength to Democracy has been a factor of great importance to the party—always for the party—always for the Democrat, irrespective to measured personality. He was frequently made delegate to state conventions, and was Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee from 1898 to 1902, by virtue of which he was a member of the Sixth Congressional Executive Committee.

In 1893 he was made Master Commissioner of Gallatin County, resigning one year later, when he moved to Burlington. Moving to Burlington, however, did not release him from Gallatin County business; the call for his services for years afterward was of such magnitude as to take up a great portion of his time. In Burlington, the old story of intrinsic merit being a prize winner, again asserted itself in the efforts and progress made by Mr. Castleman, the fight for supremacy became evident early in the launching; however, step by step, he has climbed until now he can well sustain the appellation of being one of the foremost representatives of the Boone County bar. In 1901 he was nominated for County Attorney, but previous to his election, November, 1902, he was appointed to fill the vacancy of County Attorney, made vacant by the resignation of Judge John M. Lassing, and in the conduct of this public charge he has, in a fearless and impartial way, served the county—a service highly appreciated and commended in all circles, regardless of political affiliations and faiths.

BOONE COUNTY JAIL.

In social life his example is one depicting a worthy, conscientious, high-class gentleman; is a member of the Baptist Church, and is the present clerk of the North Bend Baptist Association.

In 1885 he was married to Miss Mary Lee Hawkins, of Lawrenceburg. Their three daughters and one son form an interesting family to occupy the beautiful home in which they reside. It is but meet and proper for us to add our prediction that a higher place awaits D. E. Castleman.

COL. JOHN URI LLOYD.

Ex-Boone Countian, and Whose Fame As An Author

Has Familiarized Our Good Name and Resources Abroad.

In spreading this illustrated edition of THE RECORDER before the public it has been our happy privilege to incorporate a number of those who were born in Boone County but early in life drifted to distant parts, where they now reside, and have achieved name and fortune, but who yet love the good old County of Boone as the sacred spot of their ancestry and birth. Boone County is prouder of no other citizen than Colonel John Uri Lloyd, author of "Stringtown on the Pike," "Etidorpha," and "The Right Side of the Car," a chemist of national reputation, business man of large problems, and whose wholesale drug interests are among the largest in the City of Cincinnati, being situated at 224 West Court street. To attempt to itemize his course and success in life would necessitate more space than can be devoted to any one article in this publication, not to mention our incapacities; but suffice it to say his efforts have been both brilliant and phenomenal, under original adverse circumstances and according to his own architecture. Colonel Lloyd also chose for his life partner a Kentucky girl—Miss Emma, daughter of Mr. Thomas Rouse, of Grant County—and their mutual existence has been an exceptionally happy one.

In closing up this article, brief as it may be, we can not refrain from sparing the reader the pleasure of perusing a happily constructed letter sent us in response to a kind invitation extended to him to participate in our good work in producing this edition:

OFFICE OF THE LLOYD LIBRARY,
224 W. Court St.,
Cincinnati, O., U. S. A.

July 8th, 1903.

My Dear Mr. Forrister:

I am in receipt of your letter concerning the special issue of the Recorder, and enclose herewith my check for $10.00 to show my appreciation and good will in your direction. I may send you a list of names to whom you may mail a number of copies. If I do not do so, please accept the donation in the same friendly spirit in which it is extended. I wish you great success, and feel assured that if the people of the County unite, as I believe they will, in this attempt to show what Boone County has, and has had, you will do yourself proud.

When you remember that my boyhood days were spent in Petersburg, Burlington and Florence, and that my father, as Surveyor and School Teacher, was located in several places in the county, that he laid out some of your most conspicuous pikes, and that, from my earliest boyhood I have been delightfully charmed with your picturesque and fertile land, you can understand that I am greatly interested in whatever concerns the welfare of the place. It affords me not a little satisfaction to know that the part I have taken outside in introducing this section of Kentucky to the world has been most kindly received by those who did not know us preceding my publications, and that, from even so far as Boston, tourists have sought the knob lands of Gunpowder and Big Bone, and have come away delighted with both the country and the people. I consider Boone County historical. Much has she accomplished in times gone by. Her part has always been well done, and could a record be made of the work in which she has been concerned it would be a magnificent monument. I consider myself a Boone County boy, and thus, in speaking of old Boone County, I take a pardonable pride in being numbered among her people.

With kind regards and best wishes to one and all, and with the hope I can not express that your special number may be all; and more than all the most enthusiastic can desire, I am,

Most sincerely yours,
JOHN URI LLOYD.

IRA AYLOR,

Fancy Groceries, Fruits and Notions, Erlanger, Ky.

One of the very attractive stores of the principal street of Erlanger is the business of Ira Aylor. This house is in appearance strikingly metropolitan, and the methods of business conduct show the modern ideas of Mr. Aylor. The stock of goods is a comprehensive aggregation of choice edibles, fancy canned goods, teas, fruits, coffees, spices, green goods, etc. A free delivery is employed; thus the Erlanger people are afforded equal advantages enjoyed by city residents. Not only has Mr. Aylor a good store to attract trade, but he in a personal way is a very popular gentleman. In the pursuance of his business he extends every courtesy to customers consistent with safe business. He was born in Boone county July 18, 1870, and was identified with farm work until 1892. June 20, 1891, he married Miss Minto Glacken; a son brightens their household.

Y. FRANK HOPKINS, M. D.,

Rabbit Hash, Ky.

Dr. Hopkins was born in Gardnersville, Grant County, Ky., July 1, 1877. In the common schools he secured a good English education, and graduated from the Kentucky School of Medicine with the class of 1901. Leaving school he began practice at Rabbit Hash, and was favored with a $3,000 practice the first year, and his services are so great in demand now that he has but little time to spare outside of the professional life.

His success in the way of combating disease and healing the sick, has been of phenomenal character, a circumstance which illustrates in a convincing way his thorough knowledge of disease and the modern treatise to effect a cure.

In lodge life the Doctor stands high and takes active interest; is a Mason, K. of P. and I. O. O. F.

December 27, 1900, he was married to Miss Sherlie Johns, of Pendleton County. One bright little son has come to bless the union.

WM. SMITH,

The Merchant of Maple Grove.

Mr. Smith was born in Campbell County, June 11, 1857; was raised on a farm, leaving farm work in 1891 on account of physical disability. It was at this time that he engaged in mercantile lines at Maple Grove, a venture that has proved to be a profitable undertaking. The stock of goods comes under the trite head of general merchandise— a supply depot for the people of that section for the averagestore demand.

March 7, 1885, Mr. Smith married Miss Anna Anderson, of Boone County. They have one daughter.

Liberal, conservative, upright and progressive, Mr. Smith makes a most excellent citizen.

In addition to his store, two good farms represent part of his holdings.

UNION DEPOSIT BANK.

Opens for Business September 1st Next—Home Institution — Capital Stock $20,000.

When the Union Deposit Bank of Union opens its doors to the public for business September 1st next, it can not only be said that it will be one among the most ideally equipped country banks in the United States, but that it will be singularly backed by home capital and dominated by home people. Its affairs will be administered with the strictest conservatism and thoughtful foresight, and any connection with Wall Street and rank speculation, of whatever nature, will be studiously avoided, with the view of meriting the confidence of the public at large, assuring permanent prosperity, long and useful life. A general banking business in all its modern advantages and facilities will be conducted for the benefit of customers, depositors and stockholders, and it can be authoritative stated that sufficient business has already been pledged to assure the success of the institution. Its home will be a new brick building, 22x40; fire-proof, thick walled vault, with Trust Box Equipment for the benefit of those who wish to rent collateral boxes, and the latest improved Mosler Screw Door Time-Lock Safe. The fixtures will be of quartered oak, and of the most modern designs.

The capital stock is $20,000, and being surrounded with a rich and fertile farming country and additionally backed by the above board of directors, each of whom are known for their individual integrity, sterling worth and financial responsibility, doubly assures the solidity of this bank.

Dr. M. J. Crouch, President, was born in Gallatin County, June 5, 1865. His father, John Crouch, being a life-long industrious and honest farmer, now residing in Grant County, while his mother was the daughter of M. J. Williams, of Glencoe, Ky., Ex-Member of the State Legislature and Past Grand Master of Kentucky Masonic Grand Lodge. Dr. Crouch received his literary education at the hands of private tutors, and early in life entered the drug business, graduating in the Louisville College of Pharmacy in 1884. In 1887 graduated with honors in the Medical Department of University of Louisville, and afterward served for one year as interne of that great institution. After practicing in Henry County for a few years he came to Union in 1891, where he owns a most elegant home, a drug establishment and a blue grass farm. He conceived the idea of organizing the Union Deposit Bank, and has at all times been its chief promoter, the success of which he justly feels proud. No man stands higher in the medical professional in Boone County that Dr. Crouch. He is morally a pure man, a Mason and a member of the Baptist Church.

Mr. J. W. Conner, Vice President, is one among the most substantial farmers and business men in Boone County, and has taken an active part and been a material aid in the organization of the new bank.

Mr. J. L. Frazier, Cashier, is one of the best known and most highly prized citizens in Boone County, and the general expression on every hand is that the right man has been selected to actively administer the affairs of the new institution. Mr. Frazier is a farmer in Union Precinct, fine stock breeder and a good business man. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, member of the Executive Board of the State Grange, an admirer of hunting, and has the happy faculty of being a fine shot on the wing.

The Union Deposit Bank will begin its career well backed financially, well organized, handsomely equipped and splendidly officered, and THE RECORDER trusts it will exist a thousand years hence.

BURLINGTON BAPTIST CHURCH BUILDING.

O. P. CONNER,

Leaf Tobacco Dealer.

The gentleman whose name captions this article, is one of the best known business men of Boone County. He was born March 11, 1849, a son of the late Louis Conner, the veteran shorthorn cattle breeder and farmer.

The early life of Mr. Conner was spent on the farm assigning himself to the duties incident thereto. After reaching the age of majority he engaged in farming and stock raising on his own account, achieving a success that ranked him one of the most prosperous planters of Boone County. During the year 1887 he began handling leaf tobacco, and since then he has been one of the leading buyers of this section of Kentucky, handling annually some 200,000 pounds from the Burlington Warehouse.

Dealing in tobacco so extensively, however, does not signify that he has discontinued farming. Four miles south of Burlington is to be found his home place, and farm of 223 acres, said to be one of the most desirable estates in the county.

Dividing his time with the tobacco factory and agricultural life, Mr. Conner is a very busy man, yet, with all this he finds time to interest himself in local social affairs, being an ardent champion of Democracy, but always eschewing office of any kind with the exception of contributing aid.

He is one of the trustees of the Burlington Universalist Church.

May 18, 1869, he married Miss Adda Ellis Carpenter, three daughters and one son having blessed the union.

As a business man Mr. Conner is of inestimable worth to this section of the state. Tobacco growers have long since learned that he is their friend and for their product pays as high price as can be obtained in any nearby market. Courteous, kind and obliging, he has wove around him a congress of friends extending to the full limit of his wide acquaintance.

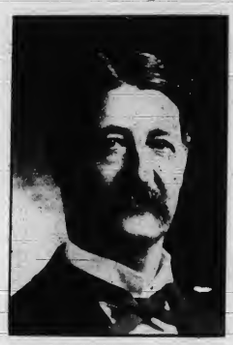
The farm is under the management of a son, who takes active interest in fine stock, and is the owner of Max Ledger, the great saddle stallion, famous for his breeding. He has taken 47 blue ribbons with him at the fair. His get is also a prize winner, one pair taking six blue ribbons in six exhibits.

BOONE COUNTY DEPOSIT BANK.

One of the Strongest and Most Prosperous Inland Banks in the State—Organized in 1886.

M. T. Garnett, President; Clinton Gains, Vice President; J. C. Revill, Cashier.

Boone County Deposit Bank, with a capital of $30,000, was founded in 1886, and it can with a sense of pardonable pride look back over a period of seventeen years of uninterrupted progress, having never failed to pay a ten per cent. dividend annually to stockholders, and with now a surplus and undivided profits on hand of $32,092.42.



The bank was founded through the efforts of Mr. J. C. Revill, who at the time was Cashier of the Farmers' concern. The great confidence reposed in the bank is clearly illustrated in the deposits entrusted to it, ranging from $125,000 to $150,000. Again, the people know well and have implicit faith in the officers of the bank, but few changes having been made since its founding. The first installation of officers were: F. Riddle, President (deceased); Dudley Rouse, Vice President; J. C. Revill, Cashier; Directors: F. Riddell, Edgar Cropper, J. M. Calvert, J. Frank Grant, R. G. Randall, Geo. E. Rouse, Dudley Rouse and J. G. Furnish.

By the death of Mr. Riddell a few weeks since Mr. M. T. Garnett was chosen to fill the vacancy of President, the officers now being: Mr. M. Garnett, President; Clinton Gains, Vice-President; J. C. Revill, Cashier; Directors: M. T. Garnett, Clinton Gaines, Dudley Rouse, J. J. Rucker, Edgar Cropper, W. L. Riddell and BOONE COUNTY DEPOSIT BANK, Burlington.

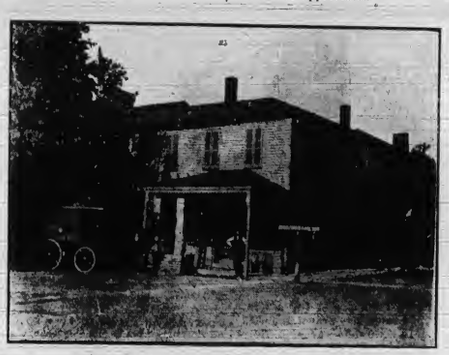
National Bank, of Owentown, Ky., a prosperous institution that came into existence at the hand of Mr. Reivell. The bank finds a home in a substantially constructed building on Court Square, the interior equipment being adequate to every demand of such an institution. The ready funds of the bank repose in a massive time-lock

J. C. REVILL, Cashier.



Hall burglar-proof safe, set inside of —virtually speaking—an impregnable fire-proof vault. Aside from the mechanical protection of the bank's funds, ample insurance is carried to protect it from any financial loss should they be unfortunate enough to meet with unforeseen burglar calls.

The showing the bank has made is a remarkable one, well depicting the keen insight and good business judgment of the financial directors of the J. C. Revill. The officers consist of a contingent of the most opulent and influential men of Boone County, representing in the aggregate a financial worth upwards of a half million dollars. Thus being endorsed with a most splendid backing, it is in position to take advantage of every opportunity offered for money-making; hence its prosperity and a laudable reason why none of its stock is for sale.

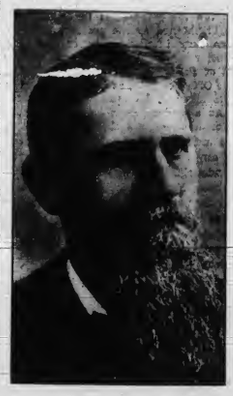
The President of the bank (recently made so by the death of Mr. F. Riddle) is a very able man, having for twenty-five consecutive years filled the office of County Clerk in the capacity of Deputy and Clerk. The Vice-President, Mr. Clinton Gaines, is an influential and prosperous farmer and a gentleman whose high character and standing is well known throughout Boone County. Mr. Revill, the efficient Cashier, was born and reared in Owen County. In his native county he was honored by being elected Circuit Clerk, serving for twelve years. During this office-holding he organized and became Cashier of the Farmers' National Bank of Owenton, resigning to Judge Holbrook, when made Cashier of the bank here. Personally speaking, Mr. Relvell is one of the most public-spirited and courteously-inclined citizens within our midst, ready and willing at all times to assist in the promotion of any laudable enterprise calculated to return benefits to the community. In religious life he affiliates with the Baptist Church.

Mr. Cecil Gaines, a very noteworthy young man, holds a position in the bank as bookkeeper.

To place one's funds and business in the hands of such a banking house affords a relief from anxiety that can not but be appreciated.

RIDDELL & CRISLER'S STORE, Burlington.

One of the oldest commercial houses of Boone County, and for the past forty years one of the leading trade houses of Burlington, is the one now operated by Riddell & Crisler, successors to Dudley Rouse, who established the business (and it has never underwent change from a general merchandise store), directly after the close of the Civil War. In this house Mr. Rouse succeeded in acquiring enough of this world's goods to place him in an independent position, so far as affluence is concerned, and that the same line of success will continue to honor the concern seems evident through the splendid trade it enjoys and the new custom daily being built. The personnel of the firm is M. Riddell and L. H. Crisler, young men born and reared within our midst and well worthy in every respect of all the good and beneficial results that may ensue from their striving. The Messrs. Riddell & Crisler took charge of affairs February 1 last, and imediately thereafter increased the volume of stock, adding a few new lines. To-day the store is regarded by patrons of this community to be a trade center where good goods are to be had at remarkably low prices. The lines of wares embrace Dry Goods, Notions, Groceries, Hardware, Cigars and Tobacco, etc. A well arranged soda fountain at the rear of the main salesroom, during the summer months, assists to serve the public with delicious fresh temperate beverages. Mr. Riddell, previous to purchasing into this house, was engaged in like business at another stand in Burlington.



Mr. Crissler is by profession a veterinary surgeon, a graduate of the Ohio Veterinary School, graduating in 1894. In this practice he has been very successful, the percentage of his losing cases being but a minimum compared to the amount of busines he is called upon to do. The leading stock breeders and horsemen of this section look upon him, as a matter of fact, a part and parcel of their business.

Liberal as merchants, congenial and accommodating as gentlemen, they make merchants and citizens of whom Burlington justly feels proud.

M. T. GARNETT.

President of the Boone County Deposit Bank and Ex-County Clerk.

Manlius Thompson Garnett is a native of this county, having been born in the brick house on Gunpowder Creek, and known as the Jonathan Utz home. His mother died when he was about six years old, and shortly thereafter his father moved to Virginia, where he remained about three years, marrying a second time while there. Returning to Kentucky with his father, Manlius Garnett has been a citizen of Boone County to this good day, except about three years he resided in Carroll County, where he served one year as Clerk of the Circuit Court. He came back to Boone County in January, 1875, since which time he has served eight years as clerk of the County Court and seventeen years as deputy of the County and Circuit Courts. Upon the resignation of Fountain Riddell as President of the Boone County Deposit Bank, Mr. Garnett was elected to fill the vacancy in that responsible position.

Mr. Garnett is a very correct business man affable and companionable, and never better satisfied than when doing a friend a favor, and the high esteem in which he is held by the people of Boone County is affirmed by the readiness with which they have honored him with the most responsible positions at their disposal.

J. A. DUNCAN,

To be Our Next Circuit Court Clerk.

J. A. Duncan was born March 6, 1853, and has given his energies in life to farming and dealing in live stock, being an associate of Wingae and Thompson, of Petersburg, in the stock trade.

At the last Democratic primary he was nominated to the office of Circuit Court Clerk and will succeeed his father, who has so faithfully filled the office for the past thirty years. Mr. Duncan is a gentleman greatly admired for his many good qualities, the compliment being shown in his nomination for office, which is equivalent to an election. In business he is one of the most widely known stock buyers of this section and enjoys a reputation for liberality and honesty free from question. In the Petersburg precinct he owns a very good stock farm, which requires considerable of his attention.

In lodge circles he belongs to the K. of P. order.

W. O. ROUSE, M. D.,

Dr. Rouse was born December 5, 1868, on a farm near Limaburg, Boone County. In the county schools he received his rudimentary literary education, which was augmented by an academic course in the Burlington High School. Leaving the high school he matriculated with the Lutheran College, Springfield, Ohio. On graduating from this seat of learning he became a student in the Ohio Medical College of Cincinnati and graduated with the class of '95. Some three years ago he came to Burlington to practice, and has succeeded in building up an extensive business, with credit of being one of the most successful physicians in Boone County. His office is located in his pleasing home on Washington Street (property he recently purchased), and his prominence as a physician is shown largely in the fine office practice given him.

June 21, 1899, he was wedded to Miss Katherine Crigler. He is a member of the North (Ky.) Medical Association and belongs to the I. O. O. F., is a conservative and consistent Christian gentlemen, a member of the Hebron Lutheran Church since quite a small boy.

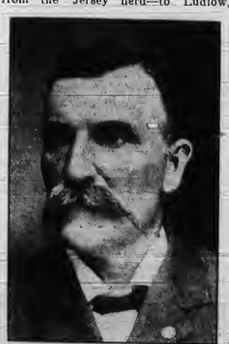
Personally speaking, Dr. Rouse is a refined, courteous citizen, who numbers his friends in both rank and file to the full extent of his wide acquaintance. In brief, he is one of our most noteworthy citizens.

R. J. SCOTT

Owns One of the Finest Drug Stores In The State, Erlanger, Ky.

Erlanger has quite a few commercial houses that would reflect credit and prestige to any of our more prominent cities, and central of this splendid showing is the R. J. Scott Drug Emporium, which will easily rank with the most elaborate establishments of the kind in the State, both as to magnitude and appearance.

Mr. Scott was born at Florence, Boone County, November 6, 1856, and has been engaged in drug dispensing and dealing since twenty-one years of age. He was identified with the business at Williamstown for several years, and established in Erlanger in 1891, and moved to his present elegant quarters in 1892. The drug store has a full complement of every class of goods kindred to the drug and drug sundry trade, including novelties, fancy toilet articles, perfumery, paints, oils, etc. He is also extensively engaged in the manufacture of Rose Glycerine Powder and Scott's Headache Powders. These articles are well established on the market and are meeting with large sale. Under ex-President Cleveland's last administration Mr. Scott served as postmaster at Erlanger.



In 1895 Mr. Scott was wedded to Miss Bettie Wakefield, of Bloomington, Ills. Two charming little daughters radiate the home.

MALCHUS SOUTHER,

Farmer and Dairyman, Hebron, Ky.

Malchus Souther is an enterprising farmer and dairyman near Hebron, Ky., one of the contingent that figures as a main spoke in the wheel of progress of that much-favored community. He is the owner of a very desirable farm, where agriculture and dairy work is combined. He is a regular contributor of milk daily—from the Jersey herd—to Ludlow, Ky. Mr. Souther was born August 22, 1855, and has farmed all his life. October 16, 1881, he married Miss Alice Gordon, of Boone County, and they have two daughters and one son living, and one daughter dead. Mr. Souther is a member of the Masons, Patron of Husbandry and Grangers, and belongs to the Christian Church. He is Secretary of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Boone County.

W. H. STAMPER,

General Merchant, Macksville, Ky.

One of the time-honored and highly respected men and merchants of Boone County is W. H. Stamper, of Macksville. Mr. Stamper is one of the many of our fine elderly men who have for upward of half a hundred years contributed to the business value of Boone County. He was born September 22, 1828, in Owen County, and in his boyhood recollection wild game such as deer, turkey and occasionally a black bear, were common sights in Owen and Boone Counties. He was raised principally in the city of Covington, until reaching the age of majority. Becoming a citizen and farmer of Boone County in 1849. In 1853 he was married to Miss Nancy Henderson, of Boone County. She died in 1867, leaving nine children, four boys and five girls. In 1883 he took unto himself a second helpmate, Miss Amanda Louden, of Boone County, he losing her also by death in 1892. Hospitable, kind and entertaining, Mr. Stamper is regarded as one of the very best men in his section of the country. His store (not unlike all general stores) is the scene of a very pleasing trade. In addition to the mercantile showing Mr. Stamper owns two very nice farms in the Macksville neighborhood and several town lots.

L. H. BUSBY,

General Blacksmith and Horseshoer, at Busby Heights, Near Gunpowder.

L. H. Busby is one of the principal blacksmiths and horseshoers of Boone County, and has, practically speaking, grown up in the business, being a protege of the late W. A. Tanner, who for a great number of years conducted a smithing shop at Gunpowder. Mr. Busby as a boy went to Mr. Tanner's to live, and so well did he conduct himself that at the death of Mr. Tanner (whom he had in latter years formed a partnership with) it was found that Mr. Busby was enrolled as one of his heirs.

October 21, 1899, Mr. Busby moved his shop from Gunpowder proper to its present site, built a new and very commodious shop, and has since had all the business that he could look after, and oftentimes he has two or three helpers. He makes horseshoeing one of his specialties, gives special attention to deformed or irregular shaped feet and cracked he's, etc.; carriage building, repairing, etc., comes in for direct attention.

L. H. BUSBY'S SHOP, Gunpowder.

He married Miss Anna Sanders, of Boone County. They have been singularly unfortunate in the death of several children, their family now being three boys and one married daughter.

A good citizen, an excellent gentleman, we cheerfully recommend Mr. Busby to the public. He belongs to the Masons, K. of P. and Baptist Church.

C. S. BASLEY,

General Merchant, Bullittsville, Ky.

Bullittsville, one of the principal points of trade in Boone County, is justly proud of the distinction of having within her confines one of the most extensive general stores in this section of the state. At the head of this enterprise is to be found C. S. Basley, a business man of affluence, thoroughly experienced in all the intricacies associated with such a business as he is wont to maintain for the Bullittsville neighborhood.

Mr. Basley was born at North Bend, Ky., April 5, 1854, grew up on the farm, and is now the owner of a splendid 225-acre farm of that section. In 1878 he established the store, and under his careful direction it has grown to magnitude, with a prestige signifying its general popularity.

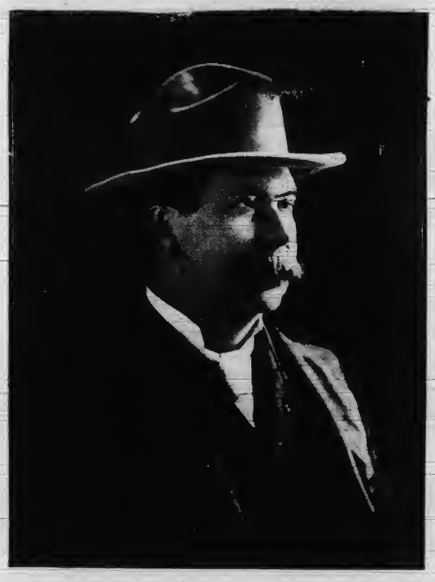
The stock of goods to represent this trade house consists in a great measure of quite everything needed by an agricultural community, noted under special heads as hardware, harness, dry goods, groceries and drugs. The store is also recognized as a market for all kinds of produce.

Personally speaking, Mr. Basley is one of the county's most enterprising and progressive citizens, a descendant from one of the oldest and first families of the state, a grandson of the late George L. Basley, who was the first Democrat elected to the State Legislature from Boone County.

Like the grandfather, he is also a Democrat, irrespective of his political faith, however, he was appointed postmaster of his town, under the Garfield administration, being endorsed by Republicans and Democrats alike.

In 1878 he married Miss Ada Clore. They have one son, Kenneth, twenty years old, who recently graduated from the Rugby College of Covington.

The home of Mr. Basley is considered one of the most beautiful residences in the state, a specimen of architectural art, rarely seen outside of the large cities.



In the field of secret societies Mr. Basley belongs to the F. & A. M. Order.

C. S. BALSY'S STORE, Bullittsville.

HON. D. LINN GOOCH. M. C.

Eminently successful and self-made business man, the present tireless working Congressman from this, the Sixth District, was born of Virginia ancestry in McLean County, Ky., in 1853, his father being Rev. Gideon Gooch, a Methodist minister, who died in Louisville. Through the unalterable decree of Providence, both of his parents, within the brief period of six months, were called upon to pass beyond the vale of this life, leaving young Gooch, yet but 16 years of age, in charge of an 18-months-old baby brother. Mr. Gooch entered the drug business as a servant chore boy—washing windows, delivering drug messages, reading literature and chemistry at night, with the ultimate result that the name of "Gooch" is intimately associated with both the medicine industry, national politics and national legislation of North America. His efforts and career truthfully portray what is possible in American youth and American life, and certainly serve as a stimulus for emulation and ambition to the progressive generation in which he lives and contributes. Having achieved an enormous success in the business world, and after having eschewed every importunity to accept local honor and office, he decided to give material force to his usual active interest in local current and political affairs by accepting the Democratic nomination for Congress in February, 1899, and being triumphantly elected that year and again in November, 1901. It is due to say in this connection, however, that the Sixth Congressional political contests of this district during the past few years have especially been known for their stubbornness and gallantry, but Mr. Gooch has always come out of the fray an easy and graceful winner, never having uttered an unkind word against his opponents, and even urging this consideration and respect to be exercised by his warmest and partisan supporters.

Mr. Gooch's record in Congress has been brilliant, effective and full of labor in behalf of the constituency of his district, and aside from local minor details, we especially mention his speech against the predominating trust octopus—among the best delivered in the last Congress—and that in behalf of labor and commerce.

His recent voluntary, broad-gauged, and generous offer to personally defray the expenses of the successful applicant, however poor, to share his a... sent to Annapol... reflects the true character of the man. To those in want and distress he has ever, through life, been a friend, and his good wife and two daughters, Misses Virginia and Leanor, have at all times mutually shared in his charitable dispensations.

Personally, Mr. Gooch is a most charming conversationalist and a delightful companion. He is a representative Kentuckian, a credit to the Democratic party, and a most worthy, sincere representative of the Sixth Congressional District, with a great capacity for work and good, kind deeds.

Mr. Gooch was selected by the Kentucky delegation to represent Kentucky upon the Congressional Committee. Each State and each territory has one representative who elect an executive committee of five. Mr. Gooch was elected upon this committee, and for his good work was re-elected for the ensuing two years. This probably is the first instance where a congressman serving his first term was ever elected a member of this executive committee.

His record in Congress has been such as to win for him the confidence and esteem of organized labor, the cause of which he never fails to champion.

HON. JOHN M. LASSING,

The Youngest Circuit Judge to Represent the Bench of Kentucky.

Has Through the High Office of True Merit Attained Distinction As a Jurist and Organizer of National Credit.

Is One of the State's Most Prominent Democrats.

Hon. John M. Lassing, we are proud to say, was born under the azure skies of old Boone County, first seeing the light of day November 9, 1864, and is the eldest son of Dr. H. C. Lassing, of near Union. In the county's common schools and at White Haven Academy he received his early education, and graduated from the Central University of Richmond, Ky., in 1884. Leaving college he took up school teaching, and at the same time devoted all his spare time to reading law under the late eminent F. Riddel. He was admitted to practice in 1887. Not content with this, however, he became a student in the renowned Cincinnati Law School, and graduated with the Class of '89, and located in Burlington for the practice of law June 4, 1889, and soon built himself a practice well showing his thoroughness and the confidence reposed in him by an appreciative community. He was twice elected County Attorney without opposition in his party. May, 1901, he was appointed to the office of Circuit Court Judge, to fill the vacancy made by death of the late Judge Greene. In the same year he was nominated and elected without opposition in his party to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Greene, and following this he was again nominated without opposition, and will be elected for a six-year term, to begin January 1st, 1904. At the time the appointment was made he was the youngest Circuit Court Judge in the State, and is possibly the youngest now to fill such a responsible position. As a Judge he is accredited with being one of the most fair-minded and able to represent the Bench. As a distinguished lawyer has said of him, in the home, or on the street, it is "John Lassing," free, convivial and open hearted; on the Bench, it is Judge Lassing, dignified and austere, yet with a courtesy extended to all, with no undue favors shown to any. His mature judgment and fair rulings have lent conspicuous lustre to the exalted dignity of Bar and Bench, and in this he enjoys an esteem that reaches far beyond the borders of the great State of Kentucky.

In politics Judge Lassing is a unique and conspicuous representative of the Democratic party, of wonderful strength, one of the best organizers and influential campaigners to be found in Old Kentucky; a man who has never been defeated for office, and the same may be said of the several friends of whose campaign he was instrumental in furthering. He filled the office of Chairman of the County Executive Committee from the Sixth Congressional District, was one of Senator Goebel's closest friends and advisors in his race for nomination and election to the Governor's office, and was Secretary of the Campaign Committee in 1900. In all national elections he figures prominently, is a warm, personal friend of William Jennings Bryan, and was an ardent and aggressive champion of this eminent gentleman, and was a factor of importance in the national election.

He was united in wedlock with Miss Mary Lillard Brady, daughter of R. A. Brady, one of Boone County's very prominent farmers. Their home, one of the most beautiful in Burlington, is brightened by the presence of their two very interesting boys. He is a Master Mason, and belongs to the K. of P. Order, in Burlington, and to the Order of Elks, at Covington, and is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

As a citizen he is one of the most charitable and hospitable in our midst. No man ever went to him for a favor of any kind to be turned away empty handed; is always ready to lend a helping hand to his brother man, not for the matter of gain, but through the pure love of doing good, and to cast around others happy environments, irrespective of politics, creed, kind or color.

HON. JAMES PRYOR TARVIN.

One of Kentucky's Brightest Minds and Most Conspicuous Democrats.

A Fine Piece of Timber Not to be Overlooked in Congressional Selection—A Gentleman Who Stands High in the Purple Council of National Campaign Prominence.

In the person of Judge James P. Tarvin, one of Kentucky's most distinguished gentlemen and jurists is radiated. His keen perception for natural law, high regard for untarnished integrity, forceful in the interpretation of correctness, clean in spirit and character. His name stands most high in the council of the Democratic party and among Kentucky's most able and illustrious possibilities. Judge Tarvin, is, in fact, an innate lawyer, with a most rigid training into the ethics and science of jurist, statesman and public speaker. In politics, pertaining to national complications, he is possibly one of the best posted men in the State of Kentucky. Being a close student in affairs of national importance, able in the analyzation of fact and theory, makes him a senatorial piece of timber, we suggest, well not to overlook.

Judge Tarvin was born in Covington, Ky., November 12, 1860, a lineal descendant of Chief Justice John Marshall, a cousin of Wm. S. Pryor, who for 25 years, and up to 1897, was on the bench of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky. His father was W. H. Tarvin, and his mother, Eliza Pryor, daughter o. Hon. James Pryor, who for more than twenty years was Circuit Judge in Boone, Kenton and other counties in the Judicial District. A singular co-incident relative to this able jurist and his grandson, Judge Tarvin, is that Judge Pryor entered the first order in the old court house at Covington in 1843, and Judge Tarvin entered the last order in the old court house in 1889, fifty-six years later, just before the old court house was razed to make place for the beautiful building there now standing.

Judge Tarvin's education was had wholly in the public schools of Covington. He studied law with his grandfather, Judge Pryor, and graduated from the Cincinnati Law School. Passing from college he practiced law in Covington until 1897, when he was nominated by the Democrats to the office of Circuit Court Judge, and was elected in November of that year. His district embraces the County of Kenton, containing the City of Covington. He was a democratic nominee for Elector-at-Large in Kentucky in 1896, and in that year spoke in nearly half the counties of the State, and has spoken throughout the State in every state and national election since 1884, and his services as a speaker have been utilized by the Democratic National Committee, in national campaigns in nearly one-half of the states in the Union. He was one of the speakers to gather with Wm. Jennings Bryan, George Fred Williams and Chas. A. Towne at the famous dollar dinner at the Crystal Palace, New York in April, 1899.

As a speaker, Judge Tarvin is accredited as being one of the most magnetic and logical to appear upon the Union hustings. In most part, his speeches are extemporaneous, and are usually confined to facts and figures, so well is he posted on general affairs, either local or foreign. Free from the machinations of rule or ruin policy, above reproach as a judge, honest, yet firm in his specific convictions, endowed with a heart pure of sympathy, broad-minded in the field of thought and explanation, he stands to-day one of Kentucky's sons of whom the old State may well feel proud—a gentleman who in high council would add splendor to the name of OLD KENTUCKY.

Judge Tarvin is an officer in the Golden Rule Lodge, of Masons, and at the recent meeting of the Elks' Reunion Association of State, at Lexington, he was elected president of that body.

J. FRANK GRANT,

Baltimore, Md., Grand Secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F. of America—The Central Head of the I. O. O. F. of the World.

A Boone County Man Who Has Attained International Prominence in Lodge Circles.

Boone County has sent from her domain out into the broad field of prominence men who have placed through their achievements the name of Kentucky and Natal County before the world in a pleasing and appreciative way.

Among this distinguished class of men appears the name of J. Frank Grant, who a few years past lived in Petersburg and was there engaged in the merchandise trade.

J. Frank Grant was born in Louisville, Ky., September 1, 1843. Is the eldest son of the late Dr. E. L. Grant, of Boone County. He was educated in a private school and at home, and in 1870 he engaged in the mercantile business at Petersburg and was fairly successful. In 1871 he became an Odd Fellow in the Petersburg Lodge, and entered the Grand Lodge of Kentucky in 1874; was Grand Master of the State Grand Lodge in 188a and 1885, and Grand Patriarch of the State Grand Encampment in 1889. He represented the Grand Lodge of Kentucky in the Sovereign Grand Lodge at Los Angeles, Cal., September, 1888, and continuously from 1890 to 1896, when he was elected Grand Secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, the head of the Order of Odd Fellows in the world and to this office he has been re-elected bi-ennially ever since.

In January, 1897, he moved his family to Baltimore, where he now resides, the grand office of the order being permanently located there.

August 15, 1865, he married Miss Franklinea Garnett, youngest daughter of B. F. Garnett, of Boone County. Three children came to bless this union—Charles L., Clara Ellen and Elizabeth Garnett Grant. Charles L., the son, died with consumption in Mexico, where he had been sent in hope of prolonging his life. The father was with him at the time of death, and brought the remains back and they were laid to rest in the Petersburg Cemetery.

Each of the daughters have married, the oldest being the wife of Elvin J. Curry, of Owen County, now a resident of Baltimore; the second daughter is the wife of D. J. F. Strother, of Welch, W. Va.

One of the most courteous of men, classical and refined as a gentleman, a typical representative of the true Kentuckian, Boone County is most proud of him.

L. W. LASSING,

A Progressive and Influential Farmer.

One of the old-time farmers, a cultured, hospitable Kentuckian of the typical type, is our venerable friend, L. W. Lassing, of the Union neighborhood. Mr. Lassing was born December 26, 1827, the son of the late Morris T. Lassing, the early day merchant of Union. From the time he could see over the counter until eighteen years of age he clerked in his father's store. Having no inclination to become tied to the requirements of a business man, at the age above mentioned he commenced working on the farm. Later he became owner of a farm, and has ever since engaged in this most worthy of all callings. It is hardly necessary to say that his farm would favorably compare with the best in the county, and that his home is among the finest. These are commonplace knowings in a local way.

Short-horn cattle and Shropshire sheep are extensively bred and sold from this farm.

Mr. Lassing served in the Legislature in the years 1882 and 1883, and was a conspicuous member of the constitutional convention in 1837. He is one of the best Democrats in the county—one of the kind that believe in harmony, that is if the harmonization is to be a solid Democratic vote without affiliation with any other faith than the decided platform, such as the issue may be from a true Democratic suggestion. In the home life of this most excellent gentleman one is confronted with a most beautiful picture of happiness, comfort and ease. Environed with all the enjoyments that wealth and desires pleasingly bring are in ready command; endowed with a disposition hospitable in the extreme; blessed with a heart full of sunshine, the radiance of which showers brightness full of pleasure to all with whom he comes in contact; staunch as a friend; pure as a citizen; unsullied in character; courteous, with an apology for being courteous, he stands a man among men, one of the true emblems of a typical Kentucky gentleman.

In December, 1858, he wedded Miss Jennie M. Kennedy; she died during the year 1896, leaving him one beautiful and accomplished daughter, Miss Theresa, to comfort him in the days of plodding down the last half way of life.

S. W. TOLON,

Member of State Senate.

One of Boone County's Leading Lawyers.

S. W. Tolon was born January 1, 1849, received his early education in the common schools and for several years represented the school room as teacher. In 1879 he graduated from the Louisville Law College, and since has made his office in Burlington, and has been the recipient of such success as to place his name high on the roster of the best legal talent in North Kentucky. For a period of twelve years and a few months he was County Attorney of Boone. August 6, 1900, by special election, he was made a member of the Kentucky Senate to succeed Dr. Furnish, resigned. He is a Democrat of the old school, and in party is an energetic and active worker.

Senator Tolon is free from any ostentatious inducement, does not cater to publicity, but prefers to take up his line of business and push it to a realization of true merit, without heraldry.

Courteous and obliging as a citizen, earnest and logical as a lawyer, true and exact as a representative of the people he makes for Burlington a citizen of sterling worth.

FRANK SMITH'S STONE RESIDENCE, near Union.

W. N. SURFACE,

General Merchant, Gunpowder, Ky.

In the business career of W. N. Surface, tenacity and determination seems to have been the watchword in furthering the success.

Mr. Surface was born September 30, 1870, and lived on a farm until January 1, 1893, when he purchased the store of E. O. Rouse at Gunpowder. He was just beginning to get thoroughly acquainted with the intricacies of merchandising when fire swept from him in a few hours what he had worked hard all his life to obtain. The fire was on October 19, 1895, and the loss included his residence, household goods, store building and the contents. One year later new buildings occupied the sites of the ones burned, and a new stock of goods ornamented the store. Thus he began life anew, and when tenacity and courage were not unfilling in result. The store now is one of the chief trade centers of the Gunpowder section, and the prosperous aspects of the business now is far removed from the suggestion that the adverse hand of fate had destroyed its progress a few years since.

J. S. SURFACE'S STORE, at Gunpowder.

September 12, 1894, Mr. Surface was married to Miss Susie Carpenter, daughter of Jerry Carpenter, of Richwood, and through her kind and sympathetic assistance and influence Mr. Surface attributes a great measure of his success.

Honorable, noteworthy and progressive, Mr. Surface makes one of Boone's best citizens.

CHARLES S. BOSLY,

Bullittsville.

Popular merchant and large real estate owner; one of the county's most successful business men.

SAND-FLY LIVES BUT A DAY.

Delicate Little Insect Furnishes an Interesting Study to the Scientists.

Here is a tragic story of the sand fly.

It has but a day to live in the light. In order to earn the right to that day of life it lives from one to three years in darkness, down in the mud at the bottom of lakes or rivers. Moreover, the sand fly is perfectly harmless. It cannot even bite. It has no sting. It cannot even eat. All it can do is to flit about for a few hours enjoying the light of day or the glare of an electric lamp.

Professor C. B. Davenport, of the University of Chicago, told the other day, says the Inter-Ocean, about the delicate, beautiful little insects which prove a pest to a great many people.

The sand fly is known to scientists familiarly as the May fly. In scientific terms it is called Ephemeridn. This name is taken from the Greek word Ephemeros, which means lasting only for a day. To the scientists the sand fly is one of the most interesting and beautiful of insects.

The 23 lives but a day at most, but before it sees light it has lived for from one to three years under the water in the form of what the scientists call a nymph. This nymph can both walk and swim. As it grows it molts and after about the ninth molt tiny wings appear on its thorax. These grow larger until the insect comes forth from the water a sand fly. It then has but one duty, to lay its eggs. This done the sand fly zigzags through the air until its brief life is ended.

The popular idea that the sand flies are blown across the lake to Chicago is wrong, according to the university scientists. The sand fly could not live to be blown that far, and, besides, the insect always flies against the wind and not with it.

OUR RAILROAD INDUSTRY.

Million and a Quarter Workers on American Payrolls and Their Number Increasing.

The railroads of this country are employing more persons than ever before in their history. According to statistics in the report of the interstate commerce commission there were 594 railroad employes for every hundred miles of tracks last year, and there were 1,189,315 employes altogether, reports the New York Sun.

In the year before there were only 1,071,169 railroad employes, and the average was only 548 for every hundred miles of line, so that independently of the increase in mileage the number of workers employed has increased 46 for each hundred miles of line.

SIDNEY GAINS,

Attorney at Law.

Sidney Gaines was born February 14, 1862, and spent his boyhood days and much of his mature years on a farm. He received his education in the common schools, and in the old Burlington Academy. At the Kentucky University he graduated from the commercial department in 1883, but immediately after became a pharmaceutical clerk in a Ludlow drugstore. One year later he purchased a drug establishment in Petersburg, and for three years conducted a very successful business, discontinuing by fact of sale to a Mr. J. B. Berkshire. Leaving business, he returned to farming, the quietness of which was not in accord with his active nature. Having graduated from the Louisville Law School in the Class of '94, and being admitted to the bar, he took up practice here, and has forged himself to the front being now one of our leading attorneys.

His cottage home on Gallatin street is one of the most admirable residences of our town. Excellent as a lawyer, splendid as a citizen, he stands as one of our most representative men.

Since these statistics were collected there has been a correspondingly large increase in the number of employes, if railroad statistics are to be believed, so that the number of men on the railroad payroll in this country is considerably over a million and a quarter.

The good times and the extension improvements set on foot by the railroad companies as the result of their prosperity are responsible for this increase in employment. Eight years ago the number of railroad workers was only 41 for every hundred miles, so that should a return to that standard be possible it would mean the laying off of 312,000 workers, to say nothing of the consequent reduction in the wage standards.

ONE OF THE ARTISTS.

Wanted to Contribute His Services as Well as the Best of the "Talent."

Billy's sister is the organist of the church in the country town where the family spends its summers, and Billy blows the old-fashioned instrument upon which his big sister performs, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Some day, however, Billy will be an artist himself if his present spirit of pride in his work persists. Still, although he enjoys his task, the 25 cents he earns every Sunday is much appreciated by him.

A concert was given in the church in aid of a local charity, and the singers and quite a number of "artists" who summer in the village, and whose services usually command big remuneration, volunteered their services.

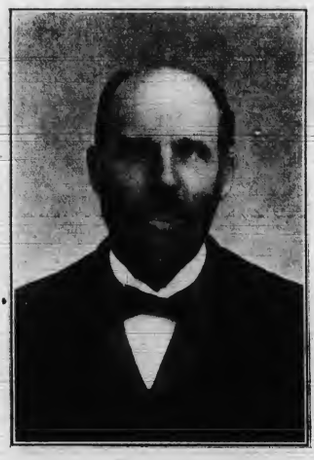
When the concert was over, the choir-master came to Billy, who had enjoyed greatly the importance of the occasion and his share in it, and held out a quarter to pay the boy for his work.

Billy looked up in grieved surprise. "Why, say," said he, "aren't the rest of the talent giving their services for nothing?"

Prisoner Pleases Czar.

A prisoner in Siberia lately sent the czar a gift in the shape of a large hazelnut, inside of which is a miniature chessboard, with all the pieces complete, carved out of ivory. The prisoner had worked at this little gem in his leisure hours for more than a year. The czar was so pleased that he desired to know for what the man had been sent to Siberia, and it is expected that a reprieve will be granted to him.

Millions to Policy-Holders.



An authority on life insurance matters has been gathering statistics on the subject of insurance policies and payments. In 9,333 cities and towns in the United States during the year 1902 the total distribution to policy holders and their beneficiaries exceeded $320,000,000.

ROMANCE IN VARIED GUISE.

The Definition of the Word Is Susceptible of a Wide Diversification.

What is romance? Even the colloquial use of the term is varied. When we say "you are romancing" or call anything as romantic as distinguished from what is real or what is true, we mean one thing, but quite another when we apply the term romantic to natural scenery, says Harper's Magazine. And in this application we must distinguish between the effect upon us of that which we call romantic because of human associations with certain sights or sounds and that wildness of nature which we call romantic because of its absolute dissociation from anything human.

Keeping out of mind for the present the use of the word in artistic and literary criticism, let us try to find what element there is in the diversities of colloquial usage.

In all that is generally called romantic in the cases above mentioned there is the common element of strangeness. We easily revert to what must have been the original sense of the word in its connection with those medieval modifications of the Latin tongue known as the romance languages. The Saxon or Celt would have found his native tongue sufficient for all ordinary needs, but if he caught the Roman air in any way, by travel or refinement of taste and habit, he would, to meet the newly developed need, borrow the graces of the Roman speech—that is, he would romance.

KILLING ANTS WITH CANNON.

Fortresses of the Termites, or Warrior Species, Assailed with Artillery.

Artillery charged with grapeshot has been employed to destroy great fortresses which the termites, or warrior ants, have made in many tropical countries, reports the New York Herald.

In South Africa the termites work enormous havoc. They live in a republic of their own, and some of them have wings. The workmen, the soldiers and the queens, however, have none.

The workmen construct their buildings, the soldiers defend the colony and keep order and the females, or queens, are cared for by all the others. These become, in point of fact, mere egg laying machines which have to remain tied to one spot.

Their nesting homes are often 20 feet high and pyramidal in shape. Cattle climb upon them without crushing them. A dozen men can find shelter in some of their chambers and native hunters often lie in wait inside them when out after wild animals.

The ants construct galleries which are as wide as the bore of a large cannon and which run three or four feet underground.

The nests are said to be 500 times as high as the ant's body, and it has been estimated that if we built our houses on the same scale they would be four times as high as the pyramids of Egypt.

REVIVAL OF THE DEAD.

Noted Physician Believes It Possible to Bring Some Defunct Persons Back to Life.

Dr. Robert C. Kemp, a physician of repute, has lately brought before the New York Academy of Science an account of some interesting experiments which he has been conducting on lines which were suggested some time ago by Dr. Pruss. He asserts that he believes it possible, in many cases, to bring back persons to life and to permanent recovery who are apparently dead. His method, which he has already successfully practiced on dogs, is to make a small incision between two of the ribs, and to thrust two fingers into the wound until they touch the heart. That organ is then pressed against the ribs, and its natural motion is imitated by a kind of massage. At the same time a saline solution is infused into the patient, and respiration is induced by a special form of pump, a tube from which is thrust into the windpipe. Under this treatment dogs which have been chloroformed to such an extent that no pulsation is perceptible have been brought back to life in 11 instances out of 23. It is true that when Dr. Kemp tried the same procedure in the case of a human being, about a year ago, he failed to resuscitate the patient; but he believes, with the added experience which he has since had, that the method would now prove successful in his hands.

DR. J. G. FURNISH,

Ex-Legislator and Superintendent of Central Kentucky Lunatic Asylum.

Dr. J. G. Furnish, whose photogravure we take pleasure in producing, is an Owen Countian by birth, and received his literary education in the common schools of his native State and Harrisburg Academy, under the instruction of the lamented Ed. Porter Thompson, educator, author and politician. Qualified for his profession at the Ohio Medical College, Cincinnati, and later took a post-graduate course at Bellevue, New York City.

A Democrat in politics, he represented Boone County in the lower branch of the State Legislature during 1891-2-3-4. In 1899 he was elected to the State Senate, and was a member of that body when appointed Superintendent of Central Kentucky Lunatic Asylum three years ago; the duties of which important office he has, and is, discharging with fidelity, care and kindness, and honor to himself and legions of warm friends. For a number of years he was Chairman of the County Democratic Executive Committee.

Dr. Furnish has throughout his active life been an ardent and aggressive party worker, and a faithful pecuniary contributor to Democracy's welfare. He is also an Odd Fellow.

Dr. Furnish was married to Miss Maud Reville, daughter of Mr. J. C. Reville, founder and Cashier of the Boone County Deposit Bank, in 1891, and one son, Joe Reville, and a daughter, Miss Sarah Gayle, add sunshine to their home.

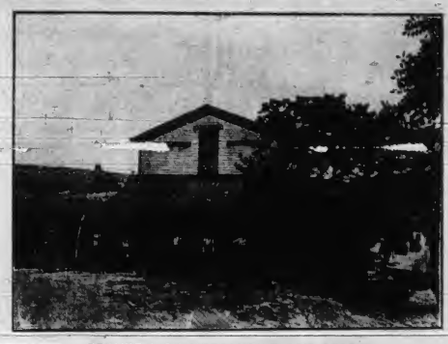
O. M. ROGERS,

Lawyer and Farmer.

When it is said O. M. Rogers, of Erlanger, is one of the greatest hustlers among the young men in this part of Kentucky, nothing but the truth is spoken.

He was born on the farm on November 26, 1872, and his father, James Rogers, being one of the most successful farmers in Boone County, his sons early training in that branch of business was of the best, and is serving him well now in the business of operating a large farm near Erlanger, from which he makes handsome returns every year. This farm he keeps well stocked, and cultivates large crops annually, and is recognized as very successful in his farm pursuits.

Mr Rogers completed the course of study in the schools of this county, after which he attended the Kentucky University at Lexington, making great progress with his studies. Choosing the law as his profession he entered the Cincinnati Law School, from which he graduated with honor in 1897, and began practice in Cincinnati, where he has an office. Besides practicing in Cincinnati, he practices in the courts at Boone, Campbell, Kenton and Grant Counties, always giving his client his best efforts. By industry, close attention to business and good success, Mr. Rogers has acquired a clientage that is a handsome reward for his excellent business attributes.



On June 6, 1900, Mr. Rogers and Miss Virginia Smith, one of Boone County's most worthy young ladies, were married. To them has been born a handsome baby girl that adds to the attractions of a delightful home.

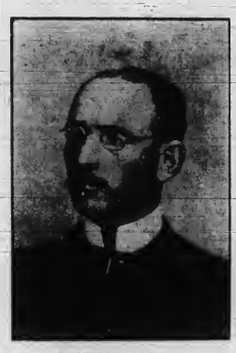
BEAVER LICK MERCANTILE CO.

The Leading Business Emporium of the South End of the County.

J. W. Cleek, President; W. C. Johnson, Secretary; J. O. Griffith, Treasurer; J. S. Taylor, General Manager.

With a capital stock of $10,000 this business was established in 1893, and is said to be the most prosperous commercial concern in North Kentucky. The stock is selected to accommodate the general needs of the community, and is classed as a general mercantile establishment, where clothing, boots, shoes, groceries, dry goods, harware, glassware, seeds, etc, are congregated.

BEAVER LICK MERCANTILE CO'S STORE.



Under his careful direction the business has grown both in popularity and magnitude, doing a business annually that runs up into the several thousands of dollars.

December 25, 1894, Mr. Taylor and Miss Tillie Utz were married.

In this store is to be found the Beaver Lick Postoffice, Mr. Taylor being the Deputy Postmaster. In religious life he belong to the Christian Church.

J. W. Cleek, President; W. C. Johnson, Secretary, and J. A. Griffith, Treasurer. The business is represented with an executive board composed of some of the best men in the state.

Associated with this house is J. Merrit Jack, who was born February 17, 1868, near Warsaw, Ky., and was raized on a farm. In 1891 he came to Boone County, and worked as salesman for T. J. Hughes, and for the past five years was with the Kenyon Tile Co. He married Miss Daisy Ossman. They have two children—one boy and one girl.

JOHN TAYLOR.

W. E. VEST,

County Surveyor and Real Estate Dealer.

In August, 1882, the gentleman whose name heads this article was elected to the office of County Surveyor, and that since that date he has continually succeeded himself is conclusive argument of his apt fitness for the office. Aside from attending to the many duties incident to the office, he engages in the real estate trade, is an extensive buyer and seller of farm and city property. In addition to the above he gives considerable attention to loaning money on improved real estate and gilt edge securities.

Mr. Vest was born in Boone County,

April 19, 1861. His scholastic training was received principally through the instructions of Prof. Henry Newton, an erudite private educator, well known in the earlier days of educational training.

Full worthy of any confidence, substantial and influential, Mr. Vest stands in the ranks of our high class citizens.

J. A. HUEY,

Union, Ky., Farmer, Stock Breeder and General Stock Dealer.

J. A. Huey is one of Boone County's most opulent and influential business men. He is a farmer and is the owner of a fine 500-acre tract of land in high state of cultivation, bedecked with a beautiful residence, several barns and their auxiliary buildings. Is an extensive stock breeder and one of the best known buyers of stock in the county. Is a director in the Erlanger Deposit Bank, and is the Vice-President of the recently formed Richwood Deposit Bank.

Mr. Huey was born July 20, 1862, in Boone County, and is a descendant of one of the oldest families of this section of the state, his ancestors being numbered with the first settlers, they being intimately acquainted with and friends of the famous guide, hunter, trooper and soldier, the intrepid Daniel Boone.

Mr. Huey is a member of the Baptist Church, and belongs to the Masonic Order.

June 29, 1881, he was married to Miss Sarah Crouch, two sons and one daughter being born to them. One of the foremost farmers and classed with our best business men, Mr. Huey stands as an exemplary citizen, as a gentleman whose life has been fraught with usefulness and good.

B. B. HUME,

Boone's Popular Deputy Sheriff.

Benjamin B. Hume was born on Mud Lick Creek, in this county, on the 20th day of September, 1868. He was raised on a farm and schooled in the schools of that neighborhood, and when but a youth manifested an aptness for trading in which pursuit he has been quite successful, and is regarded as one of the best judges of horses in Boone County.

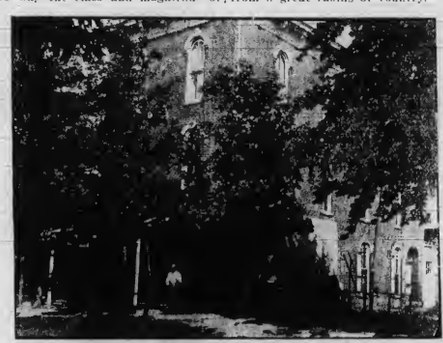
On the first day of January, 1902, his uncle, B. B. Allphin, qualified as High Sheriff of Boone County, and appointed Mr. Hume as his Deputy, and he has discharged the duties of his office with such perfect satisfaction to the public that he is frequently suggested as a strong candidate for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff two years hence.

In 1889 he married Miss Susie Carroll, a splendid young lady of his neighborhood. They have one child—a handsome daughter, aged 11 years—to whom they are devoted.

Mr. Hume is a member of the Baptist Church and an Odd Fellow.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.

E. H. RIGGS,



A Leading Business Man of Erlanger.

The two illustrations herewith printed in a more striking way serve to acquaint the observer in a conclusive way the class and magnitude of the business controlled by E. H. Riggs, of Erlanger—a business that classes well with the best in the city it so well represents. The general store building furnishes a store room 20x65 feet in area, every foot of which it utilized in caring for the large stock of merchandise, embracing nearly everything to be found in a general store. Directly across the street from the store proper is the recently constructed new warehouse, 40x70 feet, where building material, lime, cement, patent plaster hay, etc., are in storage.

Mr. Riggs makes a specialty of roofing and tinning, and employes quite a force of workmen to assist in this line and to this department trade is drawn from a great radius of country. The reputation of his work not only being first-class, but at prices such as make it worth the while of a builder to consult him before placing orders.

He was Postmaster of Erlanger during the first administration of the late President McKinley.

He is an active member in the K. of P. Lodge, and in all matters pertaining to be beneficial to his home town he is ever an interested person.

E. H. RIGGS' STORE, Erlanger.

E. H. RIGGS' WAREHOUSE, Erlanger.

J. L. HOOD,

The Merchant and Coal Dealer of Constance, Ky.

The gentleman whose name captions this article came into control of the business October, 1900, succeeding C. F. Davis & Co., and the strides of progress made in the establishment since then evidences what may be attained in the arena of business where "hustle" is the watchword that intermingles with its every conduct. This mercantile house is the principal emporium of trade to represent the little City of Constance on the Ohio River, and is possibly one of the most extensively patronized trade houses in Boone County, drawing trade, as it does, from a great section contiguous to Constance and from across the river. The stock of goods is comprehensive of all that constitutes a first-class general store, and the firm enjoys an enviable reputation of selling the best goods at remarkably low prices.

In conjunction to the store a coal yard is maintained, they being dealers in the celebrated Kanawha River coals, such as Raymond City, Plymouth, Raymond, Belmont, etc. Their trade for coal extends far back into the country for miles and miles, the people knowing that to get coal at this yard they not only get quality but a fair deal at fair prices for goods.

Associated with Mr. J. L. Hood and filling the office of business manager is R. S. Hood, a brother, who is one of the most widely known business men in the upper county, and is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Encampment.

Each of the Mr. Hoods was born and reared in Boone County, and it is but natural that every one who knows them are interested in and proud of their splendid success.

E. L. STEPHENS.

A Popular Merchant of Rabbit Hash, Ky.

Mr. Stephens was born February 8, 1870, on a farm in Boone County, and as a tiller of the soil he worked for several years. His innovation to business was by starting a huckster wagon, the nucleus which ripened into his association as partner with Mr. Cal Riddell, of Rabbit Hash. Four years with Mr. Riddell, he then entered into business on his own account, and has a splendid store of a general line, and has a trade such as to keep himself, wife and one or two more busy all the while. The huckster wagon, however, is not dispensed with by this house, but on the other hand some two or three wagons are employed to visit the rural customers regularly. Mr. B. W. Nelson is one of the regular clerks. His wife was Miss Mary Ophelia O'Neal. Two bright little girls and an interesting baby boy are the diamond sparkles of their fireside.

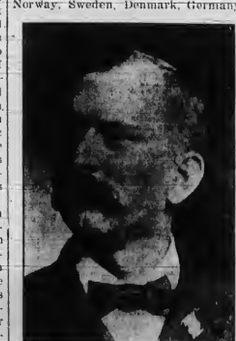
B. W. CAMPBELL,

One of Cincinnati's Greatest Business Men.

Born and Reared Until Eighteen Years Old in Burlington.



Achievements in life are largely due to self effort, is exemplified in the life work of B. W. Campbell, of the firm of The Perkins-Campbell Co., said to be the largest saddlery manufacturing concern in the world. Mr. Campbell was born in Burlington, leaving his home town when eighteen years old to find fortune and fame. The goal of which has been reached. With no capital save a strong determination and a pair of willing hands he landed in Cincinnati in 1869, accepted a position in a wholesale candy house, where he remained for five years, leaving there to travel for a large wholesale harness house, and in this capacity the nucleus of his present position was formed.

January 1, 1879, in company with Mr. H. A. Perkins and Mr. W. S. Perkins, Boone County products, the firm of Campbell, Perkins & Co. was founded, a business that has since taken place with the world's greatest. Aside from his extensive saddlery concern's interest, filling the office of vice president, he is President of the Decatur (Ills.) Traction & Electric Co. Is Director in the United States Trading Company, of Manila, P. I., Brown & Patterson Grain Co., of Cincinnati. Is an officer in a large coal company in Cape Breton, Novia Scotia, and Director in the De Knight Gun Co., of Washington, D. C., and is interested financially in many other enterprises throughout the country.

Mr. Campbell has twice married, his first wife was the daughter of James DeGormo, who formerly lived in Burlington. A daughter came to bless them, but mother and child both died three years after marrying. His second wife was a sister to the first. He has two sons now living—Wendall Campbell, now 17, and Milton Campbell, 15.

In 1898 he was appointed by the National Association of Manufacturers as their commissioner to visit Europe and inspect the possible trade relations with those countries.

He was received officially by the King of Denmark, in the City of Copenhagen, and on that journey visited Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, France and England. Made an official report to the Association as to the location of a warehouse for American products, and upon receipt of same there was established in the City of Hamburg a warehouse for the distribution of American manufactured products.

Mr. Campbell visits Burlington about once each year, the Burlington Cemetery being the resting place of his father, mother and five brothers.

L. H. VOSHELL,

One of Boone's Most Worthy Citizens.

There is not a man in Boone County with a more extensive acquaintance than L. H. Voshell, of Union.

Mr. Voshell first saw the light of this world on the 13th day of August, 1843, at the old Voshell homestead at the confluence of Ashby's Fork with Woolper Creek. His juvenile days were spent in the delightful sport of fishing in the placid waters of Woolper Creek, and roaming over the vine-clad hills in that neighborhood in pursuit of squirrels and other small game which was abundant at that early day. When yet quite young he became a student and no companion was more desired than a good book. His thirst for knowledge was so marked that his father resolved to give him the best opportunities possible to acquire an education, and he had for his instructors such noted teachers as D. C. Peck, finishing his education at Moore's Hill (Ind.) College, having before taken a course at a Cincinnati commercial school. Immediately upon completing his education, Mr. Voshell began teaching and has an experience covering 30 years in the school room, in Kentucky and Indiana, the greater part of the time being devoted to teaching in this county.

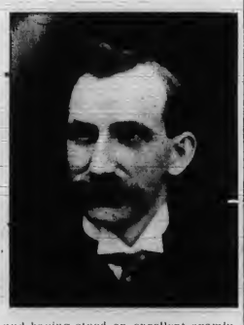
In 1894 he was elected County Superintendent of schools, which office he held for two terms of four years each. He was an industrious and efficient officer, and did much to advance local interest in education during his administration.

On April 26, 1877, he married Miss Liberty Stansifer, a most estimable lady, and they are now the host and hostess of the Eagle Hotel in Union, where the wants of guests are administered to with true Kentucky hospitality.

Mr. Voshell has been an indefatigable worker in behalf of the Farmers' Tobacco Association, and through his efforts the county has been thoroughly organized. He is very prominent in Grange circles, and is a member of the Union Masonic Lodge, of which he has been treasurer for many years.



He has made life a success, and his worldly possessions are sufficient to locate him on Easy Street. He is clever, courteous and generous.

JOHN L. VEST.

One of the prominent young lawyers of Northern Kentucky is John L. Vest. Being a good student and the possessor of an analytical mind, he finds the legal profession a pleasure rather than a field for mental drudgery.

Mr. Vest was born near Verona, this county, November 13, 1875. He was raised on a farm and attended the Verona schools when his labor could be spared. Having completed the common school branches, he took a special course in the Lebanon (O.) School, preparing himself for teaching, in which he engaged for two years, beginning in 1893.

Having decided to enter the legal profession he began reading law under Hon. J. G. Tomlin, of Walton, and being a close student and of a retentive memory, he made rapid progress.

and having stood an excellent examination, he was admitted to the bar by the Boone Circuit Court in August, 1899. Having secured his license, Mr. Vest was in no haste about entering the practice of law, but chose to remain in the office of his instructor and continue to study, and not until 1901 did he decide to begin business for himself, when he located at Independence, Kenton County, where he is building up a good practice. Business intrusted to him receives prompt and careful attention.

Mr. Vest is manager of the Independence Telephone Co., of Kenton County, the business of which will soon reach large proportions. Much of the success of this company is due to the business ability of its manager.

He is the son of C. H. and M. J. Vest, of Verona, this county; is a Mason, Odd Fellow and Knight of Pythias.

A. B. ROUSE,

One of Burlington's Prominent Young Men and Lawyers.

Has Served As Secretary to Congressman Gooch.

One of the most widely known young men of Boone County, and for that matter, this Congressional District, is Mr. A. B. Rouse, a Burlington young man, of whom Burlington feels proud.

Mr. Rouse was born and reared in the capital of Boone; son of Dudley Rouse and Eliza Rouse, and from boyhood days up has ever been a favorite with everyone. From the common schools of Boone County he entered the Hanover College, of Hanover, Ind., graduating with the Class of '96. This equipped with a thorough literary training, he matriculated with the Louisville Law School, and with the Class of 1899 graduated from that famous seat of education.

Leaving college he entered into law practice at Burlington, but made no special effort in this direction, being more greatly interested in other lines of business.

April 1st, 1901, he was accorded the honor of being made Secretary of Congressman Gooch, and at the same time became closely identified in the construction and operation of a telephone system for Boone County—a business that occupies much of his time at present. He is also the Treasurer of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association (the Boone County Fair), which at this time of the year demands much of him. Like most young men of ambition he is deeply interested in politics, is a close student of current topics and a logical reasoner of cause and effect, and is always on hand to deliver the goods for his friends and party. He is the present Chairman of Boone County Democratic Executive Committee.

Personally he is whole-souled and genial, with all the accomplishments of a polished gentleman, and who can count his friends only by the radius of acquaintances.

He is a prominent member of the Masonic Lodge of Burlington.

HON. N. S. WALTON,

Legislator and Farmer.

J. G. OLSNER.

Popular and Influential Merchant of Florence, Ky.

In a very commanding three-story brick building at Florence, Ky., occupying a ground floor space of 60x110 feet in area, is the popular store owned and conducted by J. G. Olsner, a business man of whom high laudation is not misapplied.

Mr. Olsner by trade is a blacksmith, having for several years owned a shop in Florence, disengaging himself as blacksmith to engage in the mercantile business eight years ago.

Mr. Olsner was born February 7, 1861, at Florence, son of Henry Olsner, an influential citizen, who emigrated from Germany in the early half of the past century.

In accordance to the great Teuton's teaching, carefulness and industry were the incorporated watchwords in the conduct of the business of Mr. Olsner. His stock of goods is quite extensive and might properly come under the head of a department center of trade. Dry goods, notions, groceries, hardware, paints, oils and drugs are conspicuous in stock make up, in hand with a bright, congenial disposition, square and upright as a business man, it is no enigma as to why he is voted by all one of the most popular men of Boone County.

His store is also the office of the Long Distance and Local Telephone Companies.

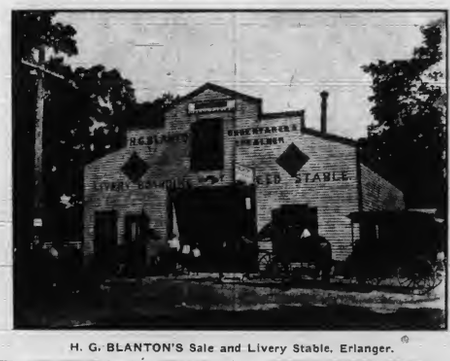
H. G. BLANTON,



Liveryman and Funeral Director, Erlanger, Ky.

In 1895 H. B. Blanton engaged in the livery business at Erlanger and to-day controls one of the most liberally patronized and justly prosperous stables along the Southern Railroad, between Lexington and Cincinnati.

In this branch of trade he is ever mindful of the various needs of the traveling public, therefore, in equipment of vehicles and horses, is amply prepared to give the best of satisfaction at reasonable prices. He retains some fifteen or twenty head of good horses and quite a number of fashionable rubber-tired runabouts, buggies and carriages, drummer wagons, moving vans, etc. He is also the leading undertaker of Erlanger—a graduate of Clark's Embalming School of Chicago. An elegant hearse is in attendance to this branch of the business. Mr. Blanton was born and reared in Boone County, and previous to branching into business, was Deputy County Clerk for three years under A. S. Gaines. Personally speaking, Mr. Blanton is a very affable, congenial gentleman, upright as a business man and faithful as a friend. He is a very prominent member of the I. O. O. F.

H. G. BLANTON'S Sale and Livery Stable, Erlanger.

S. N. RIGGS,

Rabbit Hash, Ky., Blacksmith and Wheelright.

Dealer in and Manufacturer of Finished Building Material and Manufacturers' Meal.

There is no other man that fills a more important niche in the life and business of Rabbit Hash than does S. N. Riggs, who conducts a planing and grist mill, blacksmith and woodworking shop, etc.

Mr. Riggs is said to be one of the most practical workmen of the county, and has the enjoyment of a patronage signal to the merit.

Mr. Riggs was born on Gunpowder Creek, Boone County, April 20, 1863, and with the exception of two years at Aurora, Ind., has has resided in the county all his life. Not long since, to assist the business, he put in a grist mill, and on special days grinds feed and meal for the neighborhood. In the planing mill all kinds of fancy finish material is manufactured, such as bracket making, scroll sawing, ornamental gables, columns, star finish porch, grill, etc.

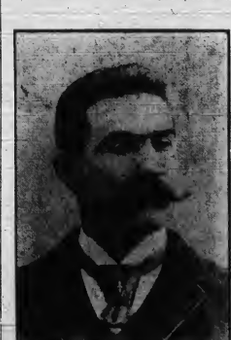
In the blacksmith and woodworking shop attention is given to the making of plows, harrows, wagon boxes, hay beds, shoveling boards, farm gates, ladders, etc. Horseshoeing is also given special attention.

Mr. Riggs is also the President of the Rabbit Hash and Normanville Telephone Co., a local affair that is giving a most excellent service and highly appreciated.

A. G. WINSTON.

Retired Lawyer and Financier.

Mr. A. G. Winston who, for many years, was a prominent member of Kentucky's legal fraternity, occupies a palatial residence and beautiful farm near the town of Hebron, this County. He has been eminently successful in handling real estate as well as in the practice of law, from which profession he retired about ten years ago. During his career as a lawyer he was engaged on one side or the other of every important case tried in Boone Circuit Court, while he enjoys a remunerative practice in Kenton and other adjoining counties. For years he has been regarded as the best financier in the County, and has made many remunerative deals in real estate, which in less proficient hands would have proven heavy losses. He is systematic in everything he undertakes, and this characteristic is emphasized by the splendid condition in which his elegant home and its surroundings are kept. He served one term as Clerk and Master Commissioner of the Boone Circuit Court, but was never an active politician.



On the farm where Mr. Winston resides is the largest and finest residence in Boone County, while the 255 acres of land constitute a farm, the equal of which is hard to find. Besides the residence there are all necessary out buildings all in excellent repair. Being located on a good turnpike and within a few minutes' ride of the street cars, make it a most desirable property. This farm is for sale at a great bargain, Mr. Winston being considerable beyond the meridian of life, and desiring to retire from active business.

Mr. Winston is a son of the late Elder W. T. Winston, who came from Kenton to Boone County, and was united in marriage with Miss Lucetta Watts in 1831. He was born in this county on November 25, 1832, and married Miss Georgetta Matson, of Oxford, Ohio, in August, 1855. To them were born six children, one son and five daughters, all of whom are living except Mrs. Lulie Hughes, who died in November, 1898. These children, Mrs. W. A. Gaines, Misses Mattie, Anna, Katie and Charles A. Winston, are highly educated and accomplished, Mr. Charles being a prominent Chicago lawyer. Mrs. Winston departed this life in April, 1888.

A. S. CATES.

Proprietor "Elsmere Bar," on Florence and Erlanger Turnpike.

The subject of this sketch, Mr. A. S. Cates, was born at Crittenden, Grant County, Ky., April 20, 1864. Coming to this immediate section he established himself in the saloon business, near Erlanger, proper, on the Florence and Erlanger Pike in 1890, since which time he has continued to prosper, build and command trade from a wide scope of country.

Mr. Cates makes a specialty of "Kenman" (Owen County) whiskey, and Bavarian bottled and keg beer, all of which are the best in the market and in which he has a most satisfactory trade.

Mr. Cates is a gentleman of pleasant address, a wide acquaintance and many friends. He conducts his business strictly in accordance with the law of the land. He is a Democrat in politics.

VIEWS —OF THE—
Florence Fair Grounds.

NORTH KENTUCKY AGRICULTURAL FAIR ASSOCIATION.

Originally Founded January 22, 1856—Capital Stock $8,000. Distributed Over Boone, Grant and Kenton Counties—One Among the Few Successful Fair Associations in Kentucky—Handsome and Extensive Grounds and Equipments at Florence—"Stringtown on the Pike"

Two things have contributed to give Florence, one of the most thriving towns in Boone County, both a State and national reputation. First, the famous book, "Stringtown on the Pike," so widely read and published by Joan Ur l Lloyd; and, secondly, the wonderful successes of the North Kentucky Agricultural and Fair Association since its beginning in 1896. This organization found its suggestions from the inadequacy of the Harvest Home Association, with grounds near Limaburg, when the officers and champions of that Associations decided to give to this section of Kentucky a fair worthy of the name and resources of which it so truthfully possesses. Incorporation papers were filed in the County Clerk's office January 22, 1896; capital stock, $8,000, with 800 hundred stockholders distributed over the counties of Boone, Kenton and Grant, whose people have combined in giving it loyal and liberal support. The incorporators were W. L. Riddell, J. J. Rucker, B. F. McGlasson, J. C. Roberts and W. F. McKinn. The first Board of Directors consisted of B. F. McGlasson, E. H. Blanken becker, G. J. Allen, W. P. Carpenter, F. A. Utz, Orin Percival, W. C. Harris, J. J. Rucker, and Judge John M. Gassing. First officers: B. F. McGlasson, President; E. H. Blankenbecker Vice-President; G. J. Allen, Secretary; and W. P. Carpenter, Treasurer.

Its present officers are as follows: B. F. McGlasson, President; E. H. Blankenbecker, Vice-President; Alvin Perry, Secretary; Arthur B. Rouse, Treasurer. Also, the present Board of Directors: J. L. Riley, J. O. Griffith, F. A. Utz, Orin Percival and W. E. Walton.

The Fair is now in its eighth year backed with a record of phenomena success, and is to-day regarded as one among the very few successful Fairs in the State of Kentucky. It has the reputation of paying the largest average premiums of any Fair in the State, and in all competitive exhibitions decisions are rendered promptly absolutely unbiasedly, and awards paid at once.

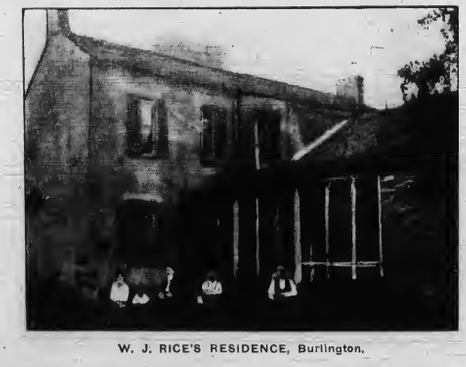
The grounds, located near Florence, present a treat of scenic beauty, as illustrations published in this connection reflects, and comprises every equipment for pleasure, comfort and conducting the affairs of the Asociation.

Mr. B. F. McGlasson, President, was born in Kenton County, Ky., March 24, 1836, and has been a farmer all his life, and be it is said a successful one, too, with a 400-acre farm located near Anderson's Ferry. He was for thirteen years President of the Boone County Harvest Home Association, and was the first, as well as having been the only President of the North Kentucky Agricultural Fair Association. He is a man much beloved by all who know him, and enjoys the confidence of the business people.

Mention is made elsewhere of Mr. Arthur Rouse, Treasurer, who has given time, effective service and ability to make the present session the unquestioned success it will be, beginning August 27 and lasting four days.

W. C. GOODRICH,

Highly Respected Farmer and Citizen.



Linked with the early history of Boone County is the name of "Goodrich," the forefathers being among the pioneer emigrants from Virginia in the early days of the past century.

W. C. GOODRICH'S RESIDENCE, near Burlington.

W. C. Goodrich, one of our most highly respected and influential farmers, is a direct descendant of the early day family, being the son of the late George Goodrich, who was brought to Boone County by his parents when a child, their home being a log house in the dense forest. The fine 155-acre farm now owned by W. C. Goodrich is a part of the primeval estate. The Messrs. Goodrich have all been farmers, and are and have always been among our best class of farmers. Mr. W. C. Goodrich is an excellent example of their traditional citizenship. Honest, industrious and hospitable. He married a Mrs. Bruce, and two sons, Elmer and Raymond, were born to them, and have been a valuable aid in the farm work.

Mr G. is one of the neatest and most successful farmers in this county, and makes money rapidly.

W. J. RICE'S RESIDENCE, Burlington.

W. J. Rice, son of the late Benjamin and Zera (Utz) Rice, was born September 30th, 1847, in Locust Grove neighborhood, this county. During his boyhood he worked on the farm in the summer and attended a country school during the winter. When he began business for himself he engaged in the trade of carpenter and builder, and many of the handsomest residences in the county are monuments to his skill in that line of work.

On February 20, 1877, he was united in marriage with Miss Fannie A. Crisler, daughter of Thomas P. and Matilda (Heim) Crisler. To them were born two sons, Chester and Thomas, and two daughters, the latter two children dying in infancy.

Mr. Rice owns and occupies a farm of 130 acres just south of the town of Burlington, which at one time was the property of the late Charles Chambers. On this farm is a commodious two-story brick residence, which was erected in 1835, and is to-day one of the most substantial residences in the county. The late Jesse Kelly did the brick work, while the late Thomas Roberts did the wood work.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice and two sons constitute one of Boone's most pleasant and happy families, and to know them is to have the acquaintance of true friends at all times.

AYLOR & HAFFER.

The Enterprising and Progressive Merchants of Hebron, Ky.

Boone County has within her domain quite a few towns of prominence and a number of mercantile temples of magnitude and worth. One of the principal of these towns is Hebron, and a happy circumstance is associated with this town in the very fact that its greater prominence is due to the large and liberally patronized trade center, owned and operated by the very popular firm, Aylor & Haffer, the personnel of which is T. S. Aylor and W. A. Haffer. Each of the gentlemen are young, yet endowed with an experience calculated to insure their success in any undertaking.

Mr. Aylor was born at Limaburg, April 10, 1876; worked on a farm until 1898, and two years thereafter was an attache of the Kentucky Central Railroad shops, at Covington. Leaving the employ of the railway company, he went to Hebron and engaged as salesman for C. E. Clore, and on March 11, 1903, in partnership with Mr. Hoffer, bought the Clore business, since which time it has been enlarged in stock carrying and promoted along the line of prosperity.

Mr Haffer is also a Boone County product, yet but 26 years old, but one of the best and most widely known farmers of the Hebron territory. The store, situated as it is in a very prosperous country, and backed by such men as Aylor & Haffer, gentlemen in every sense of the term, can not but succeed, as the new trade coming to its doors signifies.

The firm is well versed in the wants of the community, and strives to carry in stock, practically speaking, everything that may be demanded; thus the trade is supplied at home with goods as cheap as they can be had by going to the city.

Imbued with progressive ideas, liberal, upright and genial, the firm stands as one of the leading concerns of the country. Mr. Haffer is an active worker in the Hebron Lutheran Church, and for the past five years has been superintendent of the Sunday-school.

A good store in a good community, excellent gentlemen and assured success.

O. P. CONNER, Burlington, Dealer in Leaf Tobacco.

CLUTTERBUCK BROS.,

Clever Gentlemen and Successful Merchants.

About the busiest mercantile firm in the northern and central part of Boone County is that of Clutterbuck Bros. Their large store and warerooms are located on the northwest corner of Union and Jefferson Streets in Burlington, where every article of merchandise usually carried in a first-class country store can be found. This firm, composed of the two brothers, Homer and Roy Clutterbuck, made its debut in the business world in October, 1897, and at once displayed such energy and business tact as to win for it the confidence of the public, and their trade has enjoyed a healthy growth from the first day of the firm's business career. Industrious, reliable, courteous and obliging, it is a pleasure to call at their store to make a purchase. They are familiar with every requirement of their trade, and carry a large and carefully selected stock, which they sell at the lowest prices consistent with good goods.

On October 26, 1899, Roy Clutterbuck and Miss Anna Garrison, an accomplished lady, were married. One little son, Lawrence, brightens their home. On December 20, 1899, Homer Clutterbuck married Miss Charlotte Garrison, a very worthy and pleasant lady, a sister of his brother's wife.

Messrs. Clutterbuck were educated in the Burlington schools. They are hustlers, honest and obliging, three attributes that never fail to bring success.

CLUTTERBUCK BROS. STORE, Burlington.

OAK KNOLL STOCK FARM.

The Home of Fancy Horses—C. S. Chambers, Proprietor.

Seven miles from Burlington, on the Burlington & Petersburg Pike, is located the Oak Knoll Stock Farm, where a specialty is made in breeding and training high class horses. The Oak Knoll contains 260 acres of fine blue grass land, the principal paddocks being relieved here and there with fine old oak trees from whence the place derives its name. The splendid old colonial house is where the owner resides, as did also its worthy ancestors, father and grandfather. Mr. Chambers was born and raised on the farm, and has educated himself in no other business than farming and stock raising, and on the horse is considered an authority—one of the best judges of superb horse flesh in the county.

November 7, 1900, he was married to Miss Alta Terrill, of Petersburg. One small daughter blessed their wedlock. In religion he belongs to the Christian Church.

Lawrence Chambers, a brother, is an assistant to the business and is a valuable adjunct to the farm and training stables. Each of the Messrs Chambers is a man of high standing.

OAK KNOLL STOCK FARM.

C. G. RIDDELL'S STORE, Rabbit Hash.

J. M. FINCH,

The well-known saying, "Eat, Drink and be Merry," seems to be an inculcation of the gentleman whose name forms the headlines of this article, from the very reason that he has spent all his business life in hotel-keeping, and as a dispenser of liquors. He was born in Florence January 12, 1844, and being in public life ever since a boy it is not strange that he is one of the most widely-known men of that section of the country.

J. M. FINCH'S SALOON, Florence.

His saloon now is a favorite place with the trade, one of the moving liquor selling concerns that handle only a first quality of all kinds of liquors. In politics he is a Democrat, and has served as Deputy Sheriff of the county. He is greatly interested in the Fair at Florence, and is the donator of a $15 prize this year. He married Miss Maggie B. Grant, of Grant County. They have one son and one daughter living and one son dead.

JOHN ALLEN HOGAN.

One of Our All-Around Hustlers and Excellent Business Men and Citizens.

John Allen Hogan was born in the City of Cincinnati, April 17, 1868, and with his parents came to Boone County when a small boy. In a business way, Mr. Hogan is well and favorably known throughout the entire county, having been for ten years connected with Mr. Riley, of Burlington, in tobacco buying, and for the past four years a buyer of leaf tobacco in Burlington. This last season he sold his purchase to Mr. O. P. Conner, but expects to be in the market again this year. In addition to tobacco handling, he deals extensively in loose and baled hay, and in support of the latter business engages in general teaming and as a side issue operates a farm, adjoining the town.

Mr. Hogan is one of our best citizens, strictly temperate, moral as a man, courteous and obliging as a neighbor and industrious and careful as a business man.

October 10, 1899, he was united in wedlock with Miss Anna Harriett Beeman, daughter of one of our highly respected farmers. To them has been born two very bright and attractive children—a boy, Joseph Allen, now 2½ years old, and a girl, Anna Loretta, about one year old. Mr. and Mrs. Hogan are devout members of the Catholic Church.

B. B. ALLPHIN,

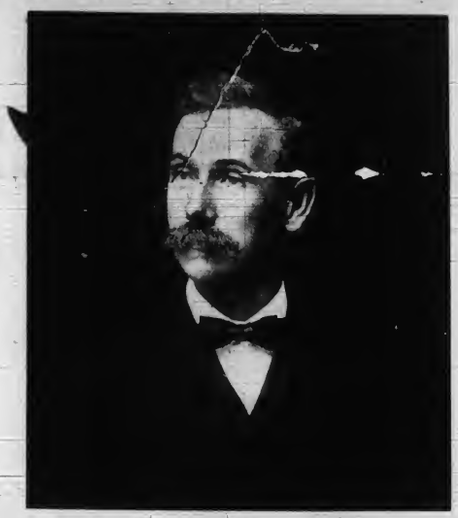
High Sheriff of Boone County.

In choosing B. B. Allphin for their High Sheriff, the voters of Boone County certainly made no error. It is but meet and proper for us to say that this office has never, within its history, had a more efficient, diligent or courteous representative than the present incumbent. He has proven loyal to his every promise to the voter. Courageous yet a diplomat in the discharge of the salient duties, and withal extends every courtesy within his power to those with whom duty directs. That he transacts official business, in brief, he is endowed with all the high attributes that from the gentleman and a first-class, trustworthy officer.

He was born on Mud Lick, September 22, 1860, and on the farm he spent most of his life and now owns valuable farm property on Mud Lick.

In January, 1898, he was selected to fill the office of Deputy Sheriff, and the following April was chosen by his party as its nominee for Sheriff, and was subsequently elected at the following election. He is assisted in the office by B. B. Hume and J. C. Allphin (a son) as Deputies, and Mrs. B. B. Allphin as Office Clerk.

December 10, 1883, he was united in marriage with Miss Pink Edwards, a Gallatin County girl by birth and a Boone County girl by adoption.



Mr. Allphin finds time out of office to give some attention to dealing in good horses, and in the leading mule buyer of this section, his stable never being without a fair representation of some of the best equines to be seen in the county.

He is a member of the K. of P. Lodge and belongs to the Christian Church, South Fork.

D. M. SNYDER,

Superintendent Public Schools.

One of the most noteworthy county officials is none other than D. M. Snyder, possibly one of the best and most widely known educators of this section of Kentucky. Mr. Snyder was born May 21, 1850, a product of the farm, leaving bucolic pursuits at the age of twenty, since which time he has devoted his entire energies to school work, passing along the various lines from Teacher, Examiner and Superintendent. To gain a perfect insight as to his worth in educational walks, one has to go no further than to investigate the progress made in our public schools, each being marked with an advance well establishing the fact of a master mind as Director.

In performing the duties of Superintendent great care is exercised in the selection of the best talent to take charge of the schoolroom as teachers. Then by keeping in close touch with schoolroom needs and supplying such necessities as are known benefits, an advance is made such as to radiate splendor to all who form a part in progressing the progress, through the gentleman, Boone County can claim without fear of successful contradiction, one of the best organized school systems in the State. In religious life Mr. Snyder affiliates with the Baptist Church, one of the most active workers in same, now filling the office of Clerk for his church. September 2, 1875, he married Miss Mary Alice Corbin, daughter of the late Captain A. Corbin, a distinguished soldier of the Confederate Army. The home of Mr. Snyder is out on a beautiful farm on the Burlington and Belvue Pike. Three sons and two estimable daughters contribute to the joys of a happy family.

E. E. Rouse. J. S. Rouse.

ROUSE BROS.,

Manufacturers of Rough Lumber, Gun Powder, Ky.

The principal factorial enterprise of Gunpowder and vicinity is the lumber manufacturing plant owned and operated by the Rouse Bros.—E. E. Rouse and J. S. Rouse.

ROUSE BROS.' SAWMILL, Gunpowder.

This plant has been a factor of importance for a number of years, being a contribution of several thousand feet of walnut, oak and other kinds of lumber to the central markets annually. In walnut lumber they export the entire product, but other grades such as plain and quarter sawed oak, maple, etc., is sold in the nearby markets. Their resource for desirable timber is sufficient to keep the mill running steadily for several years yet to come.

The owners are also interested in farming and own some very desirable lands.

Mr. E. E. Rouse was born in Grant County forty-four years ago. Boone county has been favored with his citizenship most of this time.

Mr. J. S. Rouse was born in Boone County in the year 1863, and within her borders has lived all his life.

Each of the Messrs. Rouses is a conscientious Christian gentleman, and belongs to the Christian church.

W. H. ROUSE,

One of Boone County's Most Enterprising and Prosperous Citizens.

Breeder of Short Horn Cattle, Fine Sheep and Poland China Hogs—Operator of Burlington Saw and Grist Mill.

Among the many enterprising and prosperous business men of the county the gentleman whose name captions this article stands out with noticeable prominence. Mr. Rouse is a native product of Boone County—born February 29, 1869—and no higher compliment can be paid him than to note the fact that he has spent the major portion of his life as a farmer and breeder of fine stock, especially is this more pronounced in the splendid herds of short horn cattle, Poland China hogs and flocks of fine sheep.

Rouse Ranch, as his place might be properly termed, is situated near Limaburg, and contains some 200 acres of as fine land as Boone county can boast. On this magnificent estate Mr. Rouse has made his home, where endowed with plenty of this world's goods he lives a life thoroughly in keeping of a prosperous farmer.

In breeding circles the Rouse strain of short horn cattle and fine sheep enjoy a reputation such as to herald their fame throughout the States, a circumstance which adds material prestige to the prominence of Boone County. Mr. Rouse is also closely identified in a commercial way with the business interests of Burlington, being the owner and operator of a saw and grist mill, an enterprise highly appreciated and well patronized by the greater populace of this section. In social life Mr. Rouse contributes a splendid example, is a member of the Lutheran Church, and belongs to the K. of P. and I. O. O. F. secret societies, and in political life is a Democrat of the old field school.

On June 19, 1892, he was united in wedlock with Miss Ada Virginia Clore, a lady of one of the first families of this section.

THE BOONE COUNTY HARVEST HOME.

The first Harvest Home was held in this county many years ago at Parlor Grove. Its popularity increased from year to year, as did also the list of premiums given on farm produce, poultry and dairy products and needle work, and it soon became apparent that a more central location was absolutely necessary, when it was located on its present convenient site near Limaburg, and a commodious pavilion and other necessary buildings were erected in the beautiful beech grove. The Harvest Home Association gives, annually, an exhibition that is equal to many country fairs, and its liberal premium list attracts a large number of competitors and thousands of spectators. The fee for admission to the grounds is small, and the fact that the young people are allowed to use the pavilion for dancing has added greatly to the popularity of the yearly meetings. The Harvest Home is an event looked forward to by the people of this and adjoining counties from year to year, and its careful and business like management has made it a dividend payer to the stockholders, of which there is quite a number. The next meeting will be held on Saturday, September 12, 1903, when a liberal list of premiums will be awarded. The officers are J. M. Craven, President; J. J. Tanner, Vice President; C. R. Crigler, Secretary; J. W. Clore, Treasurer; W. H. Rouse, W. C. Weaver, M. L. Riddell, directors.

T. J. WALTON,

Wealthy and Influential Farmer.

About twenty minutes' drive to the West from Burlington the beautiful and well improved farm, comprising 416 acres, of T. J. Walton's is found. This is possibly one of the most picturesque farms in this section of the State, and its beauty is not more striking than the unique good-natured proprietor, whose 300 avoirdupois is the soul of congenial conviviality. "Jack," as we know him, was born May 7, 1864, and has not digressed in occupation from boyhood; that is, he was born on a farm, was raised on the farm, and is now one of the best farmers in the county—one of the kind when you meet once a thorough acquaintance is sought, and if Jack falls in line, which his big heart brimful of good nature most always suggests, you can rest assured a friend has been found, one of the kind that will stick, and stick tight. In this world's goods Mr. Walton has gathered around him plenty to keep away the demands of the "proverbial rainy day," and to this, year by year, he is adding material strength. As a neighbor there is none more clever and accommodating than this gentleman, therefore the reason is easily explained as to his popularity among home folks. August 17, 1896, he married Miss Eliza H. Hunt, of Bellview. The three sons and one daughter comprise the interesting family.

Mr. Walton is a member of the K.

T. J. WALTON'S RESIDENCE, on Burlington and Bellevue Pike.

of P. Lodge, the I. O. O. F. Order and of the Baptist Church.

This article would not be complete was the fact not mentioned that the farm occupied by Mr. Walton was among the first to be settled in this county, a man by the name of Hawkins erecting his cabin thereon, over a century ago. The title to this land has been in the Walton family for more than seventy-five years, two families by that name having owned it.

J. J. LILLARD,

Farmer and Breeder of Short Horn Cattle and Thoroughbred Horses.

Four miles West of Burlington the 340-acre country seat of J. J. Lillard is located. Mr. Lillard is one of our most conspicuous of farmers and breeders of thoroughbred horses and shorthorn cattle. The farm is an ideal one, well suited for the diversified tilling and grazing. The spendid buildings, good fences and fields full of good stock, show at a glance the prosperous planter—such as Mr. Lillard is in fact. He was born in Gallatin County, September 21, 1830 and has given his entire life (with the exception of the year as a Confederate soldier and being locked up by the "Yankees") on the farm, and for fifty-five years has resided on the spendid place occupied to-day. Like most men who were loyal to the cause of the South, he enlisted with the Confederate army, was later captured at Mt. Sterling, Ky., by the Federals, and was a prisoner in Johnson's Island Prison for six months. March 1st, 1855, he married Miss Mary E. Brady, of Boone County. In politics he is ever for the Democratic party and nominees, but for himself has ever eschewed office.

S. C. BUCHANAN.

Drugs, Paints, Oils, Wall Paper and Notions—Petersburg, Ky.

Among the leading merchandise establishments of Petersburg the business of S. C. Buchanan takes a prominent place. Mr. Buchanan was born in Ohio County, Ind., June 24, 1857. He began life's work as a teacher in the public schools—three years' service in his home county and two years thereafter in Boone County. His drug experience reaches back over a period of twenty-four years, and has been established in his present business since 1893. His store is one of the trade attractions of Petersburg, a tastefully arranged house, with elegant fixtures and an extensive line of drugs, paints, wall paper, notions, drug sundries, etc. Not only is Mr. Buchanan one of the county's most forward business men, but in social life sets an example well worth emulating. He is a member of the Christian Church and belongs to the I. O. O. F. secret order. In the year 1879 he wedded Miss Irene Alloway, of Petersburg, having one son and four daughters to grace the home.

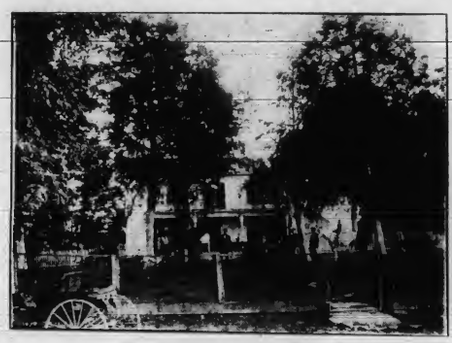
Previous to establishing the business under direct review Mr. Buchanan spent five years at Harrisonville, Mich. in business.

F. A. UTZ,

Farmer and Stock Dealer, Florence, Kentucky.

F. A. Utz, farmer and stock dealer, resides in the town of Florence, and is one of the wealthiest business men of that section. He was born in Boone County, May 27, 1845, and is proud of the fact that his early life was spent on the farm. In his life efforts success seems to be a fact in every undertaking; consequently, he has massed a goodly share of this world's goods. He is largely interested in farming and is one of the most extensive stock buyers in North Kentucky. He is a director in the Erlanger Deposit Bank, director in the Florence and Burlington and the Florence and Union Pikes, director in the North Kentucky Agricultural Association, and treasurer of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co., of Boone County.

F. A. UTZ'S RESIDENCE, Florence.



February 5, 1873, he married Miss Lizzie Fisk.

In lodge circles he takes an active part and for 35 years has been a member of good standing in the I. O. O. F. Personally, he is a gentleman of sterling character.

N. S. WALTON.

An Enterprising Farmer—Ex-Member of Legislature.

On a beautiful 540-acre farm, well improved and under high state of cultivation on the Burlington & Petersburg Pike, resides N. S. Walton, a conspicuous figure in the eclat make-up of Boone County's citizens. Mr. Walton was born at Petersburg, June 8, 1841, and was reared on the farm. He served in the C. S. A. Army during the civil strife with Co. B., Jessie's Batallion. In politics he has always taken an active interest and served in the Legislature during '83 and '84, and '91, '92 and '93, which was in the wake of the constitutional convention. In the Legislature he was made committeeman on education, agriculture and insurance. He was a delegate from the Sixth Congressional District to the National Convention in 1896, and voted for William Jennings Bryan.

June 12, 1865, he was united in marriage with Miss Izora Rucker, two sons being born to them.

Personally speaking, Mr. Walton is one of our best and most influential citizens and loyal Democrats—a gentlemen in all that the term implies.

DANIEL E. LAWELL,

Successful Farmer and Stock Breeder.

Daniel E. Lawell was born in this county, near Rabbit Hash, on the 14th day of January, 1856, and has been a citizen of Boone County all his life.

His education was begun in the schools in his neighborhood, and was completed by a course at the Kentucky University at Lexington, Ky., while the well known and successful educators, Profs. Pickett, Perrin and White were of the faculty of that institution.

On the 4th day of September, 1877, he was united in marriage with Miss Frances A. Craig, a member of an old and prominent family of his immediate neighborhood. Immediately after marrying Mr. Lawell engaged in farming and raising fine sheep, at both of which he has been eminently successful, and as a breeder of fine sheep has a national reputation. He was a successful exhibitor of wool at the World's Fair, at Chicago, in 1893, and received a medal and a diploma on his exhibit.

D. E. LAWELL'S RESIDENCE, near Burlington.

Mr. Lawell owns and occupies a 161 acre farm on the Bellevue Pike one and one-half miles west of Burlington. His land is in a high state of cultivation, and on it is every class of building necessary to successful farming. His residence is a convenient and spacious building, occupying a position that commands a fine view of the country for miles around.

Owing to the fact that Mr. Lawell desires to locate in Central Kentucky, his excellent farm is for sale.

In religion Mr. Lawell and his wife are Baptists, he being one of the deacons of the Burlington Baptist Church.

WALTON GRADED SCHOOL.

After considerable legal trouble the present building of the Walton Graded School was completed in 1902 at a cost of about $11,000.

The attendance of the first session, the enthusiastic support and successful co-operation given the Board of Education and the teachers, show that the people of Walton and the surrounding country are not indifferent towards education, but that they are beginning to fully realize and appreciate the value of a good school at home, where the common-school work is well taught, followed by four years of thorough high-school work.

Under the efficient management of the present Board of Education, consisting of Dr. A. N. Jones, President; Geo. W. Powers, Vice-President; T. F. Curley, Secretary; A. M. Edwards, Treasurer; William Ransler, R. M. Jones and A. M. Rouse, and with the competent instruction of an able corps of teachers, consisting of W. P. Dickey, Principal, and Assistants Harriett Bedinger, Alice Coffman, Jean Chambers and Mary Rouse, its patrons feel assured of the future success of the school.

PROF. WM. T. DICKEY.

Principal of Walton Graded School.

William Pinkney Dickey was born in Brookhaven, Lincoln County, Mississippi, in 1878. He was reared on a farm and attended the public schools in his county until he was about seventeen years old, when he entered Mississippi College, at Clinton, Mississippi, where he spent two years, after which he began teaching in the public schools in his State during vacation; he entered Georgetown College, this State, in 1892, to complete his education, and received the A. M. Degree in 1902.

In 1893, when the Walton Graded School wanted a principal, Mr.

Dickey appeared before the Board of Trustees so well recommended that the board employed him over many other applicants, and the very successful manner in which he handled the school last year showed that no mistake was made when his services were secured. Mr Dickey has been employed for another year, and the indications are that he will receive many pupils from beyond the limits of the district.

Mr. Dickey is a young man of modest demeanor, an entertaining conversationalist, and a gentleman possessed of great force of character. He takes great interest in his profession, and the people of Walton appreciate his efforts in behalf of education in that locality, where his work for the past year has borne much fruit.

HON. J. G. TOMLIN.

Was born in Grant County, this State, 40 years ago. He received a good public school education, and afterward attended the Vincennes (Ind.) High School, of which he is a graduate, and attended four years without missing a day. He studied under a private teacher at Terre Haute, Ind., one year, and was one year in college at Atlanta, Ga. He taught school in Gallatin County in 1884, and began at that time the study of law under the late J. J. Landram. After teaching four and one-half years in this county he served twenty-two months as Deputy Revenue Collector under Colonel Landram. He was admitted to the bar in Grant County in '91, locating at Walton, of which town he is one of the most public spirited citizens, and always contributes liberally toward any enterprise that will redound to the interest of Walton. He is a good lawyer, a clever gentleman and a prompt, far-seeing business man. His wife was Miss Annie Herndon, of Bank Lick, Kenton County. They have a sprightly son, aged 8 years, and own and occupy one of the neatest residences in Walton. Mr Tomlin is an influential Republican, and has been, in the past, his party's nominee for Commonwealth's Attorney, County Attorney, State Senator and County Representative. In his eleven years' practice of his profession he has proven a formidable advocate and a faithful guardian of the interests of his numerous clients.

HON. JAMES W. KENNEDY.

Legislator and Tobacco Buyer.

Hon. James W. Kennedy is a Gallatin County product, being born in that county on the 13th day of December, 1840. He was raised on a farm and educated in the common schools, in which he taught for several years.

On the 31st day of March, 1863, he married Miss Lizzie Dorman, one of Gallatin County's most accomplished ladies. For two years after his marriage he engaged in farming. In 1866 he moved to Normansville, this county, where he operated the flour mill for two years, when he again returned to his first love, farming, which he followed very successfully for a period of six years. After a few years' experience in handling tobacco and operating a general store at Normansville, Mr. Kennedy bought an elegant home that overlooks the town of Union, which he now occupies, and where he has a large warehouse in which he handles large quantities of tobacco every year. Besides his tobacco business he owns large general store at Corinth, Grant County, the sales of which amount to a handsome fortune every twelve months.

Mr. Kennedy is a good student, a close observer, and has a large fund of general information. He is a loyal Democrat, and so faithful has he been to his party that he was honored with election to the last legislature, and so satisfactorily did he serve his people that he was nominated for re-election without opposition, something that seldom occurs in Boone County. He will be re-elected next November, and will serve his constituents as faithfully as he did in the last session. He is an enterprising citizen and a prominent member of the Baptist Church.

O. S. WATTS,

County Assessor.

On the roster of noteworthy county officials appears the name of O. S. Watts, who fills the responsible office of Assessor, elected November, 1902. Mr. Watts is one of our well and favorably known men of the county, and is largely engaged in farming and stock buying and selling.

In the stock trade he is in partnership with J. L. Huey, who has a reputation of being one of the most liberal buyers of stock in Boone County, and is possibly one of the largest handlers of leaf tobacco.

Mr. Watts resides on a farm five and one-half miles east of Burlington, and lives in the house where he was born and reared, having never yet passed beyond the threshold of his old home to reside. Mr. Watts is a young man of pleasing demeanor, a very courteous, conscientious and capable officer—one who has discharged the duties of his office to the full satisfaction of friends and constituents. He is a bachelor.

W. R. ROUSE,

Farmer and Miller.

W. R. Rouse was born at Gunpowder, this county, in 1860, and in that neighborhood he spent the first five years of his life, when he moved with his parents to the Limaburg neighborhood, where he continued to reside until a few months ago, when he moved to his present pleasant and well-appointed home, three-quarters of a mile east of Hebron.

Mr. Rouse received a common school education in boyhood, attending schools in the winter and working on the farm in summer. He was taught to be practical in his youth, and that training has served him to a good purpose in after life.

Eighteen years ago he became the owner of the Limaburg saw and grist mill, a picture of which is carried in this edition. Under his systematic business management it has become one of the most valuable saw and grist mill properties in Boone County. He is prompt to fill orders, either for sawing or grinding, and draws custom from a very large territory, and does any class of sawing that the farmers desire. The grist mill is noted for its superior work.

For several years Mr. Rouse owned a very large block of Burlington and Florence Turnpike stock, and served the company as president and superintendent, and watched the interest of the road closely.

Sixteen years ago he married Miss Ada Wilhoit. One bright child, a son, blessed the home for many years when he fell the victim of an accident.

Mr. Rouse is a devoted member of the Lutheran Church, and is a Christian gentleman not only in name, but in every act.

He is one of Boone's substantial, thrifty citizens, whose word is as good as the beautiful yellow metal.

G. C. GRADY,

Deputy Revenue Collector, Sixth District.

The gentleman whose name captions this article was born and reared in Woodford County, Ky., where to love a thoroughbred horse is an innate principle. Mr. Grady is not an exception to the above, therefore it is but natural that he has around him a string of the best blooded horses—being, in fact, a dealer in good stock, more as a matter of pleasure than from the ac-cruement of profits. June 9th, 1902, he was appointed to the office of Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue of the Sixth District, his headquarters being at Petersburg. As an officer he is regarded as one of the most painstaking and proficient in the service, ever mindful of the requirements of "Uncle Sam," yet discharges his manifold duties in such an obliging way as to make him a popular personage in all circles, both business and socially speaking.

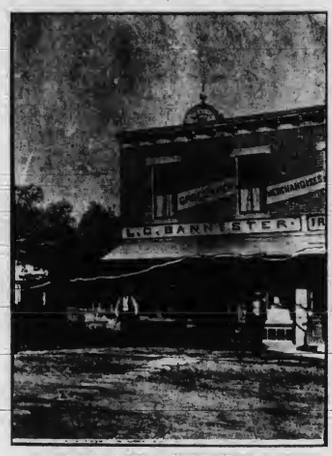
He is a moral, high-class gentleman, a member of the Christian church.

N. E. RIDDLE,

N. E. Riddle was born July 17, 1872, a son of the late F. Riddle, lawyer and banker.

In our local schools Mr. Riddle received his early education, the letter training being rounded out by Prof. Newton in the old Morgan Academy. In 1895 he graduated from the Cincinnati Law School, having previous to this time, however, read law in his father's office, and was admitted to the bar. In connection with the practice of law he is largely interested in the Boone County Telephone Company, filling the office of Treasurer. As a lawyer Mr. Riddle has been very successful, and is regarded to be one of the strongest links in Boone County's chain of lawyers. In social circles he takes a prominent part. He is the Keeper of Records and Seals in the K. of P. and is Secretary in the Masonic Lodge, and a Past Master of the same.



June 6, 1900, he married Miss Katie L. Huey, one of Boone County's very attractive and most admirable young ladies.

L. C. BANNISTER,

Owner and Director of One of Erlanger's Most Important Business Interests.

The illustration produced in this connection represents the business establishment of Mr. L. C. Bannister in he prosperous town of Erlanger, which point is Boone County's main railway outlet. The same was founded in April, 1900, and the stock carried of staple and fancy groceries, hardware, tinware, notions, etc., is second to none in this section of Kentucky. In connection with the general mercantile business is also operated a country produce service—wagons traveling regularly all surrounding territory, paying market prices in cash and in goods and gathering up all kinds of produce from the farmers and transferring the same to Cincinnati markets.

Mr. L. C. Bannister, proprietor, was born in Kenton County, November 6, 1857, and farmed to thirteen years ago, the beginning of his business career. During this period he has proven himself a successful business man, of careful honesty, square dealings and modest courtesy. His standing in the commercial and social world is above reproach. His many friends will be delighted to note these respects of tribute paid to his efforts in this life. He is a non-office-seeking, but good Democrat, and owns a farm in Kenton County, near Erlanger.

It might be of interest and profit to some one wishing to engage in the general mercantile business to know that Mr. Bannister desires to re-engage in other lines, and propositions, through correspondence or in person, would be considered.

JOHN VEERKAMP.

The splendid, high-class bar of Mr. John Veerkamp, located midway on the Erlanger and Florence turnpike, is popularly known in this section of Kentucky as "The Last Chance." Here can be sampled "Forget Maryland Rye" and "Dan Barton Bourbon" whiskies. Bavarian keg and bottled beers. Mr. John Veerkamp, proprietor, was born in Kenton County December 27, 1867. For a number of years previous to engaging in the saloon business he was connected with the office of the Covington Water Works Company. In 1896 he established himself in business in South Erlanger, and in 1898 removed to his present quarters. The illustration produced in this connection reflects his business house and beautiful home.

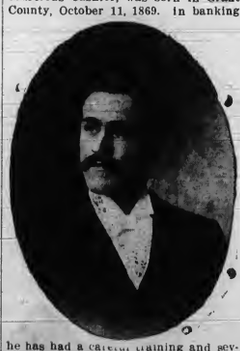
ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.

Established 1892—Capital Stock $65,000—A Very Strong and Conservative Banking House.

The Erlanger Deposit Bank, with a capital stock of $50,000 (capital now $65,000), was founded in 1892, and opened its doors for business in the very face of panic days in 1893, when many old banking houses could not stand the adverse tide and were forced to the wall.



From the inception of this bank, it has prospered, and its statements clearly show how kindly the fair hand of success has been extended to its efforts. With the immense advantage of being situated in the midst of a rich farming country, backed by substantial and strong wealth, and administered by competent and clever officials, its steady upbuilding has been but natural. The bank building, as the accompanying illustration serves to depict, is a very modern brick building and contained therein is the unique and handsomely arranged counting room, private offices, etc. The fixtures are very elaborate, and the mechanical protection of the bank's funds is equal in strength to possibly that of any bank in the State. The massive steel safe is equipped with time lock, burglar-proof treasure chest, and is housed within a fire-proof vault. The men who stand at the head of the affairs of this bank enumerate some of the wealthiest and most conservative business men of the community, gentlemen who have been successful in their several individual undertakings.

The President is Mr. W. A. B[illegible], capitalist and extensive farm[illegible] was born and reared in Bo[illegible] His elegant home in E[illegible]

Mr. E. H. Blankenbeker, the Vice-President, is also a farmer of magnitude and affluence, one of the best men in the county from every standpoint.

S. L. Webb, the very genial and courteous Cashier, was born in Grant County, October 11, 1869. In banking he has had a careful training and several years' experience, being for quite a long time previous to association with the bank under direct notice, connected with the office force of the Williamstown Deposit Bank. FARMERS BANK OF PETERSBURG.

A New Financial Institution Promises to Meet High Success—Backed By a Large Contingent of Local Capital and Some of the Greatest Financiers of the State—Solon Early, President; J. H. Stevens, Vice President; Ira Kemper, Cashier.

The Farmers' Bank of Petersburg (a new bank) has just opened its doors for business at Petersburg, receiving its first deposits July 1st, the grand aggregate of which in unmistakable terms portrayed the high appreciation of such an institution by the business fraternity and farmers alike.

That the bank will succeed is conceded by the best authority on banking in this section. The reasons given are both lucid and logical, first being that it is located in the heart of a very rich farming country, is in a good town, and has several other towns of prominence, without a bank, in close proximity. The nearest banking house to this new institution is on the Indiana side of the Ohio River, and it is but reasonable to expect home people to patronize a home institution, especially when the assurance of perfect reliability is evidenced by the high standing, character and worth of the stockholders and officers backing the enterprise.

The bank is contained in a new especially constructed building, an ornament to the town thus favored. The fixtures, such as counters and casings, are made of highly polished quartered oak, with frosted and beveled glass settings. The safe to care for the funds of the bank is one of the latest improved Hall manufacture, said to be as near burglar proof as the skill of man can devise.

The selection of officers for the bank shows mature judgment on the part of the Directors. The President, Mr. Solon Early, is an extensive farmer, with land adjourning Petersburg, and is a Magistrate of the Fiscal Court and is a member of the I. O. O. F. and K. of P. secret societies.

Mr. J. H. Stevens is a well-to-do farmer near Idlewild, a gentleman well known for his high trait of character as a financial strength.

The Cashier, Mr. Ira Kemper, is a newcomer to the field, but by no means is he a stranger to the banking business. The writer, happening to be personally acquainted with Mr. Kemper can with a degree of exultant pride pen his virtues, knowing well that no words of commendation are forceful enough to portray his usefulness to any community. Ira, as we are wont to call him in home circles, is a son of a most prosperous and influential farmer of Owen County, and is a young man that Owen County can well feel proud of. Passing from school, he became a clerk in the First State Bank of Monterey, and there, under the careful training of Walter Gayle, one of the most widely known and most careful financiers of the State, he received a schooling such as to make him thoroughly proficient in every detail of banking. When Mr. Gayle (a year ago) became connected with and Cashier of one of Richmond (Ind.) banks Mr. Kemper was made Assistant Cashier in the First State Bank, a position held with honor and credit until accepting the Cashiership of the Farmers' Bank of Petersburg. A moral, high thinking Christian gentleman, this new bank could not have made a better selection for their Cashier than Mr. Kemper.

FARMERS' BANK, Peterasburg.

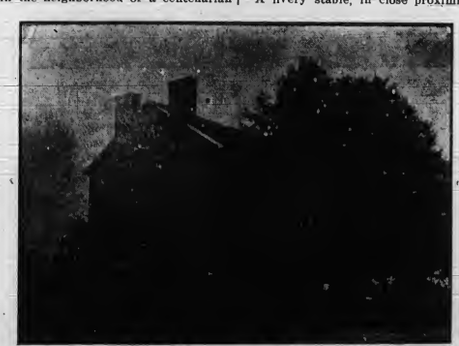
J. L. CLORE,

Operator of the Burlington & Erlanger Passenger Transfer and Mail.

Conducts a Livery Stable and Hotel in Burlington.

One of the best known men and one of Burlington's most progressive citizens is J. L. Clore, operator of the Burlington & Erlanger Bus and Mail Line. Mr. Clore was born and reared in Boone County, and until reaching the age of majority lived on the farm.

"Jim," as he is familiarly known in home circles, is one of the most unique characters within our midst. His early life was spent in making money, and making it fast, with an insatiable desire to spend it just as rapidly, thus in experience "Jim," we should judge, is in the neighborhood of a centenarian in age, but in reality would class down to about 35 or 40 years.



Settling down to a good, hard, common sense undertaking a few years ago, he obtained control of the Burlington & Erlanger Bus and Mail Line, and in its operation has given the passenger traffic of this route the best and most satisfactory service ever had. His motto comes in line with the old saying, "What is worth doing at all, is worth doing right." To accommodate the public he put into service an elegant roller bearing bus, which runs on a schedule time equal in punctuality to the running of a regular train. So regular is the bus that farmers along the line set their time piece by its passing. In conjunction to being always on time with the mail, he never forgets to be accommodating and courteous. In the operation of the mail line the venture, from a business view, has not been as profitable as it should be, considering the service; but Mr. Clore stoutly maintains that he agreed to do the work, and regardless of the remuneration will continue making the two daily trips over the line until his commission with the government expires on mail contract.

Not long since he traded his farm to Judge John M. Lessing for Burlington property (the Judge's old home), and for the benefit of the public makes his home a stopping place for the transient traffic, being, in fact, the Burlington Hotel.

A livery stable, in close proximity, is also a business controlled by him. At the County Fair Mr. Clore is always a familiar personage—he in company with a brother and others usually lease the refreshment privilege of the grounds.

Strictly temperate in habits, affable and accommodating, he makes for Burlington one of her most highly respected citizens. In social circles he belongs to the K. of P. Lodge.

In conclusion, we are wont to say that the hotel is personally superintended by Mrs. Clore, a most estimable lady, and that the livery stable is looked after by Bruce Clore, a son.

W. L. GORDON,

General Merchant, Petersburg, Ky.

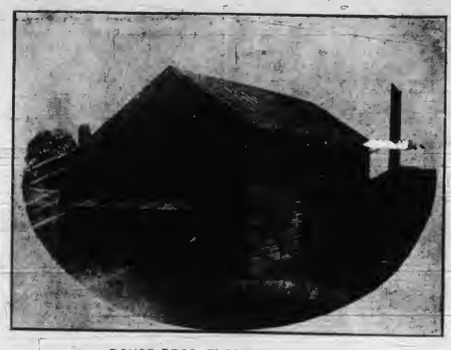
Occupying a very pretentious business house in Petersburg, with salesroom 45x60 feet in area The W. L. Gordon General Store forms a strong link in the chain of reputable business concerns of Boone County. The store was established in 1890, and its purpos is to carry nearly—if not quite—everything in stock usually found in a firstclass up-to-date general merchandise establishment. The splendid trade accorded this house attests to its universal high standing and points out clearly that the institution took passage on the good ship of "Prosperity." W. L. Gordon was born in Boone County December 18, 1862, learned the trade of carpenter, and for years previous to establishing the store engaged in constructing and building. He has served his town in the capacity of Trustee, and also served as Trustee on the School Board. January 7, 1888, he married Miss Katherine Hoffman, a most estimable lady.

WALTON ROLLER MILLS.

M. & R. Rouse, Proprietors.

The industrial life of Boone County is not of any great magnitude outside of the Walton Roller Mills in fact, it is the only manufacturing plant worth mentioning to any extent, except the inland saw mills.

This milling plant was established in 1879, and has been built from the old burr process to one of the best roller systems in the state. Where a high grade flour is made, as is also bolted and unbolted meal.



The mill is owned by M. & R. Rouse, gentlemen who have, practically speaking, been reared in the business their father before them being a miller, the operator of the old burr pattern.

W. R. Rouse was born in Pendleton County, Ky., November 3, 1850. is a prominent Mason, member of the Methodist Church, and is Superintendent of the Sunday-school. is a member of the Walton Town Council, and is largely interested in the Walton Perpetual Building & Loan Association.

February 3, 1876, he married Miss Jane Shaw of Pendleton County. They have five children.

A. M. Rouse was born August 9, 1848, was married to Miss Mary Coffman, who died July 17, 1882, leaving one son and one daughter in his second marriage he wed Miss Ella Rogers, of Boone County. One son has come to bless this union.

He is a Mason of high standing, member of board of stewarts in the M. E. Church, K. of P. is trustee of Walton Graded School, Treasurer of School Board and Treasurer of the Sunday-school.

ROUSE BROS. FLOUR MILL, Walton.

C. W. MYERS.

General Merchant, Florence, Ky.

Florence, "The Famous Stringtown on the Pike," is another of Boone County's chief centers of trade, with C. W. Myers' business house being a predominating feature. The rapid growth of this house has been rather meteoric, yet so substantial has been its building that it easily stands as one of the chief commercial houses of the county. in a small way the business was established in 1897 by Mr. Myers, who had schooled himself some by 20 years' identification with business at Erlanger previous to the inception of the Florence undertaking. The building occupied by Mr. Myers is a very commodious and handsome brick, designed to serve the purpose of business house and dwelling. The large stock of goods embrace a first-class dry goods store, grocery, hardware, etc. In the capacity of salesmen several people are employed and the surging crowds that daily may be seen entering the portals of the establishment uniformly confirms our allegation, that there is not many trade emporiums of North Kentucky that can boast of a more pleasing recognition. Mr. Myers was born in Kenton County August 16, 1866, and the success he has attained is due principally to his untiring efforts and determination to win in the race of business.

January 27, 1901, he was married to Miss Georgia B. Snyder, of Boone County. Two children were born to them, but one now living, he a bright little fellow that can be seen in the accompanying illustration standing by his tricycle posing for the Recorder artist.

C. W. MYERS' STORE, Florence.

FRED REICH,

Blacksmith and Wagon Builder, Florence, Ky.

As a blacksmith, horseshoer and wagon builder, Fred Reich enjoys a reputation second to none in Northern Kentucky. Mr. Reich is a German by birth, emigrating from the "Fatherland" in 1856, and settled in Covington. One year later he began to learn the trade of blacksmith, and in some of the best shops of Covington he served a full apprenticeship. In 1865 he purchased from John Olsner his present shop, and since then he has steadily represented the business in person, and by superior workmanship has built up a trade of surprising magnitude. Many of his customers being residents miles away. In horseshoeing he has attained such distinction as to draw trade even from the city, and from nearly if not quite all the nearby towns. Horses that interfere or overreach are corrected through his scientific method of shoeing, as are also improperly gaited horses forced to even strides. Wagon building and repairing of all kinds kindred to a general blacksmith shop are given careful attention.

Since fifteen years of age he has been a member of the Eleventh Street Lutheran Church of Covington, and is a member of the Pioneer Society. May 17, 1865, he was married to Miss Barbara Weisensell. They have two children, one a daughter, one son.

J. W. KITE,

Merchant and Farmer, Waterloo, Ky.

J. W. Kite is another one of Boone County's highly respected citizens and business men, who are proud to say was born under the blue canopy skies of Old Boone County, having first seen the light of day August 21, 1840. He grew up and spent his life on a farm until 24 years old. Leaving the farm, he joined the Army of the North, enlisting with and serving in the 55th Kentucky Regiment. After the close of the war he became identified in business as salesman in a dry goods store. August 4, 1870, he was married to Miss Josie Clore, and four years later became superintendent of the Farmers' Co-operative Store at Belleview, where for eight years he was the central head of the concern. Disengaging himself from this enterprise, he returned to farming, only to re-engage in merchandising in 1891, being now the operator of one of the best country stores of Boone County. He also conducts a farm, one of the best in the Ohio River bottom section.

In politics Mr. Kite is regarded a staunch yet conservative Republican, and cast his first vote for President to Gen. U. S. Grant. He belongs to the

J. W. KITE'S STORE, Waterloo.

I. O. O. F., and has been a conscientious and active member of the Christian Church since he was fifteen years of age.

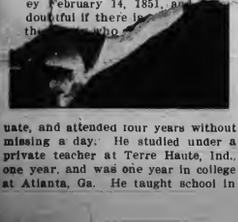
In his two sons J. L. and W. G. Kite, he has just reasons to feel proud, they being most excellent gentlemen and highly respected citizens. His only daughter, Maggie Edna, died when two years old.

C. G. Riddell. L. L. Stevens.

RIDDELL & STEVENS.

General Merchants, Rabbit Hash, Ky.

In our pen picture of the various men of affairs and commercial concerns of value for this, our illustrated Edition, none in our thinking is more worthy of laudation than the time-tried, popular and enterprising merchants forming the firm of Riddle & Stevens at Rabbit Hash, Ky.



The business was founded as a Granger store, Mr. Riddell becoming a clerk therein in 1877. In 1883 the business become the property of J. A. Willson and C. G. Riddell, forming the firm of Willson & Riddell, and under their careful, yet liberal management, the store prospered. In the spring of 1900 Mr. Willson sold his half interest to Mr. Stevens, a worthy young farmer of that section, and since then a continued and increased prosperity has marked the business life of the establishment. The store is a very extensive affair considering the fact of its being located in a very small place. The stock of goods carried embraces a comprehensive and well assorted line of nearly everything in common, such as contribute to a first-class inland general mercantile house. In assistance to the business they operate four huckster wagons that make regular trips through the rurals, distributing goods and money and caring for such produce as the farmers may have to sell. These wagons are a great convenience to the agricultural people, as it is repeatedly said they pay as high prices for produce as can be had in the city and sell goods comparatively as low.

Mr. Riddle was born in Boone Coun-

go to the rescue, without asking, and under all considerations free from any pay. With such a happy disposition it is no enigma why he has prospered and why his friends are counted with in every household. He was appointed Postmaster at Rabbit Hash in 1882 and has filled the office ever since. Is a Mason and belongs to the K. of P. order.

Mr. Stevens was also born and reared in Boone County, and as we previously stated, was engaged in farming until becoming interested in the store. He is a gentleman well and favorably known, belongs to the K. of P. Lodge, and to the Baptist church.

Since the above was prepared for publication Mr. Riddle has purchased his partner's interest in the business.

L. D. JACKSON,

General Merchant, Richwood, Ky.

Richwood is one of the small railway stations of the Q. & C. R. R. in this county. Its prominence [illegible]ver, is asserted in its representation of enterprising business men, and at the head of the list is found the name of L. D. Jackson, Merchant, Postmaster and Livery Stable Keeper. In a commercial, as well as socially refering, Mr. Jackson is well in the fore ranks of that section of the country. His store is a veritable hive, practically speaking, of every thing needed in the home, or on the farm, and the price governing their sale strikingly compares with the asking of reputable houses in the city. The fact is, he sells a good quality of wares at as low a price as is consistent with safe and honorable dealing.

Mr. Jackson was born in Hamilton County, Ohio, February 24, 1850, and has been a resident of Boone County since 1866. In politics he is a Republican, and was appointed Postmaster in 1898. November 15, 1882, he was united in wedlock with Miss Samantha Griffith, of Boone County.

RABENSTEIN, HARRIS & CONNER,

Live Stock Commission Salesmen—Cincinnati Union Stock Yards and Covington Stock Yards.

Largely interested in the Kentucky oil fields, and have been wonderfully successful in their field development.

F. G. HARRIS.

The Mr. J. M. Conner a Boone Co. product.

The above firm becomes interesting to us, from the fact that one of its central heads is a Boone County man, and then it is a pleasure to direct farmes and dealers in stock to a reliable selling firm. What will most interest our readers is, that "Jim Conner" (as he is familiarly called in home circles), struck oil not only in a prosperous business in the firm of Robinstein, Harris & Conner, but has struck oil through careful investment in the undeveloped oil fields of Kentucky and Virginia, and in which there is a great possibility of obtaining fabulous wealth. It seems that the firm, of which Mr. Conner is a member, were wise enough to make some investments, their Mr. Harris being selected to personally superintend the development, so that every phase of the situation would be accurately brought to their attention. They have formed two De[illegible]mpanies—one is known as the Cumberl[illegible] to and Co., the other the Cincinnati with electamberland River Oil Co. dollars of the stock of $10,000 placed on sale has been sold. The money thus obtained is utilized in drilling new wells and developing. Persons interested in such investments might find it worth while to confer with "Jim," whom we all know to be honest, upright and chuck full of business.

WALTON DEPOSIT BANK.

Capital Stock, $50,000.

The Walton Deposit Bank was established in 1890 with a capital stock of $25,000, which was increased later to $50,000, all paid up.

Dr. D. M. Bagby is President; O. Perceival, Vice President; R. C. Greene, Cashier. The bank building is a very commanding structure commodiously arranged for the special use assigned. Dr. Bagby is an ex-Confederate soldier, popular and public-spirited. He is also a director in the Walton Perpetual Building and Loan Association. He succeeded Dr. B. D. Allen as President of the bank.

The Vice President, Mr. Percival, is a very prosperous and influential citizen and business man.

R. C. Greene, the Cashier, was born in Grant Co., and reared in Kenton, and has filled the office of Cashier since inception of bank, being previous agent for C. & S. R. R. at Brock, Ky. He married Miss Eleanor Southgate; they have one child—a daugater.

Mr. C. C. Metcalf is the Assistant Cashier and succeeded Mr. C. E. Ford, now with the Fifth National Bank, Cincinnati.

Mr. W. L. Rouse, a very worthy young man, is retained as Clerk and Book-keeper.

A. CORBIN & SON,

General Merchants, Extensive Dealers in Coal, Lumber and Shingles, Grant, Ky.

This is one of the veteran business concerns of the county, having been established some 30 years ago by the late A. Corbin. Since the death of the senior Mr. Corbin, the business has been successfully managed by M. J. Corbin, the junior firm member. Mrs. A. Corbin being the principal stockholder. The latter referred to gentleman was reared in the business, his entire business life being devoted to selling merchandise and in the conduct of the A. Corbin & Son business is at the head of one of the leading commercial enterprises of the county—a concern that annually transacts in advance of $25,000 worth of business. The store consists of a general stock, replete with the many wares usually found in an inland trade house. In addition to the store, they deal largely in coal, lumber, shingles, etc., their trade in this direction being one of the important features of the house.

M. J. CORBIN.

Mr. M. J. Corbin was born October 31, 1857, and in his life all the attributes of a thorough going gentleman and excellent citizen scintillate. He is a devout Christian, is deacon, treasurer and assistant clerk in the Baptist Church; he also fills the office of treasurer of the Grant Cemtery Co.

November 22, 1877, he was married to Miss Catarine Botts, of this county. Two daughters were born to them, one now living.

T. B. CASTLEMAN,

A Very Capable Dental Surgeon—Florence, Burlington, Latonia, and Big Bone Springs.

Dr. Castleman was born December 16, 1873, at Glenco, Gallatin County, Kentucky. In 1890 he moved to Erlanger, Ky., where he established a drugstore, disposing of it later to Dr. R. L. Scott. Soon thereafter he again engaged in drug dealing at Florence, Kentucky, continuing for five years, and during ex-President Cleveland's last administration was Postmaster at Florence. On May 6 last, after a three years' course in the Cincinnati Dental College, he became a graduate of the above institution, and since established a practice in this section with main office at Florence and auxiliary offices at Burlington, Latonia and Big Bone Springs. As a dentist he employs all the latest ideas suggested by modern practice, and in the execution is said to be one of the most skillful representatives of the profession. Artificial work, bridge and crown building, treating diseased teeth, extracting without the usual attending pain, are but a few of the special incites to his practice. He is a member of the Baptist Church and belongs to the I. O. O. F. November 12, 1892, he was united in wedlock with Miss Grace Raymond Yeager, a very popular young lady of Florence.

GEORGE HILLIS,

Painter and Boat Builder, Rabbit Hash, Ky.

Rabbit Hash, situated on the Ohio River, furnishes an excellent location for the business conducted by George Hillis, who is known all up and down the river as the expert skiff and light craft boat builder. Mr. Hillis is never without orders for fancy skiffs and boats. There are but few outing resorts along the Ohio that do not look to him for their supply of pleasure craft. Not only does he model his skiffs and boats to please the eye, but they are built strong, capable for to undergo great endurance. Yet they are light and glide through the water as if propelled by magic. Mr. Hillis was born in Rising Sun, Indiana, May 25, 1857, where he learned to be an expert painter, a business yet given attention by him. He is a gentleman well liked by all who know him, and belongs to the K. of P. Order.

J. W. DUNCAN,

Who Has For Eighteen Years Honorably Filled the Office of Circuit Court Clerk.

J. W. Duncan was born in Scott County, Kentucky, August 18, 1826, and came to Boone County in 1844, and up to the time of induction to office in 1874 engaged in farming. In this gentleman we find one of the most splendid types of an excellent officer, and who in the discharge of his duties exemplifies all the characteristics of strict integrity and correctness. Years hence, when the history of Boone County is recorded, his name will adorn one of the brightest pages. His most excellent record of faithfulness to duty is so well intrenched that time and its ravages can not efface. Like officer, like citizen—noble, affable and courteous; always has a good story to tell. Optimistic verging onto the extreme, sees everything only in the beautiful; never allowing the shades of somber life to harbor in his thoughts or expression. In this he teaches a lesson to the younger element well to be appreciated and heeded. Mr. Duncan resides in a very comfortable home in Burlington where the firelight of hopeless seems to reign supreme.

CYRUS KELLEY,

General Merchant, Belleview, Ky.

Cyrus Kelley was born in Boone County June 20, 1844, and until 1882 resided on a farm, and part of the time gave attention to nursery culture. In the nursery business Mr. Kelley met with fair success. He disengaged himself from farm business and nursery raising twenty-one years ago to engage in business, becoming affiliated with the Granger Order, the store being established in the interest of the local lodge of that section. Since then the store has grown to be a factor of importance to the community, which necessarily outlines that it is doing a good-paying business. Mr. Kelley resides in one of the most desirable homes in Northern Kentucky, one that in architectural design borders on the colonial style. May 29, 1873, he married Miss Mattie Griffith, of Carrol County; four children being born to them—two sons, Scott S. and Curtis, and two daughters. The death angel visited the home and deprived them of two fair girls. Generous as a neighbor and business man, Mr. Kelley makes a citizen well to be proud of.

WILLIAM J. WEINDEL, M. D.

Dr. Weindel was born in Petersburg, March 28, 1865, and in the common schools of that place he received his rudimentary education; passing from the common school-room, he matriculated with and graduated from the Aurora (Ind.) high school, soon thereafter becoming a student in the Louisville School of Medicine, graduating from that famous seat of learning with the class of '97. BERKSHIRE & M'WETHY.

The Petersburg Department Store. Buyers and Shippers of Leaf Tobacco.

Located at Petersburg, and conducted by Berkshire & McWethy, is a trade emporium that would add prestige to the commercial equipment of any ordinary sized city. It is known in the local trade circles as the Petersburg Department Store, a place where practically speaking everything is sold—and sold at prices strikingly in line with the asking of the city department establishments. The business occupies three large rooms, or tiatory practice of his profession at Patriot, Switzerland County, Ind., and the time was not long until he was engaging a very lucrative practice, leaving it only on the earnest solicitation of friends in his home town to come and serve them. The change was made about one year ago, and that he was not misled by his friends is clearly outlined in the most splendid practice controlled by him—a practice that any old practitioner of years' building might feel proud to possess.

November 10, 1900, he married Miss burg, August 12, 1842, and until 1894 was engaged in farming. Has always taken an active interest in affairs of the county, and in 1898 was a candidate for High Sheriff, being defeated by but few votes with three in the race. He is a staunch Democrat and was a delegate to the State Convention when the late Governor Goebel was nominated (the Music Hall Convention), and has served as precinct committeeman of the Democratic County Executive Committee.

He is a member of the Christian Church, and belongs to the I. O. O. F. He was married to Miss Fannie S. Walton in the year 1863. Two daughters and four sons form an interesting family.

Mr. McWethy was born in Boone County, March 15, 1855, and has been one of the leading merchants of the county for nearly a quarter of a century with exception of an interim of four years in Ohio.

Early in life he married Miss Mattie Lyons, she becoming deceased leaving one daughter, 1883. In 1890 he married for the second time, Miss Katie Weindel, of Petersburg, a very popular lady within the circles of all who know her. Honest, upright, courageous and obliging gentleman, the firm of Berkshire & McWethy stands in the fore ranks of our best.

The Cincinnati Street Railroad Company is considering a proposition by which the cars of the Cincinnati, Lawrenceburg, and Aurora line will run into Cincinnati, instead of stopping short at Anderson's Ferry. The plan is to take the cars over the Sedamsville line to Mill Creek bridge and then on over the Third and Fifth street line. In order to do this it will be necessary to add a third rail to the Cincinnati lines, as there is a difference of 6 inches in the gauges of the two tracks.—Lawrenceburg Press.

A Sure Cure for Diarrhoea.

Coming as it does, in the busiest season, when a man can least afford to lose time, a sure and quick cure for diarrhoea is very desirable. Anyone who has given it a trial will tell you that the quickest, surest and most pleasant remedy in use for this disease is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is no loss of time when it is used, as one or two doses of it will cure any ordinary attack. It never fails, not even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For Sale by All Druggists.

Robt. Wood Very Sick.

Robert Wood, our clever and popular County Attorney who has been west on account of his health, returned home here Saturday night in a very broken down condition. The country did not agree with him and it did him more harm than good, and he came home broken down and has been in bed since his arrival. He was confined to bed in a hospital at Colorado, Springs, and had become reduced in flesh until he only weighed 95 pounds. He summoned courage enough to get out of the bed and travel that long distance home in hope that he would grow better here, which in all probability will be the case.—Warsaw Independent.

J. W. KITE.

Merchant and Farmer, Waterloo, Ky.

J. W. Kite is another one of Boone County's highly respected citizens and business men, who are proud to say was born under the blue canopy skies of Old Boone County, having first seen the light of day August 21, 1840. He grew up and spent his life on a farm until 21 years old. Leaving the farm, he joined the Army of the North, enlisting with and serving in the 55th Kentucky Regiment. After the close of the war he became identified in business as salesman in a dry goods store. August 4, 1870, he was married to Miss Josie Clore, and four years later became superintendent of the Farmers' Co-operative Store at Belleview, where for eight years he was the central head of the concern. Disengaging himself from this enterprise, he returned to farming, only to re-engage in merchandising in 1891, being now the operator of one of the best country stores of Boone County. He also conducts a farm, one of the best in the Ohio River bottom section.

In politics Mr. Kite is regarded a staunch yet conservative Republican, and cast his first vote for President to Gen. U. S. Grant. He belongs to the

I. O. O. F., and has been a conscientious and active member of the Christian Church since he was fifteen years of age.

In his two sons J. L. and W. G. Kite, he has just reasons to feel proud, they being most excellent gentlemen and highly respected citizens. His only daughter, Maggie Edna, died when two years old.

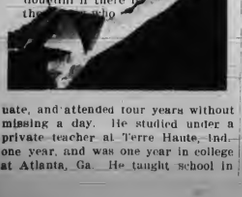
RIDDELL & STEVENS.

General Merchants, Rabbit Hash, Ky.

In our pen picture of the various men of affairs and commercial concerns of value for this, our illustrated Edition, none in our thinking is more worthy of laudation than the time-tried, popular and enterprising merchants forming the firm of Riddle & Stevens at Rabbit Hash, Ky.



The business was founded as a Grainger store, Mr. Riddell becoming a clerk therein in 1877. In 1883 the business become the property of J. A. Willson and C. G. Riddell, forming the firm of Willson & Riddell, and under their careful, yet liberal management, the store prospered. In the spring of 1900 Mr. Willson sold his half interest to Mr. Stevens, a worthy young farmer of that section, and since then a continued and increased prosperity has marked the business life of the establishment. The store is a very extensive affair considering the fact of its being located in a very small place. The stock of goods carried embraces a comprehensive and well assorted line of nearly everything in common, such as contribute to a first-class inland general mercantile house. In assistance to the business they operate four huckster wagons that make regular trips through the rurals, distributing goods and money and caring for such produce as the farmers may have to sell. These wagons are a great convenience to the agricultural people, as it is repeatedly said they pay as high prices for produce as can be had in the city and sell goods comparatively as low.

Mr. Riddle was born in Boone Coun-

go to the rescue, without asking, and under all considerations free from any pay. With such a happy disposition it is no enigma why he has prospered and why his friends are counted with his every household. He was appointed Postmaster at Rabbit Hash in 1882 and has filled the office ever since. Is a Mason and belongs to the K. of P. order.

Mr. Stevens was also born and reared in Boone County, and as we previously stated, was engaged in farming until becoming interested in the store. He is a gentleman well and favorably known, belongs to the K. of P. Lodge, and to the Baptist church.

Since the above was prepared for publication Mr. Riddle has purchased his partner's interest in the business.

L. D. JACKSON.

General Merchant, Richwood, Ky.

Richwood is one of the small railway stations of the Q. & C. R. R. in this county. Its prominence, however, is asserted in its representation of enterprising business men, and at the head of the list is found the name of L. D. Jackson, Merchant, Postmaster and Livery Stable Keeper. In a commercial, as well as socially refering, Mr. Jackson is well in the fore ranks of that section of the country. His store is of veritable hive, practically speaking, of every thing needed in the home, or on the farm, and the prices governing their sale strikingly compares with the asking of reputable houses in the city. The fact is, he sells a good quality of wares at as low a price as is consistent with safe and honorable dealing.

Mr. Jackson was born in Hamilton County, Ohio, February 24, 1850, and has been a resident of Boone County since 1866. In politics he is a Republican, and was appointed Postmaster in 1898. November 15, 1882, he was united in wedlock with Miss Samantha Griffith, of Boone County.

RABENSTEIN, HARRIS & CONNER.

Live Stock Commission Salesmen—Cincinnati Union Stock Yards and Covington Stock Yards.

Largely interested in the Kentucky oil fields, and have been wonderfully successful in their field development.

F. G. HARRIS.

The Mr. J. M. Conner a Boone Co. product.

The above firm becomes interesting to us, from the fact that one of its central heads is a Boone County man, and then it is a pleasure to direct farmers and dealers in stock to a reliable selling firm. What will most interest our readers is, that "Jim Conner" tas he is familiarly called in home circles), struck oil not only in a prosperous business in the firm of Robinstein, Harris & Conner, but has struck oil through careful investment in the undeveloped oil fields of Kentucky and Virginia, and in which there is a great possibility of obtaining fabulous wealth. It seems that the firm, of which Mr. Conner is a member, were wise enough to make some investments, their Mr. Harris being selected to personally superintend the development, so that every phase of the situation would be accurately brought to their attention. They have formed two De companies— one is known as the Cumberland Co., the other the Cincinnati with electomberland River Oil Co. dollars of the stock of $10,000 placed on sale has been sold. The money thus obtained is utilized in drilling new wells and developing. Persons interested in such investments might find it worth while to confer with "Jim," whom we all know to be honest straight and chuck full of business.

WALTON DEPOSIT BANK.

Capital Stock, $50,000.

The Walton Deposit Bank was established in 1890 with a capital stock of $25,000, which was increased later to $50,000, all paid up.

Dr. D. M. Bagby is President; O. Percival, Vice President; R. C. Greene, Cashier. The bank building is a very commanding structure commodiously arranged for the special use assigned. Dr. Bagby is an ex-Confederate soldier, popular and public-spirited. He is also a director in the Walton Perpetual Building and Loan Association. He succeeded Dr. B. D. Allen as President of the bank.

The Vice President, Mr. Percival, is a very prosperous and influential citizen and business man.

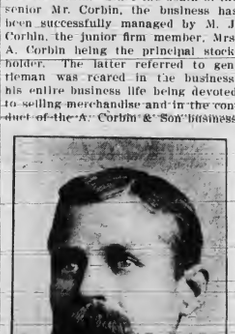
R. C. Greene, the Cashier was born in Grant Co., and reared in Kenton, and has filled the office of Cashier since inception of bank, being previous agent for C. & S. R. R. at Brock, Ky. He married Miss Eleanor Southgate; they have one child—a daughter.



Mr. C. C. Metcalf is the Assistant Cashier and succeeded Mr. C. E. Ford, now with the Fifth National Bank, Cincinnati.

Mr. W. L. Rouse, a very worthy young man, is retained as Clerk and Book-keeper.

A. CORBIN & SON,

General Merchants, Extensive Dealers in Coal, Lumber and Shingles, Grant, Ky.

This is one of the veteran business concerns of the county, having been established some 30 years ago by the late A. Corbin. Since the death of the senior Mr. Corbin, the business has been successfully managed by M. J. Corbin, the junior firm member, Mrs. A. Corbin being the principal stockholder. The latter referred to gentleman was reared in the business, his entire business life being devoted to selling merchandise and in the conduct of the A. Corbin & Son business is at the head of one of the leading commercial enterprises of the county—a concern that annually transacts in advance of $25,000 worth of business. The store consists of a general stock, replete with the many wares usually found in an inland trade house. In addition to the store, they deal largely in coal, lumber, shingles, etc., their trade in this direction being one of the important features of the house.

M. J. CORBIN.

Mr. M. J. Corbin was born October 31, 1857, and in his life all the attributes of a thorough going gentleman and excellent citizen scintillate. He is a devout Christian, is deacon, treasurer and assistant clerk in the Baptist Church; he also fills the office of treasurer of the Grant Cemtery Co.

November 22, 1877, he was married to Miss Catharine Betts, of this county. Two daughters were born to them, one now living.

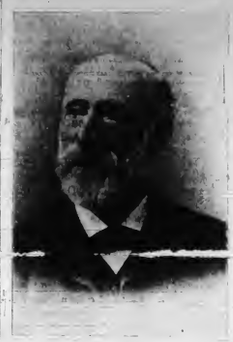
T. B. CASTLEMAN.

A Very Capable Dental Surgeon—Florence, Burlington, Latonia, and Big Bone Springs.

Dr. Castleman was born December 16, 1878, at Glencoe, Gallatin County, Kentucky. In 1890 he moved to Erlanger, Ky., where he established a drugstore, disposing of it later to Dr. R. I. Scott. Soon thereafter he again engaged in drug dealing at Florence,

Kentucky, continuing for five years, and during ex-President Cleveland's last administration was Postmaster at Florence. On May 6 last, after a three years' course in the Cincinnati Dental College, he became a graduate of the above institution and since established a practice in this section with main office at Florence and auxiliary offices at Burlington, Latonia and Big Bone Springs. As a dentist he employs all the latest ideas suggested by modern practice, and in the execution is said to be one of the most skillful representatives of the profession. Artificial work, bridge and crown building, treating diseased teeth, extracting without the usual attending pain, are but a few of the special incites to his practice. He is a member of the Baptist Church and belongs to the I. O. O. F. November 12, 1892, he was united in wedlock with Miss Grace Raymond Yeager, a very popular young lady of Florence.

GEORGE HILLIS,



Painter and Boat Builder, Rabbit Hash, Ky.

Rabbit Hash, situated on the Ohio River, furnishes an excellent location for the business conducted by George Hillis, who is known all up and down the river as the expert skiff and light craft boat builder. Mr. Hillis is never without orders for fancy skiffs and boats. There are but few outing resorts along the Ohio that do not look to him for their supply of pleasure craft. Not only does he model his skiffs and boats to please the eye, but they are built strong, capable for to undergo great endurance. Yet they are light and glide through the water as if propelled by magic. Mr. Hillis was born in Rising Sun, Indiana, May 25, 1857, where he learned to be an expert painter, a business yet given attention by him. He is a gentleman well liked by all who know him, and belongs to the K. of P. Order.

J. W. DUNCAN,

Who Has For Eighteen Years Honorably Filled the Office of Circuit Court Clerk.

J. W. Duncan was born in Scott County, Kentucky, August 13, 1826, and came to Boone County in 1844, and up to the time of induction to office in 1874 engaged in farming. In this gentleman we find one of the most splendid types of an excellent officer, and who in the discharge of his duties exemplifies all the characteristics of strict integrity and correctness. Years hence, when the history of Boone County is recorded, his name will adorn one of the brightest pages. His most excellent record of faithfulness to duty is so well intrenched that time and its ravages can not efface. Like officer, like citizen noble, affable and courteous; always has a good story to tell. Optimistic verging onto the extreme, sees everything only in the beautiful; never allowing the shades of somber life to harbor in his thoughts or expression. In this he teaches a lesson to the younger element well to be appreciated and heeded. Mr. Duncan resides in a very comfortable home in Burlington where the direlight of hopeless seems to reign supreme.

CYRUS KELLEY,

General Merchant, Belleview, Ky.

Cyrus Kelley was born in Boone County June 20, 1844, and until 1882 resided on a farm, and part of the time gave attention to nursery culture. In the nursery business Mr. Kelley met with fair success. He disengaged himself from farm business and nursery raising twenty-one years ago to engage in business, becoming affiliated with the Granger Order, the store being established in the interest of the local lodge of that section. Since then the store has grown to be a factor of importance to the community, which necessarily outlines that it is doing a good paying business. Mr. Kelley resides in one of the most desirable homes in Northern Kentucky, one that in architectural design borders on the colonial style. May 29, 1873, he married Miss Martie Griffith, of Carroll County; four children being born to them—two sons, Scott S. and Curtis, and two daughters. The death angel visited the home and deprived them of two fair girls. Generous as a neighbor and business man Mr. Kelley makes a citizen well to be proud of.

WILLIAM J. WEINDEL, M. D.

Dr. Weindel was born in Petersburg, March 28, 1865, and in the common schools of that place he received his rudimentary education; passing from the common school-room, he matriculated with and graduated from the Aurora (Ind.) high school, soon thereafter becoming a student in the Louisville School of Medicine, graduating from that famous seat of learning with The class of '97. He took up the initiatory practice of his profession at Patriot, Switzerland County, Ind., and the time was not long until he was engaging a very lucrative practice, leaving it only on the earnest solicitation of friends in his home town to come and serve them. The change was made about one year ago, and that he was not misled by his friends is clearly outlined in the most splendid practice controlled by him—a practice that any old practitioner of years' building might feel proud to possess.

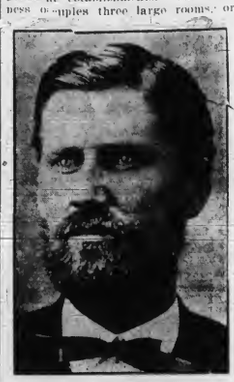
November 10, 1900, he married Miss Ena Elizabeth Newbold, of Warsaw, Ky., one of Gallatin County's most charming young ladies.



He is a member of the M. E. Church, and belongs to the North Kentucky Medical Association.

J. W. Berkshire. R. A. McWethy.

BERKSHIRE & McWETHY.

The Petersburg Department Store Buyers and Shippers of Leaf Tobacco.

Located at Petersburg, and conducted by Berkshire & McWethy, is a trade emporium that would add prestige to the commercial equipment of any ordinary sized city. It is known in the local trade circles as the Petersburg Department Store, a place where practically speaking everything is sold and sold at prices strikingly in line with the asking of the city department establishments. The business occupies three large rooms, or tions, etc. The firm is also extensively engaged in the purchase and handling of Leaf Tobacco with auxiliary buying stations at Grant, Ky., and Aurora, Ind.

Mr. Berkshire was born near Petersburg, August 12, 1842, and until 1894 was engaged in farming. His always taken an active interest in affairs of the county, and in 1898 was a candidate for High Sheriff, being defeated by a few votes with three in the race. He is a staunch Democrat and was a delegate to the State Convention when the late Governor Goebel was nominated (the Music Hall Convention), and has served as precinct committeeman of the Democratic County Executive Committee.

He is a member of the Christian Church, and belongs to the I. O. O. F. He was married to Miss Fannie S. Walton in the year 1863. Two daughters and four sons form an interesting family.

Mr. McWethy was born in Boone County, March 15, 1855, and has been one of the leading merchants of the county for nearly a quarter of a century with exception of an interim of four years in Ohio.

Early in life he married Miss Mattie Lyons, she becoming deceased leaving one daughter, 1883. In 1890 he married for the second time, Miss Katie Wehndel, of Petersburg, a very popular lady within the circles of all who know her. Honest, upright, courageous and obliging gentleman, the firm of Berkshire & McWethy stands in the fore ranks of our best.

The Cincinnati Street Railroad Company is considering a proposition by which the cars of the Cincinnati, Lawrenceburg, and Aurora line will run into Cincinnati, instead of stopping short at Anderson's Ferry. The plan is to take the cars over the Sedamsville line to Mill Creek bridge and then on over the Third and Fifth street line. In order to do this it will be necessary to add a third rail to the Cincinnati lines, as there is a difference of 6 inches in the gauges of the two tracks.—Lawrenceburg Press.

A Sure Cure for Diarrhoea.

Coming as it does, in the busiest season, when a man can least afford to lose time, a sure and quick cure for diarrhoea is very desirable. Anyone who has given it a trial will tell you that the quickest, surest and most pleasant remedy in use for this disease is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is no loss of time when it is used, as one or two doses of it will cure any ordinary attack. It never fails, not even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For Sale by All Druggists.

Robt. Wood Very Sick.

Robert Wood, our clever and popular County Attorney who has been west on account of his health, returned home here Saturday night in a very broken down condition. The country did not agree with him and it did him more harm than good, and he came home broken down and has been in bed since his arrival, He was confined to bed in a hospital at Colorado, Springs, and had become reduced in flesh until he only weighed 95 pounds. He summoned courage enough to get out of the bed and travel that long distance home in hope that he would grow better here, which in all probability will be the case.—Warsaw Independent.

The Dining Room at the Fair.

O. A. Vaughn, assisted by a first-class diningroom man from the city will have charge of the large dining hall at the Florence fair. The waiters will be brisk and courteous. The patrons will find the service first-class in every particular. Give Mr. Vaughn your patronage when you want anything to eat while attending the fair week after next.

[Cincinnati Post, Aug. 14]

Petersburg, Ky., is a beautifullittle city of 700 inhabitants, situated on the Ohio River, 24 miles below Cincinnati, midway between Lawrenceburg and Aurora Ind. It is the most northern point in Kentucky and is located on a high plateau, 30 feet above the high-water mark of 1884. During that terrible flood it was the refuge of hundreds of persons from neighboring cities in Indiana and Ohio. The first white inhabitants of Petersburg were Wm. Tanner and family, who emigrated from Virginia in 1785 and erected a fort, or blockhouse, which is still standing. It is now occupied by M. L. Gordon as a residence. Under the blockhouse is a cellar 70 by 40 feet, in which Tanner and his family used to take refuge when attacked by Indians. Under this cellar is still another subterranean passage, entrance to which was gained by removing a large stone. This passed to an opening on the river bank, and is still in evidence. When Tanner and his family, which consisted of a wife and three children, left Virginia they had with them a boy named Allen Morgan, aged 7 years. On their way down the Ohio River the party stopped for the night at what is now Maysville, Ky. During the night they were attacked by the Indians and young Morgan was taken into captivity. Ten years later a band of Indians passed through here and young Morgan was in command of the tribe.

While grazing their ponies and taking a rest, Morgan learned of Tanner's identity. He deserted the tribe and returned to Tanner and his family. Later Morgan acquired valuable property. He died in 1831 leaving no heirs, and his property reverted to Boone County, and the funds were used to build the college at Burlington, known as Morgan Academy. Samuel Foster, father of Seth C. Foster, the wealthy manufactures of Cincinnati, was a pioneer resident of this place, and young Seth was born near here. He went to Cincinnati in the '40s, penniless, John D. Norris, another early settler of this place, was born in 1781, and accumulated valuable property. He was with Commodore Perry aboard the frigate Lawrence during his campaign on Lake Erie. He died in 1866. Richard Parker, father of Capt. James D. Parker, the wealthy capitalist, of Cincinnati, was a pioneer resident of this place, and young James was born here, and grew to manhood here. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd, parents of John Uri Lloyd, the novelist, resided here, in early days, and taught school here. Thomas Campbell, father of Alexandria Campbell, founder of the Christian Church, resided here for a short while, and taught in the public schools. Don Piatt, the writer, and well known in Cincinnati, was born here. David Abbott Piatt, the author of several good stories is now a resident of this place. These were the early settlers of Tanner's Station, now the thriving town of Petersburg. The present town of Petersburg was laid off by John J. Flournoy, in 1819. Mr. Flournoy held a grant for several thousand acres of land in this immediate vicinity.

Some time during the '30s, William Snyder came here from Virginia and erected the Boone County Distillery; at that time and for a number of years whisky and flour were both made in the same building. The property has changed hands several times since Mr. Snyder's death, and the present mammoth plant is now owned by Freiberg & Workum, of Cincinnati. It is one of the largest in the State. The stone building occupied by John Snelling as a residence was erected by Omer Porter Tousey as a tannery in early days. Mr. Tousey was a grandfather of the late Governor Porter of Indiana. Petersburg has a Mayor, Town Council and City Marshall; is the home of several retired rivermen and merchants. Among the enterprising citizens are Capt. Elihu Alden, owner of the steamer Pauline; Col. T. B. Mathews, Superintendent of the Boone County Distilling Company, and Past Grand Chancellor K. of P. of Kentucky and Supreme Representative of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of K. of P. of the World, J. Frank Grant, a wealthy banker, now a resident of Baltimore, and Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F., claims this as his legal residence. Petersburg has the best steamboat landing on the Ohio River between Pittsburg and Cairo, and is surrounded by 10,000 acres of rich bottom land, with good schools and churches. The first compressed yeast ever made in the United States was manufactured here by Louis Tausky, of Cincinnati. Wealthy capitalists have signified their intention of locating a marine way here.

Rev. Edgar D. Jones will close his ministry of three and a half years at Bullittsville Christian church, Sunday, August 23. Subject of morning sermon—"Going up to Jerusalem." Basket dinner will be served on the grounds. Sunday school in afternoon.

Jeffries Knocked Out Corbett In the Tenth Round.

The Few Blows Corbett Landed on the Giant Were Apparently Without Sting and He Was Outpointed From the First.

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—Ten thousand men were seated in the arena in Mechanics' pavilion at 9 o'clock Friday night, representing an expenditure for seating accommodations aggregating $54,000. This is the largest crowd that ever assembled at a ringside in this country, and the third largest sum in dollars and cents ever contested for. The two [illegible] in receipts were the Corbett-Jeffries fight at Coney Island, $66,000, and the Corbett-McCoy fight at Madison Square garden, New York, $63,000.

James J. Jeffries, champion heavyweight of the world, played with Jim Corbett for nine rounds and a half Friday night and then Corbett's seconds motioned to Referee Graney to stop the fight in order to save their man from needless punishment. The end came shortly after the beginning of the tenth round when Jeffries planted one of his terrific left swings on Corbett's stomach. The man who conquered John L. Sullivan dropped to the floor in agony and the memorable scene at Carson City, when Bob Fitzsimmons landed his solar plexus blow was almost duplicated. This time, however, Corbett struggled to his feet and again faced his gigantic adversary. With hardly a moment's hesitation Jeffries swung his right and again landed on Corbett's stomach. Jim dropped to the floor and then it was that Tommy Ryan, seeing that it was all over, motioned to Referee Graney to stop the punishment.

The fight Friday night demonstrated beyond all doubt that Jeffries stands alone in his class. He showed remarkable improvement in both speed and skill. Corbett, during the first part of the fight, was almost outpointed, and the few blows that he landed on Jeffries were apparently without sting. Jeffries was never in better condition. He looked lighter than usual and the way he moved about on his feet and the frequency with which he countered Corbett's leads astonished everybody.

Corbett, in comparison with the big man opposed to him, looked very light, but was really heavier than ever before. He appeared to have lost some of his old time speed and skill during the early part of the fight, but this may have been due to Jeffries' marvelous improvement. Corbett's physical condition appeared to be all that he had claimed for it. He stood many of Jeffries' terrific blows without wincing and came back swinging left and right and landing frequently, but his blows hardly stung Jeffries. Jeffries was not only stronger, faster and cleverer than ever before, but he used his head to better purpose and although Corbett would hit him hard enough to hurt an ordinary man, Jeffries would bore right in without noticing the blows and would deliver telling hits that materially helped in deciding the result of the fight.

After the fight was over Corbett quickly recovered, walked over to Jeffries and shook him warmly by the hand. He said: "Jim, you beat me fairly. You stand alone. No one can touch you."

Timekeeper George Harting stated that the blows that won the fight were a left to the stomach followed by a right to the same place as soon as Corbett arose to his feet after taking the count of nine. "It was the best fight Jeffries ever made and astonished even those who had placed implicit faith in his ability to win," said Harting.

During the fight Corbett talked continuously to Jeffries and to the referee. He was game to the end and whenever Jeffries landed a blow would make a jesting remark. In the sixth round during a clinch just after Jeffries had punished him severely he remarked to the referee: "Watch him, Eddie, he's trying to knock me out."

He also said: "He can't knock me out; go ahead, and try it." Jeffries only grinned and waded into his man all the harder.

Corbett's system of training was undoubtedly beneficial to him from a physical point of view, but it apparently detracted from his speed. He did not keep away from Jeffries in the manner that was anticipated but kept up close, clinching at every opportunity. He also did some clever ducking, thereby avoiding deadly blows, but all his cleverness was of no avail. He fought his fight, and when the time came Jeffries delivered the necessary blows and installed more firmly than ever on his pedestal as champion heavyweight pugilist of the world.

Quarreled Over Jeffries-Corbett Fight.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Aug. 15.—R. D. George was shot at McGregor by Mayor John W. Walters during a quarrel over the Corbett-Jeffries fight. The victim, although still alive, will probably not live many hours.

FIRED INTO A CROWD.

Three Killed, Three Fatally and 20 Severely Injured.

Winfield, Kan., Aug. 14.—Angered by the music of a band concert, Gilbert Twigg, once a soldier in the Philippines, armed himself Thursday night with a double-barreled shotgun and a revolver and attacked a crowd of 3,000 persons that surrounded the bandstand, killing three men, probably fatally wounding three others and injuring 20 more before he was shot by a policeman. Besides Twigg, the dead are Sterling Rice, Dawson [illegible] and D. Bowman.

The band had just finished playing "Hiawatha" when Twigg came up and fired both barrels of his shotgun at the bandstand. R. E. Oliver, a musician, fell with his back and arms full of shot.

The crowd surged toward Twigg and he, having reloaded his piece, fired two charges into the audience. Men and women fell to the ground in pain, crushing children beneath them. Those who were not injured scattered in every direction but one, knocking many others to the ground. This panic allowed Twigg to reload and fire several times at the fleeing men and women. At last Policeman George Nichols came up and, waiting behind a tree for an opportune moment, confronted Twigg, just as the mad man had discharged his fowling piece.

Twigg dropped the shotgun and, drawing a pistol, fired at the policeman. The bullet went wild. Before Twigg had time to fire a second bullet Nichols put a bullet through the man's abdomen. Twigg fell, mortally wounded. He endeavored to fire again at Nichols, but he was so helpless that the bullet entered his own chin, passing out through the top of his head. The frightened fugitives then returned to the bandstand and aided the wounded. Twigg was a miller and the men about town referred to him as "Crazy Twigg," but no one thought him dangerous. He lived in New Mexico for some time before he enlisted as a soldier to fight in the Philippines.

VESUVIUS IN ERUPTION.

Intense Alarm is Caused in the Surrounding Region.

Rome, Aug. 14.—Vesuvius is again causing intense alarm in the surrounding region, the eruptions of the volcano being very heavy Thursday. This alarming activity which followed the shocks of earthquake is augmenting. The detonations are very loud and almost continuous, while from a fresh opening at the base of the crater two streams of lava are issuing which within a few hours covered a wide tract of ground. One stream has covered ground already covered from previous eruptions, but the other is going swiftly towards the village of Ottajano, the direction taken by the famous eruption of 1872.

The whole district around the volcano is shaken by frequent earth shocks and a perfect panic prevails, the population crowding the churches to pray or gathering in open spaces for safety. Experts, however, affirm that so far there is no reason to fear a serious disaster.

THE CHICAGO CENTENNIAL.

Reduced Rates Recommended on Railroads West of the City.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—At a meeting of general passenger agents of the roads west of Chicago in this city Thursday it was recommended that for the Chicago centennial celebration, September 26 to October 1, a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip be made from all points within a radius of 150 miles and a rate of one fare for the round trip from points outside this radius, regular round trip tickets without the joint agency feature to be sold.

ARE OFF OYSTER BAY.

North Atlantic Fleet of Fighting Vessels Anchored There.

President Roosevelt Arrived Near the Kearsarge in Naval Yacht Sylph and Attended Divine Services on the Big Man-of-War.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 17.—With the North Atlantic fleet anchored off Oyster Bay, Sunday was almost a fete day on the bay and sound. Hundreds of pleasure craft, ranging through all the grades from the plebian rowboat to the aristocratic steam yacht, have been hovering about the fleet of great fighting machines throughout the day. Officers of the flagship Kearsarge Sunday estimated that 1,000 persons were in or about the various vessels during the day and evening. The busiest men on the ships were the marines, who were kept under arms all day in full dress. The jackies on all the ships were attired in white duck.

Official formalities were begun at 9 o'clock Sunday morning when Rr. Adm. Barker, commander-in-chief of the fleet, accompanied by Capt. Hemphill, of the Kearsarge, and Flag Lieut. W. Eberle, went in a boat to the Dolphin to pay his respects to Secretary of the Navy Moody. An hour later Secretary Moody, accompanied by Former Secretary W. E. Chandler, returned the visit, being received on board the Kearsarge with special honors. They remained to attend divine service.

When Adm. Barker was informed that the president also would attend the service, orders were issued for all officers to appear in special full dress.

Shortly before 11 a. m. President Roosevelt arrived near the Kearsarge in the naval yacht Sylph. Flag Lieut. Eberle put off in the steam barge to present to the president the admiral's compliments and to conduct him aboard the flagship. On board the Kearsarge the president, as he came over the side, was received with honors due to the president of the United States. The band was paraded, the marines presented army, the bugle sounded a fanfare, and the drums gave four ruffles. Then the band played "Hail to the Chief," and Adm. Barker received the president on the quarterdeck.

A few minutes later a launch from the Sylph conveyed to the Kearsarge Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt, Mrs. Emlin Roosevelt, Miss Christine Roosevelt, Capt. Willard H. Brownson, superintendent of the naval academy, and the Roosevelt children. The service was conducted by Chaplain Isaacs, of the Kearsarge, on the after part of the covered gun deck.

The president and his party occupied seats immediately behind the chaplain, who in conducting the service faced the enlisted men. The ship's officers were arranged in the rear of the president's party. The music was by the flagship's orchestra.

Chaplain Isaacs' sermon was particularly addressed to the officers and men of the ship. His special theme was that the man who served his country best is he who serves best his God.

At the conclusion of the service, which was very impressive, the president and Secretary Moody chatted with Adm. Barker, and casually inspected some parts of the ship. The president then received Rr. Adms. Wise, Sands and Coghlan, who had come from their flagships to pay their respects.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the other ladies were shown over the ship by Flag Lieut. Eberle and was particularly delighted with the magnificent punch bowl presented by the German emperor on the occasion of the visit of the Kearsarge to Kiel.

When the president left the Kearsarge at 1 p. m. the sides of all the ships were again manned and every honor was paid except the firing of the salute, which was omitted because his visit was unofficial and was made on a Sunday.

THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Gens. John C. Black and Nelson A. Miles Arrive in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—While the formal exercises of the national reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic do not begin until Monday, the encampment was to all intents and purposes opened Sunday with the arrival of Gen. Thomas J. Stewart, commander-in-chief, on a special train bearing 365 members of the different Pennsylvania posts. Other distinguished arrivals Sunday were Gen. Nelson A. Miles and Gen. John C. Black, who is most prominently spoken of as the next commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. Trains arrived all day and late Sunday night bringing many members and veterans. The registration bureau and information booths were thronged all day. It will be Tuesday before all incoming trains will have arrived, and on Wednesday, the day set for the parade, it is estimated that there will be fully 50,000 visitors in the city.

Roosevelt Delivered An Address.

BEGGAR GIVES CREDIT.

But He Doesn't Relish the Practice That Some People Have of Putting Him Off.

Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister to Washington attended in Philadelphia the recent launching of the Turkish warship Medjidia at the Cramps' shipyard.

During the luncheon following the launch Chekib Bey animadverted for a moment to the beggars of Philadelphia, says an exchange of that city.

"You have here," he said, "an enterprising and intelligent collection of beggars. One of them approached me this morning. He told a moving tale of misfortune; then he asked me for a little money.

"I put my hand in my pocket, to find that I was altogether out of change.

"'My man,' I said, 'I have nothing for you now, but in an hour I shall be passing this way again. Then I promise you you shall get something from me.'

"'All right, air,' said the beggar; 'but all the same,' he added, fretfully, 'you wouldn't believe the amount of credit I give in this way.'"

A German Farmer's Case.

Rich Fountain, Mo., Aug 17th.—Rev. Jos. Pope, of this place, is widely and favorably known as a clergyman who has done and is doing much for his people. He is very much beloved by everyone for the faithfulness of his pastoral work.

Rev. Mr. Pope has given for publication a statement made to him by a German farmer, who is a member of his congregation. The man's name is George Hoelterer, and he has given Rev. Mr. Pope this letter:

"Last winter I suffered very much with Rheumatism. I could neither walk nor ride on horse back nor do any farm work.

"I took medicine from different doctors, but they did not do me any good. Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills procured for me by a neighbor [illegible] I took [illegible] and I [illegible] head better. I was relieved of the pain and could walk and chop wood; and the contraction of my fingers began to resolve.

"Now since I have taken six more boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I feel well again and am able to do all the work on the farm."

Give Warning of Approach of More Serious Trouble.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness, alternating with extreme irritability, bordering upon hysteria? Are your spirits easily affected so that one minute you laugh, and the next fall into convulsive weeping?

Do you feel something like a ball rising in your throat and threatening to choke you; all the senses perverted, morbidly sensitive to light and sound; pain in the ovaries, and especially between the shoulders; sometimes loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia, and almost continually cross and snappy, with a tendency to cry at the least provocation?

If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition, and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Undoubtedly you do not know it, but in nine cases out of ten this is caused by some uterine disorder, and the nerves centering in and about the organs which make you a woman influence your entire nervous system. Something must be done at once to restore their natural condition or you will be prostrated for weeks and months perhaps, and suffer untold misery.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for this purpose than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; thousands and thousands of women have written us so.

How Mrs. Holland, of Philadelphia, suffered among the finest physicians in the country, none of whom could help her—finally cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For over two years I was a constant sufferer from extreme nervousness, indigestion, and dizziness. Menstruation was irregular, had backache and a feeling of great lassitude and weakness. I was so bad that I was not able to do my own work or go far in the street. I could not sleep nights.

"I tried several splendid doctors, but they gave me no relief. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I soon began to feel better, and was able to go out and not feel as if I would fall at every step. I continued to take the medicine until cured.

"I cannot say enough in behalf of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and heartily recommend all suffering women to try it and find the relief I did."—MRS. FLORENCE HOLLAND, 622 S. Clifton St., Philadelphia, Pa. (Jan. 6, 1902.)

Another case of severe female trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after the doctors had failed.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was in poor health for several years. I had female trouble and was not able to do my housework alone. I felt tired, very nervous, and could not sleep. I doctored with several doctors. They doctored me for my stomach, but did not relieve me. I read in your book about your medicine, and thought I would try it. I did so, and am now cured and able to do my work alone, and feel good. I was always very poor, but now weigh one hundred and fifty pounds.

"I thank you for the relief I have obtained, and I hope that every woman troubled with female weakness will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I have recommended it to many of my friends."—MRS. MARIA BOWERS, Millersville, Ohio. (Aug. 15, 1901.)

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all of the virtues of this medicine?

How shall the fact that it will help them be made plain?

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, and sick, and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. You have some derangement of the feminine organism, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as surely as it has others.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

Curt Jett and Tom White Convicted of Murder.

The Application For a New Trial Was Made—The Prosecution May Not Oppose the Motion as to Jett's Case.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 15.—Curt Jett and Tom White, the Jackson feudists were both found guilty of the Marcum assassination by the jury Friday and sentenced to life terms in the penitentiary.

White flushed as the jurors handed the verdict to the judge, but Jett came into his eyes and the blood seemed to leave his face as he heard the fateful words. Jett, with clinched jaws, listened to the sentence and still tried to keep up his air of braggadocio.

The defense filed grounds and motion for a new trial at 11 o'clock Friday morning and Judge Osborne set 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning for the hearing of the motion. The motion and grounds consist entirely of objections to the evidence ruled in by the court, and the attempted introduction of evidence by the defense, and which was ruled out, and also to certain affidavits made by the defendants saying that a fair and impartial trial could not be had here on account of military display being made which inflamed the public mind so that a fair trial could not be had. It is almost certain that the judge will overrule the motion for this new trial.

The attorneys for the prosecution were in consultation all Friday afternoon as to whether or not they will oppose the motion as to Jett, as they say if they can get a new trial in this case they will have enough evidence in the case at the next trial to convict him. However, Prosecuting Attorney Byrd said that if they concluded to oppose the new trial, that at the next term of the Harrison circuit court before Judge Osborne, which begins three weeks from Monday, they will put forward a case of the commonwealth against Curtiss Jett, one of the defendants, for the murder of Jim Cockerill, to which murder there were some six eye witnesses, thereby succeeding in hanging Jett, which has been the ultimate aim of the prosecution in the case just tried.

The main features in the case at bar Friday have been the charges against Juror Jasper King, who lives in this city, and who was until two years ago a deputy sheriff of the county and a man who has been highly esteemed. Jurors McNees, Northcutt and Tate all said Friday morning that King did attempt to influence them to decide for Jett and White in this case by saying that there was nothing against the defendants. Judge Osborne, in his admonition to the jury, told them not to talk about this case among each other until it was finally given to them to decide. This seems, and it is said by attorneys here, to be contempt of court.

No movements have been made as yet as to the soldiers and Col. Williams, the officer in command of the situation, said Friday afternoon that no movements as to the soldiers were yet decided on and would not be decided on until Saturday after the grounds and motion for a new trial had been passed on by the court and that the matter of the movements of the soldiers were in the hands of himself and Judge Osborne.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 17.—Curtis Jett and Tom White were Saturday removed from this city, and are now locked in separate cells in towns that are widely distant. Jett was taken to Lexington at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Tom White was taken to Covington at 4 o'clock.

PICNIC WAGON OVERTURNED.

A Party of Nuns and Indian Girls Were More or Less Injured.

Great Falls, Mont., Aug. 17.—By the overturning of a picnic wagon from St. Peter's mission, a party of nuns and Indian girls were dashed many feet down the side of a hill. Sister l'Annunciate was fatally injured, and Mary Reed, a half-breed Indian girl, was seriously hurt. Another nun and several Indian girls were badly bruised and lacerated. The accident occurred during a heavy electric storm, a flash of lightning frightening the horses and causing them to dash over a steep embankment.

WAGON STRUCK BY STREET CAR.

Two Persons Seriously and Five Were Slightly Injured.

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—A street car on the Cherokee division of the St. Louis transit lines struck a wagon filled with 15 persons near the intersection of Gravois avenue and Meremac street Sunday night, seriously injuring John J. Mauser and his wife, Bertha, and slightly injuring Robert, their 8-year-old son, Mrs. Otto Eichinger, Miss Ida Zimmer, Miss Mary Gabel and Joseph Koch.

Declares the Will Is Invalid.

A PITCHED BATTLE.

About 1,000 Shots Fired Between the Strikers and Non-Union Men.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 17.—A clash of union and non-union men in which 1,000 shots were fired and several men were injured took place early Sunday morning between 300 striking machinists and 25 non-union men who had taken their places in the Riverside plant of the United States steel corporation. The battle was begun Saturday night. The machinists have been out on strike for several weeks and the situation was becoming desperate for the corporation until they imported about 20 men to take the places of the strikers. The men have been assaulted from time to time but the situation has not reached an alarming stage heretofore.

The strikers congregated about the boarding houses of the non-unionists Saturday night fully armed and began an attack on the places. The houses were heavily barricaded and many volleys were fired into the structures.

Finally a well-directed shot from within the house wounded one of the strikers and he was carried to a hospital. Clay Hoover, a spectator, was shot in the left knee. A number of other people who were in the building with the non-unionists received wounds.

The rioting continued until 2 o'clock Sunday morning, when it abated somewhat. The police were powerless to interfere and reinforcements were requested. A fresh outbreak is feared at any moment.

At 10 o'clock Sunday night the strikers, who are lying in the hills, fired on Peter Slitatk as he passed. He was seriously wounded. The strikers' mistook him, thinking he was a spy.

AMERICAN HORSES.

The exhibitions will be held annually and the prizes will be increased from year to year.

COL. WILLIAM E. BUNDY.

United States Attorney For Southern District of Ohio Died Suddenly.

Cincinnati, Aug. 17.—Col. William E. Bundy, United States attorney for the southern district of Ohio and a cousin of Senator Foraker, died here sudden ly Sunday from an uraemic convulsion or acute Bright's disease. He had been in usual health until last Thursday night when he suffered a chill, from which he never recovered. Although not yet in the prime of life he stood high with the Hamilton county bar, had been at the head of the state and national organizations of the Sons of Veterans and prominent in the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He was for years mayor of Norwood. He has done much for his Alma Mater as trustee of Ohio university at Athens and was very popular as the young colonel of the First regiment of the Ohio national guard that was about to go into camp.

TURKISH "REFORMS."

Bulgaria Presents a Memorandum to the Powers.

Precise Details of the Conditions in Macedonia Are Given—Constitutes a Terrible Catalogy of Murders, Tortures, Etc.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 17.—The Bulgarian government has presented a memorandum to the powers setting out at great length the condition of affairs during the past three months in Macedonia since the Turkish government undertook to inaugurate the promised reforms. The most precise details, dates, places and names of persons are given in the memorandum, the whole constituting a terrible category of murder, torture, incendiarism, pillage and general oppression committed by the Ottoman soldiers and officials. These particulars were obtained entirely from official sources, such as the reports of the Bulgarian government and in many instances the reports made by Turkish authorities.

The Bulgarian government guarantees the absolute truth of every statement and challenges the porte to disprove a single charge made in the memorandum. The memorandum begins by stating that during the past three months the Ottoman government has taken a series of measures with the alleged intention of inaugurating the era of promised reform and of assuring peace and tranquility to the Bulgarian population of European Turkey, but which have had the contrary effect of further exasperating this population and reviving the revolutionary movement. Instead of proceeding solely against persons guilty of breaches of the public order the military and civil authorities have sought every possible pretext to persecute, terrorize and ruin the Bulgarian inhabitants alike in the large cities and in the small villages.

Wholesale massacres, individual murders, the destruction of villages, the pillaging and setting fire to houses, the arrests, ill-treatment, tortures, arbitrary imprisonment and banishment, the closing and disorganizing of schools, the ruining of merchants, the collection of taxes for many years in advance—such proceeds the memorandum are among the acts of the Ottoman administration of the vilayets of Salonica, Monastir, Uskub and Adrianople.

The memorandum next relates in detail a number of such cases in each vilayet. Beginning with the vilayet of Salonica, it states that in the town of Salonica itself the Bulgarian professors of the university, the students and shopkeepers, in fact, all the intelligent Bulgarians in the city have been cast into prison. One hundred and twenty soldiers entered the village of Gorna-Ribnitea May 19 and tortured to death five men and two women.

The villagers were beaten and tortured, the women violated and the houses plundered while the administrative authorities looked on. In the villayet of Monastir artillery bombarded and razed the flourishing town of Boordesch, the 200 houses being left a heap of ruins. At the beginning of July two Greek bands with the connivance of authorities pillaged Bulgarian villages and murdered many of their inhabitants. In the vilayet of Uskub the entire Bulgarian population has been systematically persecuted since last May. The director of the normal school at Uskub was imprisoned because the library contained the "revolutionary" works of "Othello" and "Les Miserables." In the districts of Palanka, Koschani, Koumnovo and Gostiger, the prisons are filled with Bulgarian priests, schoolmasters and merchants. During June the soldiers and Bashi Bazouks terrorized the inhabitants of the Schlif district, torturing the people with redhot irons. Similar atrocities, perpetrated in the vilayet of Adrinople and other places are cited.

THE TROPICAL CYCLONE.

The Effects in Yucatan Were Widespread and Terrible.

Merida, Yucatan, Aug. 17.—The effects of the tropical cyclone in this city and in Progresso were widespread and terrible. Although everybody had been prepared for the gale in consequence of warnings given, panic quickly seized the community. The terrible destruction wrought overthrew the anticipated calm. Great trees were torn up by the roots, roofs blown away and houses and plantations destroyed. Great damage was done in a very short time. Great efforts were made to save small vessels but to no avail, and 20 of those lying in the port of Progresso were cast upon shore.

INTO AN OPEN SWITCH.

One Killed, Another Fatally and 14 Persons Seriously Hurt.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 15.—While running at the rate of 45 miles an hour, the limited New York express on the Pennsylvania road ran into an open switch in the yards here Friday night. One man was instantly killed, another fatally injured, while 14 others were more or less seriously injured.

The dead: Charles B. Eaton, Fort Wayne, crushed beneath his engine.

The injured: A. W. Boggs, Fort Wayne, fatally scalded and crushed; B. W. Healy, postal clerk, Plymouth, Ind., head cut and internally injured; N. T. Travel, postal clerk, Canton, O., back injured and badly bruised; Frank Montzomery, postal clerk, Ada, O., head badly cut, leg and back injured; C. F. Stahl, postal clerk, Chicago, rib broken, ankle dislocated, bad cut on leg and face; S. C. Anstell, postal clerk, Fort Wayne, leg and back hurt; Harry Wright, postal clerk, Chicago bruised and injured; E. D. Wigand, postal clerk, Columbia City, Ind., slight bruises; A. F. Kyle, brakeman, Fort Wayne, severe cut on head and side and back injured; Clark Channell, baggageman, Crestline, O., back injured and badly bruised; Wm. Boyson, postal clerk, Valparaiso, Ind., knee cut badly, injured in back; B. F. Ansted, porter, Chicago, severely cut on head and internally injured; D. J. H. Jenkins, Rushmore, O., slightly injured; J. M. Barnes, Rushmore, O., slightly injured.

When the engine entered the switch it first struck a flat car, going clean over it. The mail car and three coaches climbed over the engine and were reduced to kindling wood. The rear cars remained upon the track. It is presumed that Engineer Eaton saw the open switch as the steam was afterward found shut off in his engine and the sand had been applied.

THE CANADIAN BUILDING.

The Structure at the St. Louis World's Fair Will Cost $30,000.

DAMAGING TESTIMONY.

Convict Henry Youtsey on the Stand For Three Hours Thursday.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 14.—On the witness stand for three hours Thursday afternoon Convict Henry Youtsey gave very damaging testimony against Caleb Powers in the Goebel murder conspiracy case. He testified that in January, 1901, he signed an affidavit for Powers as to his innocence, to present to the republican judges of the court of appeals to secure from them a reversal of the life sentence given him. Powers. He said that at the time he signed that affidavit both Powers and himself knew it to be false, and that before he would consent to affix his signature to it he, Youtsey, required Powers to sign an agreement waiving the truth or falsity of it, and also agreeing to never let it become public or use it openly in court, and to return it to him, Youtsey, within 15 days. He says the affidavit was not returned by Powers, and he, Youtsey, kept the written agreement. He produced the agreement in court with Powers' signature attached, and the affair created quite a sensation in the court room. Youtsey's wife has been for two years the innocent custodian of this document. Fearing that he would lose it in the jail to which he was sent from time to time, Youtsey sealed it up in an envelope and sent it to her with instructions not to open it. She kept it until he sent for it to go before the grand jury, and, unaware of its character, she restored it to him and it was opened in the presence of the jury. Youtsey's cross-examination was not completed Thursday.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 15.—For five hours Friday the convict, Henry Youtsey underwent a very trying and vigorous cross-examination as to his participation in the conspiracy which, he says, resulted in the assassination of William Goebel. For all of that he maintained the calm demeanor that the people of Scott county can not understand in him after the sensations he furnished them two years ago when he was himself on trial here and "threw a fit" in the court room to keep from going on the witness stand, and to excite sympathy in the minds of the jurors trying him. When he told them Friday, in response to questions of the defense attorneys, that he had faked them, he did so with a smile on his face and some embarassment, causing a general laugh among the hundreds, mainly women, who had assembled to hear him.

Judge Robbins held the counsel for the defendant down to a systematic cross examination, and at one point fined the attorney interrogating for violation of the rule he had laid down. The defense scored several points on the witness, mainly as to conflicting stories told by him before his arrest and trial. He admitted frankly that he lied frequently at the time to confuse the detectives and lawyers employed by the Goebel brothers. His most important bit of evidence, that as to the written agreement had with Caleb Powers regarding the affidavit of Powers' innocence, the truth or falsity of which was waived, was ingenuity of Powers' attorneys in their cross-examination, and stands uncontradicted.

HE IS STILL CHAMPION.

Jeffries Knocked Out Corbett In the Tenth Round.

The Few Blows Corbett Landed on the Giant Were Apparently Without Sting and He Was Outpointed From the First.

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—Ten thousand men were seated in the arena in Mechanics' pavilion at 9 o'clock Friday night, representing an expenditure for seating accommodations aggregating $54,000. This is the largest crowd that ever assembled at a ringside in this country, and the third largest sum in dollars and cents ever contested for. The two that exceeded it in receipts were the Corbett-Jeffries fight at Coney Island, $66,000, and the Corbett-McCoy fight at Madison Square garden, New York, $63,000.

James J. Jeffries, champion heavyweight of the world, played with Jim Corbett for nine rounds and a half Friday night and then Corbett's seconds motioned to Referee Graney to stop the fight in order to save their man from needless punishment. The end came shortly after the beginning of the tenth round when Jeffries planted one of his terrific left swings on Corbett's stomach. The man who conquered John L. Sullivan dropped to the floor in agony and the memorable scene at Carson City, when Bob Fitzsimmons landed his solar plexus blow was almost duplicated. This time, however, Corbett struggled to his feet and again faced his gigantic adversary. With hardly a moment's hesitation Jeffries swung his right and again landed on Corbett's stomach. Jim dropped to the floor and then it was that Tommy Ryan, seeing that it was all over, motioned to Referee Graney to stop the punishment.

The fight Friday night demonstrated beyond all doubt that Jeffries stands alone in his class. He showed remarkable improvement in both speed and skill. Corbett, during the first part of the fight, was almost outpointed, and the few blows that he landed on Jeffries were apparently without sting. Jeffries was never in better condition. He looked lighter than usual and the way he moved about on his feet and the frequency with which he countered Corbett's leads astonished everybody.

Corbett, in comparison with the big man opposed to him, looked very light, but was really heavier than ever before. He appeared to have lost some of his old time speed and skill during the early part of the fight, but this may have been due to Jeffries' marvelous improvement. Corbett's physical condition appeared to be all that he had claimed for it. He stood many of Jeffries' terrific blows without wincing and came back swinging left and right and landing frequently, but his blows hardly stung Jeffries. Jeffries was not only stronger, faster and cleverer than ever before, but he used his head to better purpose and although Corbett would hit him hard enough to hurt an ordinary man, Jeffries would bore right in without noting the blows and would deliver telling hits that materially helped in deciding the result of the fight.

After the fight was over Corbett quickly recovered, walked over to Jeffries and shook him warmly by the hand. He said: "Jim, you beat me fairly. You stand alone. No one can touch you."

Timekeeper George Harting stated that the blows that won the fight were a left to the stomach followed by a right to the same place as soon as Corbett arose to his feet after taking the count of nine. "It was the best fight Jeffries ever made and astonished even those who had placed implicit faith in his ability to win," said Harting.

During the fight Corbett talked continuously to Jeffries and to the referee. He was game to the end and whenever Jeffries landed a blow would make a jesting remark. In the sixth round during a clinch just after Jeffries had punished him severely he remarked to the referee: "Watch him, Eddie, he's trying to knock me out."

He also said: "He can't knock me out; go ahead, and try it." Jeffries only grinned and waded into his man all the harder.

Corbett's system of training was undoubtedly beneficial to him from a physical point of view, but it apparently detracted from his speed. He did not keep away from Jeffries in the manner that was anticipated but kept up close clinching at every opportunity. He also did some clever ducking, thereby avoiding deadly blows, but all his cleverness was of no avail. He fought his fight, and when the time came Jeffries delivered the necessary blows and installed more firmly than ever on his pedestal as champion heavyweight pugilist of the world.

Quarreled Over Jeffries-Corbett Fight.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Aug. 15.—R. D. George was shot at McGregor by Mayor John W. Walters during a quarrel over the Corbett-Jeffries fight. The victim, although still alive, will probably not live many hours.

FIRED INTO A CROWD.

Three Killed, Three Fatally and 20 Severely Injured.

Winfield, Kan., Aug. 14.—Angered by the music of a band concert, Gilbert Twigg, once a soldier in the Philippines, armed himself Thursday night with a double-barreled shotgun and a revolver and attacked a crowd of 3,000 persons that surrounded the bandstand, killing three men, probably fatally wounding three others and injuring 20 more before he was shot by a policeman. Besides Twigg, the dead are Sterling Rice, Dawson Tillotson and D. Bowman.

The band had just finished playing "Hiawatha" when Twigg came up and fired both barrels of his shotgun at the bandstand. R. E. Oliver, a musician, fell with his back and arm full of shot.

The crowd surged toward Twigg and he, having reloaded his piece, fired two charges into the audience. Men and women fell to the ground in pain, crushing children beneath them. Those who were not injured scattered in every direction but one, knocking many others to the ground. This panic allowed Twigg to reload and fire several times at the fleeing men and women. At last Policeman George Nichols came up and, waiting behind a tree for an opportune moment, confronted Twigg, just as the mad man had discharged his fowling piece.

Twigg dropped the shotgun and, drawing a pistol, fired at the policeman. The bullet went wild. Before Twigg had time to fire a second bullet Nichols put a bullet through the man's abdomen. Twigg fell, mortally wounded. He endeavored to fire again at Nichols, but he was so helpless that the bullet entered his own chin, passing out through the top of his head. The frightened fugitives then returned to the bandstand and aided the wounded. Twigg was a miller and the men about town referred to him as "Crazy Twigg," but no one thought him dangerous. He lived in New Mexico for some time before he enlisted as a soldier to fight in the Philippines.

VESUVIUS IN ERUPTION.

Intense Alarm is Caused in the Surrounding Region.

Rome, Aug. 14.—Vesuvius is again causing intense alarm in the surrounding region, the eruptions of the volcano being very heavy Thursday. This alarming activity which followed the shocks of earthquake is augmenting. The detonations are very loud and almost continuous, while from a fresh opening at the base of the crater two streams of lava are issuing which within a few hours covered a wide tract of ground. One stream has covered ground already covered from previous eruptions, but the other is going swiftly towards the village of Ottajano, the direction taken by the famous eruption of 1872.

The whole district around the volcano is shaken by frequent earth shocks and a perfect panic prevails, the population crowding the churches to pray or gathering in open spaces for safety. Experts, however, affirm that so far there is no reason to fear a serious disaster.

ARE OFF OYSTER BAY.

North Atlantic Fleet of Fighting Vessels Anchored There.

President Roosevelt Arrived Near the Kearsarge in Naval Yacht Sylph and Attended Divine Services on the Big Man-of-War.

Oyster Bay., N. Y., Aug. 17.—With the North Atlantic fleet anchored off Oyster Bay, Sunday was almost a fete day on the bay and sound. Hundreds of pleasure craft, ranging through all the grades from the plebian rowboat to the aristocratic steam yacht, have been hovering about the fleet of great fighting machines throughout the day. Officers of the flagship Kearsarge Sunday estimated that 1,000 persons were in or about the various vessels during the day and evening. The busiest men on the ships were the marines, who were kept under arms all day in full dress. The jackies on all the ships were attired in white duck.

Official formalities were begun at 9 o'clock Sunday morning when Rr. Adm. Barker, commander-in-chief of the fleet, accompanied by Capt. Hemphill, of the Kearsarge, and Flag Lieut. W. Eberle, went in a boat to the Dolphin to pay his respects to Secretary of the Navy Moody. An hour later Secretary Moody, accompanied by Former Secretary W. E. Chandler, returned the visit, being received on board the Kearsarge with special honors. They remained to attend divine service.

When Adm. Barker was informed that the president also would attend the service, orders were issued for all officers to appear in special full dress.

Shortly before 11 a. m. President Roosevelt arrived near the Kearsarge in the naval yacht Sylph. Flag Lieut. Eberle put off in the steam barge to present to the president the admiral's compliments and to conduct him aboard the flagship. On board the Kearsarge the president, as he came over the side, was received with honors due to the president of the United States. The band was paraded, the marines presented army, the bugle sounded a fanfare, and the drums gave four ruffles. Then the band played "Hail to the Chief," and Adm. Barker received the president on the quarterdeck.

A few minutes later a launch from the Sylph conveyed to the Kearsarge Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt, Mrs. Emlin Roosevelt, Miss Christine Roosevelt, Capt. Willard H. Brownson, superintendent of the naval academy, and the Roosevelt children. The service was conducted by Chaplain Isaacs, of the Kearsarge, on the after part of the covered gun deck.

The president and his party occupied seats immediately behind the chaplain, who in conducting the service faced the enlisted men. The ship's officers were arranged in the rear of the president's party. The music was by the flagship's orchestra.

Chaplain Isaacs' sermon was particularly addressed to the officers and men of the ship. His special theme was that the man who served his country best is he who serves best his God.

At the conclusion of the service, which was very impressive, the president and Secretary Moody chatted with Adm. Barker, and casually inspected some parts of the ship. The president then received Rr. Adms. Wise, Sands and Coghlan, who had come from their flagships to pay their respects.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the other ladies were shown over the ship by Flag Lieut. Eberle and was particularly delighted with the magnificent punch bowl presented by the German emperor on the occasion of the visit of the Kearsarge to Kiel.

When the president left the Kearsarge at 1 p. m. the sides of all the ships were again manned and every honor was paid except the firing of the salute, which was omitted because his visit was unofficial and was made on a Sunday.

THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Gens. John C. Black and Nelson A. Miles Arrive in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—While the formal exercises of the national reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic do not begin until Monday, the encampment was to all intents and purposes opened Sunday with the arrival of Gen. Thomas J. Stewart, commander-in-chief, on a special train bearing 365 members of the different Pennsylvania posts. Other distinguished arrivals Sunday were Gen. Nelson A. Miles and Gen. John C. Black, who is most prominently spoken of as the next commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. Trains arrived all day and late Sunday night bringing many members and veterans. The registration bureau and information booths were thronged all day. It will be Tuesday before all incoming trains will have arrived, and on Wednesday, the day set for the parade, it is estimated that there will be fully 50,000 visitors in the city.

BEGGAR GIVES CREDIT.

But He Doesn't Relish the Practice That Some People Have of Petting Him Off.

Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister to Washington attended in Philadelphia the recent launching of the Turkish warship Medjidia at the Cramps' shipyard.

During the luncheon following the launch Chekib Bey animadverted for a moment to the beggars of Philadelphia, says an exchange of that city.

"You have here," he said, "an enterprising and intelligent collection of beggars. One of them approached me this morning. He told a moving tale of misfortune; then he asked me for a little money.

"I put my hand in my pocket; to find that I was altogether out of change.

"'My man,' I said, 'I have nothing for you now, but in an hour I shall be passing this way again. Then I promise you you shall get something from me.'

"'All right, sir,' said the beggar; 'but all the same,' he added, fretfully, 'you wouldn't believe the amount of credit I give in this way.'"

A German Farmer's Case.

Rich Fountain, Mo., Aug 17th.—Rev. Jos. Pope, of this place, is widely and favorably known as a clergyman who has done and is doing much for his people. He is very much beloved by everyone for the faithfulness of his pastoral work.

Rev. Mr. Pope has given for publication a statement made to him by a German farmer, who is a member of his congregation. The man's name is George Hoelerer, and he has given Rev. Mr. Pope this letter:

"Last winter I suffered very much with Rheumatism. I could neither walk nor ride on horse back nor do any farm work.

"I took medicine from different doctors, but they did not do me any good. Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills procured for me by a good friend. After I had taken the first box I felt already a heap better. I was relieved of the pain and could walk and chop wood; and the contraction of my fingers began to resolve.

"Now since I have taken six more boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I feel well again and am able to do all the work on the farm."

Give Warning of Approach of More Serious Trouble.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness, alternating with extreme irritability, bordering upon hysteria? Are your spirits easily affected so that one minute you laugh, and the next fall into convulsive weeping?

Do you feel something like a ball rising in your throat and threatening to choke you; all the senses perverted, morbidly sensitive to light and sound; pain in the ovaries, and especially between the shoulders; sometimes loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia, and almost continually cross and snappy, with a tendency to cry at the least provocation?

If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition, and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Undoubtedly you do not know it, but in nine cases out of ten this is caused by some uterine disorder, and the nerves centering in and about the organs which make you a woman influence your entire nervous system. Something must be done at once to restore their natural condition or you will be prostrated for weeks and months perhaps, and suffer untold misery.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for this purpose than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; thousands and thousands of women have written us so.

How Mrs. Holland, of Philadelphia, suffered among the finest physicians in the country, none of whom could help her—finally cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For over two years I was a constant sufferer from extreme nervousness, indigestion, and dizziness. Menstruation was irregular, had backache and a feeling of great lassitude and weakness. I was so bad that I was not able to do my own work or go far in the street. I could not sleep nights.

"I tried several splendid doctors, but they gave me no relief. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I soon began to feel better, and was able to go out and not feel as if I would fall at every step. I continued to take the medicine until cured.

"I cannot say enough in behalf of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and heartily recommend all suffering women to try it and find the relief I did."—MRS. FLORENCE HOLLAND, 622 S. Clifton St., Philadelphia, Pa. (Jan. 6, 1902.)

Another case of severe female trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after the doctors had failed.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was in poor health for several years. I had female trouble and was not able to do my housework alone. I felt tired, very nervous, and could not sleep. I doctored with several doctors. They doctored me for my stomach, but did not relieve me. I read in your book about your medicine, and thought I would try it. I did so, and am now cured and able to do my work alone, and feel good. I was always very poor, but now weigh one hundred and fifty pounds.

"I thank you for the relief I have obtained, and I hope that every woman troubled with female weakness will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I have recommended it to many of my friends."—MRS. MARIA BOWERS, Millersville, Ohio. (Aug. 15, 1901.)

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all of the virtues of this medicine?

How shall the fact that it will help them be made plain?

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, and sick, and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. You have some derangement of the feminine organism, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as surely as it has others.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

Curt Jett and Tom White Convicted of Murder.

The Application For a New Trial Was Made—The Prosecution May Not Oppose the Motion as to Jett's Case.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 15.—Curt Jett and Tom White, the Jackson feudists were both found guilty of the Marcum assassination by the jury Friday and sentenced to life terms in the penitentiary.

White flushed as the jurors handed the verdict to the judge and tears came into his eyes and the blood seemed to leave his face as he heard the fateful words. Jett, with clinched jaws, listened to the sentence and still tried to keep up his air of braggadocio.

The defense filed grounds and motion for a new trial at 11 o'clock Friday morning and Judge Osborne set 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning for the hearing of the motion. The motion and grounds consist entirely of objections to the evidence ruled in by the court, and the attempted introduction of evidence by the defense, and which was ruled out, and also to certain affidavits made by the defendants saying that a fair and impartial trial could not be had here on account of military display being made which inflamed the public mind so that a fair trial could not be had. It is almost certain that the judge will overrule the motion for this new trial.

The attorneys for the prosecution were in consultation all Friday afternoon as to whether or not they will oppose the motion as to Jett, as they say if they can get a new trial in this case they will have enough evidence in the case at the next trial to convict him. However, Prosecuting Attorney Byrd said that if they concluded to oppose the new trial, that at the next term of the Harrison circuit court before Judge Osborne, which begins three weeks from Monday, they will put forward the case of the commonwealth against Curtiss Jett, one of the defendants, for the murder of Jim Cockerill, to which murder there were some six eye witnesses, thereby succeeding in hanging Jett, which has been the ultimate aim of the prosecution in the case just tried.

The main features in the case at bar Friday have been the charges against Juror Jasper King, who lives in this city, and who was until two years ago a deputy sheriff of the county and a man who has been highly esteemed. Jurors McNees, Northcutt and Tate all said Friday morning that King did attempt to influence them to decide for Jett and White in this case by saying that there was nothing against the defendants. Judge Osborne, in his admonition to the jury, told them not to talk about this case among each other until it was finally given to them to decide. This seems, and it is said by attorneys here, to be contempt of court.

No movements have been made as yet as to the soldiers and Col. Williams, the officer in command of the situation, said Friday afternoon that no movements as to the soldiers were yet decided on and would not be decided on until Saturday after the grounds and motion for a new trial had been passed on by the court and that the matter of the movements of the soldiers were in the hands of himself and Judge Osborne.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 17.—Curtis Jett and Tom White were Saturday removed from this city, and are now locked in separate cells in towns that are widely distant. Jett was taken to Lexington at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Tom White was taken to Covington at 4 o'clock.

PICNIC WAGON OVERTURNED.

A Party of Nuns and Indian Girls Were More or Less Injured.

Great Falls, Mont., Aug. 17.—By the overturning of a picnic wagon from St. Peter's mission, a party of nuns and Indian girls were dashed many feet down the side of a hill. Sister l'Annunciate was fatally injured, and Mary Reed, a half-breed Indian girl, was seriously hurt. Another nun and several Indian girls were badly bruised and lacerated. The accident occurred during a heavy electric storm, a flash of lightning frightening the horses and causing them to dash over a steep embankment.

WAGON STRUCK BY STREET CAR.

Two Persons Seriously and Five Were Slightly Injured.

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—A street car on the Cherokee division of the St. Louis transit lines struck a wagon filled with 15 persons near the intersection of Gravois avenue and Meremac street Sunday night, seriously injuring John J. Mauser and his wife, Bertha, and slightly injuring Robert, their 8-year-old son, Mrs. Otto Eichinger, Miss Ida Zimmer, Miss Mary Gabel and Joseph Koch.

Declares the Will Is Invalid.

A PITCHED BATTLE.

About 1,000 Shots Fired Between the Strikers and Non-Union Men.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 17.—A clash of union and non-union men in which 1,000 shots were fired and several men were injured took place early Sunday morning between 300 striking machinists and 25 non-union men who had taken their places in the Riverside plant of the United States steel corporation. The battle was begun Saturday night. The machinists have been out on strike for [illegible] weeks and the situation was becoming desperate for the corporation until they imported about 20 men to take the places of the strikers. The men have been assaulted from time to time but the situation has not reached an alarming stage heretofore.

The strikers congregated about the boarding houses of the non-unionists Saturday night fully armed and began an attack on the places. The houses were heavily barricaded and many volleys were fired into the structures.

Finally a well-directed shot from within the house wounded one of the strikers and he was carried to a hospital. Clay Hoover, a spectator, was shot in the left knee. A number of other people who were in the building with the non-unionists received wounds.

The rioting continued until 2 o'clock Sunday morning, when it abated somewhat. The police were powerless to interfere and reinforcements were requested. A fresh outbreak is feared at any moment.

At 10 o'clock Sunday night the strikers, who are lying in the hills, fired on Peter Sliatck as he passed. He was seriously wounded. The strikers mistook him, thinking he was a spy.

TURKISH "REFORMS."

Bulgaria Presents a Memorandum to the Powers.

Precise Details of the Conditions in Macedonia Are Given—Constitutes a Terrible Category of Murders, Tortures, Etc.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 17.—The Bulgarian government has presented a memorandum to the powers setting out at great length the condition of affairs during the past three months in Macedonia since the Turkish government undertook to inaugurate the promised reforms. The most precise details as to places and names of persons are given in the memorandum, the whole constituting a terrible category of murder, torture, incendiarism, pillage and general oppression committed by the Ottoman soldiers and officials. These particulars were obtained entirely from official sources, such as the reports of the Bulgarian government and in many instances the reports made by Turkish authorities.

The Bulgarian government guarantees the absolute truth of every statement and challenges the porte to disprove a single charge made in the memorandum. The memorandum begins by stating that during the past three months the Ottonian government has taken a series of measures with the alleged intention of inaugurating the era of promised reform and of assuring peace and tranquility to the Bulgarian population of European Turkey, but which have had the contrary effect of further exasperating this population and reviving the revolutionary movement. Instead of proceeding solely against persons guilty of breaches of the public order the military and civil authorities have sought every possible pretext to persecute, terrorize and ruin the Bulgarian inhabitants alike in the large cities and in the small villages.

Wholesale massacres, individual murders, the destruction of villages, the pillaging and setting fire to houses, the arrests, ill-treatment, tortures, arbitrary imprisonment and banishment, the closing and disorganizing of schools, the ruluing of merchants, the collection of taxes for many years in advance—such proceeds the memorandum are among the acts of the Ottoman administration of the vilayets of Salonica, Monastir, Uskub and Adrianople.

The memorandum next relates in detail a number of such cases in each vilayet. Beginning with the vilayet of Salonica, it states that in the town of Salonica itself the Bulgarian professors of the university, the students and shopkeepers, in fact, all the intelligent Bulgarians in the city have been cast into prison. One hundred and twenty soldiers entered the village of Gorna-Ribnitea May 19 and tortured to death five men and two women.

The villagers were beaten and tortured, the women violated and the houses plundered while the administrative authorities looked on. In the vilayet of Monastir artillery bombarded and razed the flourisbing town of Soordeach, the 200 houses being left a heap of ruins. At the beginning of July two Greek bands with the connivance of authorities pillaged Bulgarian villages and murdered many of their inhabitants. In the vilayet of Uskub the entire Bulgarian population has been systematically persecuted since last May. The director of the normal school at Uskub was imprisoned because the library contained the "revolutionary" works of "Othello" and "Les Miserables." In the districts of Palanka, Koschani, Koumnovo and Gostiger, the prisons are filled with Bulgarian priests, schoolmasters and merchants. During June the soldiers and Bashi Bazouks terrorized the inhabitants of the Schut district, torturing the people with redhot irons. Similar atrocities perpetrated in the vilayet of Adrinople and other places are cited.

THE TROPICAL CYCLONE.

The Effects in Yucatan Were Widespread and Terrible.

Merida, Yucatan, Aug. 17.—The effects of the tropical cyclone in this city and in Progreaso were widespread and terrible. Although everybody had been prepared for the gale in consequence of warnings given, panic quickly seized the community. The terrible destruction wrought overthrew the anticipated calm. Great trees were torn up by the roots, roofs blown away and houses and plantations destroyed. Great damage was done in a very short time. Great efforts were made to save small vessels but to no avail, and 20 of those lying in the port of Progresso were cast upon shore.

INTO AN OPEN SWITCH.

One Killed, Another Fatally and 14 Persons Seriously Hurt.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 15.—While running at the rate of 45 miles an hour, the limited New York express on the Pennsylvania road ran into an open switch in the yards here Friday night. One man was instantly killed, another fatally injured, while 11 others were more or less seriously injured.

The dead: Charles B. Eaton, Fort Wayne, crushed beneath his engine.

The injured: A. W. Boggs, Fort Wayne, fatally scalded and crushed; B. W. Healy, postal clerk, Plymouth, Ind., head cut and internally injured; N. T. Travel, postal clerk, Canton, O., back injured and badly bruised; Frank Montgomery, postal clerk, Ada, O., head badly cut, leg and back injured; C. F. Stabl, postal clerk, Chicago, rib broken, [illegible] located, bad cut on leg and face; S. C. Anstell, postal clerk, Fort Wayne, leg and back hurt; Harry Wright, postal clerk, Chicago bruised and injured; E. D. Wigand, postal clerk, Columbia City, Ind., slight bruises; A. F. Kyle, brakeman, Fort Wayne, severe cut on head and side and back injured; Clark Channell, baggageman, Crestline, O., back injured and badly bruised; Wm. Bowson, postal clerk, Valparaiso, Ind., knee cut badly, injured in back; B. F. Ansted, porter, Chicago, severely cut on head and internally injured; D. J. H. Jenkins, Rushmoie, O., slightly injured; J. M. Barnes, Rushmore, O., slightly injured.

When the engine entered the switch it first struck a flat car, going clean over it. The mail car and three coaches climbed over the engine and were reduced to kindling wood. The rear cars remained upon the track. It is presumed that Engineer Eaton saw the open switch as the steam was afterward found shut off in his engine and the sand had been applied.

THE CANADIAN BUILDING.

The Structure at the St. Louis World's Fair Will Cost $30,000.

St. Louis, Aug. 15.—Wm. Hutchinson, Canada's commissioner general for the World's fair, visited the administration building Friday accompanied by W. W. Hay, of the Canadian commission, and L. F. Taylor, the commission's architect. Plans for the Canadian building were submitted and the structure will cost $30,000.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT.

Four Banks at Duluth, Minn., Suspended in Consequence.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 15.—The alleged embezzlement of $45,000 of the funds of the Commercial Banking Co., for which E. E. Johnson, the trusted clerk of the bank, is under arrest, has brought about the failure of the Merchants' bank of Duluth, which closed its doors after Friday's business. President Smith, in a statement issued Friday afternoon, said that the failure was one due to a run on the bank resulting from the closing of the Commercial Banking Co.'s institution. This is the fourth bank suspending in business as a result of the alleged embezzlement.

DAMAGING TESTIMONY.

Convict Henry Youtsey on the Stand For Three Hours Thursday.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 14.—On the witness stand for three hours Thursday afternoon Convict Henry Youtsey gave very damaging testimony against Caleb Powers in the Goebel murder conspiracy case. He testified that in January, 1901, he signed an affidavit for Powers as to his innocence, to present to the republican judges of the court of appeals to secure from them a re[illegible] the life sentence.

Powers. He said that at the time he signed that affidavit both Powers and himself knew it to be false, and that before he would consent to affix his signature to it he, Youtsey, required Powers to sign an agreement waiving the truth or falsity of it, and also agreeing to never let it become public or to use it openly in court, and to return it to him. Youtsey, within 15 days. He says the affidavit was not returned by Powers, and he, Youtsey, kept the written agreement. He produced the agreement in court with Powers' signature attached, and the affair created quite a sensation in the court room. Youtsey's wife has been for two years the innocent custodian of this document. Fearing that he would lose it in the jail to which he was sent from time to time, Youtsey sealed it up in an envelope and sent it to her with instructions not to open it. She kept it until he sent for it to go before the grand jury, and, unaware of its character, she restored it to him and it was opened in the presence of the jury. Youtsey's cross-examination was not completed Thursday.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 15.—For five hours Friday the convict, Henry Youtsey underwent a very trying and vigorous cross-examination as to his participation in the conspiracy which, he says, resulted in the assassination of William Goebel. For all of that he maintained the calm demeanor that the people of Scott county can not understand in him after the sensations he furnished them two years ago when he was himself on trial here and "threw a fit" in the court room to keep from going on the witness stand, and to excite sympathy in the minds of the jurors trying him. When he told them Friday, in response to questions of the defense attorneys, that he had faked them, he did so with a smile on his face and some embarrassment, causing a general laugh among the hundreds, mainly women, who had assembled to hear him.

Judge Robbins held the counsel for the defendant down to a systematic cross examination, and at one point fined the attorney interrogating for violation of the rule he had laid down. The defense scored several points on the witness, mainly as to conflicting stories told by him before his arrest and trial. He admitted frankly that he lied frequently at the time to confuse the detectives and lawyers employed by the Goebel brothers. His most important bit of evidence, that as to the written agreement had with Caleb Powers regarding the affidavit of Powers' innocence, the truth or falsity of which was waived, was ignored by Powers' attorneys in their cross-examination, and stands uncontradicted.

THOUGHT HIM A BURGLAR.

A Bridegroom Fatally Shot By His Sister at Paducah.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 17.—Fred Iverlett was shot, and probably fatally wounded at an early hour Sunday morning by Mrs. May Crockett, his sister, who believed he was a burglar. Iverlett went home late and was walking in his sister's room when she fired three shots, all taking effect. A shot passed through his right leg, one through the hand and one through his right lung. Iverlett was married a few days ago.

LAUGHING GAS.

It Is Said to Be Responsible For the Mania of Henry Wilken.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 15.—"Laughing" gas, applied in order to facilitate the extraction of a tooth, is said to have been responsible for the mania of Henry Wilken, who was adjudged insane in the county court Friday. He is 25 years of age. About two weeks ago Wilken went to a local dentist and had a tooth pulled. He was given gas, and shortly afterward developed symptoms of mania.

Veteran Pilot Dead.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 15.—Capt. Dick Varble, aged 75, a veteran falls pilot, died at his home, Varble's Landing, in Oldham county. He was the last of seven brothers, including Capt. Pink Varble and Capt. William Varble.

Child Was Fatally Shot.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Aug. 17.—Allin Demarce fatally shot a 6-year-old child of Richard Cornelius. They are neighbors, and Demarce was shooting at chickens in his tomato patch and hit the child. He is 80 years of age and a Mexican and civil war veteran.

Closes Big Cattle Deal.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 17.—Simon Well, the well-known cattle dealer of this city, made the biggest sale of cattle ever recorded in this county, he selling to Lehman Bros., of Baltimore, Md., 600 cattle for $40,000.

VIOLATED ELECTION LAWS.

Clay Combs Sent to the Penitentiary For Two Years.

Beattyville, Ky., Aug. 17.—At the last republican primary held in Owsley county to nominate county officers to be voted for at the regular election Clay Combs, who was then and is now county clerk, failed to place the names of nominees on the ballots, but placed the names of himself and others under the party device. This was not known until the morning of the election, and those wishing to vote for the nominees were compelled to write their names on the ballots. Combs was indicted for violation of the election laws. The case has been fought hard, some of the ablest counsel in Kentucky being employed, and resulted Saturday in his being sentenced to the penitentiary for two years.

CAPT. B. J. EWEN.

Hopes to Buy a Home in Lexington and Settle Down.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 17.—After considerable doubt and speculation, Mrs. Ewen, wife of Capt. B. J. Ewen, the principal witness who testified against Curtis Jett and Tom White in their recent trial at Cynthiana, arrived in this city from Jackson Sunday night. She was met at the depot by her husband and an affectionate greeting took place. They went to the house of a friend, where they will spend the night. Monday, Mrs. Ewen said, they would look for a home, which they hope to purchase, and will take up their residence in this city. She appeared fatigued and said she was glad to be with her husbandagain.

THE SLAYERS ESCAPED.

Amos Ackle and His Son Dock Killed at a Church.

Monticello, Ky., Aug. 14.—A desperate fight occurred at Mt. Union church, this county, between Granville Taber and Lee Rector on one side and Amos Ackle and his son Dock on the other, in which both the Ackles were shot and killed and Pierce Hubbard, a bystander, perhaps fatally wounded.

The trouble grew out of an alleged insult to a lady relative of the Ackles. Taber and Rector made their escape. Amos Ackle was about 75 years old.

WIND, RAIN AND HAIL.

Crops and Property Damaged in the Southern Part of Davies County.

Owensboro, Ky., Aug. 15.—A section two miles square in the southern part of Davies county was visited by a destructive rain, wind and hail storm. Damage to crops and property is estimated at $50,000. The Baptist church at Glenville was blown away, the damage amounting to $500. Marion Warren, Frank Fulkerson, James Baird and Mrs. Leona Bethel all lost big barns. Nearly 100 acres of tobacco was ruined. Corn was also damaged.

Gets a Promotion.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 17.—Guthrie Sloan, formerly of this city, who has been seriously ill at Tucson, Ari., has entirely recovered his health and has been promoted from the position of chief clerk in the train dispatcher's office of the Southern Pacific railway to that of private secretary to the superintendent of the road.

Thought He Would Shoot First.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Aug. 17.—James Hart was arrested at Herndon and lodged in jail here, charged with the murder of Jophaha White, another colored youth. They worked together and Hart claims he feared White would kill him, so he borrowed a pistol and shot White.

Jackson Guard Reduced.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 17.—Gov. Beckham has ordered the force of soldiers on duty at Jackson to be reduced from 200 to 75 men, and the two Frankfort companies will come home Monday. The men to remain in Jackson will be picked mainly from the Louisville battery.

Residence Burglarized.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Aug. 17.—Burglars entered the residence of Dr. B. F. Thompson and took nearly all of the table silverware. At James H. Woods' they took a gold watch, from a Miss Shankland and other valuables. They were in other houses, but were frightened away.

A Record Breaker.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 15.—The Monongahela Coal & Coke Co., of Pittsburg, has the largest coal fleet on record in the Pumpkin Patch, consisting of about 365 boats and barges. The coal combine got the coal as far as Louisville when the river suddenly fell so low that it could not be transported.

Murder Case Continued.

Mayking, Ky., Aug. 17.—The case against Wesley Hicks Glamorgan, policeman who, it is alleged, killed David Dykes and Walter Fowler two weeks ago, was called at Wise C. H., Va., and continued until the September term.

For Hospital Purposes.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 15.—The Gray Street infirmary has been purchased by a corporation controlled by the Warren Memorial, the Fourth Avenue, the First and the Second Presbyterian Churches for hospital purposes.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1903. NO. 45.

County Correspondence.

BELLEVIEW.

Aug. 24.—Very dry crops suffering for rain—gardens about burnt up—water very scarce.

John Scott is here from Missouri, visiting his children. He has changed none.

G. T. Rue and family had several of their Ashby Fork friends as guests, Sunday.

Judge Cason and wife passed here, yesterday, enroute to visit Mrs. Cason's parents at Gasburg.

Jake Cook and family visited at Robert Nixon's, Sunday. Mr. Nixon has a very sick child.

W. M. Rogers made a survey of Mrs. Bell Clore's residence and buildings, last Friday, for insurance.

Mrs. Bettie Rice returned last Friday, from a week's visit with Mrs. Randall, and Miss Pearl Botts.

Mrs. Alice Snyder and Miss Stella Barker, of Burlington, were visiting friends here one day last week.

Mrs. B. F. Rogers is at home after a visit of two months with her daughter, Mrs. Weeden Williamson, in Kansas.

Lafe Riley and wife, of Union, were guests of Dr. Williamson and J. J. Walton and families, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Bell Gloyd, and daughter, Miss Etta, of Dillsboro, Ind., are expected this week as guests of your reporter and wife.

A. B. Acra, of Middle creek, has been supplying the town with fine apples. It takes an old batchelor to supply the wants of the cook.

The editor of the RECORDER deserves praise for the illustrated edition sent out last week. The pictures were nice to look at and the biographies and other matter was interesting reading.

The auction sale of the merchandise and medicines that belonged to the late O. N. Grant, was not completed last Saturday, and it will be resumed this afternoon. Saturday's sale was well attended.

WALTON.

Kirtley Roberts is visiting his mother. He is greatly improved since his last visit.

Taylor Grubbs had an attack of indigestion, last week, that kept him from work two or three days.

Miss Grace Bullock, of Idlewild, and Mrs. L. A. Smith, of Palatka, Fla., are pleasant guests of Miss Virginia Smith.

Mrs. Mildred G. Baker and daughter Miss Alma, of Covington, have been visiting friends in this and near by localities the past week.

Britt Senior shipped, last week, the finest lot of lambs that has gone from this part of the county in a long time. They brought the top of the market.

Miss Effie Lermond, refreshed and invigorated, has returned from her visit to her brother Charles at Elwood, and resumes the duties of her profession on Wednesday morning.

In calling the attention of the public to Mr. Stamler's advertisement the correspondent has to state that it is a wonderful instrument, and there can be no doubt about its doing the work the advertisement sets forth a great deal better than anything ever before known.

Charles S. Chambers has returned from the Zanerian Art College, Columbus, Ohio, having completed the business, writing and engrossing courses in that institution. After a short vacation he will leave for Springfield, Mo., where he has a position in Clark's Business College.

Glasscock finished prizing John Stahl's tobacco, last Friday. It made 12 hogsheads and was shipped to Louisville. He thinks the growing crop is the largest and best ever raised in Boone county. There came near being a fatal accident while loading the tobacco on the boat. One hogshead got the start on Glascock and would have run over him had it not struck an obstruction, causing it to change its course and to turn a complete summersault as it hurried toward the river.

CRESCENT.

Your correspondent was calling on W. T. O'Neal, the telegrapher at Richwood, Friday.

Mrs. Robt Franke, of Grant county, will be the guest of her father F. B. Williams, during the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robinson, of Richwood, spent Sunday at the home of her father, Jeff Carpenter.

The supper, given for the benefit of the Baptist church, at Bauklick, Saturday night, was well attended.

Mrs. Robert Northcutt has returned from a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. J. S. Garett, of Madison, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Carpenter, Ben Cleek and family and Miss Emma Glacken, all of Richwood, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cove Carpenter, Sunday.

Not Over-Wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is parallel by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by All Druggists.

FRANCESVILLE.

Charlie Beall, jr., has a new fancy turnout.

Omer Henry attended the Oakley fair, last week.

Bruce Henry lost one of his fat hogs Sunday morning.

Mr. Charles Graves, of Missouri, is visiting relatives here.

Clint Riddell was calling on friends near here, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. John Roberts and family spent Sunday with their son Harry.

In company with Dr. G. M. Terrill and W. O. Alden, last Saturday night, we visited the beautiful home of Miss Julia Smith, out on the classic stream of Ashby Fork, where a reception was given in honor of Miss May Cutter, a beautiful young lady from Cincinnati. When our party arrived the guests were all masked, and it was with difficulty that an audience was gained with the charming hostess. Soon after our arrival the masks were thrown aside, revealing the bewitching smiles of pretty maids and gallant gentlemen. Cooney Walton graced a pair of bloomers, which looked like a parachute out from a 40 foot balloon in mid air. Ed Klem, as Humpty Dumpty, and Edith Smith as Dianah concealed their identity completely. Bernard Berkshire as the Ghost of Hamlet, looked real uncanny. Miss Cutter as the Fairy Queen, and Miss Julia Smith as German Housemaid, were very assessful representations. At 11 o'clock the guests were invited to the dining room, where refreshments were served. An hour later the guests took their departure, after a most pleasant evening spent with Miss Julia and her charming guest.

The Trusts Rule the Nation

By HON. ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE,
Governor of Wisconsin.

One of the causes of revolution proclaimed in the declaration of independence was: "Imposing taxes on us without our consent." To-day great aggregations of corporate wealth buy immunity from taxation in our legislatures and throw the burden which they should bear upon the individual taxpayer of every municipality and state. Betrayed by his representative, the individual taxpayer is overtaxed for the benefit of the corporation.

TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION IS AS MUCH A CRIME AGAINST JUST AND EQUAL GOVERNMENT IN 1903 AS IT WAS IN 1776. Control of government by corporations is as destructive of the liberties of the people of this country as the exercise of the same power by a foreign monarch.

The arbirary control of the price of coal and iron and corn and wheat and beef, whether by an extortionate transportation rate or by a monster combination, is a more absolute tyranny of the American people than quartering the army of King George upon the American colonists without their consent.

Let us see if the time be not ripe for a new declaration of American independence. We are building up colossal fortunes, granting unlimited power to corporate organization and consolidating and massing together business interests as never before in the commercial history of the world, but the people are losing control of their own government. Its foundations are being sapped and its integrity destroyed.

The gravest danger menacing republican institutions to-day is the overbalancing control of city, state and national legislatures by the wealth and power of public service corporations. The national government, every state government, every city government has its problem to solve—not at some other time, but now.

TO THE END-SEAT HOG.

A Lesson That Was Juicy and Effective Administered by an Innocent Child.

"I saw an End Seat Hog get his'n the other afternoon in a way that gave me much surcease of sorrow for the remainder of the day," said the man with the punky Porto Rican brevs, says a writer in the Washington Post. "He was one of these long, rakish crafts with knobby knees that pressed against the back of the seat in front of him when he was sitting up straight. I know, for I'd been compelled to squeeze past those knees myself, and even when he scrooched himself a little bit sideways to let me get by, those knees of his bored dents in me that haven't filled out yet.

"At Fourteenth and K streets the car stopped for a little girl and her mother. As myself and the End Seat Hog were the only occupants of that sat, all of the others being pretty well filled, the little girl poinied it out to her mother and very politely motioned to her to get on first, which the mother did. The mother had troubles of her own in squeezing by the End Seat Hog, but she didn't do any murmuring.

"Then it was the little girl's turn. The little girl grasped the brass handclutch with her right hand and swung herself aboard, in her left hand she had a nice large, juicy cream puff that her mother had just given her out of a bag full of them. The little girl was trying to get past the End Seat Hog, when the car suddenly started with a jerk. The little girl's left hand, the one holding the cream puff, shot out, in her instinctive effort to find something to lean against or grab hold of. The hand found something. It came ker-plunk! cream puff and all, right against the map of the End Seat Hog. The cream puff smashed all over his face and the yallery cream rolled in rivulets down his chops and on to his collar and necktie and coat and vest.

"'Scuse me,' said the little girl, politely, and the End Seat Hog glared at her through eyes half-closed with bunches of sweet sepia-hued stuff. He tried to police himself with his handkerchief, but it was no go, and he soon left the car, ecowling, to get rerigged somewhere."

Queer Church Tribute.

Smoke-farthings were offerings paid in olden days in Whitsuntide to the priest, according to the number of chimneys in his parish. Sometimes these dues were demanded by the bishop of the diocese, as an old manuscript records: "The bishop of Elie hath out of ervie parish in Cambridgeshire a certain tribute called smoke-farthings, which the churchwardens to levie according to the number of chimneys that he in a parish." Peter's pence or smoke-money was still paid at the end of the sixteenth century in many English parishes. Similar to this was a chimney-tax levied from time to time to raise funds. This was most obnoxious to the people, and Pepys in his diary notes: "Much clamor against chimney-money; and the people say they will not pay it without force." It was abolished in the reign of William and Mary.—Chicago Post.

Mistake in a Street Car.

Said a man on a street car who had already given up his seat as he nudged a familiar friend who still kept his:

"Why don't you get up and give the woman a seat?"

She, who was standing, glared at him.

"Sir!" she said, "I will have you know I am a lady!"

"Ah! Beg your pardon, madam," he replied politely, "I took you for a woman!"—Portland Oregonian.

ON BEING A BOY.

What We Used to Think and Do in the Happy Days of Childhood.

Distance lends enchantment to the view to such an extent that nearly every man looks back upon his boyhood days as a time of perfect happiness. If he remembers his tribulations, they are now objects for merriment, and the joys of his youth are enhanced by memory until they are perfectly glorious. Of course, there are very few boys who really have a nice time, but they think so, and that amounts to the same thing.

"For instance," said a writer in Puck, "a boy thinks it is real fun to go to bed with all his clothes on, and lies awake for three hours till his father has sought a downy couch. Then the boy gets out of bed, climbs out of the back window and down a rain spout, barking his shins and skinning his knuckles on the way, and walks three miles across plowed fields to steal a watermelon out of a farmer's patch. And the next day, when they have watermelon for dinner at home, do you suppose that makes the boy feel sore, as it would a man? Not much. The boy has had his fun, and the chances are that he'll get up and do the same old act all over again day after to-morrow.

"Again, a boy thinks it's fun to put an empty soap box on top of two logs and paddle himself up and down a brook where there are no lighthouses no harbors, and not more than 12 inches of water, counting the mud on the bottom.

"A boy thinks it's fun to row a boat too. He will get aboard a big, heavy skiff, with a pair of seven-foot oars when the thermometer indicates 90 degrees in the summerhouse, and he'll pull himself around and around in a ring, and cut S's and figures 3 on the water, and think he's having a glorious time.

"A boy thinks it's fun, too, to get four old bricks and build himself an oven, and then to make a wood fire in it, and roast potatoes with skins on and eat them without salt.

"Two boys, who can have unto themselves a small feast like this, accompanied by the edifying conversation about the extermination of the Sioux, think they're having more fun than you or I would at a public dinner of 15 courses.

"When a boy gets over being a boy and looks back over his period of disorder, he often wonders how it happened that he lived through it. But it appears to be pretty generally admitted by medical experts that the boyhood disease is not necessarily fatal.

"It does do away with a few of its victims, to be sure, but they are those who are affected with the acute form in which 20-foot rivers appear three feet deep, and double-barreled shotguns are mistaken for Pandean pipes.

"There is one form of the disease which ought to prove fatal, but for some inscrutable reason does not. That is the form which causes the patient to imagine that jewsharps, fiddles, banjos and horse-fiddles produce music. Usually, however, that disease wears itself out. It wears a great many people out, too; but that doesn't hurt a boy's feelings in the least."

Behind Her Back.

"She's very studious," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other.

"And doesn't seem to care for gossiping in the least."

"Oh, I don't know about that," answered the other, with a sniff, "she merely prefers to talk about Helen of Troy and Romeo and Juliet to paying attention to what is going on in her own neighborhood."—Washington Star.

WALL STREET FAVORED.

The United States Treasury Is Being Run in the Interests of Brokers and Bankers.

Wall street is still in the dumps and does not seem able to rally from the enormous decline in the quoted value of stock. The Napoleons of finance are turning their eyes to congress to help them and the select members of the finance committee of the senate are preparing a bill which is intended to be just what the Wall street people want. Very seldom has congress legislated entirely as Wall street has dictated, because what the stock jobbers ask for is just what the other people who pay taxes don't want, and won't have if they can help it. As long as times are good in Wall street and there are plenty of lambs to shear the financiers make no demand for legislation, but when the crop of lambs have all been sheared and the bulls and bears undertake to strip the hides from each other, then the trouble begins and the president is called upon to order the secretary of the treasury to "aid the banks and prevent a panic."

Early in the fall of 1902, when the first big break in the price of stocks commenced, the condition of the financial weather in Wall street was squally, and the secretary of the treasury, under orders from President Roosevelt, at once commenced to aid the banks in every possible way. Bonds were purchased at an enormous premium, the price being virtually dictated by the sellers. All the receipts from internal revenue were deposited in the favored banks and allowed to remain there, without interest, and the vast sum of over $150,000,000 is now loaned to the banks, on which not one cent of interest has ever been paid. All this succor not being found enough to stem the tide of liquidation, the banks were allowed to withdraw their United States bonds, which they had deposited with the treasury as security for loans, and in place thereof deposit city and railroad bonds. This allowed the banks to use the released United States bonds to increase their circulation and thus to further inflate the currency.

At the last session of congress the attempt was made to pass the Fowler asset currency bill and the Aldrich bill, but the proposed legislation was defeated.

Then a further cry of distress came from the banks and Secretary Shaw began the refunding of United States bonds, which has just been closed with an issue of over $81,000,000 of two per cents. in exchange for a like amount of three and four per cents., the government paying the enormous premium to the banks and other bondholders of over $3,500,000 for the privilege of doing so. The statement is now made by Mr. Seligman, one of the principal Wall street bankers, that the administration is prepared to take further measures to relieve the money stringency, if such becomes necessary, to relieve the pressure in Wall street.

President Roosevelt is officially quoted as favoring the financial legislation that the banks ask for and will issue a call for an extraordinary session of congress, to commence November 9, for that purpose. All this shows that President Roosevelt has authorized more and greater favors for banks and Wall street than any president ever did, and all the efforts of republican newspapers to make it appear that Wall street is opposed to the president are not only absurd, but not borne out by facts.

The spook that worries Wall street is congress, for it is a notorious fact that at any session just before a national election the politicians are on their good behavior and do not, as a rule, enact legislation that will be questionably received by the voters. That President Roosevelt will recommend financial legislation to congress is said to be assured, but whether congress will dare to legislate further in the interest of the banks and Wall street is problematical.

BOUND TO COME UP.

The Money Question Will Have to Be Reckoned With in Congress.

They say that the money question is settled, and yet the president is conferring with the republican leaders about financial legislation and the money magnates are preparing to squeeze the public into submission to their demands, says the Commoner. Speaker Cannon was called to Oyster Bay and urged to assist in carrying out the schemes of Wall street, but he could not be enthused. He was willing to allow congress to pass such a bill, but he would not promise to help. His assistance, however, will hardly be needed, for the financiers will bring the necessary influence to bear on republican members and Speaker Cannon would find it quite difficult to prevent the passage of any bill that Rothschild and Morgan agreed upon. It might be well, though, for the republicans to pause long enough to consider what Mr. Cannon says about the increase in the currency. He boasts that the volume of money has increased $126,000,000 in the last year and he does not favor tinkering with the currency. The quantitative theory of money has been vindicated and still the republicans refuse to make permanent provision for an adequate supply of real money.

The fight that is coming up in congress over the currency measure will give the democrats a chance to call public attention to the manner in which the monied element controls the republican party.

——Evidently the republicans are worried about the Empire state, and well they may be. Before November of next year comes around they will be still more worried.—Rochester Union.

WHERE IS RECIPROCITY?

Reversal of Republican Party Policy That Is Not Hard to Account For.

The drift of the republican leaders from reciprocity, to which they were ardently committed under the leadership of Blaine and indorsed by McKinley, is a reversal of party policy that is remarkable. When Mr. Dingley and his republican associatee devised the tariff bill of 1897, they incorporated in it a reciprocity clause, and from the unanimity with which the bill was passed the whole republican party appeared to indorse it. To appease the ultra protectionists many of the duties provided for in the schedules were purposely placed beyond the bounds of reasonable protection, in some cases higher than the protected interests asked for, so that when the rates were revised by reciprocity treaties they would still be high enough to protect the tariff barons from foreign competition. The bill having expressly provided for reciprocity treaties, the McKinley administration at once proceeded to negotiate with foreign countries. Treaties were made with nearly every country, but the senate refused to ratify them, and the schedules are still retained at the extreme high rates.

This evasion of the intent and the letter of the Dingley bill is a fraud upon the tax payers of the country, perpetrated in the interest of the trusts and combines. The few who gain by the tariff have obtained control of the machinery of legislation to the detriment of the many who pay the tax or the exorbitant profit to the trusts.

The speaker of the house of representatives is selected, and the committees are appointed, to conserve the interests of monopolistic combinations. President Roosevelt falls into line with the majority and agrees that we must "let well enough alone."

The symptome of revolt against this policy amongst the republican leaders have been curbed, but in the minds of the people it is rampant and cannot be obliterated by the actions of president or congress. The promise to reform the inequities of the tariff after election will probably be made in the platform of the republican national convention, but the evident intention being to catch the votes of reformers and then still "let well enough alone" will be too palpable to fool the voters. High trust prices are an object lesson that too many are suffering from and the promise of reform at some distant date will hardly curb their impatience.

When the tariff barons refuse to allow the ratification of the reciprocity treaties which were intended to aid our export trade, how can the republicans, no matter what promises they may make in national platform, be expected to revise the tariff? When they decline to carry out a law of their own making which would reduce in a small measure the profits of two or three small monopolies, of what value are their promises to pass a law that would force competition on all the tariff monopolists?

With the republican majority in congress bound by fetters of steel to the tariff barons, it is absurd to expect them to strike off the shackles, and they never will do it.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow is described as being "six feet two inches tall and having an immense reach." But his reach is not "immense" enough to get over the statute of limitations and grab those beyond, nor does it seem to be long enough to touch those who are "higher up."—Savannah News.

——The feeling that the president had yielded to the clamor of the pension attorneys when he removed Mr. Evans seems to be justified by some of the recent rulings of his successor, Mr. Ware. The wholesale admission of a new class of pensioners means several hundred thousands more taken from the treasury.—Providence Journal (Rep.).

——The slight on Gen. Miles will not dim his fame. It is on a par with the disapproval of Admiral Dewey and Admiral Schley, expressed by the same administration, that takes this occasion to insult the hero of Spottsylvania, and Chancellorsville, and Ream Station, the conqueror of the Sioux and Cheyenne, Comanches and Bannocks, the captor of Geronimo, and the man who conducted the campaign in Porto Rico almost without the loss of a man, where a blunder would have exceeded the losses before Santiago.—N. Y. American.

——On the retirement of Lieut. Gen. Schofield some years ago, President Cleveland very gracefully expressed the feeling of the nation upon a similar occasion, and it was not believed that President Roosevelt would be less mindful of a soldier's fame or of the sentiment of a patriotic people. The studied slight upon Gen. Miles in the perfunctory order issued by the adjutant general, without a word of individual recognition, is not so much an insult to him as to the nation, an offense that the whole nation will resent. —Philadelphia Ledger (Ind. Rep.).

PULLEYS THAT WORK.

They Can Be Used for Many Purposes and Once Tried Will Be Found Indispensable.

Among the many mechanical inventions that help save the up-to-date farmer's time and labor, there are few things of greater utility than a set of self-locking pulleys. For stretching fence wire, for doing the otherwise heavy and inconvenient lifting of butchering time, for hoisting stone and timbers when putting up or taking down buildings, for strengthening up fruit trees blown out of root or raising windmill derricks, these automatic pulleys will be found of frequent use.

FIG. 1. HOISTING FRAME.

It would be impossible to enumerate off-hand all the purposes for which they may be used on a modern farm. In Figs. 1 and 2 is shown a simple and satisfactory method of using them for lifting on or off the wagon box or hay rack, a job that one man alone could not do without this convenience. Take two pieces of rope, A, A, Fig. 1, of proper length, and make a large loop at one end of each so as to slip over the ends of the wagon box. Tie the other end of each rope to an iron ring or rope loop, B, Fig. 1. Hang the self-locking pulley to a beam or crosspiece of the wagon shed directly over the middle of the wagon box. Fasten the rope sling, A, A, B, on the box indicated by dotted lines. Now by hooking the movable block of the pulley outfit into the loop, B, and pulling on the line, C, the box may be raised high enough to clear the wagon bed. Pull down on the small line, D, and the pulleys will be locked, leaving the box suspended. The wagon may now be run out and the box left hanging until it is needed again. If it is desired to remove the box and put on a hay rack, the box may be lowered after wagon is run out and the rack placed in the sling instead of it. The rack may then be lifted and the wagon backed under it so as to receive it.

If the shed in which the wagon is kept is not high enough to make use of this arrrangement, the pulleys may be hung in the threshing room of the barn and the operation of changing the box or rack done there. If the barn is not available and shed is too low, a couple of long poles with a cross-piece at top may be set in the ground, as shown in Fig. 2, and used as there illustrated.—J. G. Allehouse, in Ohio Farmer.

MIDSUMMER FARM WORK.

Rotation is a decided source of fertility.

Good manure is better than boughten fertilizer.

Don't hurry; take time to do your work right.

Don't stop hoeing in midsummer and let the fields seed themselves with burdock, pureiane, golden-rod, etc.

If you desire to rid land of sprouts, once and for all time, grub thoroughly during August. But if you prefer a yearly life-time task, grub at any other season.

You will obtain higher prices from buyers if your farmyard and buildings are kept in good order. Defects are expected in products from carelessly kept farms.

Keep land busy with cowpeas among the corn. As soon as the corn and peas are harvested, rye or some winter growing crop should be sown. It keeps the land from leaching and waeting during the fall and winter. It will furnish pasture, if required, or it may be turned under in the spring to add humus to the soil.—Farm and Home.

How to Use a Currycomb.

If a currycomb must be used have the smoothest one that can be found, and use it but sparingly. In the hands of some men the curycomb is a barbarous instrument of torture. Applied with a long, sweeping motion, without regard to the shape of the body, or the evenness with which it is held, will make a poor animal shrink and shiver. The skin is often seriously hurt by the angles of comb when carelessly and heavily handled. A short motion, back and forth, does the work more effectively and humanely than the severe application of the comb described. The horse will learn not to dislike it if he finds he is not hurt.

TWO KINDS OF WEEDS.

One Is Human, the Other Vegetable and the World Has No Use for Either of Them.

John Burroughs somewhere calls weeds "the tramps of the vegetable kingdom." The analogy is very fitting; for, like the human tramp, these vegetable vagrants range from the picturesquely good-for-nothing to the positively vicious. Sympathy or even tolerance for either is misplaced and worse than useless. The tramp is indeed one of the world's unfortunates and a certain sort of pity is due him for his fallen estate, but he cannot be brought back to self-respect and honest toil by alms nor mawkish philanthropy. His disease can only be cured by work. To feed him without an attack on the woodpile as a condition precedent, is to put a premium upon his idleness. It is a fine and beautiful thing to see the sweet, young matron giving a piece of bread and meat to the unkempt bleary animal who asks for a bite to assuage the pangs of hunger, and many a tender-hearted man says in a self-gratulatory way, as one who offers a ticket for a front seat in Paradise: "I never turn a hungry man away from my door." This is an especially blessed thng for the giver, but it is not the best gift for the recipient. Alms debases the receiver and confirms him in his weediness. There is no place in this good and bad world for weede, whether two-legged or one-legged. The struggle for existence writes their doom thus, as the fittest survive and multiply: "Get in line or get out." Either our vegetable and human parasites must show their reason for existence in the economy of things (which is admittedly a human conception) or they must make way for that which is useful or beautiful.—Rural World.

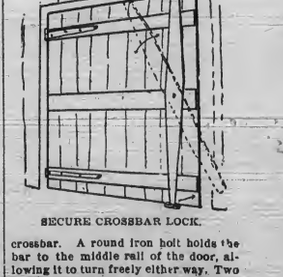
BEEF-PRODUCING FOODS.

Important Conclusions Reached by Prof. Mumford of the Illinois Experiment Station.

Having already referred to an important cattle feeding experiment recently conducted at the Illinois station by Prof. H. W. Mumford, we present some of the chief conclusions reached, taken from bulletin No. 83:

1. This experiment indicates that corn may be supplemented with clover hay, a nitrogenous roughage, in such a way that its influence will be practically as beneficial as the supplementing of corn with a nitrogenous concentrate, such as gluten meal.

2. That where clover hay or some other nitrogenous roughage is not available for supplementing the corn crop in fattening steers, a nitrogenous concentrate like gluten meal is highly advantageous.



3. That neither the corn ration supplemented by the use of a nitrogenous roughage on the one hand nor of a nitrogenous concentrate on the other, proved to be an ideal ration. It is believed that some judicious combination of the two yet to be determined will be found more satisfactory and profitable than either.

4. A ration of corn, timothy hay and corn stover has little to recommend it for beef production. It is not favorable for the production of large, rapid or economical gains; nor is the beef produced by such a ration desirable. It required 1.5 pounds more grain and .4 pounds more roughage to produce each pound of grain where timothy hay supplemented corn than where clover hay was used.

DESIRABLE DOOR LOCK.

A Convenient Way to Manage the Crossbar of Entrance Ways to Barns.

Large barn doors are often fastened to a perpendicular bar, one end of which enters a mortise in a beam or block overhead, and the other a mortise in the floor. The strength of a man is usually required to take out the bar, or put it up. The illustration shows a more convenient way to manage the crossbar. A round iron bolt holds the bar to the middle rail of the door, allowing it to turn freely either way. Two long gains, one in the floor and one in the beam overhead, receive the ends of the bar when the door is closed. In place of a gain in the beam, a strip of scantling may be nailed firmly to the under side of the beam. The upper end of the crosshar, when set erect, comes on the inside of the strip.—D. H. Shepard, in Farm and Home.

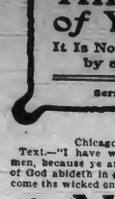
Salt in the Poultry Food.

Salt does not kill poultry, though such has been the claim. If the fowls are allowed to have access to the broken rock-salt, or brine from a pork or fish barrel, they may eat too much and be injured, but a proper proportion of salt in the food is as necessary for fowls as for animals. Many diseases are due to a failure to supply salt, and this accounts for the cures effected by it in some cases, the fowls when sick being benefited by salt because it supplies a long-felt want. —Farm and Fireside.

THE SUPERIOR TYPE of YOUNG MANHOOD



It Is Not a Product of the World, But Is Marked by a Union of the Human and the Divine.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday Aug. 23, 1903.

Text.—"I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the Word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one."—I John 2:14.

NO DOUBT John, the apostle, the one who is speaking in our text, was especially interested in young men—in a certain type of young men which he describes in the words before us. This is not to be wondered at, for John was a young man when he first met Jesus by the banks of the Jordan, and became His disciple. His was a strong nature. He was a young man in whose character the currents of life ran deeply. His affections and sympathies absorbed his whole nature. He was of quick perception and understood his Lord better than any other of His disciples. He realized the mighty influence which Jesus had exerted on his life; how from narrow Jewish prejudice he had been broadened in his views to take in the whole world; how, from low and selfish ideals having their realization in this life only, he had been inspired with the loftiest ideals which found their eternal realization in God, for he exclaims in this letter from which our text is taken: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." He realized how when he first met Jesus he was filled with great ambitions for this life only, but Jesus had turned this strong current Godward and had given him an ambition which reached as high as God and which was as broad as His eternal purposes. And because he realized what a mighty change and influence Jesus had wrought in his life as a young man, he himself was interested in young men. And young men are always interesting.

FATHER and mother quicken at the thought, for their hope, their ambition, their pride and joy are centered in the young man of their household. Younger brothers and the sisters with loyal devotion accord the young man the place of recognized authority and leadership. The young man himself finds within himself a fascinating object of contemplation, as the buoyancy of life, the expanding energies, the bounding ambitions, the persistent hopefulness are felt throbbing within. And because of this the young man is interested in young men as he is in no others. In the great wide world outside the home and outside of himself the young man is always the center of interest and expectation. The business and industrial world turns to the young men with assured confidence, expecting that its burdens will be carried and its problems worked out in the main by them. The nation's strength is in her young men. She always turns to them in the hour of danger and need. She leans heavily upon them because they are strong, and the honor and permanency of her government and institutions are measured by the character of her young men. There is no place in all the world where the human family finds a home where the young man has not an exalted place and is not a subject of interest and importance.

THERE are different types of young manhood, and should we ask which one is the superior type, we would no doubt receive a variety of answers. Some would reply the Apollo of physical perfection; others would esteem intellectualism as the qualification which was to determine; still others would declare that business acumen which would enable a young man to become a Napoleon of finance and industry was the trait which would mark the superior type of young manhood; while still others would hold that ethical standards should determine the question. But if we give John the opportunity of answering the question, he would point to the class of young men to whom he was writing and declare that there was the superior type of young manhood—the young manhood which was strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. Two great facts, yea three, must be kept in mind: That man was created by God and created in His own image, and man was created for the Glory of God. The highest possibilities of man must find their realization then in and for God. The manhood which reflects most perfectly the God in whose image man has been created, and fulfills most fully the purpose of that creation, must be the superior type of manhood.

THE sculptor with his chisel and mallet, and the artist with his palette and brush seek by their creative skill to produce something which will give expression to an inward ideal and bring to them glory, and honor, and fame. The highest mission of the statue or the oil painting would be to reveal the ideal of the one who had created it, and by its perfect outline and coloring bring to him glory. But suppose after the last chip had been taken from the marble and the last touch of the brush had been felt by the canvas, that the statue or the figure in the painting should willfully refuse to express the ideal of its creator and thus dishonor instead of glorifying the one who had so patiently wrought upon it? Suppose the bird which God has made to fly should lay aside its buoyant wings and with downcast eyes content itself with a life which never rose above the earth's green sod or the branches of the low-spreading bush? The lofty outlook in yonder tall tree would never feel the weight of the little songster, and the blue vault of heaven would not echo with the notes of his song. The highest and best possibilities of the little bird would not be realized. It is so with man, and especially the young man, for what the young man is nearly always determines what the character of the man in later life is to be. It is only as the thing created fulfills the mission of its creation that it can be said that it has realized its highest possibilities. Man has been created in the image of God—that is, he has been endowed with a spiritual nature which can only find its highest possibilities and its complete satisfaction in God Himself. He was created for God, and nothing but God can satisfy. This being true, the highest, the superior, type of young manhood is found not in the young man who achieves the merely human and earthly success or honor or power, but is found in the young man who links his life with God and gives expression to the Divine will.

STRONG young men! Found within the ranks of the disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ and not outside. Strange that the opinion should prevail in the world and among the young men of the world that religion is weak and effeminate. Strange, we say, and yet not so strange, for the devil is ever busy getting the world to believe a lie. And men prefer to believe a lie because their deeds are evil. The devil is the most clever sleight-of-hand performer the world has ever seen, and he can make you believe black is white and white black if you will but give him a free hand. Jesus had to tell him to "get thee behind Me, Satan," for he dared not parley with such a visitor. And if Jesus dared not, how dare you do such a thing? I remember a number of years ago when a clever trickster made me believe that he had ripped every button off my coat. He had not, but the movements of his hands were so swift and he held my coat in such a manner as to make it look exactly as though the buttons had been pulled off. He made me believe a lie. And Satan does that sort of thing, too. He paints religion in unattractive colors, and deludes young men into the idea that with it they are less manly, and less successful than without it. Do you think to find the really strong young man outside the ranks of the followers of Jesus Christ? Let us see.

THE man of fine physique rejoices in his strength, and during the vigor of life knows not what weakness means, but when the chilling hand of death is laid upon his powerful frame what has he to depend upon? If he is a follower of Christ he may shout with Paul, "Death is swallowed up in victory." But if he has refused to receive God's message to his soul, of what avail is his physical strength in the face of the eternal summons?

The moralist delights in his strength of will which enables him to live a clean, upright life, and he moves smoothly and proudly through the world until at last the grave opens and his career is ended. His moral strength has enabled him to leave with men a stainless record, but how is it when his soul gets into the presence of God? There moral worth loses its potency. There only the blood of Jesus Christ has the power to overcome the judgment of death standing against the human race, and is able to admit to Heaven. He has put his trust in his moral worth and he hears God say to his soul: "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God;" "There is none that doeth good, no not one," your moral worth is of no avail this side of the grave; depart from Me; for you have rejected My Son who went to earth to save you.

The man of intellectual strength may encompass the learning of the world and sit upon the pinnacle of the mountain of the world's wisdom. What towering strength holds him in his position of attainment? He excels all his fellows in learning. But the brain which has manifested such strength and capacity is soon palsied by death, and the soul with all of its learning is ushered into the presence of Him in Whom center all knowledge and wisdom. Dare the poor soul longer trust in the strength of its own wisdom as it hears the words: "The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God, because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men." "For the Lord taketh the wise in their own craftiness, and He knoweth the thoughts of the wise that they are vain." And the simplicity and faith of a little child is exalted above all his learning, for Jesus says: "Except ye become as little children, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven."

WEALTH wields a mighty power. The man with the golden key can unlock the treasure house of this world's possessions and gratify almost any desire of which flesh is capable. Money will buy any of the goods which are on the world's counters, but it will not buy a mansion in Heaven. Money will take one anywhere almost on the face of the earth, but it will not secure a passage across the dark river and into the pearly gates of the Celestial city. Money is able to buy up legislative bodies, and nations, and fill the offices of city county, state and nation; but all the gold mined and minted and all the gold yet resting in the bosom of Mother Earth is not sufficient to buy up God and alter His judgments. The man with his millions is a mighty factor in the affairs of men, but, like the rich man of Jesus' parable who was planning the building of larger barns that he might store his increasing treasures, when the summons comes to meet his God, he has to leave all his treasures behind. In naked poverty he was ushered before the judgment bar, and then what did it profit him that he was one of the richest men in all the world? For all that he could take with him into the next world—his soul—was lost forever. Who would say that the wealthy young man was the strong young man? So much for such strength as the world in various directions is able to produce. The superior type of young man is not found in any of them. Under the final testing at the hands of God, the vital qualification is found to be lacking. The counterfeit coin may pass current side by side with the genuine. It may look to be genuine, it may have the true rung, but subject it to the final test of the acid and its inferiority is at once apparent. The superior type of young manhood is not discovered by the world's testing, but by the searching testing of God. The strong young man is the superior young man.

THE young man who is strong physically must have life, and health and muscles, and these three conditions are requisite to the superior type of young manhood. These three qualifications are possessed by the young men to whom our text is addressed, and mark their vital points of difference from the other types of young men. Let us see if this is not true. The non-Christian young man, whatever else he may have, has not soul life, has not soul health, has not soul vigor. He may not be alive to his lack. He may be indifferent to his need. He may doubt the reality of his soul's need, but our final refuge must be in God's word to prove man's condition as well as his need, even as our final testing must be at God's hand. It is harder to make young men realize the deadness of the natural soul, because they are so full of physical life. Death seems a vague and unreal thing, and life is so full and promising. But apart from God there is no lasting life. The unsaved soul is "dead in trespasses and sins." The physical life may be perfect, the natural qualifications and attainments may be of the highest and best, but if the soul has not been quickened into life by the touch of the crucified Lord, the physical body, with its intellectual and moral attainments, is but the sepulcher of a dead soul. Think of it! Hidden behind the smile of the world, its pleasures, its ambitions, lies the soul, cold and stiff in death! Would you hope to find your superior young man in one who was thoughtlessly or wilfully furnishing a living tomb for his poor dead soul?

YOUNG men who are strong! Young men who have overcome! It takes the strong young man to win the victory over sin. It is the strong, young man who is the successful foe of the wicked one. The superior type of young man must of necessity be the young man who wins victories. Why boast of strength if victories are not to be an outgrowth of that strength? This arm of mine may rejoice in its strength, but if there is no weight to be lifted, no burden to be carried, no task to be wrought out, the arm soon shows the weakening effects of inaction, and so is no longer the strong arm, but the weak, powerless member, which is unable to serve me with efficiency and honor. It is a constant warfare for the strong young man if he would keep in fighting trim. The devil is aggressive and active. The soul cannot sleep at its post. It cannot be indifferent to the advance of the foe. David hasted and ran when the giant Goliath advanced upon him, for he knew that to hesitate or delay was to lose his supreme opportunity of sending the stone crashing into the forehead of the giant. Soon he would have the visor of his helmet lowered as he joined battle, and the only vulnerable point which David could reach with his missile would be cut off.

NOTE that the indwelling Word is the link which joins the strong young man to the victory. "I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the Word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one." The indwelling Word is the secret of strength. The Psalmist asks: "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way?" And quickly answers his own question by declaring: "By taking heed thereto according to Thy Word." "The Word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart." The young man of the unclean heart is in a condition of weakness. The expulsive power of God's Word is needed to cleanse the heart, while that same Word girds with strength and equips for the battle. Jesus put Satan to rout by His thrice-repeated: "It is written." The devil can stand unflinching and unscathed before the fire of the guns of human word and human effort, but let the thunderbolts of God's Word be turned upon him and he makes hasty and ignominious flight. And Satan must admit defeat before the strong young man in whom is abiding the Word of God. He is the superior young man, for both in this life and in the life to come he is victorious, yea, he is more than conqueror through Him that loved him, and gave Himself for him. Would you not join the ranks of the superior type of young manhood?

Life belongs to the living, and he who lives must be prepared for vicissitudes.—Goethe.

ROAD ACROSS THE DESERT.

Arid Colorado Plain Will Soon Be Traversed by Fine Boulevard Thirty-Five Miles Long.

Work is now in progress in southern California upon a boulevard intended to pass through the Colorado desert in a straight line from the projected town of Rockwood to Calexico, on the Mexican border. It will be 100 feet wide and 35 miles long. Along either side of the boulevard and down the center will be rows of trees to shut off the glare of the desert sun. Also on either side will be small canals, which will not only irrigate the shade trees, but also will be utilized to lay the dust when the road is completed. It will require only two men to care for the entire 35 miles.

The rapid growth of trees in the desert country will insure a magnificent avenue in a very short time. At the international line 14-month-old willows are growing on the banks of the imperial canal seven inches in diameter and 30 feet high. The boulevards will give access to the towns of Rockwood, Brawley, Imperial, Silsbee, Calexico, Mexicala, Mexicula and many new villages.

BIG ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE.

Immense Engine with Capacity of Two Thousand Horse Power Recently Completed.

The General Electric company has recently completed the largest electric locomotive in the world. It was built for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and will be used in the tunnel at Baltimore, taking heavy freight trains out of the city limits.

The locomotive weighs 189 tons and is designed to haul a freight train weighing 1,500 tons up a grade 1½ per cent. Its capacity is 2,000-horse power. It is controlled with the multiple unit system. There is a controller at either end of the cab, so that it may be run backward or forward. The locomotive is made up of two units, each weighing 80 tons, and is so arranged that any number of units may be coupled together, making a much larger as is desired. All the units are controlled from the one place. There are eight 42-inch drive wheels on each unit, making 16 drive wheels on the locomotive. The cab is of sheet steel and the frame of heavy cast steel.

NEW DEATH-DEALING DEVICE.

French Scientist Makes Terrible Discovery While Experimenting with Hertzian Rays.

Dr. Le Bon, the scientific French investigator, has reported an accidental discovery which may possibly lead to a terrible death dealing invention.

While he was experimenting with Hertzian rays in his laboratory he suddenly was surrounded by what he describes as a rain of fire from all metallic objects in the room. He concluded from this that it would be possible to construct large metal mirrors, capable of reflecting for several miles Hertzian rays, which would ignite any explosive substances encountered, such as shells and gunpowder in magazines and cartridges in soldiers' belts.

Warships particularly would be vulnerable owing to their extensive use of electricity, while torpedoes on board could be exploded by an enemy.

Find Whisky in a Coffin.

The Norfolk & Western railway force, which is extending the line near Naugatuck, W. Va., struck an old graveyard recently and the grading made it necessary to remove several dead bodies. One coffin was broken open and it was discovered that a bottle of whisky had been buried with it, presumably more than 30 years ago. The whisky was reinterred at another spot, with the moldering remains accompanying it.

FREE PROOF FORBIDS DOUBT.

GAINES, PA., August 3, 1903.—"I received your sample of Doan's Kidney Pills and since have taken two boxes, and I can truthfully say they are as good as they are recommended to be. When I began taking them I could not bend my back enough to pick up a stick of wood—sometimes could not walk or move my feet—had two doctors but did not get relief. I saw your ad., and got a trial box and have taken two besides, and I am able to do a very hard day's work. Doan's Kidney Pills are a God-send to humanity."—MRS. ELLA A. MATTISON, Gaines, Pa., Box 196.

The great fame of Doan's Kidney Pills is won by the wondrous power of the free trial to demonstrate surprising merit.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back, and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs, dropsy signs, and rheumatic pains vanish. They correct urine with brick dust sediment, high colored, pain in passing, dribbling, frequency, bed wetting. Doan's Kidney Pills remove calculi and gravel. Relieve heart palpitation, sleeplessness, headache, nervousness, dizziness.

GALESBURG, ILL., March 31, 1903.—"The sample of Doan's Kidney Pills came to hand. I also got one 50-cent box from our druggist, and I am thankful to say the pain across the small of my back disappeared like a snow bank in hot sun. Doan's Pills reach the spot."—ELMER WARFEL.

CAMBRIA, WYO.—"Previous to taking the sample of Doan's Kidney Pills I could scarcely bend my loins. Now I can sleep all night and rarely have to get up, and that aching across my back, a little above my hips, is gone."—ISAAC W. STEVENS, Cambria, Wyo.

Eskimo Language.

Commander Peary, the arctic explorer, was talking to a small bunch of newspaper men at Saratoga not long ago and they were asking him a number of questions about life in the extreme latitudes, of which he can talk most entertainingly. Some one asked if he spoke the Eskimo language, and he said he did. "What's it like?" continued the questioner. "For instance, how would an Eskimo say Good morning?" "He wouldn't say it," replied the commander, with a slight smile. "Indeed, and are they so untutored in the amenities of life?" "Not at all, not at all," the explorer explained. "You see, in a country where they would have occasion to use those words only once a year, they don't have them."—Detroit Free Press.

Empire State Express in Foot-Ball.

The New York Central's Empire State Express is recognized as the swiftest and most fast operated by American railroad, and it is claimed the very best means to cover the ground in the time required. It is for this reason that the Harvard University football team named their best and surest play of the season of 1902 the "Empire State Express," for they believed it to be the most reliable play in their programme. It was successful throughout the season until it met Yale's "20th Century Limited" play, which was just as swift, sure and sure, but had longer endurance and was "limited" only by the size of the field. The names of the rival teams very correctly describe the difference in the famous trains, the "Empire State" running only from New York to Buffalo, while the "20th Century Limited" makes the 980 miles between New York and Chicago in twenty hours every day of the year. Great is the New York Central and great are the trains it operates—swift, safe and reliable.—From the Brooklyn Standard Union.

Jim Richardson, of the Glasgow Times, concludes a three-column article in that sterling paper concerning the State political situation as follows: "But let no Democrat fool himself; we have a fight and a footrace before us. Nowhere along the line will there be a walkover, and victory will not be assured until the last day in the evening. Here are the cold facts in the case: There are nearly half a million voters all told in Kentucky. Three years ago Beckham won by 3,679 and Bryan carried the State by 8,098. If there is any sure thing in majorities from three to eight thousand in a total vote of nearly half a million I would be very grateful if somebody would show me where it is. We are going to win, but victory will come only after a hard bruising struggle, a campaign for blood and a fight from whereas to amen. And the sooner every Democrat realizes this and gets into his garments of belligerancy, the better will be the results. Furthermore, let's quit talking about 40,000 majorities. They are not here. A big Republican vote and a big Republican corruption fund are here and will be very much in evidence on the third day of November. It is time to get scared. Men and brethren, let's be a jumpin!' To our tents, oh Israel! The Philistines are right after us and they have their jaw bones with 'em."

THE death of Robert Wood, Democratic nominee for Commonwealth's Attorney in this the Fifteenth Judicial District, occurred at his home in Warsaw, Gallatin county, Monday afternoon. Consumption was the fatal disease, and had been preying up its victim for quite a while. Mr. Wood was a very energetic young man, and had his health not failed him, he would have made one of the leading lawyers in this part of the State. He had set his mark high and was using every energy to attain distinction among his fellowmen, and the fact that his party had nominated him for the important office of Commonwealth's Attorney, indicated a rapid achievement in that direction. Mr. Wood was about thirty-five years old, and leaves a wife and one child, a little girl. He served in the late war with Spain.

Farmers, fruit growers and dairymen are planning a monster combine for the purpose of maintaining prices and controlling distribution of food products. A part of the plan includes the erection of cold storage warehouses and elevators where produce will be held until the market reaches the correct figures. A convention of farmers to further consider the matter will be held September 8, in Chicago.

The Kenton county political pot "do boil," at least in Democratic camp, and the coming primary election over there will bring out nearly the entire vote of that party. When the time came to decide the manner by which the nominations should be made the opposition to a primary election proved very weak—not strong enough to make a noise that amounted to anything.

IN the remote towns of the mountainous section of the State quite a number of banks have recently been organized. During the month of May thirty new banks were organized in this State, and during the past month quite a number have taken definite shape. Still more are being planned, and will be established during the next few months.

According to reports the lawless element in Jackson is asserting itself since the military force was reduced. A reign of terror is said to have existed in the town Sunday night. The "blind tigers" are in full operation and law-abiding citizens are said to be fearful of a serious outbreak.

Acting on the suggestion of Judge Robbins that he probably understood his case better than his attorneys, and that he could make an argument when the proper time came, Caleb Powers, on trial at Georgetown, addressed the jury on his own behalf, an unusual proceeding.

At the reunion of Morgan's men at Parks' Hill last week it was decided to form a permanent organization and to hold annual reunions hereafter. The meetings are to be held in August, the place of meeting to be fixed by the Executive Committee of the organization.

If President Roosevelt is going to call Congress in extraordinary session merely to "make good" on what he threatened to do some months ago, his best policy is to acknowledge his mistake and let things drift along in the usual channel. There is not much symtom of anything being ready for Congressional action, and for the extraordinary session to pass away and the regular session to begin with nothing done, would be a great humiliation to the Administration.—Enquirer.

The length of the terms of the circuit courts in the fifteenth judicial district has been materially reduced since Judge Lassing went on the bench, and the cost to both the State and individual litigants has been reduced correspondingly. The auditor of public accounts says that Judge Lassing's business way of holding courts has reduced the cost to the State at least one third in the matter of jury and witness fees. This is a great compliment to the Judge's business tact.

Where's the harvester or other valuable tool?

There are now thought to be about 18,000,000 dairy cattle in this country, which allows one cow for about every four persons.

A writer on the subject of hogology, in speaking of the chief points of the modern hog, says that he has no points, but is round like a sausage.

Let the middlemen understand that the fruit of your labor is yours, not theirs, and if they will not deal justly with you, cut them out, and go straight to the consumer.

The farm implement or machine which will earn 25 per cent. on its cost yearly, as very many will is a far safer investment than bank stocks on deposits. We must learn to do business with the farm.

The next time you purchase bran examine it carefully to see whether it contains whole weed seeds. There was sent to Wisconsin last year a car of bran that contained 52,000 seeds to the pound, says an exchange. Think of putting the manure from ten tons of that bran on a field.

The young man in the country of frugal habits can have a larger bank account at the end of the year on a wage of $300, with board and laundry thrown in, than can the city fellow who gets a wage of $600 per annum. Nor will it be necessary for the young man in the country to deny himself any of the genuine pleasures of life in order to do this.

There is less demand every year for the extra large overfatted hogs that have taken two years to reach maturity. What is wanted for profitable feeding is a thrifty pig, that in six or seven or eight months' growth will average a pound of pork a day. This can usually be made at a profit. The heavier hogs cost more to keep, and the pork is neither so good, nor will it now sell so well, as pork that weighs 200 pounds or less per carcass.

Dysentery Cured Without the Aid of a Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux" (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn., "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For Sale by All Druggists.

There is no loss of time when it is used, as one or two doses of it will cure any ordinary attack. It never fails, not even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For Sale by All Druggists.

Manager A. B. Rouse took his ball team, the Boones, to Home City, last Saturday, and defeated the team at that place 9 to 4. At the close of the fifth inning the score was 4 to 0 in favor of Home City, and the large crowd of Kentucky rooters were feeling decidedly blue, but in the sixth the Boones began hitting the ball, and singles, doubles, tripples and home runs came in rapid succession, and when the game closed the score stood 9 to 4 in favor of the Boones. At the beginning of the season the Boones did all their playing the first five innings, but that has changed, and they do the work now in the latter innings, generally beginning about the seventh.

The Kentucky people were well pleased with the reception they were given last Saturday.

Following is the score by innings:

Struck out—By Hughes, 21; by Macbrair, 8; single hits, Souther, Hughes 2, Clutterbuck, Houston, Macbrair, Shambraugh, Siller; two base hits—Kirkpatrick; Home Runs—Souther, Houston.

The Erlanger team will play two games here on Labor Day, which is one week from next Monday.

NOTES

The millet patch proved a safe field in which to bat balls.

The north end of this county had a large representation at the game.

Henry Lassing, of Nashville, Tennessee, was present and was an enthusiastic rooter for the Boones.

James Houston, of the Boones, has knocked four homes runs this season. Houston is a terror to the occupant of the box.

For five long, weary innings, the Boones could not land a run, but when Herbert Kirkpatrick proclaimed the fire out with Home City, it was so.

The winning of the game by the Boones cost two or three Kentuckians something. Don't put up your money against home people. Keep it in your pocket.

Ordination of J. A. Kirtley, jr.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley, jr., was duly set apart to the work of the Gospel Ministry by prayer and the laying on of hands in Bullittsburg church on August 20th. Rerpresentative brethren from neighboring churches were present and set with the church in Council.

The following ministers were present and formed the Presbytery: Drs. J. A. and J. S. Kirtley, H. N. Quisenberry, D. B. Rickard, S. E. Davis, Dame, Protsman, B. F. Swindler, E. B. Atwood, C. A. Earle, W. S. Taylor. John L. Sproles.

The order of exercises was as follows:

Examination of candidate—led by B. F. Swindler.

Sermon—Dr. J. S. Kirtley.

Ordination Prayer—D. B. Rickard.

Charge to candidate—Dr. J. A. Kirtley, assisted by H. N. Quisenberry.

Presentation of Bible—John L. Sproles.

Duty of churches to look out for young men for the ministry and encourage them to exercise their gifts—S. E. Davis.

Benediction—By the candidate.

A large concourse of friends were present, which added much to the pleasure of the occasion. The exercises were instructive and touching, especially the charge by the aged father to his son.

Thus old Bullittsburg Church, mother of churches and ministers, sends one more of her young men out to proclaim the riches of a Savior's love.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley, jr., will continue his work as Assistant Pastor of the Ninth Street Baptist Church, Cincinnati, Ohio.

JOHN L. SPROLES, Pastor.

The following have been appointed as the Democratic campaign committee for this county:

Burlington—B. B. Allphin, chairman.

Florence—Judge Ben Stephens.

Gained forty Pounds in thirty days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of thirty days he had gained forty pounds of flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade on the Tablets.—Holley Bros., Merchants, Long Branch, Mo. For Sale by all Druggists.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c, at all Drug Stores.

Mrs. Wm. Vest, of Verona, was tried before Judge Cason and a jury yesterday, and was adjudged of unsound mind and ordered sent to the asylum for the insane at Lakeland. Mrs. Vest imagines that she has killed her little child, and tries to end her troubles by committing suicide. She jumped into a cistern yesterday morning, trying to drown herself.

A pretty good sized crowd attended Mr. Weir's sale in Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, last Monday afternoon. Stock brought fairly good prices. Cows, $22 to $32; calves, $8 to $15; horses, $18 to $120.

A considerable number of Burlington's population left yesterday afternoon, for the fair grounds at Florence, where they will engage in business the remainder of this week.

When the mercury has crawled up and is peeping over the century mark, you ought to know that it is warm enough for a person without interrogating him on the subject.

Florence is a very lively town, this week, and everybody is prepared to do his part toward taking care of the large crowd that the fair will draw there.

Sheriff B. B. Allphin has charge of the police force at the fair, this year. The force is composed of citizens of this county.

Lost—In Burlington, Aug., 19th, heavy, plain gold ring, with inscription. Reward if returned to Mrs. J. R. Clutterbuck.

Dust and heat do not keep everybody away from the fair.

The dry weather has about ruined the gardens.

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50c, Satisfaction guaranteed. By All Druggists.

The experiment of growing white burley tobacco under canvas now being made by the Continental Tobacco Company, on the farm of J. E. Cahill near Maysville, Ky., promises to prove a remarkable success. The object is to obtain a fine leaf suitable for cigar wrappers. Mr. Cahill reports the tobacco growing under canvas without a blemish so far, and says it is at least a month nearer maturity than tobacco growing in the same field that was set out at the same time. That under canvas is more uniform in its growth and is much larger and of finer texture. Mr. Cahill also concluded to experiment with growing tomatoes under canvas, and finds it is a success far beyond all anticipations. Those under canvas matured much earlier and are at least twice as large and superior in every respect.—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

THE CANAL TREATY.

The Colombian Senate Unanimously Rejected It.

Washington, Aug. 18.—A cablegram dated August 13 has been received at the state department from Minister Beaupre, at Bogota, saying that the Panama canal treaty has been rejected by the Colombian senate. President Roosevelt was immediately advised of the news, Mr. Beaupre's telegram being forwarded by Acting Secretary Loomis to Oyster Bay.

The reason given for the rejection of the treaty by the Colombian senate, it is said here, was the alleged encroachment on Colombian sovereignty which its opponents contended would result from the treaty.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Unofficial, but what is considered entirely trustworthy information, has been received by Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge d'affaires here, indicating an intention on the part of the Colombian senate to resume consideration of the subject of a Panama canal treaty in place of the one disapproved by that body on the 12th instant. This shows a decided change in the turn of affairs and leads Dr. Herran to hope that a measure yet will be passed by congress which will form the basis for the ratification of a treaty between the United States of Colombia and the United States of America for the construction of the isthmian canal.

Dr. Herran's information is that on the 13th the senate voted to appoint a committee of three members to act jointly with a committee from the house of representatives the formation of a measure having for its object the ratification of a treaty between the two countries by the executive of Colombia after the two houses of the Colombian congress had passed an enabling act outlining the terms and conditions on which a treaty should be drawn. The president of Colombia by this act would have full power in the premises, and the treaty would not have to be afterwards submitted to the Colombian congress. The scheme is similar in its intent to the provisions of the Dingley tariff act which gave authority to the president to negotiate reciprocity treaties with foreign powers, except that in that case they had to be ratified by the United States senate. The idea contained in the proposition is not dissimilar to the Spooner act itself, as this act gave authority to the president to begin negotiations with the governments of Nicaragua and Costa Rica in the event that he was unable to reach a satisfactory agreement with Colombia for a right of way for the Panama canal.

THE BALL PARK ACCIDENT.

Coroner Concludes His Investigation and Returns a Verdict.

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—The coroner Wednesday concluded his investigation into the accident at the Philadelphia National league baseball park on August 8 which resulted in the death of 12 persons and the injury of 200 others. During the progress of a game on that day a board walk at the top of the field seats, projecting over the street, collapsed, precipitating several hundred spectators into the street.

The coroner's verdict in part is as follows:

"We find that the accident was due to the rotten condition of the supporting timbers of the balcony and we further find that the Philadelphia Basehall club, limited (the former owner), was responsible for not having a thorough examination made of these timbers throughout the time of their ownership and in stating at the time of the transfer that the buildings were in first-class condition."

This verdict absolves from blame the present owners of the Philadelphia National league hasehall club, who purchased the franchise early this year from the former company of which John I. Rogers was the principal stockholder.

TO MAINTAIN PRICES.

Farmers, Fruit Growers, Dairymen and Others to Combine.

The Plan Contemplates the Erection of Grain Elevators and Cold Storage Warehouses in All Parts of the Country.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Plans for combining farmers, fruit growers, dairymen and all other producers of natural food products into one national organization were considered at a conference Wednesday between representatives of several farmers' co-operative associations. This movement has for its purpose the maintaining of prices, the control of distribution of products and the saving of large sums of money paid in commissions. The plan under consideration contemplates the erection of grain elevators and cold storage warehouses in all parts of the country where products may be held if necessary until such times as they can be marketed at a fair price. As a result of the conference it was decided to hold a farmers' convention in Chicago September 8 to consider detailed plans of organization.

The call for the convention follows: In view of the uncertainties at present attending the reporting of crops and markets and of prices of farm products a meeting was held at Chicago Wednesday by representatives of several farmers' co-operative associations to devise means looking to the betterment of present conditions. It was agreed to call another meeting that would more fully represent the organized and unorganized farmers' interests. Said meeting is called for September 8 at the Grand Pacific botel. It is desired that all organizations representing the various agricultural products, grain, stock, fruit, cotton, dairy and other interests must be represented.

Progressive farmers are all invited to attend so that one of the present plans may be adopted or that from all of them one may be devised that will be most acceptable to the agricultural interests and in which all workers for the upbuilding of the country can unite.

The call is signed by Robert Lindbloom, president Farmers' National Co-Operative exchange, Chicago; J. A. Everitt, president American Society of Equity, Indianapolis, and D. L. Wilson, representing the dairy interests, Elgin, Ill. It was claimed by those who attended Wednesday's conference that when the organization is completed the farmer will be able to get $1 a bushel for wheat, 60 cents for corn and 40 cents for oats throughout the year.

FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

National Negro Business Men's League Meets at Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 20.—Some 1,500 Negroes, representing almost every section of the country, assembled in the house of representatives at the state capitol Wednesday morning, the occasion being the opening of the fourth annual convention of the National Negro Business Men's league. The sessions will continue until Thursday evening. Booker T. Washington, the Alabama educator and president of the league, was the central figure of the convention and his address Wednesday night attracted a large audience.

IN THE TANANA DISTRICT.

Several Hundred Miners on the Verge of Starvation.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 20.—A special dispatch to the Province from Dawson says that H. Bratnoder, a miner, arrived Wednesday from the American Tanana with the story that several hundred miners are on the verge of starvation in the northern part of Tanana district. Several are said to have already died and many of the living are existing on berries. Bratnoder passed through the district a fortnight ago.

Dan Patch Broke the Record.

New York, Aug. 20.—The world's pacing record was broken by Dan Patch Wednesday at Brighton Beach, making the mile in 1:59. The quarter was made in 0:28¼, the half in 0:58¾, and the three quarters in 1:29½. Star Pointer held the record, which was 1:59¼.

Montreal, Aug. 20.—Resolutions urging the establishment of fast steamship lines between the United Kingdom and her colonies were adopted at the congress of chambers of commerce of the empire Wednesday.

FRIGHTENED A TEAM.

Chauffeur For Mayor Julius Fleischmann Arrested.

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Judge Allen B. Parker and County Judge John G. Van Etten Friday caused the arrest of Joseph H. Bridges, chauffeur for Mayor Julius Fleischmann, of Cincinnati.

The mayor and a party of friends were on their way to Fleischmann's in the Catskills, Mr. Fleischmann's summer home. Bridges sped past Judge Parker's carriage on Broadway at an estimated speed of 40 miles an hour. The team became frightened and only the combined efforts of Judge Parker, Judge Van Etten and a liveryman prevented its running away. Meanwhile the automobile, it is said, caused another team to run away, the horses plunging into the office windows of the Kingston Electric Co.

Mr. Fleischmann was served with papers in an action of damages when he appeared at the courthouse. He settled all claims for $250, and secured the release of Bridges. He was accompanied by Henry Ackerman and Joseph Wilshire, of Cincinnati, and Charles J. Christy, his secretary.

SHOTS WERE EXCHANGED.

Women and Men Engaged in a Street Riot at McKeesport, Pa.

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 22.—Women and men engaged in a street riot Friday. The trouble took place in 13th street as a number of workmen employed at the Port Vue tin plate mill, where the strike declared three months ago still remains unsettled. The workmen had a keg of beer and the strikers attempted to take it from them. Shots were exchanged but no one was injured. The women, armed with brooms and other implements of housewifery took part in the affair. Several workmen were beaten by the attack of the women who for the first time have taken a hand in the strike riots here. Two women, who keep a boarding house for non-unionists, were chased several squares by the infuriated female strike sympathizers.

SECRETARY OF WAR ROOT.

Sailed For Liverpool on the Celtic of the White Star Line.

New York, Aug. 22.—Secretary of War Elihu Root sailed for Liverpool Friday on the Celtic, of the White Star line. He goes to England to act with Senator Lodge and former Senator Turner, of Washington, as the United States representatives on the Alaskan boundary dispute. Before sailing the secretary declared that he would, according to his present plans, leave the cabinet about the middle of the winter. He would not enter into any discussion of his future plans except to deny that he was going to enter actively in politics.

FROM ONE CROP.

A Big Fortune For One Farmer in North Carolina.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 22.—T. L. Emery, a farmer living in North Carolina, not far from the Virginia line, will make on his crops this year as much as the president of the United States makes in one year. He has the finest crop of corn ever seen in this section of the state, and his cotton and peanut crops are full and perfect. He says his income from the one season's planting will certainly reach $50,000, and may pass this figure.

COTTON MILL SITUATION.

It Will Show Considerable Improvement next Week.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 22.—The cotton mill situation in this city will show considerable improvement next week over the present conditions, resumption of manufacturing being planned at several mills. Compared with the present week there will be 2,300 more operatives working, $17,000 will be paid out in wages and 26,000 more pieces of cloth will be made. There will be 53,000 spindles again in operation against 30,000.

Crimmitschau, Saxony, Aug. 22.—About 7,500 textile workers of this district have struck for shorter hours of labor. The police broke up four meetings because non-resident officials of the textile workers' union addressed them.

Traces of Harvey Logan.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 22.—Traces of Kid Curry, or Harvey Logan, the Montana desperado, who escaped from a Tennessee jail, have been found at Great Falls, says a dispatch to the Inter Mountain.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

The Proceedings of the 37th Annual Assemblage.

Gen. John C. Black, of Illinois, Was Elected Commander-in-Chief—The Next Encampment Will Be Held in Boston.

San Francisco, Aug. 20.—Ten thousand survivors of the civil war passed in review Wednesday, marching to the martial tunes that inspired them to endeavor 40 years ago. Above the national colors, borne by every marcher, proudly floated torn and tattered flags. These, with empty sleeves and limping gait, were eloquent reminders of the sorrow and glory of war.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—The Grand Army of the Republic Thursday selected Boston as the place in which the encampment of 1904 will be held, and elected the following officers:

The first report of the afternoon was that of the flag committee. It recommended the passage of bills through congress and the different states for the purpose of fostering public sentiment in favor of honoring the national flag. The report of the committee was adopted.

A proposition to admit sons of veterans into the grand army posts was strongly supported, but after an extended debate was defeated by a small majority. The encampment adopted a resolution requesting congress to pass a bill pensioning all veterans who have reached the age of 62 years.

The Woman's Relief Corps elected the following officers Thursday afternoon: National president, Sarah Winans, Ohio; senior vice commander, Ursula M. Mattison, Washington.

The National Association of Army Nurses of the civil war held its annual election Thursday. There was a large number present and the meeting was largely of a social nature, though held in executive session. The following officers were elected: National president, Mrs. Addie L. Ballou, California; national vice president, Mrs. Susannah Mimps, Pennsylvania; junior vice president, Mrs. James Smith, Ohio; treasurer, Mrs. S. M. Stewart, Gettysburg, Pa.; chaplain, Mary E. Lacy, New Jersey; guard, Mary F. Fox, New Jersey; conductor, Mrs. E. L. Chapman, Illinois.

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—The 37th national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic closed Friday afternoon after a protracted morning session. The newly elected officers, with the exception of Junior Vice Commander Kessler, who is now on the way from the Philippines, were installed.

It was resolved to telegraph to President Roosevelt the resolution favoring the pensioning of veterans of 62 years of age, which was adopted Thursday.

The committee on resolutions presented a number of resolutions on which action was taken. The proposal to make all past adjutant generals members of the encampment was defeated. A resolution favoring legislation to prevent, by education and in other ways, the desecration of the flag was adopted.

The proposed establishment of national soldiers' homes at Fort Sherman, Idaho, in Florida, and in Oklahoma was endorsed.

The encampment unanimously adopted the following resolution introduced by Capt. P. H. Coney, of Topeka, Kan.:

"Resolved, That we congratulate that splendid soldier, exemplary commander and patriotic citizen, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, on his attainment of a distinguished and honorable retirement after a matchless record as a soldier of over 42 years' service without just criticism of his official conduct, which began as a lieutenant in the 22d Massachusetts infantry, progressing by the brightest grade of heroic patriotism from Manassas to Appomattox, during the greatest of all civil wars, from 1861 to 1865, and illuminating this record by his great military achievements as a successful Indian fighter and again as a great and judicial military disciplinarian and organizer."

Commander-in-Chief Black, after the adjournment of the encampment, received the following telegram from Gen. John B. Gordon, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans:

"My hearty congratulations to you and the country. Your election assures unanimous and increased good will and closest amity."

Gen. Black responded as follows:

"The encampment having adjourned, I have submitted your message to the council of administration, and I am directed by them to acknowledge it and say, as I do, that they fully reciprocate its fraternal and beneficent spirit. God bless our land."

Stabbed With a Hatpin.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 22.—F. H. McArthur, a stockman of Saco, Mont., was probably fatally stabbed Friday in the stomach with a hatpin by a woman, who thought that Mr. McArthur had brushed a little feather duster in her face.

John Elsler Dead.

New York, Aug. 22.—John Elsler, father of Effie Elsler, the actress, and himself a veteran actor and theatrical manager, died at his home in this city early Friday, aged 82. Heart disease caused his death.

The Question Answered.

Estill Springs, Tenn., Aug. 20th.—Many questions are being asked of Mr. C. D. Holt of this place in regard to his wonderful recovery. For two years he has been down with his back. He was so very bad that he could not even lace his shoes, and from this condition he suddenly appeared well and strong as ever.

It is no wonder therefore that his friends are asking him "How did you do it?"

He tells them all: "Dodd's Kidney Pills did it," and adds "This remedy is a genuine good medicine and one that I can heartily recommend to everybody.

"Everyone around here knows how very bad I was. I was so weak in my back that I couldn't do anything that needed stooping or bending over, and three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made me as you see, as well as ever I was."

"They certainly had a wonderful effect on my case."

The Summer Bath.

Nothing is more refreshing or invigorating in summer than a daily bath. Use soft, tepid water and good soap. Ivory soap is ideal for the bath; it is pure, lathers quickly and leaves the skin soft and white. The bath should be taken early in the morning, or just before retiring at night. ELEANOR R. PARKER.

"I had terrible pains along my spinal cord for two years and suffered dreadfully. I was given different medicines, wore plasters; none of these things helped me. Reading of the cures that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought about, I somehow felt that it was what I needed and bought a bottle to take. How glad I am that I did so; two bottles brought me immense relief, and after using three bottles more I felt new life and blood surging through my veins. It seemed as though there had been a regular house cleaning through my system, that all the sickness and poison had been taken out and new life given me instead. I have advised dozens of my friends to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Good health is indispensable to complete happiness, and Lydia E. LORD SALISBURY DEAD.

The English Statesman Succumbed to Internal Paralysis.

In His Death Passes the Greatest Englishman of the Day—King Edward Pays a Tribute to the Dead Diplomat.

London, Aug. 24.—Lord Salisbury, last of the great statesmen of the past generation, is dead under the burden of his advanced age.

Lord Salisbury had been ill since early last winter, but his condition was not regarded as serious until in the beginning of the present month. According to the medical journals he suffered from internal paralysis, which developed from the illness following the death of his wife in 1899. Notwithstanding his illness, he had persisted in working until he was forced to take to his bed.

In the death of Lord Salisbury passes the greatest Englishman of the day. Ten years ago half the nation only would have asserted so much; to-day all Britain recognizes him as such.

The newspapers Monday morning, some of which appear with black borders, devote the bulk of their space to the last hours and career of the marquis of Salisbury. In their editorials they pay warm tributes and express deep admiration for the dead man, recognizing that with him there passes away the last of the great English statesman of the Victoria era, as well as the last of the brilliant group of European diplomats.

King Edward's tribute to the deceased marquis of Salisbury was given in the Court Circular Sunday night, dated Marlenbad, Sunday. It runs as follows:

"The king has received with profound regret the news of the death of the marquis of Salisbury and his majesty deeply deplores the loss of so great a statesman whose invaluable services to Queen Victoria, to the king and his country in the highest offices of state which he held for so many years will ever dwell in the memory of his fellow countrymen."

Messages of condolence are pouring in at Hatfield house. The senders include King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the queen of Portugal and President Loubet. Touching references were made to the dead statesman in the pulpits of almost all the churches in the United Kingdom. There were many visitors to the village of Hatfield Sunday.

The parish church was crowded Sunday morning, the worshipers including Premier Balfour, the earl and countess of Selborne, the marquis' sons and the members of his family and household.

Lord William Cecil, the rector of the church, officiated, but beyond choice music and appropriate hymns the service was of the usual character.

The senior curate in his sermon paid a tribute to the deceased, especially dwelling on his private virtues and his devotion to the church. In the conclusion of the discourse the whole congregation rose and remained standing while the organist played the Dead March in Saul. The funeral has been provisionally fixed for the end of this week to enable Lord Edward Cecil, who is on his way home from Egypt, to assist.

CHICAGO RESTAURANTS.

All Their Employes to Go Out on Strike Monday Morning.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—In pursuance of the declaration made Saturday that a strike would be called in all the restaurants controlled by the Chicago Restaurant Keepers' association and a number of others the strike committee of the Waiters' union will at daylight Monday morning begin to call out the thousands of restaurant employes upon whom the throngs of business men in Chicago depend for sustenance. At least 150 restaurants in the down-town and outlying districts will be visited by the labor committees and the leaders declare that before night 9,000 persons will be idle.

The officials of the Restaurant Keepers' association say that the impending strike is a direct violation of agreements that have been signed by the association and the unions and that if the strike is called the restaurants will be kept open for business with non-union help.

Cruiser Pennsylvania Launched.

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—The giant armored cruiser Pennsylvania was launched at the yards of the William Cramp Ship and Engine Building Co. Saturday. Miss Coral Quay, daughter of Senator Quay, was the ship's sponsor.

Gen. Chaffee in Portland, Me.

Portland, Me., Aug. 24.—Maj. Gen. Chaffee, who is to be the commander for the army in the war maneuvers at this port this week, arrived here Sunday. With him were Gen. Barry, Capt. Harper and Capt. Hamilton.

VILLAGES BURNED.

More Fighting at Adrianople Resulted Favorably to the Rebels.

Sofia, Aug. 24.—From Eastern Adrianople comes reports of more fighting which so far appears to be resulting chiefly in favor of the revolutionists. Many villages have been burned and their inhabitants have taken refuge across the Bulgarian frontier. After a long fight at Stoloro the insurgents defeated a detachment of Turkish troops, which lost 20 killed and wounded.

At Chanagasko, near Surovicovo, insurgents are reported to have annihilated an entire Turkish regiment.

At Bulankzezra, near Ornovoro, 75 revolutionists are credited with defeating a Turkish battalion. The villages of Andermis and Enrika, near Vasiliko, have been burned to ashes.

The Turks have bombarded and destroyed the monastery of Constantine, near Losengrad, where 50 insurgents had fortified themselves. The villages of Bakdgik, Konakara, Evren, Dingisco and Brusheva, have all been burned and their inhabitants have fled. The large village of Drumbegie, near Losengrad, has been burned by Bashi Bazouks. The villages of Buch, with 300 houses, and Rakoro, 200 houses, situated in the vilayet of Monastir, have also been burned by Turkish troops. Two hundred women and children from these villages are now begging in the streets of Monastir.

The Turkish government has organized a special court at Monastir to try the captured insurgents. The tribunal is composed of a Turkish president, three other Turks, two Greeks and one Albanian. It will partake of the character of a criminal court and not of a court-martial.

A FIGHT TO BE WAGED.

Proposed Increased Assessments on Older Members A. O. U. W.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24.—A vigorous fight will be waged against the proposed increased assessments upon the olders members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. A committee representing the protesting members will report at a mass meeting to be held here on September 1. The committee has also addressed a communication to the National Fraternal Congress, which meets in annual session in Milwaukee on Augnst 25, urging that body to use its influence with the supreme officers of the workmen to have the recent enactment rescinded.

THE BLACK SEA SQUADRON.

It Has Been Recalled to Sebastopol By the Russian Government.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—The Russian Black Sea squadron, which was ordered to Turkish waters and which arrived at Iriada, Eastern European Turkey, August 19 to support Russia's demands on the sultan, growing out of the assassination of M. Rostkowski, Russian consul at Monastir, has been recalled to Sebastopol, the squadron's point of departure. The recall followed a notification from the porte that the sultan had ordered all the Russian demands to be complied with.

SPECIAL TRAIN WRECKED.

Engineer and Fireman Were Killed and Others Injured.

Little Falls, N. Y., Aug. 24.—A special train on the New York Central carrying New York city newspapers, was wrecked at Gulf bridge in this city Sunday. Engineer Robert Lilly and Fireman Peter Conley, both of Albany, were killed, and employes of the World and Sun, the Rochester News Co. and American and Journal were severely injured. Conductor Erhard and several other members of the train's crew were slightly injured.

WRECK OF A CIRCUS TRAIN.

One Man Scalded to Death and Four Others Severely Burned.

Brunswick, Mo., Aug. 24.—One man was scalded to death, four others were severely burned by escaping steam and six trick ponies were killed Sunday in the wreck of a circus train.

The locomotive and a car containing the men and ponies were demolished and the escaping steam scalded five men who were asleep in bunks over the ponies.

A Sympathetic Strike.

New York, Aug. 24.—At the close of a stormy session of the Central Federal union Sunday it was voted to stand by the Marine Machinists' union in the strike for an increase in wages. This was taken to mean that a sympathetic strike, tying up all the ship yards in New York and vicinity, may be ordered this week.

The Hanna Mine Explosion.

Rawlins, Wyo., Aug. 24.—The Union Pacific Co. has made a settlement with the estates of 41 miners who lost their lives in the Hanna mine explosion of June 30. The sum of $800 will be paid to each widow and $50 to each child and $45 for each single man.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Saturday's statement of the treasury balance in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $228,202,903; gold, $101,150,226.

Honolulu, Aug. 24.—Gov. Dole and other territorial officers have decided to try to float the $2,000,000 loan authorized by the last legislature. It is thought that the local banks will take the entire issue.

PLEASURE BOAT SUNK.

Thirty Persons Were Thrown Into the Water.

Several Men Became Wild From the Excitement and Made Attempts to Throw Women and Children From the Vessel.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 24.—Amid scenes of panic in which terror-stricken men lost their heads and sought to throw women and children overboard, the pleasure steamer Indiana went to the bottom of the Indianapolis Water Co.'s canal at Fairview Park Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

The park officials think nobody was drowned, but J. N. Oliphant, of Indianapolis, and P. E. Betts, of Anderson, Ind., who were passengers, say that they saw a woman and baby sink to the bottom. They did not see them come to the surface again and feel sure they were drowned.

About fifty people were on board when the vessel sank, about three-quarters of a mile above its starting point in the canal, which is about eight miles long and runs from Indianapolis to Broad Ripple Park. The canal is narrow and from ten to fifteen feet deep in the middle. It is not yet certain what sent the steamer to the bottom.

Defective machinery, overloading on one side and leaks are blamed by different persons.

Skiffs on the canal aided in the work of rescue of fainting women and children. Mr. Bates, who says he saw the woman and baby drown, saved his wife as she sank the third time. She weighs over 200 pounds.

Thirty people were thrown into the water when the boat sank. Several of the male passengers did heroic work in getting them to shore. They were aided by the ship's crew. Much additional excitement was caused by several men on the boat who became panic-stricken and tried to throw women and children into the water. Search is being made to see if any bodies are at the bottom of the canal.

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 24.—The Annie Roberts, an excursion boat carrying 1,500 passengers, sunk at the foot of Market street here Sunday night, but no one was drowned. The boat had been up the river with the Ancient Order of Hibernians No. 7 and their guests from Pittsburg on their annual outing.

ANOTHER ERUPTION.

Vesuvius Takes on a Fresh Period of Activity.

Naples, Aug. 24.—The prediction of Prof. Kruil, of Munich, has been fulfilled as Vesuvius Saturday night had a fresh period of activity. Frequent explosions were heard and stones were thrown to a height of 600 feet above the crater, while at the same time a slight earthquake was felt. The stream of lava has again begun flowing in the direction of Pompeii, although its progress is slow. The volcanic eruption was dwindling Sunday night.

ILLEGAL FISHING.

Canadian Government Determined to Put a Stop to It.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 24.—The department of marine and fisheries is determined to put an end to illegal fishing in the great lakes. It is not the intention of the government, however, to enforce the law with seven-pounders, as has been intimated in some quarters, since the Petrel-Silver Spray incident occurred. It is the opinion in official circles that the desired end can be attained without resorting to harsh measures, which might lead to international complications.

CANADIAN EXPEDITION.

Will Make Observations of Climate, Geology and Natural Resources.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 24.—To prevent another Alaskan boundary controversy and to make observations of the climate, geology and natural resources of both land and sea of the northern regions of Canada an expedition sent out by the Dominion government sailed from Halifax Sunday on the steamer Neptune for Hudson bay. The expedition will report on the alleged extensive poaching operations carried on in that great sea by the Americans.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Sprouting Peas in a Child's Stomach Causes Its Death.

Creston, Ia., Aug. 24.—Sprouting peas in the stomach of a 7-year-old daughter of John Ponte, a railroad conductor, Sunday caused her death. She was taken sick ten days ago and doctors said she was suffering from dysentery. An autopsy revealed the fact that the child had swallowed peas whole, that they had sprouted and were growing in her stomach.

Zionists Congress.

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 24.—The sixth Zionist congress opened here Snday under the presidency of Dr. Theodore Hersel, of Vienna. Five hundred delegates from all parts of the world, including the United States and Canada attended.

Garibaldi's Son is Dead.

THE CUP DEFENDER.

The Reliance Outfooted and Outpointed the Shamrock.

New York, Aug. 21.—One of the biggest crowds of sightseers and yachtsmen that ever sailed down Sandy Hook to witness an attempt of a foreign cup hunter to wrest from America the yachting supremacy of the world, returned to New York Thursday disappointed because the sea had refused a field of combat to the racers, but nevertheless, jubilant in the conviction that Sir Thomas Lipton's latest challenger, like the two Shamrocks which had preceded her, was doomed to return to England empty handed. Of course the race Thursday was not absolutely conclusive owing to the light and shifting character of the airs, but in a 15-mile beat to windward, a portion of which was sailed in a driving rain, the cup defender, Reliance, showed its heels to Shamrock III. in commanding style, and in weather conditions which were supposed to be to the particular liking of the challenger.

During the last two hours of the race Reliance steadily increased its lead, rounding the turn a mile ahead of Shamrock. Heading back for home close hauled, Reliance had just reached Shamrock, still outward bound, when, it being apparent that the race could not be finished in the time allowance, the regatta committee boat at 3:45 fired the signal which declared the race off. Under the rules the first race, 15 miles to leeward or windward and return, is now postponed until Saturday.

New York, Aug. 24.—In the international yacht race Saturday afternoon between the American yacht Reliance and the British boat Shamrock III., the former beat the cup challenger nine minutes.

WIFE OF A DESTITUTE STRIKER.

She Attempted to Kill Herself and Her Four Children.

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Two children are dead from inhaling illuminating gas. They are Clara and Berths Roder. Their mother and two other children are in a dangerous condition. Mrs. Roder said she had attempted to murder her children and commit suicide.

She said that her husband, who is a textile striker, was without money, and that the family, who were without food, would have been forced to vacate their home Saturday.

REACHED NEW YORK.

The Battleship Massachusetts Will Go in Dry Dock.

New York, Aug. 24.—The United States battleship Massachusetts which was considerably damaged on August 12 by striking on a ledge of rocks during a fog while off the Maine coast, reached New York harbor Sunday night. She was convoyed by the battleship Indiana and the navy tug Potomac. The Massachusetts will go in dry dock at the New York navy yard, Brooklyn, for repairs.

CONVICT JOSEPH MURPHY.

One of the Men Who Escaped From Folsom Prison Captured.

Reno, Nev., Aug. 24.—Convict Joseph Murphy, who escaped from Folsom prison, was captured here Sunday night. Convict Frank Miller was with Murphy at the time, but jumped off the side walk into the willows. Several shots were fired at him but he escaped. In the darkness a large posse is on the trail of Miller and his capture is expected at any moment.

Kills Three Men.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—The packing house of the Ontario Powder Co. Tweed, Ont., was blown up and three men were killed. The explosion broke many plate glass windows in the town and injured buildings.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST

THE POWERS TRIAL.

Henry Youtsey Was on the Stand For Five Hours Friday.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 15.—For five hours Friday the convict, Henry Youtsey underwent a very trying and vigorous cross-examination as to his participation in the conspiracy which, he says, resulted in the assassination of William Goebel. For all of that he maintained the calm demeanor that the people of Scott county can not understand in him after the sensations he furnished them two years ago when he was himself on trial here and "threw a fit" in the court room to keep from going on the witness stand, and to excite sympathy in the minds of the jurors trying him. When he told them Friday, in response to questions of the defense attorneys, that he had faked them, he did so with a smile on his face and some embarassment, causing a general laugh in court.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 18.—Caleb Powers took the witness stand in his own defense at the afternoon session of court Monday. Examined by Judge Jere R. Morton, of his counsel, he told the story he has repeated on the stand on each of his preceding trials, inserted new matter now and then by entering denial to the story told by Frank Cecil, of Bell county, that he was seeking some one to enact the role of assassin. He was very earnest in his denial of the Cecil matter. In making answer to questions the defendant continually made explanation of what he meant. A number of times he fell into error in making these explanations, and was corrected by the court. Attorneys Franklin and Campbell followed his recital closely and often interrupted.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 19.—The direct and cross-examination of Caleb Powers, on the stand in his own defense, was concluded Tuesday afternoon and the defense had an inning with Robert Noaks, the commonwealth witness. He was confronted with a statement made by him at Danville, Ill., on December 9, 1900, to Max Lewis, of Louisville, and Attorney W. E. Jewell, of that place. In that statement Noaks charged Attorney Campbell with trying to secure him to swear falsely to secure the conviction of Jim Howard and of Finley and Powers, and told him of buying witnesses. He made the statement, but said that after making it he told Lewis and Jewell that it was a fact, that he refused to swear to it or ever to sign it.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 20.—Former United States senator William B. Deboe took the witness stand for the defense in the Caleb Powers case Wednesday afternoon. He gave testimony for the first time in these cases.

He denied ever having any conversation with the convict, Henry Youtsey, in which any reference was made to taking the life of William Goebel. He left Frankfort the night of the day before the shooting, returning to Washington to talk to President McKinley about the Kentucky situation. Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 21.—As evidence in the case of Caleb Powers, on trial here, his counsel Thursday afternoon filed the deposition of former Gov. W. S. Taylor, of Kentucky, now a fugitive from justice. The deposition contains a general denial by Taylor to the charges preferred against him in the indictment returned in the Franklin circuit court of complicity in the murder of William Goebel, and also a denial of any knowledge of the complicity of any of the others indicted, or charged or of any one, in the alleged conspiracy to assassinate Goebel or any other member or members of the general assembly of 1900 or even of any participation in or knowledge of any attempt to intimidate the legislators or to force them to do aught than just and right in the settlement of the contest for the governorship. He denies that he had any of the incriminating conversations alleged to have been had with him by commonwealth witnesses.

He declares Caleb Powers to be innocent, so far as he knows, of any complicity in the murder of Goebel, and says it was for that reason that he gave him a pardon.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 22.—The deposition of former Assistant Secretary of State W. J. Davidson, taken at Indianapolis, Ind., was filed by the defense in the Caleb Powers case Friday afternoon and the reading of it to the jury begun, but interrupted by adjournment of court for the day. Mr. Davidson, as did former Gov. Taylor in his deposition, entered denial of all conversations and incriminating knowledge attributed to him by the commonwealth witnesses Golden, Culton and Youtsey. He denies that he ever discussed the killing of Goebel with Youtsey or that he ever admitted to Youtsey, "Tallow Dick" Combs or the Negro, Mason Hockersmith, to the private office of Caleb Powers for such a purpose or for any purpose.

The Florence Fair.

Covington, Ky., Aug. 19.—The annual fair at Florence, given under the auspices of the Boone County Agricultural association, will begin August 26 and continue four days. The attractions are greater and the premium list larger than ever before.

Lady Languish at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 22.—August Belmont's crack filly, Lady Languish, by St. Simon—Lady Reel, arrived here from Saratoga, and was taken out to Nursery stud. Belmont paid $23,000 for her while still a suckling.

KILLING AT A CHURCH.

Amos Acre and His Son Shot to Death By Two Men.

Somerset, Ky., Aug. 22.—Amos Acre and his son Doc were shot to death by Granville Taber and Eph Rector at Mt. Union church, over the Wayne and Pulaski county lines. Taber and Rector, it is alleged, insulted a female relative of Acre, and when the men met in front of the church William Acre remonstrated. A fight ensued and old man Acre became involved.

Taber and Rector opened fire, killing two of the Acres. William Acre took refuge in the church. Taber and Rector followed them in with drawn revolvers and were only prevented from shooting him by the interference of other members of the congregation. Both were arrested and taken to Monticello.

Pierce Hubbard, a bystander, was fatally shot by a stray bullet.

PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

Tobacco Growers Expect to Compel the Trust to Raise Prices.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 22.—The Burley Tobacco Growers, association held a mass meeting here Friday and took steps to raise a half million dollars to finance the organization which was formed to fight the Continental American Tobacco Co.

It has been reported that President Hawkins, of this association, and two other members, who formed the committee to raise the money, had been offered $50,000 each by the Continental to withdraw from this organization. This report was denied by President Hawkins, who stated that if the members of the association would stick together for four months longer the trust would be forced to pay the tobacco grower the market price for tobacco.

James S. Henry Is Alive.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 22.—Through a letter received Friday by County Attorney W. P. Kimball, from the management of the government hospital for the insane in Washington, D. C., it is learned that James S. Henry, who mysteriously disappeared from here nine years ago, is alive and an inmate of that institution. Henry, while here, was manager of the billiard room at the Phoenix hotel.

Deputy Marshal Killed.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 20.—Harry Shepard, a prominent citizen of Cave City, Ky., died at St. Joseph's infirmary, this city, Wednesday morning as a result of being shot by an unknown Negro whom he was trying to arrest at Cave City for alleged counterfeiting. Shepard was acting as a deputy United States marshal. The Negro escaped.

Insane From Sneezing.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 20.—Rose McKinney Floyd was brought here from the country and placed in the Eastern Kentucky asylum Wednesday night. Her malady was the result of the oddest happening known to medical science. A few days ago she contracted a violent cold and went insane from continued sneezing.

Kentucky River Trip.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 19.—The personal friends of Gov. Beckham, at the invitation of Capt. Jack Adams, have arranged a delightful trip along the Kentucky river in a flotilla of boats provided for the occasion. The trip will begin at 11 o'clock Wednesday night and last until 1 o'clock next morning.

She Leaped From the Train.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Sarah Ballowe, an aged lady, jumped from an excursion train and was fatally injured. She got aboard in the depot, thinking the train would stop at Trimble street. It did not, and she leaped while the train was running at a lively rate.

His Left Leg Amputated.

Newport, Ky., Aug. 22. — Albert Quinn, 19, son of Pat Quinn, had his left leg amputated at Speer's hospital Friday, above the ankle to prevent the further spread of an attack of necrosis of the bone, resulting from an injury to the ankle bone a year ago.

T. C. McDowell's Stable.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 20.—T. C. McDowell's stable of horses, including Alan-a-Dale and Monarka, arrived from Chicago and are at Ashland. Alan-a-Dale has practically recovered from his recent illness.

Threatens to Sue.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 20.—Jap King, the juror who prevented hanging in the Jett-White case last week, threatens to sue newspapers which recently scored him.

Exempt From Taxation.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 19.—The general council, in joint special session, adopted an ordinance exempting from taxation for a period of five years a large tobacco factory and warehouse which the Continental Tobacco Co. announces it will erect here.

Two New Banks.

Petersburg, Ky., Aug. 19.—A bank at Union and one at Richwood, this county, will begin operations in a few days. Linn Frazier is cashier of the Union bank, and John Byland of the Richwood one.

Live Stock Will Be a Feature of State's Exhibit.

ABLE COMMITTEES ON ALL CLASSES

Attention to Be Given Horses, Mules, Cattle, Sheep, Swine and Poultry. Chief Coburn a Personal Friend of Chairman Dorsey—Every Variety of Dog to Be Shown.

The President of the Kentucky Live Stock Breeders' association, Mr. L. L. Dorsey, of Anchorage, is chairman of the Live Stock Exhibit committee of the Kentucky Exhibit association, which fact in itself is sufficient assurance that the live stock interests of the Blue Grass state are not to suffer in comparison with the display made by any other state at the World's fair.

Mr. Dorsey proposes to make exhibits in every classification of the live stock department at the exposition. This will put Kentucky in eight different groups, as follows: Horses and mules, cattle, sheep, goats, swine, dogs, cats, ferrets, etc., and poultry and birds. He has appointed a committee consisting of about 150 prominent live stock breeders and has divided them into the different classifications with a chairman at the head of each subcommittee.

T. L. Hornsby, of Eminence, will direct the display of Shorthorns; J. W. O'Bannon, of Louisville, the Aberdeen Angus; Colonel D. L. Moore, of Harrodsburg, the Poll Durham; W. H. Giltner, of Eminence, the Herefords; Professor M. A. Scovell, of Lexington, the Jerseys.

On horses Mr. S. De Ridder, of Prospect, is chairman of the harness class committee; Major David Castleman, of Pleasant Hill, the saddle horse committee; George Graddy, of Versailles, the thoroughbred committee; John T. Hughes, of Lexington, the coach and high-steppers committee.

Mr. W. T. Chilton, of Campbellsburg, is at the head of the sheep committee; F. G. Hogan, of O'Bannon, of the committee on hogs; James Taggart, of Finchville, on jacks and mules; J. L. Shallcross, of Anchorage, on Belgian hares; J. H. Good, of Louisville, Secretary of the State Poultry association, on poultry, and R. H. Young, of Louisville, on pigeons.

There are ten classes under the head of horses and mules. Draft and coach horses will be shown, together with trotters, thoroughbreds and saddlers, while hunters and ponies are to come in for their share of attention. In the cattle group will be displays of beef, dairy and cattle for general purposes, and also oxen. Under sheep, displays will be made of the fine wool variety, the combing wooled, the middle wooled and mutton sheep. Swine of all breeds are to be shown along with methods of raising, feeding, fattening, breeding, killing and packing. All varieties of dogs are to have a place in the exhibit, including hunting, coursing, coach, watch and pet. Under the group of poultry and birds there are classes for all breeds of poultry and all domestic birds. One class is for chickens and turkeys, another for ducks, geese and swans, a third for pigeons, a fourth for guinea fowls and pea-fowls, and still another for pheasants.

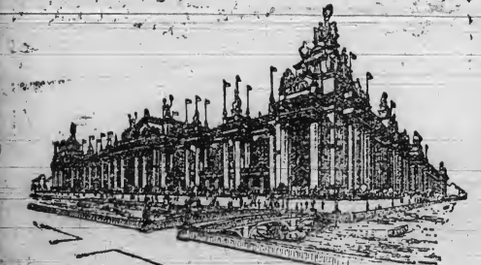
All of the chairmen of the sub-committees mentioned above have associated with them expert live stock men in their distinctive classes.

Mr. F. D. Coburn, the Chief of the Live Stock exhibit at the World's Fair, is a personal friend of Mr. Dorsey and [illegible] the assurance that Kentucky [illegible] as well taken care of dur-

UNDER ELECTRIC GLOW

Electricians Produce Magnificent Effects at World's Fair.

ALL PREVIOUS DISPLAYS SURPASSED.



Science Transforms Night Into Day and Streams of Water Assume Varied Hues and Sometimes Appear to Be Rivers of Molten Silver.

The night effects of the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis will be a symphony in color. The exhibit buildings will be bathed in a pure white light which will bring out into strong relief their beautiful outlines and the richness of the tints and mural paintings on their screen walls. Chief Henry Rustin, who is head of the department of electrical design, has charge of this important feature. Acting in the same capacity at Omaha and Buffalo he set so high a standard there that his effort to outdo it at St. Louis will be the supreme one of his life. By ingeniously contrived lights the whole picture will be flooded at night with changing hues. At one time the scene will be a harmony of violet, changing into amber, emerald, crimson and amethyst, running the whole gamut of color combinations so skillfully that the spectator hardly will be conscious where the color leaves off and the other begins.

But through all the changes of colors thrown on the buildings, it will be possible for the cascades to retain a distinctive tint. Mercury vapor lamps will be cleverly concealed in the bases of the sculpture lining the sides of the cascades, the rays being thrown from concealed reflectors through small windows at an angle that will not meet the vision of spectators from any point of view. In this light the waters will have the appearance at one time of a ghostly phosphorescent torrent, at another moment of floods of opal gems, and again of a cataract of living flame.

Every source of the wonderful kaleidoscopic effects will be ingeniously hidden. It will be possible to pick out different parts of the hill and its structures in different colors. Thus while the hall in the center will be a rose color, one arm of the colonnade orange, the other violet and the twin pavilions emerald, the whole splendid effect will be attained without confusion of colors.

The night effects on other parts of the site have not been forgotten. An electric fountain that will be a thing of beauty and a riot of color surpassing anything of the kind ever designed will occupy a point of vantage on the grounds. The exhibits buildings at night will appear to be giant cornices of white light supported at the four corners and the centers by immense pavilions of light.

The rest of the facades will be so treated that their massive columns will be silhouetted against the screen walls which will be banks of blazing white light.

DISTILLING INTERESTS.

Products of the brewing and distilling interests is being made one of the features of the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis.

Space for exhibits for this important branch of the World's industry has been reserved on the main floor of the Palace of Agriculture. Kentucky exhibits of brews and distillation are planned to be extraordinarily comprehensive.

The Palace of Agriculture, in which a choice location has been appropriated for the brewing and distilling interests, is the largest exposition building in the history of the exposition. The cost of this structure was $529,940. It sets on a high hill overlooking nearly all the other portions of the grounds, and is the center of the 69-acre tract appropriated to the Department of Agriculture, all of which is under the personal supervision of Mr. Frederic N. Taylor.

The Palace of Agriculture contains 500,000 square feet, or nearly 20 acres of floor space. A walk of three-quarters of a mile is required to pass around it. All the breweries in the state of Missouri would have to work overtime more than five years to produce enough beer to fill a tank having the cubic capacity of the building.

Commander Booth-Tucker, of the Salvation Army, accompanied by Colonel Marshall and Captain Scott, Salvation Army officers in St. Louis, visited the World's Fair grounds and announced to the management that the Salvation Army would make an interesting exhibit of the methods of their

"I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. I noticed Wine of Cardui, and decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax."

Female weakness, disordered menses, falling of the womb and ovarian troubles do not wear off. They follow a woman to the change of life. Do not wait but take Wine of Cardui now and avoid the trouble. Wine of Cardui never fails to benefit a suffering woman of any age. Wine of Cardui relieved Mrs. Webb when she was in danger. When you come to the change of life Mrs. Webb's letter will mean more to you than it does now. But you may now avoid the suffering she endured. Druggists sell $1 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

Set double harness and single harness, Mayer & Von Handorf.

The last three days brought out very large crowds, while the exhibits in every department were beyond the expectation of the management, which had worked so faithfully for months to make the meeting a grand success.

The liberal premiums has attracted the attention of many of the breeders of fine saddle and harness horses in Central Kentucky and elsewhere, and quite a good number were on hand with their strings of handsome saddlers, and world beaters in harness. The contests were exciting in nearly every ring, and, though Boone county had one or more entries for nearly every premium, her success was not overwhelming—she was simply out-classed. The board of directors have worked for several years to induce exhibitors from a distance to bring their stock to the Boone fair, and the long list of visiting exhibitors among which the premiums were divided this year, shows that their labor is being rewarded. The great show of livestock last week will add materially to the fairs already big reputation.

The single judge system prevailed again this season, and he had many rings in which it was no easy task to select the most deserving animals, and in several instances his decisions paralyzed the inhabitants of rooters' corner, but the careful manner in which the judge examined the horses made the spectators believe he understood his business.

The weather for the four days could not have been more favorable, and when the last string was tied Saturday afternoon the board of directors was unanimous in the thanks of its patron's for the four days most excellent entertainment, and the good order maintained during the time. In many respects the fair last week was the best in the history of the association, and already are plans being matured to make the next fair still better.

All the village men appeared to be having a harvest, and some of the boys are said to have made big killings at the "baby rack" the last two days.

Among those from a distance who took advantage of the fair to meet old acquaintances were Logan Gaines, of Carrollton; Dr. Carpenter and John Clore, of Crawfordsville, Indiana; Mrs. Wilson, of San Francisco, California; T. H. Cloud, of Pleasant Hill, Missouri; James Gaines, of Denver, Colorado, George W. Brown, of Nashville, Tennessee; W. W. Gaines, of Atlanta, Georgia; Charles A. Graves, of Missouri; Frank Tupman, of California; Cyrus Passons, of Illinois.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substances and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all Druggists.

When Jeff Eddins came home from Florence, Sunday, he was carrying a revolver, a slung-shot and a mace, giving him a warlike appearance.

HATHAWAY.

Aug 31—Crops need rain.

Cutting tobacco is the order of the day with some around here.

A series of meetings began at Big Bone Baptist church, Monday night.

G. B. Mason and wife entertained a couple of ladies from Cincinnati, last week.

Several from here attended the fair at Florence last week and enjoyed it immensely.

Claud Utz is at home for a few days from Cincinnati, where he has been at work on the street cars.

Tony Rue, of Bellevue, passed by here one day last week with a load of watermelons of his own production.

Mrs Alice Neal, of Erlanger, and Mrs. Grace Clore, were guests of Mrs. Nan S. McElroy, one day last week.

WALTON.

Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Uts are guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Diers, the parents of Mrs. U s.

Mr. and Mrs Gans, of Northside, are making a pleasant visit to their daughter, Mrs. John R. Craven.

In digging for a cistern on Grant Tomlin's place, the workmen excavated a petrified ham in an excellent state of preservation.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church will hold an Ice Cream Social at the Opera House in the evening of September 5th.

H. C. Diers has rented his old residence at the northeast corner of High St. and the overhead bridge. The public will know who will reside there in due time.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gardner and Mrs. Almon Barge, of Louisville, and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Tempie, of Pine Grove, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly the past week.

Rittenheim Bros. have engaged in the coal business to stay. Last week they made a contract with the school board to furnish the graded school with one thousand bushels of the Red Ash Jellico egg coal, at ten and three fourth cents per bushel. This coal is of a better quality than any one citizens have been accustomed to get in the past few years. If any mixing is done with it the red ashes will show it up.

COMMISSARY.

A nice rain fell here Wednesday evening; but twice as much more is needed.

Mrs. Marshall and son, Richard, spent Tuesday with Mr. Tom Goodridge and family.

Mrs. Sebe Scott and Mrs. Sutton, from near McVille, were guests of Mrs. Scott near here Wednesday.

F. A. McAtee and wife, living on North Hogan, in Ind., visited Mrs. Loudeu's parents in McVille, last Sunday.

The Boone County Grays and the Boone County Blacks will play a game of base ball at Bellevue next Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. John McAtee and wife, who on their return from a trip to South Carolina, stopped off here and visited relatives a week or two, started on their return to their home in Missouri, last Monday.

Don't forget the Masonic festival at McVille on the evening of Sept. 12th. They will have icecream, lemonade and other refreshments. The object is not to make money, but to have a good social time. There may be an address or two delivered. Everybody come and spend a pleasant evening.

We called on Mrs. Parsons, the Middlecreek merchant Wednesday evening, and found her with a pleasant and satisfied smile on her face, busy waiting on her customers—quite a number of them too, and among them was Miss Nannie Goodridge purchasing material to make a fancy floormat.

During the rain last Wednesday evening, lightning struck a tree near a pen of hogs belonging to Ernest Grant, that had been penned up to ship to Cincinnati. The lightning glanced off and killed 6 out of the 12, and knocked the seventh down. A flock of turkeys was feeding around the pen at the time, one was killed and several stunned.

We hope that when the postoffice department gets orders at Washington all smoothed out, the matter of rural delivery will be given more attention; and we do hope the officers of the Burlington and Petersburg pike will reconsider the matter and give us free toll. Notice is herein given that we intend to have rural delivery, and have the plans mapped out by which we will get it. We have been repeatful and kind to them until respect and kindness ceases to be a virtue. The department offered to leave them in peaceful possessions of their little office, and they have said they don't care for the little toll, and yet they have not given us free toll. We would now be receiving our mail by rural delivery, but for the obstinacy and selfishness of three or four men. If we are forced to resort to the plans mapped out we will not respect their office.

VERONA.

Aug 31.—Claud Powers sold his harness mare to Elmer Showers for $175.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the 2-year old child of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 N. Tenth St., Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble, and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which quieted her stomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permanent cure and she is now well and strong. For sale by all Druggists.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such in brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies. "I am on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Kidney and Liver troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by all Druggists.

MACEDONIAN TROUBLE.

The Porte Preparing an Answer to the Bulgarian Memorandum.

Vienna, Aug. 27.—It is stated that the porte is preparing an answer to the recent Bulgarian memorandum to the powers by note declaring Bulgaria to be directly responsible for the risings in the village of Adrianopla and declining to be answerable for the consequences.

There is a report that the porte has ordered the authorities in Macedonia to protect the Greeks, and that it has also authorized the commanders to call for the co-operation of the Greek villagers against the insurgent leaders. There is also talk of the possibility of a Turko-Greek alliance.

A dispatch from Uskub reports that the Austrian consul has demanded the punishment of a colonel of an Albanian regiment, the men of which fired their rifles inside the town, thus endangering the life of an Austrian subject.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 27.—Gen. Lew Wallace Wednesday night, when asked for a statement regarding the Macedonians and whether the United States should take any action in stopping the outbreak and massacres that are shocking the civilized world, said: "There is nothing in the Turkish situation with which the American government has to do. If there are atrocities being perpetrated by the Turks, it is for the European powers to act, not us, and this will continue while the old Berlin treaty endures. In the next place, who is in the right? As I understand it, the sultan is simply defending the integrity of his empire, and he is a poor Christian who would deny him that much. It is not out of memory that we had a rebellion in our country. It is also to be remembered that we put it down, no foreign power interfering."

REMARKABLE SPECTACLE.

Vesuvius Opened Like a Huge Mouth Below the Central Cone.

Naples, Aug. 27.—The people of Naples and the environs witnessed a remarkable spectacle at noon Wednesday. One thousand feet below the central cone of Vesuvius, the volcano opened like a huge mouth, out of which belched forth a stream of lava, which ran down the side of the mountain and at first seemed to menace the observatory. This building, however, is protected in the direction of the stream by a mound of lava 200 feet high which was thrown out during the eruptions of 1895 and 1900. The eruption occurred without any warning whatever. There was no earthquake, detonation or rain of stones, nothing but a clear stream of lava and red hot stones, which were thrown to a height of 700 feet, producing an extremely beautiful effect seen from Naples.

The stream of lava, which was 15 feet broad at 11 o'clock Tuesday night had covered a distance of 2,700 feet. It developed later from the direction of the observatory, which is no longer menaced. The only danger is for the new electric tramway up the volcano, which, however, had thus far not been touched. The eruption already seems to be decreased, and it is hoped that no damage will result from it.

The spectators far enough way not to be frightened stood entranced at the spectacle, but those nearer to the volcano were seized by panic when the eruption began and rushed down from the sides of the mountain and from the adjacent country to the villages of Portici and Resina, which are built over the ruins of Herculaneum. The alarm in these villages was somewhat quieted by the mayor after fixing notices declaring that there was no danger and exhorting the people to remain calm.

THE MIMIC BATTLE.

War Maneuvers in and Around Portland, Me., Ends.

The Several Thousand Man, Hurried to the Defense of the Harbor Against the War Vessels, Were Withdrawn.

Portland, Me., Aug. 29.—At noon Saturday the mimic war waged off this port since midnight Tuesday, with all manner of maneuvers by the navy, came to an end and the several thousand men hurried to the defense of the city were withdrawn from the harbor defenses.

Friday's movements consisted of a fierce engagement during which a landing party of 1,000 men under Rr. Adm. Coghlan captured all the stations and defenses of the cape and spur within. These marines and jackies landed almost at dawn and were engaged until after noon, when they returned to the fleet, which had remained off Richmond's island all day. Rr. Adm. Coghlan believed he had achieved the grandest victory of the navy, but at 3:45 Lieut. Jordan, in command of the engineer corps at the Two Lights, was informed by telephone the umpires had decided that no landing was effected by the invaders, as the men and boats had been put out of action before the landing was attempted. Therefore, the capture of all the points on the cape, including the signal, searchlights and fire control stations at Two Lights, the defenses at Silver Springs and the searchlight at Pond Cove was void, and they stand as if no attempt had been made at their capture.

This left the immense searchlight in action for a demonstration Friday night. Reports that the invaders were marching upon the forts and the city prevailed, but if such had been the intention it was not carried out, the men returning to the ships at 3:45. The men standing at the entrenchments on Meeting House Hill, three miles from the city, were reinforced by 600 men from the forts in anticipation of an assault from the invaders or an attempt to march upon the city proper. The capture of this force would require more than 6,000 invaders.

Adm. Barker began his last demonstration by night in the joint army and navy war game shortly before midnight. A part of the fleet appeared opposite the Two Lights on the cape from Richmond's island and at 10:30 was fired on from Fort McKinley. The firing of small arms at Fort Letveet was distinguished at 11:40 and it was reported general quarters were sounded there at 12:30. The Fort Preble mortar batteries commenced firing at 12 o'clock and kept up a constant roar. McKinley and Williams about this time joined in the engagement, the purpose of which was unknown at 1 o'clock. The Panther was the first vessel to appear around the cape and with another cruiser passed the Two Lights, going in the direction of Half Way Rock.

THE McCORMICK HEIRS.

They Give a Fund of $10,000 to the Washington and Lee University.

Lexington, Va., Aug. 29.—Dr. Geo. H. Denny, president of Washington and Lee university, who has just returned from a trip to Chicago, announces that the widow and children of the late Cyrus H. McCormick have given a fund of $10,000 to the university, the proceeds of which are to maintain the new science hall. Prior to the death of Mr. McCormick he gave $20,000 to the university, and after his death by his will his trustees turned over to the university an additional $20,000.

SPECIAL TRAIN WRECKED.

Accident on the Wabash Road at Napoleon—No One Hurt.

Napoleon, O., Aug. 29.—The Cleveland & St. Louis special on the Wabash railroad was wrecked here Saturday morning. The train carried among other passengers the members of the St. Louis and Cleveland American league baseball clubs. The sleeper in which the ball players was riding is reported to have been thrown into the ditch. There was no one hurt so far as can be learned.

Hair Changed From Black to White.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 29.—James Burnett, of Essex county, had coal black hair. One morning recently he found that his hair had turned snow white in one night. The following day it began to fall out, and now there is not a hair on his head.

THE BALKAN SITUATION.

The Revolutionists Have Destroyed All Posts Along the Frontier.

Sofia, Aug. 29.—The general situation in the vilayet of Adrinople continues alarming. The revolutionaries have destroyed all the Turkish posts along the frontier.

The Autonomic says the Turkish commander in the district of Seres has ordered his subordinates to kill and destroy everybody and everything Bulgarian as soon as the insurgent bands appear. The Turkish population is fleeing towards Constantinople. Eight hundred men, women and children have gone to Yasiliko and the Turkish government is arranging to send them to Asia Minor.

A fierce fight has occurred at Passakul, 20 miles from Adrinople, where three Turkish battalions surrounded a body of insurgents. A second band of rebels came to the assistance of their comrades, who thereupon broke through the cordon, killing 150 Turks.

The Macedonian organization is reported to be planning a big movement. Gen. Zontchieff is said to be organizing a body of 5,000 Macedonians to cross the frontier.

The Macedonian committee has urgently appealed to Prince Ferdinand to show greater interest in the Macedonian situation, saying if Macedonia is not soon liberated the position of Bulgaria will become exceedingly critical.

The Dnevnik prints what purports to be the accurate details of the train outrage near Kueli Burgas. It says a package was placed in the restaurant car of the train at Buda Pest containing the bomb with a clockwork attachment which was timed to explode as the train was crossing the bridge at Maritza. It was intended to destroy the bridge and cut off communication between Adrinople and Salonica.

SENATOR GEORGE F. HOAR.

Aged Statesman Celebrated His 77th Birthday Friday.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 29.—Senator George F. Hoar was 77 years old Friday and was the guest of honor at a celebration by the Father Mathew Benevolent and Total Abstinence society Friday night. In the name of the society he was presented with a testimonial, a tribute to his long public service and his championship of the rights of the Irish people. The principal address was made by Edward J. McMahon, president of the United Irish league.

ILL TREATMENT CHARGED.

The Sailors at Norfolk Make Complaint Against Policemen.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 29.—United States sailors have complained to the navy department of ill treatment accorded them by Norfolk police officers and police magistrate. The matter will be investigated. The trouble grows out of the $10 reward paid by the navy for the return of sailors who have broken shore liberty. It is charged the police caused a sailor's imprisonment for drunkenness to keep him off ship over time and then return ed him as a deserter and collected the reward.

NEW STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

Vessels Will Run Between Canada and Bordeaux, France.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 29.—A contract was signed between Colombier Bros., of Bordeaux, and the Dominion government for a steamship service between Bordeaux, France, and Canada. The service will commence on April 1 next, and is for ten years. The subsidy for 18 trips will be $100,000 and for 24 will be $133,000. The steamers will run from Quebec in the summer and at St. Johns and Halifax in the winter.

ALASKAN BOUNDARY.

Commissioners Will Begin Their Investigations in London.

The Whole Boundary Controversy Centers Upon the Dominion Government's Effort to Acquire An Outlet to the Sea.

London, Aug. 31.—Secretary of War Elihu Root, ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster, Hannis Taylor and Judge John M. Dickinson, arrived at Liverpool on the Cattle Sunday for the meetings of the Alaskan boundary commission which will open in London September 3. They were received at Liverpool by Mr. Petherick, assistant United States dispatch agent, on behalf of the American embassy. The party came directly to Lodon and on their arrival here were met by Secretary Carter, of the United States embassy.

Mr. Root registered at the Hyde Park hotel, while the other members of the party established themselves at the Carlton hotel. The Canadian commissioners are also here.

United States Ambassador Choate has arranged to give a dinner in honor of Secretary Root at which all the American and British representatives will be present. The commissioners are already familiar with the facts of the case on both sides which were filed several months ago. At the first meeting of the commissioners next Thursday the Americans and Canadians will submit their briefs, which will be a condensation of the facts and arguments regarding the interpretation of the treaty. The commission will then announce the day on which the oral arguments will be heard.

The arguments have not yet been made public, but it is learned that the whole controversy centers upon Canada's effort to acquire an outlet to the sea. It is known authoritatively that the Canadian agent asserts that under the Russo-British treaty of 1825 the line properly crosses numerous inlets, including the headwaters of the Lynn canal. The contention seems to be that the inlets less than six miles wide situated in the disputed region belong to Canada. United States Counsel Foster vigorously opposes this view, holding that the treaty clearly places the line 30 miles inland, following the sinuosities of the coast and thus separates Canada from all the arms of the ocean and puts Porcupine creek and the gold district under American jurisdiction.

The American representatives are confident that their position is unassailable. The commissioners expect that the complete consideration of the entire case will take less than two months and that even should the commission fail to render a majority award the facts will be clearly established. This will lead to an easier settlement in the future.

Secretary Root intends to take advantage of the recess between the filings of the briefs and the oral arguments to witness the British army maneuvers.

THE FLAGSHIP YANKEE.

The Vessel Entered Newport, R. I., With Her Bunkers Afire.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 31.—The flagship Yankee, of the naval training squadron, which is flying the flag of Rr. Adm. W. C. Wise, and which has been engaged in the maneuvers off Portland, entered the harbor Sunday morning with her midship bunker afire. The fire was discovered Thursday morning by smoke on the gun deck. Some 200 tons of coal were removed from the top of the bunker, leaving some 300 tons. Then the fire hose was used and since that time the fire has been smouldering. The crew is still engaged in moving the coal from one bunker to another. The Yankee coaled at Bar Harbor on August 9; and this is some of the soft coal that was taken aboard there.

Adm. Wise will inspect the training station Monday, and the training ship Monongahela. The latter vessel will then go to League island for repairs.

FASHION SHOW IN NEW YORK.

The First Exhibition of Its Kind Ever Held in This Country.

New York, Aug. 31.—For the next two weeks Madison Square Garden will be given over to the display of fine dresses, the fashion show formally opening there Monday night. Acting Mayor Fornes, Secretary of Commerce and Lahor George B. Cortelyou, United States Senator C. M. Depew and others will deliver brief addresses.

This is the first exhibition of its kind ever held in this country. Its purpose is to set styles and to establish a unity of ideas in the making of gowns between American and Parisian modistes.

Successfully to bring about this movement European modistes have contributed to the exposition 150 gowns of every style, while a large number of American designs will be displayed.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 31.—Fred Bonge, one of the best-known newspaper men in the middle west, died Sunday in Superior of typhoid pneumonia. Mr. Bonge came to the head of the lakes from Chicago last winter.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Saturday's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balances, $231,744,238; gold, $103,341,134.

The J. P.'s Agree.

Staunton, Ark., Aug. 31st.—News comes from Duff, Searcy Co., this state, that Mr. J. E. Reeves, a Justice of the Peace at that place, has written a letter recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills in which he says:

"I think Dodd's Kidney Pills can't be beat for Kidney Trouble, and I wish them every success."

The local J. P. Mr. E. B. Cox agrees with his brother Justice on this point for he says:

"I had a bad case of Kidney Trouble and was not able to do a day's work without great distress. I bought six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and after I had used three boxes I was all right. I am as well as ever, and I cannot praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too highly.

"I have given the other three boxes to some friends of mine who had found out what it was that had cured me so satisfactorily and quickly and they all speak highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills."

No one disputes this unanimous verdict.

Unavoidable Delay.

The irate heirs called at the general office of the life insurance company.

"We want to know," they said, "why you are so long in paying the $10,000 called for in the policy our deceased relative carried in this company. He died three months ago, and we were promised we should have it in less than 60 days."

"What was his name?" asked the president.

"Benjamin Franklin Louderschlegel."

"Ah, that is the reason, gentlemen," affably explained the president of the concern. "If it had been a short, easy name like David Jones or Thomas Johnson the matter would have been settled and you would have got your money long ago."—Chicago Tribune.

SUFFERED FOR FIFTEEN YEARS

Completely Restored to Health.

Mrs. P. Brunzel, wife of P. Brunzel, stock dealer, residence 3111 Grand Ave., Everett, Wash., says: "For fifteen years I suffered with terrible pain in my back. I experimented with doctors and medicines but got little if any relief. I actually believe the aching in my back and through the groin became worse. I did not know what it was to enjoy a night's rest and arose in the morning feeling tired and unrefreshed. My suffering sometimes was simply indescribable.

Finally, I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and got a box. After a few doses I told my husband that I was feeling much better and that the pills were doing me good. When I finished that box I felt like a different woman. I didn't stop at that, though. I continued the treatment until I had taken five boxes. There was no recurrence until a week ago, when I began to feel miserable again. I bought another box and three days' treatment restored me to health. Doan's Kidney Pills act very effectively, very promptly, relieve the aching pains and all other annoying difficulties. I have recommended them to many people and will do so when opportunities present themselves."

A Free Trial of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Brunzel will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

FIRED AT A CONSUL.

Attempt to Assassinate Wm. C. Magelssen at Beirut, Syria.

The European Squadron Has Been Ordered to Proceed to Turkish Waters to Protect the Interests of Americans.

Washington, Aug. 29.—A decidedly new turn in the case of United States Vice-Consul Wm. C. Magelssen, at Beirut, Syria, who was reported to have been assassinated last Sunday, developed Friday night, when it became known that the report was incorrect, and that although Mr. Magelssen had been shot at he had not even been injured. This information came to the state department Friday night in a dispatch from United States Minister Leishman at Constantinople, who said the mistake in making the original announcement was due to an error in the transmission of the cipher dispatch from Consul Raynal at Beirut in reporting the incident to the minister. The dispatch from the minister was communicated to the president at once at Oyster Bay.

Acting Secretary Loomis declined to make public the text of Minister Leishman's dispatch, but he gave a summary of its contents.

It showed that Mr. Magelssen had been shot at by some person at the time unknown to the officials, but that he had not been hit. The local Turkish officials were prompt to express their regret at the occurrence, and were exerting themselves to apprehend the assassin, but thus far had been unsuccessful. The minister's dispatch also said that Consul Raynal had reported to him that some of the foreign consuls located at Beirut had reported to their governments that the situation at that place had become exceedingly unsafe, that this condition of affairs had existed for some time, and that something ought to be done to relieve the tension. The opinion was expressed that the attempted assassination of Magelssen probably would bring matters to a focus, the attention of the Turkish government being drawn to the matter in this forcible way, and some effort thus be made to avoid further trouble.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 29.—President Roosevelt was informed Friday night of the incorrectness of the report that Vice Consul Wm. C. Magelssen at Beirut, Syria, had been assassinated.

The president expressed gratification that he had escaped without injury from the would-be assassin. He announced, however, that no change at present would be made in the plans of this government, and that the European squadron, which he Thursday night ordered to proceed immediately to Beirut, would continue to its ordered destination.

It can be said that the president and Secretary of State Hay both regard it advisable, in view of the present state of unrest in Turkey, to have American war vessels in Turkish waters.

For several hours Friday President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hay were in conference at Sagamore Hill. They discussed every suggested phase of the situation in Turkey. At the conclusion of the conference Secretary Hay announced his intention of returning immediately to Washington.

Constantinople, Aug. 31.—Since the representations made by United States Minister Leishman regarding the attempt on the life of Vice Consul Magelssen, the authorities at Beirut are displaying a marked activity in their efforts to find the culprit.

London, Aug. 31.—A dispatch from Constantinople dated August 29 to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says it is understood that after an interview with Foreign Minister Tewfik Pasha, Minister Leishman requested Washington to recall the European squadron, which has been ordered to Beirut.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The bureau of navigation of the navy department has been advised that the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco sailed from Genoa Sunday morning and are expected to arrive at Beirut Friday.

London, Aug. 31.—A Sofia correspondent says that the Beirut affair was merely a wedding party indulging in a feu de joie, and the shots were not directed with design again Vice Consul Magelssen.

SNAPPED THE HANDCUFFS.

A Constable Wanted To Show His Wife How They Worked.

Pittsburg, Aug. 31.—Henry Lauerman, constable of the thirty-first ward, in order to show his wife how handcuffs worked, put them around her wrists. The cuffs snapped together, and Lauerman had no key to unlock them. There was nothing to do but go down to the police station.

Mrs. Lauerman did not want to march through the streets handcuffed, so they decided to wait until dark. Mrs. Lauerman had to eat her supper with the handcuffs on, and afterward they went down to the Southside police station, where Capt. Fredericks unlocked imprisoned wife.

The DeRennes Trophy.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 29.—The DeRennes trophy match in the interstate shoot Friday resulted in a victory for the Georgia team, which scored 880 out of 1,000. The United States army team was second with 822.

THE FOURTH RACE.

Reliance Was in the Lead When Contest Was Declared Off.

New York, Aug. 29.—In a glorious whole sail breeze, over a triangular course, ten miles to a leg, the fleet-footed cup defender Reliance again Tuesday showed her heels to Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, taking the second race of the cup series of 1903 by the narrow margin of one minute and 19 seconds. It was as pretty and as hard a fought contest as has ever been sailed off Sandy Hook, and had the wind not fallen during the last ten minutes, the record for the course, 3 hours 12 minutes and 15 seconds, made by Columbia two years ago in her memorable race against Shamrock II., would have been broken. As it was, Reliance sailed the 30 miles within two minutes and 39 seconds of the record, which speaks wonders for her speed in the wind that was blowing. Reliance's victory, narrow as it was, would have been even smaller had not Capt. Wringe, the skipper of the British ship, bungled the start, sending his craft over the line 19 seconds after the last gun and handicapping her to that extent.

At every point of sailing the defender's superiority was demonstrated.

SHAMROCK THE THIRD.

She gained one minute and 51 seconds in windward work, 40 seconds on the run to the second mark, and 45 seconds on the close reach for home.

Based upon the magnificent showing she has made in the two races already sailed, it is the belief of many experts that the cup is safe and that it will take something better than Fife's latest creation to even budge it.

Capt. Barr said: "That's number two. Now we will get ready for the third."

New York, Aug. 28.—With Reliance less than a third of a mile from the finish and Shamrock III. hull down on the horizon, fully two miles astern of the defender, the fourth race of the present series for the Americas cup Thursday, was declared off because of the expiration of the time limit of 6½ hours as appointed on Thursday last. Although officially it was no race the defeat administered to the challenger was so ignominious that whatever lingering hope remained in the breasts of the friends of Sir Thomas' boat vanished into thin air. Reliance's victory was in every way more decisive than that of last Saturday. Outsailed, outpointed and outfooted, it was a procession from start to finish, with Shamrock bringing up the rear. Hereshoff's boat beat Shamrock III. hopelessly in the 15 miles of windward work, rounding the outer mark 12 minutes and 29 seconds, and down the wind Reliance steadily increased the lead. The real race of the day was not in the run against Shamrock, but in the exciting struggle of Reliance in the last half hour to reach the finish line before the regatta committee fired the gun which announced the expiration of the time limit. Had the wind freshened 20 minutes earlier than it did, the cup series would have ended Thursday with three straight wins for the defender, and Fife's light weather boat would have sailed back to Albion's shores one of the most disastrously worsted challengers in the history of the America's cup contests.

The next race, which will be like the one attempted Thursday, 15 miles to leward or windward and return, will be sailed on Saturday.

New York, Aug. 31.—For the first time in the history of America's cup contest, a race has been postponed because of too much wind. Following the futile attempt of Thursday, it was earnestly hoped that Saturday's contest would be decisive. The race will be run Monday.

Talk of Races on Other Side.

London, Aug. 31.—A cable dispatch was sent to Sir Thomas Lipton offering to guarantee the expenses if he will arrange for a series of five races between the Reliance and the Shamrock III., with their crews exchanged.

Talk of Races on Other Side.

Glasgow, Aug. 28.—A movement is afoot to have Clyde yachtsmen present an international cup and invite Americans to compete on this side of the Atlantic. The conditions are to be the same as those which govern the America's cup.

POWERS' THIRD TRIAL.

Again Found Guilty of Complicity in Goebel Murder.

Special Judge Robbins Overruled Motion For New Trial and Sentenced Him to Hang November 25—Case Will Be Appealed.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 31.—Caleb Powers was Saturday found guilty of complicity in the assassination of William Goebel and sentenced to death. Special Judge Robbins formally overruled a motion for the granting of a new trial and passed sentence of death upon him after a declaration of the prisoner, "I am not guilty, judge." The court fixed November 25 next as the day for the execution. The attorneys for the defendant secured the granting of an appeal for the case to the Kentucky court of appeals, and, if unsuccessful, they may try to get the United States supreme court to take it under consideration. Powers was the coolest man in the courtroom when the verdict was read and sentence pronounced against him. He was immediately removed to the Scott jail, to be there held pending the appeal of his case to the higher courts.

Powers refused to say anything after the rendition of the verdict, only saying that he had said all that he cared to in his speech to the jury.

ROBBED THE OFFICE.

Two Men Killed and Two Wounded By Hold-Up Men.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Without a word of warning two men were killed and two others wounded by hold-up men at the barns of the Chicago City Railway Co., Sixty-first and State streets, at an early hour Sunday. The shooting was done by three men, who escaped after securing $3,000. Three of the men who were shot were working in the cashier's office, and the other was a motorman asleep in the outer office. The men in the office were shot before they were aware of the robbers' presence, and the motorman was killed as he was rising from a bench where he had been asleep.

The robbers took no chances but disposed of all the opposition of the employes before they entered the office. Choosing the time when the employes were busily engaged in balancing up the receipts of the night, just after the last conductor had turned in his money and left the barns the robbers suddenly appeared at the receiving window and began shooting. The first intimation those inside the office had that anything was wrong was when they heard the shots. The first bullet struck Stewart, and he fell to the floor without a word. Biehl and Edmond, who were sitting near Stewart, turned to see what was the matter, but before they could leave their chairs they were rendered helpless by the well-directed bullets of the robbers. Johnson, the motorman who was asleep on a bench in the outer office, hearing the noise, started up to go to the assistance of his companions, but was shot and killed before he could get to his feet. Making sure that all opposition had been removed the robbers then broke open the door of the cashier's office with a sledge hammer, and secured $3,000 in bills which was lying on the desk. They then made their escape. Four men were arrested three hours after the robbery, on suspicion of being implicated in the crime, but they have not as yet been identified.

SUPPOSED FIT OF INSANITY.

Woman Killed Herself After Attempting the Life of Her Daughter.

New York, Aug. 31.—In a supposed fit of insanity Mrs. Kathleen Johnson, 20 years old, living in an apartment house at Fifth avenue and One Hundred and First street, Sunday attempted to kill her 7-year-old daughter, Alice, cutting her right wrist with a carving knife, and then slashed her own left wrist and her throat with the same weapon, inflicting injuries from which she died a few hours later. The little girl will recover.

THE CREW ESCAPED.

Passenger Steamer Burned to the Water's Edge at Her Dock.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—The passenger steamer Pittsburg, running between Cleveland and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and owned by the Georgian Bay Transportation Co., of which W. J. Brown, of this city, is manager, burned to the water's edge at her dock in Sandwich, Ont., early Sunday. The crew escaped uninjured.

FROM THE JAWS OF DEATH.

Prompt Action of C. Oliver Iselin Saves a Dozen Lives.

New York, Aug. 31.—During a strong northeast gale eight miles off Highlands, N. J., at half-past 10 o'clock Saturday night, the three-masted schooner Henry F. Mason, from Perth Amboy, N. J., for Portland, Me., struck, it is believed, a submerged wreck, and at 1:30 Sunday morning sunk. The crew and two passengers of the schooner took to the vessel's small boat and, after being buffeted by the heavy seas all night and part of Sunday, were rescued by Capt. Paterson and the Sandy Hook life saving crew, who were towed out to the boat one mile off Gallilee by the New York Yacht club's committee boat Navigator, on which was C. Oliver Iselin, managing owner of the yacht Reliance, and Bert C. Leeds. The survivors reached Sandy Hook at 2.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon on board the Navigator, apparently in good condition, and later were brought by the same vessel to this city. It is believed the schooner will be a total loss.

Repeated efforts had been made by the life saving crews to launch a boat to go to the assistance of the shipwreck, but the heavy sea running made it impossible for them to launch their boats. Meanwhile word had been sent to Sandy Hook for assistance and Mr. Iselin volunteered the service of the Navigator to tow the life savers to shore to where the small boat was momentarily in danger of being swamped.

It was 11 o'clock Sunday morning when the Navigator located the 12 persons in their perilous position, and it was fully an hour before they could be rescued. This was accomplished in as daring a manner as has been told in any sea tale, fiction or fact. The big tug made several attempts to get near the yawl, and then finally going to windward of them, cast off the life line. With splendid dexterity a line was sent from the life boat to a pole on the fish pound, and then was paid out until the yawl was reached.

In such condition were the shipwrecked ones that they could not help themselves, and Capt. Patterson and his crew had to simply lift them out. First came the two women and then three sailors. Meantime, under the direction of Mr. Iselin, the Navigator's crew had thrown a dozen pails of oil overboard to the windward of the yawl so that the sea was calmed and the big tug had taken a position so that the wind did not catch her on the beam. The women, when brought aboard, were carefully attended to, Mr. Iselin having taken along a chambermaid from the tender Sunbeam. Capt. Frost, of the Mason, said that just before the Navigator arrived they had concluded that the women would die in a few hours, and they had decided to try for the beach. He said that Saturday when they were out near the lightship at anchor the Old Dominion line steamer Hamilton offered to take them off, and he urged the women to go, but they declined to leave without the men. The men thought the storm would abate, and they would get the boat to harbor in safety.

Thousands along the shore watched the clever work of the life savers. Twice the life boat was filled level with water, but she is a self-bailer and cleared herself. The going down in tow of the Navigator was in itself a perilous thing in such a sea. When the men returned Mr. Iselin said a special word of praise to them, and in return was heartily cheered. When Capt. Paterson asked for the assistance of the Navigator, Capt. Charles Barr, of the Reliance stood by. He added: "I have 50 men; every one of them will volunteer to help if you want them."

Capt. Paterson explained that it was a tug and not the men that was needed.

OATH OF LABOR UNIONS.

No Catholic Can Consistently Take or Keep Some of Them.

Marshall, Mich., Aug. 31.—Rev. Dr. P. A. Baart, rector of St. Mary's church of this city, Sunday in a sermon on education said that no Catholic could consistently take or keep the oath of some labor unions and he mentioned particularly the typographical union, part of whose oath he quotes as follows:

"I hereby solemnly and sincerely swear that my fidelity to the typographical union and my duty to the members thereof, shall in no sense be interfered with by any allegiance that I may now or hereafter owe to any other organization, social, political or religious."

Father Baart said this oath places the union before the church and before the state and distinctly impeached the loyalty and Catholicity of those who take such an oath. Possibly, the leaders may not have realized the full force of the words they used in their oath, he said, but whether they did or not, every patriotic citizen and every sincere, consistent Catholic should demand that such an oath be modified and that the objectionable clause be cut out.

Umbrella Puts Eye Out.

Upper Sandusky, O., Aug. 31.—Walter Myers, aged 12, met with an accident which resulted in the loss of his right eye. While working with an automatic umbrella it flew open, one of the stays penetrating his right eye between the pupil and lower lid.

Bryan Cancels Engagements.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 31.—Mayor Johnson Sunday night received a telegram from W. J. Bryan asking that his engagements to speak during the coming week in Ohio be cancelled. No

STATE ODDS AND ENDS

JUDGE JAMES HARGIS.

He Will Leave Breathitt and Resids Near Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 29.—Unable longer to resist the pleadings of wife and daughters, County Judge James Hargis, of Breathitt county, has decided to dispose of his immense business interests in that locality, convert his holdings into cash and leave Jackson forever.

Ever since his name, it is alleged has been accorded such prominent connection with the recent feudal troubles, the members of his family have regretted the notoriety it brought and they have been continually urging him to move away, and against them he endeavored to hold out. Their continual pressure has induced him to yield, and with this object in view he set about to find a purchaser for his property and business interests. It was stated here Friday on good authority that the difference between $83,000 and $100,000 is what now stands in the way of an immediate sale. It is said the judge will buy a blue grass farm in the vicinity of Lexington.

These facts were made known Friday when Capt. B. J. Ewen suddenly broke off all negotiations with local persons relative to the purchase of a home here, which he had intended to buy, and suggested that he might return to Jackson and live there again in the event that the Hargis deal went through.

COURTHOUSE IN RUINS.

Temple of Justice at Hazard, Ky., Struck By Lightning.

Hazard, Ky., Aug. 29.—During a thunderstorm here at 4:30 Friday evening a bolt of lightning bit the Perry county courthouse and set fire to the building. The lightning killed John J. Baker, a citizen of this county, who was standing in the doorway waiting for the storm to abate. Six other men in the court house were stunned by the blow and remained unconscious for half an hour. All are expected to recover, but the condition of two is very serious.

In the excitement caused by the one fatality and the injury of the other men the fire in the court house building made great headway, despite the fact that rain was falling in torrents. The court house is nearly completely ruined and will have to be rebuilt.

LEAVING THE NORTH.

Numerous Negroes Immigrating to the Southern States.

Madisonville, Ky., Aug. 28.—Numerous Negroes have been passing through this city from the north immigrating to southern states where they say they expect to receive better treatment at the hands of the white man. This move on the part of the Negro is claimed to be due to the recent race riots in Evansville, Ind., and other northern towns. They most all seem to be headed for the cotton states.

Hunter Fatally Shot.

Pineville, Ky., Aug. 29.—John T. Mason, a farmer of Little Clear Creek, 12 miles from here, started hunting, and on a mountain five miles from home slipped and fell. His shotgun discharged, and he was shot through the abdomen. His wife, small son and brother-in-law were with him. He died soon after.

President of Georgetown College.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 29.—At a meeting of five trustees of Georgetown (Ky.) college here Friday it was decided to recommend Rev. Dr. J. J. Taylor, of Norfolk, Va., for president of the college, to succeed Dr. B. D. Gray. Their action is not final, but subject to approval by the full board of trustees.

Free Turnpikes.

Middlesburg, Ky., Aug. 29.—Petitions are being circulated over the county for the purpose of securing a vote on the proposition of free turnpikes in November, and if a vote is taken the proposition will carry overwhelmingly. Casey is the only county in South Central Kentucky with toll roads.

Dove to His Death.

Dayton, Ky., Aug. 28.—Miscalculating the depth of the water in a certain place on the Queen City beach, Milton V. Cox, of Bellevue, aged 24 and married, dove from a float and, striking his head upon the river bottom, received injuries from which he died Thursday morning.

Awarded $1,000 Damages.

Lancaster, Ky., Aug. 29.—Mrs. B. F. Walters was Friday awarded a judgment for $1,000 against the city of Lancaster. She fell into a ditch last spring and was injured. She sued for $10,000.

After Blind Tigers.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Aug. 29.—For some months detectives have been at work locating "blind tigers" near Jeffersonville. Friday, as a result, Judge A. A. Hazelrig issued 54 warrants and placed them in the hands of the sheriff.

Cut Throat and Veins in Wrist.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 29.—Richard Schulz, 35, cut his throat and several veins in his wrist Friday at his home, Sixteenth and Market Streets, in the

TWO WOMEN ON TRIAL.

They Are Charged With Scalding An Aged Man to Death.

Mayking, Ky., Aug. 27.—The Walter Thomas murder trial in the Letcher circuit court was Wednesday continued until the next term, and Mrs. Nancy Garret and Pattie Garret, her 16-year-old daughter, of Craftsville, went on trial for the murder of "Uncle Jason" Craft, aged 60, at Craftsville, in February, 1903.

It is alleged they killed him by scalding him. The victim, were returning from a business trip to Virginia, stopped over night at the Garret house, a few miles from his home. Some time that night, it is alleged, the women burned him so that he died a few days later.

COCKROACH IN COFFEE POT.

By Some It Is Believed It Poisoned the Land Family.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 28.—Only one more factor in the poisoning case of Mrs. Land, Mattie Land and the Gores has been uncovered. That factor is a large cockroach, and he was uncovered when the grounds in the bottom of the suspected coffee pot were removed. Mr. Roach had probably met a painful death by scalding, but his carcass showed him to have been a formidable insect when alive. The detectives think the distillation of stale coffee, with just a dash of roach, may have been the cause of the sickness.

KILLED A WILDCAT.

School Teacher Receives Much Praise For His Bravery.

Sergeant, Ky., Aug. 28.—Prof. Murphy Howard, aged 26, relative of Jim Howard and teacher of a country school on Martin's Fork, south of here, is receiving many words of praise owing to his bravery Wednesday morning. Upon entering the door to his schoolhouse an unusually large wild cat sprang into his face. It was a desperate fight, but at length Howard succeeded in killing the animal, which is now on exhibition in the schoolhouse.

DRIVEN INSANE BY HEAT.

A Negro Track Layer Attacked a Fellow Laborer.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 27.—Driven insane by the heat, Ernest McQuade, a Negro track layer employed by the Louisville City railway, struck Waverly Thomas, a fellow laborer, on the head with a pickax. Reuben James, in attempting to get beyond the reach of McQuade, released a crowbar under a rail which in springing upward cut a gash in James' neck. The injuries of Thomas and James are believed to be fatal.

AROUSED FROM HIS SLEEP.

A Breathitt County Man Shot and Killed the Disturber.

Jackson, Ky., Aug. 27.—"Bill" Slays shot and killed Ed Winman, a Breathitt county farmer, as the former's "blind tiger" in Knott county Sunday night. Winman and a friend went to Slay's "tiger" for whisky. Finding the place closed they tried to unlock the door. Failing in this Winman called to Slays, who was asleep in an adjacent house. Slays responded, it is alleged, by firing, the shot taking effect in Winman's breast, killing him instantly.

Soldiers Were Shocked.

Jackson, Ky., Aug. 27.—As a number of soldiers were finishing their dinners Wednesday in their camp in the courthouse yard, a large maple tree, near the mess hall, was struck by lightning. The soldiers escaped with slight shocks. Sergt. Miller at first was thought to be killed, but after receiving medical attention he was able to walk around the camp.

Negro Lodge of Elks.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 28.—Using a ritual which was stolen by a Negro janitor from a Cincinnati Elks lodge several years ago, 30 Negroes organized an elks lodge here and formally elected officers. Since the stealing of the ritual several such lodges have been organized, but meanwhile the grand lodge has changed the ritual.

Held to the Federal Court.

Columbia, Ky., Aug. 28.—Jack Reynolds, J. B. Harvey, R. Knight, Andrew Huddleston and Ben Wilson, charged with moonshining, were held to the federal court Thursday.

Going to the Grass.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 28.—The famous pacing gelding Audobon Boy (2:03¼), owned by James Catcomb, who arrived here Thursday from Hartford Ct., is to be fired and turned out.

Newcomer to the Turf.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 28.—W. S. Williams, of Spring Station, Ky., has purchased of J. B. Haggin a trio of likely youngsters, which he will race next season. He is practically a newcomer to the turf and a son of J. T. Williams, for years a figure on western tracks.

Feet Were Terribly Mangled.

Clay Combs is the Republican County Clerk of Owsley. The Republicans of the county held a primary and nominated candidates for county offices. These nominations did not suit Combs and when he had the ballots printed, he left off these names and substituted others, among them his own name. Nothing was known of this until the day of the election, when it was too late, and his list was elected. He was indicted for a violation of the election [illegible] tried a few days later and was given two years in the penitentiary.

The Democratic committee of this Judicial District, composed of Boone, Grant, Gallatin, Carroll and Owen counties, met at Sparta, Gallatin county, yesterday, to decide upon the time and manner of nominating a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney to fill the vacancy on the ticket, caused by the death of the nominee, Robert Wood, of Warsaw, a few days since. The committee adjourned, without taking any action, to meet again next Tuesday. There are now four avowed candidates for the nomination — Messrs. Gray, of Grant county; Greene and Bourne, Owen county, and McElrath, of Carroll, with, it is said, a probability of two more.

We send Dakota seed to Russia, from which she raises wheat, to complete with our own product in the markets of the world. To plant, cultivate, reap and harvest her own crops we send to Russia nearly one half our total exports of agriculture machinery. This year we have already shipped some 80,000 tons of these implements to the land of the Czar. In former years all this passed through the ports of New York and Philadelphia, but a fractional increase in freight rates between the lakes and the East has diverted the trade to Southern ports, while experiments are being made in direct shipment from Chicago by way of the lakes, the St. Lawrence River and the Atlantic Ocean.

The theory of Loeb and Mathews that the nervous impulse, although it brings in electricty, is far from regarding the transmission of that impulse as identical with a simple electrical current. In a medical journal, Dr. O'Brien advocates the old theory that nervous current and electrical current are identical, because, first electricity is always present when nerves act; second, electricity is the form of force which would do the work required; third, because the terminal and central mechanisms connected with the nerves correspond to the terminal and central mechanisms connected with electrical system of communication, and do similar work in sending, receiving, relaying switching, transforming accumulating, retarding, distributing, and translating impressions, and fourth, because electricty, with such construction of conductors and of terminal mechanisms, is the only form of force we know of that would do all the work required.

The wise man keeps out of ruts. To be certain, however, that he will accomplish this he must begin early in life. He must not begin his life work by restricting himself absolutely to a single chanel. This does not mean that he should scatter his forces and attempt everything, or should not become a specialist. But the more strictly he specializes, the more carefully should he see to it that he does not become narrow and bigoted. The young man should early begin the habit of reading a newspaper. It should be a real newspaper and not a yellow journal, which will cause his mental and moral standards to degenerate. He will thus get a general education he requires, even of public affairs, from the newspapers. Let him not make this error. Their news is necessarily fragmentary. He should read regularly one or two good magazines of the class devoted to the discussion of questions of public interest. He should read a little good fiction as well as history and general literature. While he should persistently seek the acquaintance of the best men of his own craft, who are usually the broadest minded, he should also seek friends outside of it. They will help him to see that there are other important crafts in the world besides his own. All this will broaden his views and help to keep him out of a rut.

AN ADDRESS TO VOTERS OF KENTUCKY

Issued by State Committee —on—
CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Gentlemen: At a Commercial Convention of the State of Kentucky, held in the city of Louisville on the 2d, 3d and 4th days of June, 1903, the undersigned were appointed a committee for the purpose of bringing the amendment to the constitution of the state which is to be voted upon at the November election this year, to the attention of voters of all parties in the state, and obtain for it the necessary number of votes to secure its adoption.

The amendment is purely a non-partisan measure, vitally affecting the interests of all citizens of the state, no matter what their party affiliations or occupations may be, or where their places of residence are situated.

The beneficial effects which will follow the adoption of the amendment are so vast that they can hardly be estimated. The evil that will result, if by any chance the amendment should fail of adoption, will be disastrous in the extreme to the best interests of the state.

The adoption of the amendment will not change in the least the present system of taxation in Kentucky for state and county purposes, as it applies only to taxes levied by cities and towns for their own local purposes.

The manfacturers, merchants and financial institutions in the cities and towns of our state are now tremendously handicapped in competing with those in other states by the provision of our state constitution which requires the same ad valorem taxes to be levied on all personal property by cities and towns, for their local purposes, as is levied by them on real estate within their boundaries.

This provision does not exist in other states in which the competitors of our manufacturers, merchants and financial institutions are located, so that our people in these lines of business are at a great disadvantage in competing with those of other states, and the result is that our existing industries do not grow as they should, new industries are not established in our state in as large number and importance as in other states which do not possess anything like our natural advantages, but in which taxation is not nearly so burdensome and onerous as in Kentucky.

The provision of our constitution which the amendment, after its adoption, will cure, also operates to drive capital from our midst, and compels that which remains with us to charge us higher interest rates when we borrow money than we would have to pay if money used in banking and financial operations was not taxed so exorbitantly for municipal purposes.

Farmers and country merchants of Kentucky, don't make the mistake of thinking the adoption of this amendment of the constitution will not beneficially affect you.

If you want existing factories in our towns and cities to grow, so as to give employment to more men; if you want new industries to be established, employing still more men; if you want more consumers for your farm products and more buyers at your counters; if you want lower interest rates when you borrow money; if you want to lessen your state and county taxes; in a word, if you want as much prosperity throughout the length and breadth of our grand old commonwealth as prevails in other states, then vote for the amendment, and get your neighbors to vote for it.

Every existing factory enlarged, and every new factory brought into Kentucky through this amendment to our constitution, means for all the property thus brought in will go to swell the assessments for state and county purposes, which will enable the rate to be reduced.

Lower State and County Taxes,

Let the amendment be adopted by an overwhelming vote in its favor.

J. G. OELSNER,
Popular and Influential Merchant of Florence.

J. G. OELSNER'S STORE.

In a very commanding three-story brick building at Florence, Ky., occupying a ground floor space of 60 x110 feet in area, is the popular store owned and conducted by J. G. Oelsner, a business man of whom high laudation is not misapplied.

Mr. Oelsner by trade is a blacksmith, having for several years owned a shop in Florence, disengaging himself as blacksmith to engage in the mercantile business eight years ago.

Mr. Oelsner was born Feburary 7, 1861, at Florence, son of Henry Oelsner, an influential citizen who emigrated from Germany in the early half of the past century.

In accordance to the great Teuton's teaching, carefulness and industry were the incorporated watchwords in the conduct of the business of Mr. Oelsner. His stock of goods is quite extensive and might properly come under the head of a department center of trade. Dry goods, notions, groceries, hardware, paints, oils, and drugs are conspicuous in stock make up. In hand with a bright congenial disposition, square and upright as a business man, it is no enigma as to why he is voted by all one of the most popular men of Boone County.

His store is also the office of the Long Distance and Local Telephone Companies.

[Courier-Journal, Aug. 25]

Dr. T. H. Baker, postmaster, was in his office at the custom-house yesterday, after a short trip to Boone county. He was not feeling well, as the hot weather and a ride he took early yesterday morning made a combination which almost caused him to go down and out.

Dr. Baker spent Sunday in Boone county. The friends he visited live eight miles from the railroads, and to take a train for this city it is necessary to ride the distance in a buggy.

"They are the roughest roads I ever saw," said Dr. Baker yesterday afternoon. "I got up this morning at 5 o'clock and drove over to the station in a buckboard. Those roads up there in that part of the country are nothing but places where the people walk by agreement. Generally they are rocks and boulders, but now and then there are depressions, which do the work just as effectively. They don't make springs on their buggies up there, because springs will break. After we had jolted those eight miles to the railroad station I felt as if I didn't care whether we ever got here or not."

Come off, Doc. You know you use to travel that same road, barefooted, the darkest night's that came, and there was not a word of complaint. What's got you now?

Born, to John W. Early and wife, a son—John Solon.

Mrs. C. O. Roberts is visiting in Verona neighborhood.

Charles A. Gaines, of Idlewild, was doing business in Burlington, yesterday.

B. B. Alphin left yesterday morning for the Alexandria fair, where he will exhibit his mules.

A considerable portion of Burlington's population was engaged in business on the fair grounds last week.

Cyrus and Z. T. Kelly were in town Monday, and qualified as administrators of the estate of their deceased brother, A. C. Kelly.

Mr. L. Nichols, from down on Ashby Fork, called on the Recorder, Monday. He came to town thinking it was county court day.

Mr. James H. Lawell, of Lexington, was the guest of his son, Daniel, near here several days last week. He is delighted with his new home.

C. A. Roberts, Verona's popular druggist, was the guest of his uncle, C. C. Roberts and family, of this place, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Assessor O. S. Watts and his brother, W. C., began the preliminary work for assessing the county again, last week. Mr. Watts wants to sustain, this year, the record he made in 1902.

Luther Adams was brought home, last Monday, after an illness of seven weeks of typhoid fever. He is up and about but looks very weak. He took his 2,000th dose of medicine yesterday. He kept a careful record of the number of doses.

"Babe" Conner, of Union, was in town, one day last week. He had been considerably under the weather as a result of over-work hauling wheat, and looked very feeble. He had with him his youngest son, a very bright, manly little fellow.

RICHWOOD

Union and Richwood teams will play next week.

Did you notice our good looking police at the fair?

Miss Ida Gambbs has returned from a visit to Yellow Stone Park.

John Robinson and wife were guests of relatives here during the fair.

Miss Artie Green, of Covington, was the guest of J. J. Tanner during the fair.

Our bank is under way now. Get your desposits ready by or before October 1.

The Union Deposit Bank safe was shipped here and hauled to Union, Monday.

Dogs attacked Jno. R. Carpenter's sheep, Saturday night, killing five and crippling five.

Mrs. Fannie Snow, of Covington, spent a few days with relatives here during the fair.

Theo Carpenter will take his colt that won two ribbons at Florence, to Alexandria, Friday.

Miss Fannie Cleek and Bernard Sleet were married at the residence of the bride's father, Thursday last, by Rev. Adams.

Richwood took her share of ribbons at the fair, but Boone's share was not the lion's share by a whole lot. It is supposed to be a county fair, but it was more of a State fair.

From reports we learn that there are 13 schools lacking teachers in the county. Why? The public money is about $98, board for 20 weeks from $50 to $60 leaving a balance of from $38 to $40 per term for our teachers to live and clothe themselves on. Our teachers seek employment in the city or elsewhere, where a man can live and let live. Is it not time to have a change in our school laws and taxation? Our county officials' hands are tied.

At his third trial, at Georgetown, last week, Caleb Powers was found guilty of being an accessory before the fact in the conspiracy to assassinate Senator Goebel, and his punishment fixed at hanging. On each of his two preceding trials the jury fixed his punishment at confinement for life in the penitentiary. He spoke for six hours on his own behalf before the jury, and his counsel think he injured his cause.

IN THE ORCHARD.

Oh! here, beneath the roof of green,
I throw me down and dream again
The golden dreams of what has been
And future harvests yet to gain!

The wheat waves in the field close by,
An apple, ripened ere its time,
Drops from the tree, the sun's great eye
Seeks through the leaves, and, as I rhyme,

The birds weave to and fro and sing
The very songs I would declare,
And now and then the branches swing
Stirred gently by a wandering air.

The binders, clicking in the wheat,
The whistle of a passing train,
The distant noises of the street,
Are to my song a lo wrefrain.

To-day! To-day I rest at ease
And pick the golden fruits that grow
In solitude on twigs of peace—
The fruits that only dreamers know.

The Love That Lives

BY ELLEN FRIZELL WYCKOFF.

HE WONDERED if she still cared. He had gone west ten years ago because he was too poor to offer her anything he thought it worth a woman's while to accept. He had learned to live without a thought of her. Now he was at home on business. He had run down to the beach for a breath of sweet salt air.

He was watching her as she, all unconscious of his presence, quietly ate her supper in a corner of the dining room farthest from him. It had been a long time since he had thought of her, yet she came back naturally enough to her place now that he sat there looking at her.

There was a bowl of loose, freshly-cut roses and gardenias on her table. The sea breeze brought him little whiffs of their fragrance. He remembered her love for them. Three other women sat at the table with her. He knew they were there, but he only saw her.

She laughed now and then, and he watched for the sparkle in her eyes, the dimple in her cheek, and the gleam of her milk-white teeth. Each of her many charms were intensified. She had ripened up beautifully. He missed a certain soft, pretty shyness that used to fold her away from him as its mossy calyx screens a rosebud. It was this little barricade of reserve that had kept him silent and at a distance in the days of old. It was gone now. He felt that she would understand at once how it was with him. He was not afraid of the air of womanly pride that had come to her.

She fed herself daintily as a bird. She seemed wonderfully at her ease, and altogether sweet and wholesome. Her blue eyes were clear and steadfast. It rested him to look at her. She was the one woman in all the world. It was curious that he had rather lost sight of that, lately. Now her personality stood out clear and sweet from the shadows of his forgetfulness like a star when there is a rift in the clouds.

The simple old life had been good for her, he thought. While he had been toiling and delving, wasting his youth, almost losing his soul, she had been living quietly at home in the old house up in the city, coming out in the old way each summer for a month by the sea. He felt resentful and ill-used. For he might have been with her. Instead of the gold he had been heaping up he might have had her.

The dainty supper cooled before him. The waiter behind his chair fidgeted and asked questions, anxiously. People glanced curiously at the big, sunburnt, queer-mannered man from the west. A party of young people behind him laughed and talked merrily. The four women at the table in the corner chatted pleasantly. There was all the cheerful hotel dining-room clatter. But he saw only one face, with its crown of dusky hair and eyes of blue; heard only one low, clear voice.

He felt injured when he saw how quietly content she was. There was no shadow of regret in her eyes, no line of grief on her face. She must feel very sure of him; certainly, very positive that he would come for her some day! And yet he had said no word of all this when he went away. He thought that she ought to know intuitively that he was near her. He had heard such things. But she smiled brightly into the face of one of the other women.

He got up and went out of doors. He was used to plenty of air. The place was stifling. He wondered what she would say when she saw him. He ought to have written, of course. But then—why, well, he hadn't written. His sunburnt face flushed hotly. Never mind, she'd be glad enough to see him, anyhow.

The sun was setting. The lilac walk was quite dim now. It lay under the dining room windows and her table was near the last one; so he drifted that way. He could hear her laughing. How prettily she did it. He remembered that most women laugh shrilly. Now he could see her. She was standing up, the bowl of flowers in her hand. "I think I shall give each of you part of my flowers. Charlie sent them out to-day. He must love me very dearly, don't you think?" And again she [illegible] on his shoulder [illegible] the turn of that shoulder in the dining room.

"Yes. Beastly place."

"The west?"

"The dining room."

"When you aren't hungry, yes. Well, well, old man, this is a treat. I am amazingly glad to see you."

"Thanks—eh—Osborn? Yes, you are Osborn."

"The same—Charlie Osborn, at your service, sir. Dick, you are gazing dejectedly upon the happiest man in the world!"

"Inherited a fortune?"

"Why man alive, I'm getting married to-night. Swell affair at old St. John's, over town, you know. Party out for a last seaside frolic and all that. Going in on a special train, you know. Join us, old man, come in at the eleventh hour, as it were, and share the fun."

The man from the west brightened. "Why, certainly. Fact is, you know, Osborn, I've come home on a similar errand." And the two men shook hands warmly.

"Sly old dog! Well, a fellow feeling and that, you know. Stay at home, will you?"

"Don't know. You live in the old town?"

"No place like it. Bought the old Jasper place and remodeled the house. Fine property. Bought it for Katherine's sake. She is very fond of it." He spoke with a sort of glow in his voice. He was large and fair with a tender heart that looked out at his laughing eyes.

The other man suddenly stiffened. "The old Jasper place," he repeated.

"On the corner of Spring and Poplar—across from the park, you know. We are coming back after a short northern trip." He laughed softly. There was no sympathy in his friend's sunburnt face. But the light was dim in the lilac walk.

"You are—marrying Katherine Jasper?" The man from the west stood with his back to the light.

"Why, to be sure, I thought I told you. Prettiest woman I ever saw. I'm surprised that she'd look at me. Remember her, don't you?"

"Yes. I am stupid—see you later, Charlie," and he turned sharply away, followed by a long, low whistle that maddened him. He was glad that Charlie had not called her by her pet name, the pretty, caressing little name that he loved.

He went down to the sea and walked up and down the beach while the little waves whispered and died at his feet. After long hours the moon rose from the ruddy waters. He heard a late train come out from town. It would be going back after awhile. He might as well take it and catch an early express and get back to the west and the comfortable forgetfulness from which he had come to this bitter disappointment.

II.

He hurried back to the hotel, found a sleepy porter and sent his baggage to the station, paid his bill, shook himself and turned his face to the west. He had choice between the wide bricked walk to the front gate and the sandy path that was bordered by lilacs as it wound around the old house and through the garden to a little tumble-down gate half way to the station. He hesitated and chose the path. The garden was damp and tangled and sweet. Moonlight, white and clear, bathed it in unearthly glory.

Before him he saw the gleam of a white dress. A woman met him. He held out his hand. His blood danced wildly, and he was used to having it flow steadily. "I—thought you were in town," he said, a curious ring in his voice.

"I was," she answered simply, showing no surprise at his manner of greeting. "I returned on the last train. The others are sleeping in town. There was a wreck and the wedding trip can't begin till morning. Weddings are rather tiresome. We expected you."

"I—it was quite unavoidable."

"I understand, of course. Still I rather expected you."

"If I had known that you cared—"

She interrupted him quickly: "I didn't, specially. Charlie told me that he had met you and asked you to the wedding."

He leaned toward her, his eyes stern. "Did you think I would go?"

Her chin went up a little. "It was over when he told me."

"It was?" Between set teeth. "But I dare say you'd have gone with him just the same if he had told you before."

"I suppose so," she answered wearily. "Is it not a little chilly? I had on a Raglan over my wedding garment, but I left it in the hall. I shall have to be going in. It was a lovely wedding."

"Osborn will be looking for you," he said.

She laughed softly. "No, he is in town, you know. But I must not stay out longer. Good night."

"It is good-by," he said. "I am going away. I shall not see you again—if you go in now."

She held out her hand and he took it between his own. He felt it tremble, and held it closer. "I saw you at supper this evening," he said.

"Why didn't you speak to me?" She raised grieved eyes to his face. The look maddened him.

"I was a fool. If I had spoken—I wanted to see you first quite alone—"

"Why?" she asked softly.

"Can't you guess?"

"I'm afraid not. I am very dull."

He bit his lip. "Don't you know that I can't tell you? When one is married—is it quite impossible for a woman ever to understand?"

She laughed in her pretty, gurgling fashion, but in some swift, strange way she had changed. "Why, how came you to think that I didn't know?" She drew her hand from his slowly, and went on in a matter-of-fact way: "We used to play at love making, you and I, when the world was young. You have been thinking that I would expect a bit of withered, lavender-scented sentiment." She laughed merrily.

"I suppose so. Kitty, this thing of forgetting is not so easy for us all," he said, miserably.

"Isn't it? I'm sorry to know you had a bad time. Still, you did accomplish it." She smiled patronizingly.

"I didn't," he contradicted flatly.

"Is it really so bad as all that? Well, I must go in now."

"I think you might say that you are sorry for me," he pleaded, and she turned back.

"I didn't suppose you'd forget and—and drag the law and the Gospel in between us after this fashion," he said.

"I don't understand you, but, Dick, I am sorry." There were tears in her voice, and again she held out her hand.

"I don't believe you—forgot," he whispered.

"Perhaps I shall," she said bravely, "now that I know what my remembering has meant to you." Her proud head was held high, her strong, sweet face was raised to him with eyes that had no shrinking in their steadfast depths. "If I wronged myself by thinking of you before this meeting, I shall be careful not to wrong another by—"

"You waited for me, Kitty?" He looked at her, puzzled.

"It was hardly so much as that, I think. I don't believe I expected you to come again. I have been too busy to think of love and marriage. There was little Catherine to bring up. Now that I have given her to Charlie—"

"Little Catherine?" he repeated.

"Dear old Boh gave her to me when he died eight years ago; I thought you understood. I was all she had."

"And—and Charlie has married her?"

"Are you quite well?" she asked gravely. "I—I think your pepole ought to know—"

"Why Kitty, I have no people. After all, have you forgotten how utterly alone in the world I am?"

She caught her breath sharply and pressed her hands together.

"Must it always be so, Kitty? Couldn't you learn to care again?"

"And you were almost gone!" she sobbed.

A little note went into town on the morning train, and Charlie and his bride bent over it at the breakfast table.

"How lovely that the church is all decorated! What a sly old auntie ours is. We must hurry, to get to the wedding. And you knew that dark man and all about what he had come home for?"

"Of course, I did."

And she believed him.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Rebuking a Host.

While in Canada lord and lady Lansdowne pleased the Canadian people by their friendly and unassuming manners, which were in marked contrast to those of former governors-general and their wives. It is related that at a garrison ball at Halifax the colonel of the regiment that was giving the dance came up to Lady Lansdowne and said: "Lady Lansdowne, won't you give me a dance, please? I'm tired of dancing with these silly little colonial girls. They have no style. I believe I'm engaged to one of them for the next dance, but you might be kind enough to rescue me." Lady Lansdowne replied, in tones loud enough for everybody to hear, that the colonel was unfit to associate with any decent people, colonial or otherwise, and concluded: "If this is the way you treat your guests, I will relieve you of the presence of one of them at once." Then she ordered her carriage and left the ball.

A Business Epitaph.

Amusing epitaphs are not difficult to find if one is seeking them. The Cheshire Republican cites a most singular one, which may be found on a monument in eastern Tennessee.

"Sacred to the memory of John Smith, for 20 years senior partner of the firm of Smith & Jones, now J. J. Jones & Co."

The names are not really Smith and Jones, but they will answer for the purpose of the story. "I met Jones later," says the narrator, "and he gave me a frank explanation of the inscription.

"Smith was a bachelor without relatives," he said, "but he knew a tremendous lot of country people, and if any of them happened to see his grave, they might think that the old house had closed up and gone out of business. So I thought it no more than right to let them know that the firm was still alive."

A Change of Heart.

The operator in a telegraph office has many chances for the observation of varying phases of human nature if he chooses to make the best of them.

A young woman stepped to the desk, asked in a trembling voice for telegraph blanks. She wrote upon one, tore it in halves, wrote a second, which she treated in the same way, and at last a third. This last she handed to the operator with a feverish request that he would "hurry it."

This he did, and after she had gone he read the other two for his own amusement.

The first was, "All is over. I never wish to see you again."

The second read, "Do not write or try to see me at present."

The third was, "Come at once. Can you take next train? Please answer."—Youth's Companion.

Old Fogey—I am pained to hear that you are addicted to poker playing, and that last night you lost $127."

RUSSIA'S CENTRAL SYSTEM.

Forces That Are at Work for the Control of the Empire in Modern Times.

The Russian central administrative system is embodied in four councils—the council of the empire, made up of the ministers and a considerable body (now 93) of members appointed by the czar, having a purely consultative and advisory function with reference to measures proposed by the ministry; the senate, a judicial and executive body, which comprises the high courts of the empire, its members being of high rank, and the six sections into which it is divided being presided over by jurists who are the personal representatives of the czar; the holy synod, made up of the metropolitans, archbishops and certain bishops, and having jurisdiction in religious affairs; and the committee of ministers, which comprises the actual heads of different administrative departments, 13 in number, together with some other functionaries.

These councils, with the organization of which they are the head, form a large, strong and inevitably influential official class, within which there is room for a decided difference of opinion upon questions of public policy, writes Edwin A. Stuart, in the Chautauquan. As a matter of fact, this official class is the most powerful political force in Russia, and one that reaches out into the hundred provinces, in each of which the local government is a political center in close connection with St. Petersburg.

Besides this, there is a considerable body of educated, intelligent Russians, in touch with the world, whose opinions cannot be repressed, even by administrative process. How effective a force this educated public opinion may be in guiding the course of the czar perhaps he alone can tell, but in this age that force is one that cannot be neglected. There is then a certain kind of party life possible, even in Russia; not at all such as we know in constitutional and parliamentary countries, but something that is not to be neglected as a political force in relation to the czar.

But there is another serious limitation upon the power of the czar to accomplish even his most beneficent and enlightened will. He has for an instrument not a progressive and enlightened people, trained in self-management. The great mass of the Russian people, as a result of the climate and physiography of their country and of the course of their history, are a dull peasantry who have not yet learned to bear themselves as men. It is this inert mass that constitutes the great internal problem of Russia, holds the country in check, and deceives many calculations that are based upon the brilliant diplomacy and statesmanship of the men who serve the czar as counselors.

HOW ELECTRICITY KILLS.

Nature and Effects of the Currents Which Are Fatal to Human Life.

That electric currents of high and low tension cause death in a different manner would appear from a recent report made by Dr. F. Battelli, of the University of Geneva, upon the nature of the effects which cause death from electric shock.

Currents at a pressure of about 12,000 volts or more kill by inhibition of the nerve centers and arrested respiration, according to the Electrical Review. The heart continues to beat with energy and is only arrested by asphyxia, causing great arterial pressure. In such cases the animal may, in general, be restored by artificial respiration. On the other hand, currents of low tension, not exceeding 120 volts, and passing from the head to the feet, kill by producing paralysis of the heart, and the animal continues to breathe for some time after becoming unconscious. These low-tension currents apparently stop the heart by causing irregular contractions, thus disturbing its rhythm.

Dr. Battelli and Prof. Prevost have made the discovery that high-tension currents are capable of restoring the action of a heart that has been arrested by a low-tension current, but as the application, to be successful, must be made not more than 15 or 20 seconds after the arrest of the heart's action, it is hardly likely to prove valuable as a practical restorative. The path traversed by the current in passing through the body is a matter of great importance. The most dangerous is from one hand to the other, because the resistance of this path is low and because the current passes near the heart. Hence it is a good rule for workmen and others handling live conductors to use but one hand. An important rule to observe in rescuing a person in contact with a live wire and when it is impossible to cut off the current, is to push the victim off with one foot. Even should the current pass from one foot to the other through the rescuer, the resistance of the path is considerable, and as the current does not pass near the heart serious injury is not likely to result.

Fill Mine with Sea-Water.

The managers of the Dominion Coal company recently literally turned the Atlantic ocean into a burning colliery in Nova Scotia in order to put out the fire. Through a sluice cut from a dam on the shore of the ocean sea water was poured in at the rate of some 3,500,000 gallons an hour. The pit was flooded to the eleventh level before the fire could be extinguished. To subdue the flames about 450,000,000 gallons of water were needed and six days' time required.

"Dat was fine."

"But she got offended an' I felt like de ice around de freezer."

"How was dat?"

SNUBBING OF GEN. MILES.

Contemptible Littleness of the President in Retiring the Veteran Soldier.

No administration has ever perpetrated so shabby a trick as the present one in refusing to say a word of praise for Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles on his retirement for age by operation of the law of 1882. After 42 years faithfully serving the United States, and by virtue of his distinguished services from a private to the highest command, he is allowed to retire without the usual compliments. When Gen. Schofield was retired, President Cleveland paid a warm tribute to his gallantry and faithful services. President Roosevelt, at the instance of the ruling cabal, headed by Root and Corbin, who are not worthy to wipe the dust from the boots of, Gen. Miles, joins them in trying to humiliate the man who fought upon a hundred fields without fear and without reproach. The persistent efforts to exasperate and belittle Gen. Miles during the war with Spain, and since, were due to jealousy and fear of his becoming too powerful. He was refused the active command of the army in Cuba, and for his exposure of the rotten beef scandal—the whole truth of which has not yet been told, he was considered politically dangerous to the republican oligarchy that has been in command. That he has always been a consistent though independent republican and so thoroughly honest and capable that the powers that be could not buy or cajole him were the reasons for his mistreatment.

That the official slight to Gen. Miles was concocted by his enemies was not so much to be wondered at, but that President Roosevelt should aid and countenance their meanness and hold back what was justly due from the commander in chief to the brave general, shows the vast difference between the greatness and littleness of soul that should be expected of a president of the United States. It was officially announced in the Washigton Post that:

"The determination to confine the announcement of the retirement of the lieutenant general to the usual form was reached after deliberation and with a full knowledge of the precedents. It was made a matter of conference during the last visit of Secretary Root to Oyster Bay, although it is known the decision promulgated was arrived at some time ago."

So it was not an oversight, but a deliberate slight. The American people will remember this when the accounts are cast up for the final reckoning.

AT VARIANCE.

Republican Leaders Are Unable to Agree on the Financial Question.

The republicans are having troubles of their own these days and on questions that they should be most united about, and the numerous pilgrimages to Oyster Bay of the leaders of the different factions does not seem to clear the way for united action. First we are told that Senator Aldrich and his committee have agreed upon a financial bill which is generally acceptable to Wall street and is approved by President Roosevelt. Then we hear that Uncle Joe Cannon is mulish and does not fall in with the programme. He is "agin rubber currency" and does not think any financial legislation necessary—"we have the best currency on earth", and so on. Strange to relate, Rockefeller and Morgan agree with each other that the Aldrich bill will save the country and incidentally, of course, Wall street. They are very insistant that the loans to the banks by the United States treasury, without interest, should be made legal and if possible permanent. They also demand that the receipts from custome duties be deposited in the banks, as the internal revenue taxes now are. This latter part of the programme is said to be especially objectionable to the prospective speaker, and Congressman Fowler in an interview says, that Uncle Joe prefers the Fowler asset currency bill to the Aldrich bill. With Wall street and congress divided on the scope and plan of financial legislation, and the republican leaders divided, there is a chance that the democratic minority may have to decide the question of legislation or no legislation.

In all the controversy about the proposed financial legislation it will be noticed that no republican comes forward with any proposition that would be of comfort or assistance to the ordinary voter. The people appear to have no place at the republican feast. The Wall street financial magnates are invited to Oyster Bay, the trust and corporation officers and attorneys are called into conference, but not one known friend of the common people is invited, or indeed allowed, to voice their sentiments. Wall street, the trusts and the railroads are omnipotent in the counsels of the republican party.

Forget McKinley's Views.

It is highly probable that the head of the Union bank of London was correct in saying that President McKinley said to him a couple of years ago: "My tariff bill has done its work. We have been able to build up many industries in a short time, and now gradually, but inevitably, our tariff must be reduced." This is in perfect harmony not only with the speech of Mr. McKinley at Buffalo the day before he was shot, but with all the speeches he made while he was president. In Philadelphia, Boston, San Francisco and other cities he made addresses without exception designed to turn public attention toward the need of securing better markets abroad, even at the price of tariff concessions. And yet Senator Hanna has bound the party to the policy of "standing pat."—Philadelphia Record.

"SAVING POLITICAL FRIENDS."

PROTECTION AND LABOR.

An Acute Exposure of the Workings of High Tariff in This Country.

The textile workers of Philadelphia, who have been striking for some time past, are evidently doing some thinking, and recently in every street parade made by the strikers banners are carried bearing earcastic announcements and questions such as "We are protected by a tariff, but the republican mill-owners say we will be starved into submission;" "Why are the tariff-protected mills closed?" and many others of a like nature. One motto was especially significant: "If prosperity is so general, why can't we have a bit of it?" The workers are at last discovering that the protective tariff means high prices for what they have to buy and taxing the many for the profits of the few. They now discover what it has been difficult to make them before believe, that the trusts and combines are unwilling to increase wages to a par with the increased cost of living, or indeed anywhere near it, says the Indianapolis Sentinel.

Only two excuses have been made for protection: First, to control the home market for American manufacturers; and second, to protect American labor. The first excuse has been pretty fully accomplished at the expense of the consumer. The tariff has prevented competition and has allowed the trusts to raise prices until the average cost of living has increased about 40 per cent. The second excuse has been an arrant failure or the workingman would not be striking for a fair share of the prosperity that the trusts enjoy. The wages received by these workers are certainly less than will keep them in comfort at the present high price of living.

The hours of labor of the Philadelphia textile workers have been too long, when it is considered that a majority of the workers are women, girls and children, and ten hours a day or 60 hours a week, in badly ventilated workshops, is more than their tender years should be asked to endure. The wages paid range from $13 a week for the expert weavers to two dollars a week for the children. Do the hours or wages protect these workers as the protectionists would have us believe? The manufacturers have advanced the price of the products of the mills and carpets and the other textiles the workers produce have increased fully 25 per cent, and those who buy them have to pay that increase. So in Philadelphia we have an acute exposure of the workings of the protective tariff—the workers dissatisfied with their condition instead of the good wages and comfort that the champions of the protective system would have us believe always accompany it.

The manufacturers, who are mostly combined into trusts and are the sole beneficiaries of this extraordinary system, have become rich and are still growing richer. They sell to the American people at exorbitant prices and export similar goods and sell them in Europe and elsewhere at a much less price. And yet the republican leaders say: "Stand pat," "Let well enough alone," "The friends of protection only must reform the tariff." When more inquisitive or impatient voters ask when reformation will begin, the answer always is "After election," and like the Spanish "manana," to-morrow never comes. The tariff will never be reformed until the people elect a majority of congress that are free from the trust taint and whom the corporations are opposed to. It is not human nature to expect those who are receiving trust and corporation favors to legislate against them.

Giving to the Lord and Giving to the Poor

Giving to the Latter Is Not Always Equivalent to Giving to the Lord.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, Aug. 30, 1903. Text:—"Ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good."—Mark 14:7.

IN the days when Jesus lived among men, so it is to-day, the poor are present with us. Jesus was peculiarly the friend of the poor. The word of prophecy declared that the Christ who was to come should preach the Gospel to the poor, and it was that passage from Isaiah which Jesus quoted when he presented Himself as the promised Messiah at Nazareth, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath annointed Me to preach the Gospel to the poor; He hath sent Me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." When John the Baptist sent his disciples to inquire of Jesus if He was the Christ, He replied: "Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see.....The poor have the Gospel preached to them." Although "He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor." He identified Himself with the poor and needy, and His hand was always outstretched to help them. It could not possibly be claimed with any reasonable justice that He ever selfishly claimed for Himself anything that might have been bestowed upon those who were poor. And yet in the incident which is before us we find some of the disciples murmuring against the pouring of the precious and costly ointment upon Jesus' head and claiming that the ointment should have been sold and the poor remembered. But Jesus, whose thought was always for the poor, rebukes them and declares: "Ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good; but Me ye have not always." The poor were ever present with them, affording a perpetual opportunity for the deed of charity and kindness. They were to be remembered, they were to be helped, and whensoever anyone so desired he was free to do so; but there were gifts which even the poor were not entitled to. They belonged wholly to the Lord Himself. There were times when even the poor must be forgotten in rendering full and appreciative service to the Lord.

IT is a matter of proper adjustment of ourselves to the Lord and to those about us. Both have their claims upon us. The giving to the one must not take from the other that which is rightfully due. We recognize, of course, the beautiful truth that he who serves the poor, serves the Lord. Scripture plainly declares that "he that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord." And Jesus, in the picture which He drew of the judgment day, identified those who had given a cup of cold water to the needy as having rendered that service to Jesus Himself. We may not meet Jesus in the flesh and minister unto Him, but the poor we have with us always and we may find in their need opportunity of blessed service unto the Lord. But in this service there is danger of error of judgment in degree and kind of service rendered. There must be careful adjustment. The proper adjustment of the delicate balance wheel in my watch determines whether the works will run or not. If the revolution of the little wheel is not equal in each direction, so as to properly act on the escapement and permit the springs to drive the wheels, my watch is good for nothing as a timekeeper. Everything else about the watch may be of the best material and workmanship, but if the balance wheel is not properly adjusted it will be of no more service as a timekeeper than the gilded play watch which my little one so proudly carries. And so it is in regard to our relations to the Lord and the poor. An adjustment which enables one to render to each the rightful devotion and service is the only adjustment which is fair to both. For Mary to have sold her box of ointment for three hundred pence and distributed them to the poor would perhaps have brought her much public praise, but it would have robbed the Lord of that evidence of the exquisitely tender love and devotion which comforted His heart in the dark hours of the last days of His ministry upon earth.

THAT Mary did not err is evident from our Lord's rebuke to the murmuring disciples and His commendation of the deed of Mary. She was so adjusted in her relationship with her Lord and those about her that she did not allow the physical distress and the needs of the latter to obscure her Lord and make her forget that the spiritual was far more important than the physical. Three hundred pence and the poor looked bigger and better and more important to some of the disciples than the love and devotion and spiritual perception of a Mary. Human standards are so different from those which God recognizes and uses. Three hundred pence to the poor would have secured to Mary honorable place among the town's benefactors. She would have been known as a philanthropist among men, but the Lord would never have had the privilege of giving His gracious and appreciative testimonial which has come with its rare fragrance down to us through the years. Was Mary lacking in her sense of the needs of the poor? Were the critical disciples more zealous in charitable enterprises than their Lord? Mary's offering, the criticism of the disciples, and Jesus' rebuke, bring their message and their lessons to us of to-day.

IN these days of lavish giving and splendid organized charities, the poor are remembered and provided for as never before in the world's history. Charity's operations are reduced to a science, but the Lord and His mission to the poor are forgotten. Temporal benefits are allowed to obscure the eternal needs of the soul. The alabaster boxes are sold and the 300 pence are given to feed and clothe the poor, and human pride and self-consciousness swell in the heart and exclaim: "See, Lord, how splendidly thy servant hath wrought!" But were the soul sensitive to the voice of the Saviour, they would hear Him say: "Ye have the poor with you always and when ye will ye may do them good. Ye have constant opportunities to minister to their physical needs, but the supreme offering is the alabaster box of fellowship with Me, of realization of My mission to earth, of loving gratitude because of what I have wrought for you." It is not the giving of the 300 pence to relieve a temporary need, but the offering of the best one has to the Lord that one may go forth equipped to give the Lord's best to the needy souls of the poor.

THE Criticism.—Much criticism is heard that the churches raise and expend so much for the evangelization of the world and so little in direct lines of charity. The sociologist points with pride to his neighborhood settlements, his clubs, his schools for the poor, and challenges the churches to show like zeal for the bettering of human conditions. It is the complaint of the disciples modernized. The disciples said: "This ointment might have been sold for more than 300 pence, and have been given to the poor." The modern critic says: "See the vast amounts the churches are spending in spreading the Gospel. This money might better be devoted to the alleviation of the condition of the poor of our own land." Is the criticism just? and if not, wherein does the criticism err? Both questions may be answered by the same statement: Jesus did not come into the world to better the condition of the poor. He came that He might through His sacrifice save the souls of men. His mission to the poor is not to give more food, better clothing and shelter, but to lift the dead soul to life in Him, and when this has been done food, clothing and shelter follow. The best the world can do for its poor does not go beyond the brink of the grave, but the work which Christ does, and which He has called His disciples to help Him carry on, brings better conditions in this life and prepares the soul for Heaven.

JESUS' Rebuke.—And if Jesus were here on earth to-day He would answer the modern critics as He did those who murmured at Mary: "Ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good." It was not Jesus' purpose to set the poor aside and refuse to recognize their claim for help, in fact His reply is a positive recognition of the poor and their claims upon their fellow men, and especially the Christian. The rebuke is not against the desire to aid the poor, but against the exalting of the temporal above the spiritual. And until the higher claims of the latter are recognized, one is not in a position to administer to the temporal needs. The least which one can do for the poor is to feed and clothe and shelter. If the help does not go beyond that point, the unending years of eternity will reveal the folly of such ministry. The poor ye have always, and there is constant opportunity to help them, physically, but the supreme mission is to help them spiritually. To withhold food and shelter and clothing so that the life perish would not be so terrible as to withhold the ministry which would bring the soul from death to life. Death would forever end the physical suffering, but death would only mark the beginning of the awful lack which the soul without Christ must know.

THIS thought and this lesson were forcibly driven home to my heart during my summer vacation last year, which I spent awheel. My pockets were not filled with coin, but the roomy bag on my bicycle was filled with the precious Word of God. Pretty illuminated Scripture texts, and Testaments—the living Word of God which shall not pass away, rather than treasures of this world which perish with the using. The thought that in the country districts there were many needy souls who seldom or never came under religious influences or heard the Word of God, who might be reached through my itinerant ministry, impelled me forward. And I did find such. I found one half-grown boy who had never heard of Jesus. I found one poor hard-working mother whose trials had driven her from the Saviour's side instead of to Him. She had no Bible, she did not pray any more. She used to be a Christian, she said. And the words of Jesus: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," came to her heart that day with new meaning and new hope. And I found the poor, the desperately poor, to whose temporal needs I was not able to minister, but to whom the Lord blessedly opened the way to serve them in their spiritual needs.

IT was an unfamiliar road over which I traveled. I had never been that way before, and I knew not what I would meet with along its pathway, and rather strangely but providentially, I believe, the first opportunity came to me at the county poor house. It was not silver coin which I had to give to the poor that day, but I did long to break the alabaster box of my love and devotion at the feet of my Lord in order that He might take and use it to the blessing of some poor soul. As I entered the poor house grounds I met the superintendent and secured his permission to visit the inmates of the place, both in the building and upon the grounds, which were shady and comfortable with their benches under the trees. A group of six or eight aged and decrepid men were gathered there. I had my Testaments and Scripture cards handy, and as I entered the group I gave each a card and spoke a cheery how-de-do. Here were men with a place to stay and meager daily food to nourish the body, but no place to call home. Ah! how I prayed that the Lord would enable me to speak some word of His eternal brightness and truth which would shine as a beacon light to the poor souls and light their way to Heaven. I did try to tell them of the Christ and the mansions He had gone to prepare in the heavens for them that love Him. Some seemed to understand. Some were German and could not understand my speech. They were all interested and I know enjoyed my visit. One of the group, seemingly more intelligent than the rest, displayed much interest in the things whereof I was speaking. I gave him a Testament and the last I saw of him he was seated, with the others about him, reading the precious Word of God. Perhaps that day new visions were opened up to him which will grow brighter as his failing days fade into the grave. Perhaps some day the pauper whom I met that day will greet me on the other side and we will rejoice together in the riches and comfort and joy of the Father's house. God looked down upon that ill-sorted group of human beings. His gaze penetrated the homely, ill-fitting garments of the paupers and my not elegant, but better dress, and saw beneath the needy souls of each and all, "for God is no respecter of persons." But for the grace and favor of God I might have been numbered among those lonely outcasts. Be that as it may, God in His love was tenderly yearning towards these souls as He was towards me, and I needed the blood of Jesus Christ to cleanse me from all sin even as did they. It is good sometimes to strip one's self of social distinction and worldly position and favor and try to view the naked soul as it is placed along side of the soul of one whom the world hardly deigns to look upon and considers a burden because public funds are needed to house, clothe and feed the poor outcast.

THE bird in the tree top sends forth his note of sweet song and then swinging off upon the breeze he mounts up upon the glittering shafts of the sunbeam into the blue of heaven and is lost to sight and sound, and it is not hard to imagine that he has gained the ramparts of the heavenly city and is mingling his rare music with that of the angelic hosts.

The rich farmer drives by and, with a commisserating glance at the poor house, he talks with me about his fine farm down yonder which he is going to visit. I met him that day. This is no fine figure of imagination. This is real life as the Lord opened it up to me that day. The rich farmer with his heart buried in the soil, and his glance reaching no higher than the tasselling corn tops which drank in the Heaven-sent sunshine and cool evening dew, who saw the reddening and glowing sunset reflected in the rosy-cheeked apples hanging in heavy profusion from the bending limbs, and never thought of Him who had tinted the swelling sides of the luscious fruit, but was carefully figuring on the number of barrels he could send to market and the price they would bring.

The pauper in the poor house grounds heard the song of the bird that day. Perhaps his soul bounded upward with the flight of the bird in prophetic promise of the resurrection morn.

The rich farmer with his bursting granaries, his spanking team and his fine farm down yonder, was covering his soul so deep with this world's possessions that it never could hear the glad music of the resurrection morning, but would sleep the heavy sleep of death until summoned to appear before God and then pass on into the outer darkness.

If I had had the wealth of a Vanderbilt to have bestowed upon those paupers and I had emptied that poor house that day, and given each a mansion and a bank account, it would not have pleased my Lord so much, I believe, as the ministry which I rendered in His name and for His sake. And is not this our greatest obligation to the poor? Mere charity which alleviates physical suffering does not fulfill our highest obligation to them. If the Lord and His claim upon the poor are left out, if the greatest need of the poor—salvation in Christ and treasure in Heaven—is not supplied, then have we failed. We may have given to the poor, but we have not given to the Lord. The poor we have always with us, and when we will we many do them good, but let us not forget to break our alabaster boxes of love and devotion and gratitude at Jesus' feet as we seek to give to the Lord the precious souls of the poor.

IRRESISTIBLE CONFLICT.

Unsuccessful Campaign of an Arizona Man Against a Colony of Red Ants.

The most desperate conflict that ever occurred between a Phoenix citizen and a colony of red ants is about to be related. The industry and perseverance of the red ant is proverbial, and his efforts are often directed against the most obstinate enterprises, yet are generally crowned with success. It has been frequently hinted that if the red ants in this valley had been men and the men had been red ants the Tonto dam would have been built years ago, says the Arizona Republican.

This particular colony of red ants decided that it wanted to do business on a lively thoroughfare, so it selected one of the principal streets of the city and settled under a cement sidewalk. When the summer season came along better ventilation was desired, so without loss of time the whole colony set to work and in a few days had a hole bored up through the sidewalk, the ant engineers having chosen a thin place between the cement blocks.

Then came the man's turn, for a red ant hill is not a pleasing sight nor a matter of utility on a cement sidewalk. The man thought there must have been a break in the walk else the ants would not have been able to get through. So he got some putty and stopped up the hole. It took the ants just 24 hours to carry away the putty. Fearful that they had got next to him and went to work on the putty before it got dry, he decided to get something with quicker action, so he secured a quantity of cement and again stopped the hole. This held them for two or three days, but they gnawed through again about the time he began to call the attention of his friends to his supposed victory. He next tried plaster of paris, and after that solder, but with similar results in both cases.

Then he resorted to the primitive method of drowning them out. He knew that nobody else ever successfully drowned out an ant hill, but he thought it was because of the scarcity of water in this valley. He could surely drown the insects if he used water enough, for the water cure fixes even a Filipino. As he had plenty of time on his hands he spent the next few days carrying water and running it through a funnel into the ant hole. Finally the insects began to subside, and he thought he was making progress when he made the discovery that the cellar under the house was full of water. Then he stopped pouring water for awhile to let the cellar dry. When the water in the cellar began to go down the ants would begin to come out again. After a few days spent in experiment he found that by counting the ants on the sidewalk he could tell just how much water was in the cellar. Then he gave up the water cure. He is still sure that it would be a success if he used water enough, but the contract to keep the cellar full of water all summer with a tin bucket and a funnel began to look formidable.

Finally a new idea struck him. He got a pound of wire nails and a hammer and drove the ant hole full of nails. At this date he has the ants pacified, all the same Filipino, but he can hear them gritting their teeth on the lower side of the pavement and he knows they are ribbing up something designed for his mental prostration.

DECORATIVE CLAY PIPES.

Those Made in France and Hungary Are Grotesque in Shape and Gayly Colored.

There are nearly as many pipeclays as countries, and each nationality has its own individual fashion of constructing pipes. A Hungarian clay pipe has the howl only of clay, the long stem being of wood or bamboo. The all-clay English pipe will be designed with a delicately molded hand supporting the bowl or it will be a knobby howl suggesting the blackthorn or Irish shillalah, says the New York Times.

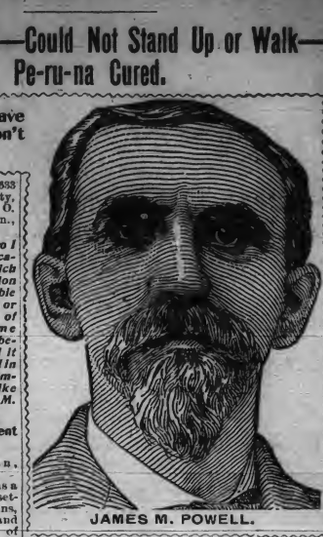
The French clay takes all sorts and kinds of fantastic shapes. Some of these are comic and others patriotic. Animal's heads adorn others.

A man, it would seem, can get a great deal for his money buying the French pipe. It is not large as to size, but it is gay in color, if he wishes to pay as much as five cents for it; or he can get the design without the color for four cents. A horse's head forming the bowl of the pipe is a dark brown and is natural in shape and expression. A pug dog's head is about the same color. A negro's head covered with woolly hair is black, and Miss Liberty, with her cap, is appropriately colored. Mephistopheles—in all white—appears to have reformed, and there are other shapes and kinds. The Hungarian clay pipe is the largest with a big, deep bowl, and also larger in price, for it costs 10 cents. The bachelor or benedict with a den uses these pipes for decorations, and does not waste his substance riotously in doing so.

His Worst Habit.

George Widener, the son of Peter A. B. Widener, the noted financier, is a young man of exquisite taste. This taste he displays equally in his equipages, in the furnishing of his apartment at Liverpool hall (the Widener residence near Philadelphia), and in his clothes, which are made by American tailors. For it is now claimed by many persons wise in the matter of dress that the American tailor excels the English tailor in skill. That being the case, Mr. Widener replied truthfully, perhaps, to a question that was put to him the other day. This question arose out of a rather philosophical discussion that a number of young men were holding in a Philadelphia club. It was:

"What is your worst habit?"



He answered:

"A brown suit, undoubtedly, that I bought in London in June."—Kansas City Journal.

CATARRH DESTROYS THE KIDNEYS

Was Miserable—Could Not Stand Up or Walk—Pe-ru-na Cured.

Many Persons Have Catarrh and Don't Know It.

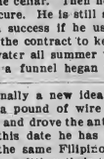
JAMES M. POWELL.

Mr. James M. Powell, 653 Troost street, Kansas City, Mo., Vice Grand of I. O. O. F., of Cherryville, Kan., writes:

"About four years ago I suffered with a severe catarrh of the bladder, which caused continued irritation and pain. I was miserable and could not stand up or walk for any length of time without extreme weariness and pain. I began taking Peruna and it greatly relieved me, and in eleven weeks I was completely cured and felt like a new man."—James M. Powell.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain.

Mr. Cyrus Hershman, Sheridan, Ind., writes:



"Two years ago I was a sick man. Catarrh had settled in the pelvic organs, making life a burden and giving me little hope of recovery. I spent hundreds of dollars in medicine which did me no good. I was persuaded by a friend to try Peruna. I took it two weeks without much improvement, but I kept on with it and soon began to get well and strong very fast. Within two months I was cured, and have been well ever since. I am a strong advocate of Peruna."—C. Hershman.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys, liver and other pelvic organs, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. No other systemic catarrh remedy has as yet been devised. Insist upon having Peruna. There are no medicines that can be substituted.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The Bible and the Empire State Express.

A Bible student has recently been figuring on how long it would have taken the people to make the journey from Dan to Beersheba if they could have had the benefit in the olden times of the Empire State Express. He figured that the train would have made this journey in less than three hours, although from a reading of the account in the Bible one would think it was a long journey, and it was for those days with their limited means of transportation. Ezekiel, the Chaldean prophet, had in his minds eye something like the Empire State Express when he uttered the words recorded in the first chapter of his prophecy. Look this up and see if you do not agree with the writer.—From the Troy Daily Times.

For Sale.--Farm of 255 Acres.

$17.500 Will Buy It If Sold in the Next 30 Days.

I offer for sale my farm of 255 acres, adjoining the village of Hebron. It is the finest and best improved farm in Northern Kentucky. It is all in meadow and fine blue grass except about 10 acres. Having decided to move away this fall, I will take for the farm, if sold within the next thirty days, $17,500—not less. It is the greatest bargain in farm lands ever offered in this end of the State. It cost nearly double that sum. I will show the figures.

Aug. 12, 1903. A. G. WINSTON, Hebron, Ky.

Steve Gaines and Waller Campbell are plitting up the bridge across Ashby.

Mrs. Bettie Botts and children were visiting Robt. Huey and family, last Friday.

Cage Stephens and wife were visiting over on Gunpowder, last Saturday and Sunday.

If some people would be more careful about saying things to hurt others feelings they would get along just as well.

Will Sebree and wife entertained his mother and brother, John, and family, W. S. Acra and wife, Frank Voshall and wife, Sunday. They are excellent entertainers.

IDLEWILD.

Mrs. James Brown is ill.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley is quite ill at present.

Growers are busy housing their tobacco.

E. M. Gaines visited friends near Petersburg, last week.

Very dry and dusty, although the weather is delightful.

Mrs. Thomas Randall entertained with a nice dinner, last Sunday.

Mrs. Alfred Gaines and daughter, of Louisville, are visiting relatives here.

F. P. Walton and wife, of Covington, were guests at N. S. Walton's, Sunday.

Rev. Edgar Jones and family left, last Saturday, for their home in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. J. A. Gaines has returned after a pleasant visit with relatives in Central Kentucky.

Miss Mary Lillard, of Lawrenceburg, Anderson county, attended church at Bullittsburg, last Sunday.

A large congregation attended church at Bullittsburg, Sunday, and heard a good sermon by the pastor.

One day last week a friend asked Enoch White how the river was, and he replied, "It is able to be up."

Mrs. M. T. Graves, Mrs. Legrand Gaines and Miss Erma Gaines, were guests of your correspondent last Wednesday.

Winston Ross, of Highlands, Ky., and Mrs. Chas. Thomas, of New Orleans, were guests at James T. Grant's, Sunday.

W. A. Gaines came very near having a serious accident with his horse here, a few days since. It got its foot over the fence.

Mrs. Anna Morris, of Rushville, Ind., has returned home after a visit of two weeks with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Clore.

COMMISSARY.

Sept. 5.—Mrs. Marshall spent last Tuesday with Miss Nannie Goodridge.

Mrs. J. J. Lillard, who has been sick for several weeks, has considerably improved.

The Commissary ate watermelon with Richard Louden and family, last Sunday.

William Sebree and family were the guests of Ransom Ryle and wife, last Sunday.

Keep in mind the Masonic entertainment at McVille on the evening of September 12th.

Miss Maud Scott, after several weeks stay with her sister, Mrs. O. N. Grant, has returned home.

Jesse Louden, wife, and son Elbert, spent last Sunday with Mr. Louden's fatherland mother.

Miss Flora Arnold and Chas. Garnett, of Illinois, were entertained last Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lillard.

Clark, the gentlemanly barber of Burlington, stops for a few minutes' chat when passing this way from Petersburg.

Miss Coay McGuire, of Stewartsville, Ky., is visiting relatives and acquaintances in the vicinity of Bellevue and McVille.

Misses Anna and May Cason and Sadie Marshall, were guests of Mrs. Samuel Hall, near Burlington, last Tuesday.

Mrs. Hunt, mother of Mrs. T. J. Walton, is confined to her bed with a boil or carbuncle on one of her feet. It is causing her much pain.

J. W. Eubanks and wife, of Gallatin county, came up to attend the fair, and remained over Sunday as guests of W. T. Ryle and family near here.

Misses Lolia Ward, of near Rabbit Hash; and Varina Miller, of Rising Sun, Indiana, were guests of Miss Stella Ryle the latter part of last week.

Miss Julia Louden and Miss Virgie Popham are each carrying a wounded limb in a sling, caused by a fall. Miss Julia an arm, and Miss Virgie a lower limb.

Jacob Koons and wife, of Patriot, Indiana, James Beard and wife of Belleview, and Miss Coay McGuyre, of Stewartsville, Ky., were guests of Noah West and family, last Sunday.

Miss Nannie Pope entertained with a dance Monday night in honor of her cousins, Misses Ola and Flora Dye, of Hebron. Miss Nannie demonstrated that she knows how to entertain. Every body enjoyed themselves. Henry Phippe says it was too nice to talk about.

Dan McCarty and a Mr. Hillis, added their names to those buying a copy of the illustrated Recorder of Commissary. If all the correspondents had sold as many copies each of the edition as the Commissary, there would be over 500 copies less in the office. We have shown our appreciation of the edition by selling it.

Paul Allen Presser, son of Perry and Rena Presser, was born Nov. 2, 1900, died of flux Aug. 13, 1903, aged 2 years 9 months and 11 days. Paul Allen Presser was a very bright and intelligent boy; the pride and joy of his father and mother, and the favorite of his relatives. His mother had taught him and he had committed to memory a little prayer, which he repeated every night. His father was always the first to retire, after which the mother would undress and prepare little Paul for bed; then he would run to the bed and say "papa, take baby in;" and when lifted on the bed, he would kneel down on his little pillow, clasp his hands, raise his eyes heavenward and with childish confidence and reverence repeat his little prayer. The Savior said "suffer little children to come unto Me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." It is a comforting thought to his parents to know that his spirit is with God, who gave it. His remains were laid to rest in the new cemetery in Bellevue, to await resurrection morn.

CRESCENT.

Mrs. Ella Rector was visiting Mrs. Robt. Northcutt, Saturday.

Benjamin Northcutt, of Verona, was the guest of his son, Robt. Northcutt, last week.

The Misses Martin, of Corinth, are the guests of their cousin, Miss Emma Glacken.

Miss Ellen Rector, of Morganville, spent several days with relatives here, last week.

Henry Groger exhibited his harness and saddle horses at the Alexandria fair, last week.

Miss Clara Glass, of Covington, after a pleasant visit with friends at this place, returned home, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Carpenter, of Richwood, and Miss Emma Glacken, visited the Cincinnati Zoological Garden, Wednesday.

G. S. Brown, of Cincinnati, and Ernst Safleider, of this place, are contemplating an extended hunting tour in Iowa, in the near futnre.

We indorse the statements of the Richwood correspondent relative to the extremely low salary of the public school teacher. Good talent demands good remuneration, and it is an undisputed fact that the commou school teacher receives less for his services than any other minister of the Commonwealth. Besides his cost of living and incidental expenses, it is to be supposed that the teacher has expended no little amount in qualifying himself for his duties, and his financial prospect is not very bright when he finds that he must be satisfied with a salary of from $30 to $40 per month. It is true that our county officials' hands are tied, but recently the General Assembly passed an act empowering the citizens of the county to levy and collect an additional tax of 15 cents on the $100 to supplement the school fund, and extend the term. In view of this fact it depends solely upon the people to have better paid teachers and necessarily better schools. Our law is sufficient if the people will; with the vote enforce it, and until they do the teacher must work for a salary that does not justify him to remain in the profession.

FLICKERTOWN

Cy Passons, of Tuscola, Ill., is visiting his parents here.

Wm. Smith and wife, of Addyston, were visiting relatives here last week.

Walter Campbell has been doing some much needed work on the road here.

Rain is needed very badly. Stock water is scarce in the pastures and Ashby Fork is almost dry.

George and Louis Hensley and wives visited their brother Foster Hensley at North Bend Saturday and Sunday.

Dick Kittle, who was struck with a ball bat a couple of weeks ago is about well; but he will carry an ugly scar over his eye.

Miss May Cutter returned to her home last Saturday after a pleasant visit with her cousin Miss Julia Smith, at Camp Foster.

The Woolper ball team journeyed to Willoughby, Saturday afternoon, and defeated that team by a score to 8 to 1.

Charlie Hensley was in Locust Grove neighborhood helping his brother Ed dig a cistern one day last week. Ed's tobacco crop is not as good as usual.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substances and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all Druggists.

For Sale—A dwelling and blacksmith shop in the town of Bellevue, Boone county, Kentucky. This is a first-class stand for a good smith. Address Jos. M. Birkle, Hebron, Ky., or Birkle Bros., Burlington, Ky.

WALTON GRADED SCHOOL NOTICE—

Walton Graded School will open on Monday, September 14th. It is earnestly desired that every pupil should be there on the first day. Some parents have an idea that a delay of a few days or a few weeks in entering their children will not effect their school work, but this is a grave mistake. In many cases such delay will result in the child's having to enter a lower grade than if he had been present at the beginning. Parents and other visitors will be welcome at any time during the session, but they are especially invited to be present on the opening morning. Very Respectfully,

W. P. DICKEY, Principal.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the 2-year old child of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 N. Tenth St., Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble, and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which quieted her stomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permanent cure and she is now well and strong. For sale by all Druggists.

The editor and wife were remembered with a box of the excellent cakes that graced the table at the Baldon-Carpenter nuptials. May Mr. and Mrs. Baldon's wedded life be long, happy and prosperous.

Personal Mentions.

Miss Jennie Blyth is attending the State College at Lexington

Judge Lassing made a business trip to Chicago the first of the week.

N. E. Riddell and wife visited in Bellevue neighborhood, Sunday.

Roy Clutterbuck and wife spent Sunday with relatives in Kenton county.

Mrs. Ed Hawes was visiting Miss Mamie Hawes and mother, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Estelle Huey, of Locust Grove, left for Georgetown, Monday morning to enter college.

Cecil Gaines was out with his new rubber tire buggy Sunday, taking in all the surrounding country.

O. J. Ryleand son, Willie, spent from Saturday until Tuesday, with Hal Presser and wife, at Latonia.

Miss Jonette Revill returned home, last Friday, after a visit of several days at Lakeland and Georgetown.

Our old friend, C. H. Acra, of Bellevue, remembered this office with nice fruit and a fine melon, yesterday.

Pink Rice and wife, of Idlewild, were guests at W. E. Vest's from Saturday until Monday. Mr. Rice is looking very weak, being afflicted with dumb ague or some kindred ailment.

Prof. Hughes and wife began teaching the public school here yesterday. It is believed that they will have quite a large attendance during the term. They come well recommended.

Col. Stott, of Petersburg, was in town one day last week, and told his friends at the temple of justice that he would give them a load of watermelons if they would send for them.

Mr. B. C. Tanner, of Gunpowdgr, breeder and importer of Southdown sheep, called in Monday and left an order for stationery. Every stock raiser in the county should follow his example.

Judge Lassing, A. B. Rouse, C. C. Roberts, Hubert Gaines and J. F. Blyth went to Winchester, last Saturday to assist in opening the Democratic campaign in this State. The crowd present was a monster.

W. M. Rogers, of Walton neighborhood, was in this office early Monday morning and told of a fine rain that fell in that part of the county, last Saturday afternoon. He says the crops up there look better than these in this part of the county.

Dudley Rouse and wife arrived home last Friday evening after a delightful sojourn of several weeks at Petoskey, Michigan. Mr. Rouse thiuks Northern Michigan is a delightful place in which to spend the summer months, but beyond that he has no use for such a country.

Owen Aylor, of Limaburg, gave a big supper last Saturday night. Covers were laid for seventy guests. Mr. and Mrs. Aylor are most excellent entertainers, and as is always the custom at their hospitable home, the guests last Saturday night, enjoyed themselves until the parting hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith C. Norman announce the marriage of their daughter, Ella Bianton, to Benjamiu Houston, Wednesday, September Twenty-third, nineteen hundred and three.

Don't forget that the Harvest Home will be held next Saturday, near Limaburg. This will be the last opportunity of the year to meet any considerable crowd of Boone county people; besides there will be a good exhibition of pantry and dairy, needle work, and stock and farm produots. Those who delight in tripping the light fantastic will be given an all day session.

D. M. Hewitt Dead.

D. M. Hewitt, an estimable citizen residing about 3 miles northwest of Burlington, died of heart disease at 12 m. yesterday after about 24 hours illness. The remains will be interred at Petersburg today. Mr. Hewitt was an ex-Confederate soldier, who served faithfully during the war. He leaves a wife and several children and many friends to mourn his death.

GOV. BECKHAM

Sounds the Keynote of the Democratic State Campaign.

Masterly Speech by Kentucky's Executive at Winchester, September 5th.

The Following is the Text of Governor Beckham's Opening Speech at Winchester on Saturday.

I welcome the opportunity which this occasion presents, and I rejoice that the time is at hand for the democratic party, with its united forces and full confidence, to enter a campaign before the people of Kentucky for the election of their state officers next November.

On our part, I intend that the contest shall be an aggresive, not a defensive, one; that the people shall be thoroughly acquainted with the issues involved, and that in the full light of public view the democratic party, which has had the republican party unwillingly, must stand upon their respective records, and let the people be the judge between them. This is the policy which we seek, which we demand, and we intend to drag our reluctant adversaries from the dark recesses of the "gum-shoe campaign" and make them fight us, if they will, in the open light of day. That they will have to be compounded upon a quiet and secret campaign, relying upon the power of a big corruption fund and the hope that the democrats may be lulled into a sense of over-confidence, we are determined to compel them to stand up and assume responsible ownership for the evil record they have made in this state.

We have nothing to conceal; we invite a full and fair investigation of our record, and we gladly go before the people upon the issues which they make. In the sincerity or our purpose and in the righteousness of our cause. We know the people of Kentucky; their love of honesty and courage, their hatred of fraud and deception, and with that knowledge we have this campaign in no misgivings as to the result. Democrats need only do their full duty and the victory is ours. Democracy is a democratic state and intends to be governed by the democratic party. We seek to win by upholding the banner of the party, while the republican party tries to succeed by slandering it and making its name a byword of reproach throughout the state. We strive to maintain peace and prosperity and to enforce the laws vigorously and impartially, while the republican party, in the interest of its leaders, finds delight when he indulged in such mockery, and saw in his mind's eye the form of civil war and disorder, with the knife, the assassin's bullet and writhing in agony on the state house pavement. And yet these are the people who denounce us. This is the platform which says my administration has been bad! In my record of the last two years I never expected such a complete triumph and vindication as this. Mr. Beckham, the nominee of the democratic party for governor, is the arch-conspirator in the assassination of Wm. Goebel and the cowardly murderers who, by the verdict of a county jury on a trial of nine days, a libel upon every subject with which it purports to deal. It has since been repealed in the last session of the legislature and have spoken by denouncing me and my administration. I glory in its condemnation. I rejoice that those who have violated its provisions and covered every other demonstration in that convention. They yearned to see him that they might have unlimited power. Taylor was

The Supreme Mission of Jesus Christ

What It Was That Brought Him From Heaven to Earth.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, Sept. 6, 1903.

Text: "Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners."—1 Tim., 1:15.

THAT Jesus Christ lived upon earth 1900 years ago, and that he was crucified by the Roman soldiers at the instigation of the Jewish sanhedrin, are historical facts which are incontestable. But there appears to be a good deal of confusion—and endless discussion growing out of that confusion—as to what Jesus' mission really was, and is. Some will try to maintain that it was to show men how to live, other some will argue that He came to do good; that He was a reformer and came to establish new social and religious conditions; and still others will seek to show that His mission was peculiarly Jewish, and ended when He was rejected and killed by the nation whose Messiah and King He had come to be. And this confusion arises from unduly emphasizing the side of Jesus' life which seems to sustain the views held, just as the inspiration and purpose of the artist might be missed in studying his painting, if one feature or another were allowed to occupy the vision. But that Jesus came to he something else than a pattern after which men could shape their lives, or a reformer to right human wrongs, or a benefactor and philanthropist, whose effort was to heal the sick, raise the dead, make the blind see and spread happiness and sunshine wherever He went, is unmistakably evident from the declarations of the Word of God and of Jesus Himself. Jesus plainly said: "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance." "God sent the Son into the world that the world should be saved through Him," and the words of our text, "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners," is the whole Gospel story boiled down, and expresses the supreme thought of God in sending Jesus into the world and the supreme purpose and mission of Jesus in coming.

THE drowning man does not need some one to teach him to swim; his desperate condition requires some one to save him. And the dying sinner does not need someone to show him how to live in this life, but a Saviour to cleanse him from all sin and make him fit for Heaven. After he is saved he is ready to learn how to live. This old world since its foundation and the placing of man upon it had been busy with reformation, and when Jesus came it needed not a reformer, but a Saviour; not one who would improve conditions here and there, but one who could cure the plague spots and cleanse from all sin. Jesus went about doing good; wherever He went His hand was outstretched to help. He was a benefactor and philanthropist, but that was not the supreme need of those about Him, and that was not His supreme mission. There were ten lepers cleansed one day when they met Jesus. As they went rejoicing and clean back to their homes and friends they knew Jesus as a great benefactor, but only one of them returned to find Jesus the Saviour, and to learn that a greater work was the cleansing from the leprosy of sin. Jesus did not come into the world to cure the diseased and crippled of the little land of Palestine, but He came with a world-wide mission of salvation for the sinner. The miracles of healing, the kindly ministries, the teaching and preaching were incidental to the greater work of salvation. The miracles proved His Deity; the good deeds which He wrought revealed the depth of love and sympathy which He felt for suffering mankind; His preaching and teaching opened up God's truth and made plain God's wonderful plan of salvation; but it was only when He went upon the cross and became a sacrifice for sin; it was only when "He who knew no sin became sin for us that we might become the Righteousness of God in Him;" it was only when He died that He might deliver the human race from death, that He realized His supreme mission to the world. "This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

LET us get this great fact fairly and squarely before our hearts and minds. Let Jesus as Saviour of the world fill your whole vision, and then you will be able to appreciate and understand Him in His varied relations to the world. It was not until the disciples came to have a clear understanding of Jesus' supreme mission to the world that they could understand Him, or realize their part in that great mission. Why was it that when Jesus talked to them of His coming death on the cross they rebuked Him and declared that it should not be? Why was it that Peter was so earnest and vehement in His opposition to Jesus' plain statement that He must be killed and raised the third day that Jesus had to turn upon him with the terrible rebuke: "Get thee behind me Satan; thou art an offense unto Me; for thou savorest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men"? Why was it that upon the mountain top of transfiguration amidst the glories revealed there the three disciples wanted to build tabernacles for Jesus, Moses and Elias that they might find a permanent dwelling place there? Why was it that there were jealousies and disputings among the disciples as to who should have the chief place in the kingdom which Jesus came to establish? Why was it that the disciples went with their linens and spices to the tomb to embalm their dead Lord? Why was it that even to the very last day of Jesus' presence with them after His resurrection, when they were gathered on Olivet's brow, and He delivered to them His last commission: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," they persisted in asking: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" Was it not because they did not understand Jesus' supreme mission to the world, and their share in bringing to pass the full realization of that mission?

WHY is it that to-day the church of Jesus Christ, and the individual Christians in those churches, are making such pitiable progress in the evangelization of the world? Is it not because they do not know or have forgotten what the supreme mission of Jesus to the world is? Nowadays Christian activities are so complex and varied that the primary and fundamental reasons of Jesus' coming to the world and the Christians' relation and responsibility thereto are lost sight of. Jesus did not come to establish churches, and through them to better the conditions in the world. Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners. And those saved sinners are to become the channels through which Jesus may reach the uttermost parts of the earth and save other sinners. That the saved sinners—the Christians—should be drawn together by a common faith and hope is natural—for the fellowship of the saints is blessed and helpful and necessary—and it is according to the plan of God, for the church of Jesus Christ of which He is the head is composed of the true believers everywhere, no matter of what nation, race, color or position in life. But the underlying and foundation principle and right of Christians as organized bodies to exist is the commission of Jesus to go tell others that Jesus can save.

ALL the activities of the early apostolic church, as disclosed in the Acts, clustered around the great work of soul-saving. There were charitable and philanthropic enterprises, but they were all the outgrowth of the preaching of the Gospel to sinners. The supreme mission of Jesus was ever kept before the Christians of the early church. He had come to save sinners. As the Holy Spirit came and took possession of their surrendered wills and hearts, they saw that it was not an earthly kingdom which Jesus came to set up; they realized that He had not come to bring about great social and political changes, except such as were the outgrowth of the changed lives of the saved sinners, but that it was a world dead in trespasses and sins which He had come and offered His life to redeem. And immediately they began to preach this message. And charities and the varied forms of Christian activities followed as a necessary result of their preaching. This is the position which the church must occupy to-day if it would be what God wants it to be and intended it should be.

WHY was Jesus' supreme mission to the world that of saving the sinner? Because the greatest need of man could only be met by the greatest sacrifice of Heaven. Jesus asks: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Jesus might have righted all human wrongs, He might have banished sickness from the earth, He might have ushered in a reign of peace and plenty, and it would have made earth a good place to dwell in, but after the short period of this life, what of the next? He might have provided for the physical man, but what of the eternal welfare of his soul? He must give His life in order that He might buy the right to give life to sinful, lost man.

His supreme mission was the redeeming back to God of a lost and ruined race. When Jesus came the Jew was crushed under the cruel yoke of Roman bondage, and looked for deliverance, but Jesus looked farther than the Roman oppressors, He looked deeper than the ills of the flesh. He saw beneath all the externalities of life the dead soul. The Jews wanted a king and deliverer; they needed a Saviour. The world wants amelioration from its woes and distresses; it needs first and foremost a Saviour. Go with me to the morgue. There lie the rows upon rows of ghastly dead. What do those cold, stiff bodies need most, the finest of clothing, jewels to deck finger, throat and brow, mansions to shelter, friends to cherish and love and festive boards around which to gather? Are those what they need? The very thought of these things in connection with those lying there stiff and cold in death is abhorrent. They need life! Life!! Life!!! When Jesus came to the world's morgue of souls dead in trespasses and sins, could He think of anything but their supreme need? They did not need what the world could give so much as they needed life! Life!! Life!!! Do you know, I believe some of the saddest moments of Jesus' life were when his suffering and needy received the personal blessings of healing and food from His hands without any awakening in the soul of desire for the supplying of the greater need which He came to fill. He came to give Life! Could He be satisfied when they were willing to take less? Oh, the greatest need of the world is not more charity, greater philanthropy, higher civilization, broader education, but it is Life! Jesus' supreme mission was to give life to dead souls, to save sinners.

AND if Jesus had but one supreme mission, that of saving sinners, and if the supreme message of the ages is: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved," how had it ought to affect the Christian? The Christian has a right to have but one passion, and that is a passion for souls. His message must be the one which Jesus has sent him to deliver. We do not hear Paul, the greatest soul-winner of all times, preaching anything but Christ Jesus and Him crucified. He might have preached other and helpful things, but he declares: "I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." He might have gloried in other things, but His prayer was: "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." And the Christian has no right or excuse for preaching or teaching anything else than that "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." This fact must be the central and supreme motive of the life. Let all else be subordinate to this one great truth of Heaven and hope of earth.

TO DO so simplifies all the complexities of the secular and religious life. It is so easy for the mariner to miss his course if he takes his eyes off the stars and the compass. It is so easy for the Christian to miss his high calling in Christ Jesus by taking his eyes from the Christ Who has come into the world to save sinners. Commendable Christian activities are allowed to obscure the main issue, and soul saving is relegated to the revival period or the more convenient season. But if the supreme mission of Jesus is kept ever in mind, and the supreme calling of the Christian is realized, all Christian activities naturally and beautifully fall into their rightful place, and the saving power of Jesus is gloriously manifest. To recognize the supreme mission of Jesus encourages. The only one who has a right to be hopeful is the Christian. The social, industrial, political reformer is met on every hand with difficulties and discouragements. When success is won in one direction fresh difficulties arise in another. The distressing conditions which prevail in the large cities and in sections of the country and the world are alleviated, but not eliminated or cured. The more that is done, the more there appears to be done. The one who serves humanity with human means and in human strength has burdens to carry which sometimes crush.

IT WAS only a few years ago that a worker in the slums of New York went insane because of the needs of the unfortunates and her own feebleness to correct the existing evils. But it is not so with the Christian who keeps in mind the supreme mission of Jesus into the world. He knows he has not the crushing burdens of human ills to carry. He sees the need and distress. It makes his heart bleed, but it does not discourage, for he knows the saddest condition of all is the soul in darkness. His supreme duty is not to make this life more bearable, but to bring the dead soul to a saving knowledge in Jesus Christ. He must be charitable, he must be philanthropic, he must be a ministering angel at all times, but all must be handmaidens to serve the supreme end—that of saving the soul. And with all Heaven rejoicing over one sinner who has repented, and with the song of joy of the new-found hope swelling in the heart of the saved soul, how can there be discouragement? The soul-saving Christians are the happiest and most hopeful. No pessimists are within their ranks. All are bright with the optimism of Heaven. They lift up the Christ and He draws all men unto Him, from every grade and walk of life.

THIS is a faithful saying, then, "and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." Mr. Spurgeon, commenting on this verse, said: "This coming of Christ to save sinners, as sinners, Paul regards as a truth so well known in the Christian church that it had come to be a saying, 'familiar in their mouths as household words.' It had become a sort of proverb with Christians that Christ Jesus came to save sinners, and Paul says that it might justly be received as a proverb among all nations, for it was worthy of universal acceptance from the weight of its meaning, the importance of its subject, and the Divine authority with which it was sealed. Moreover, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners is so true that it is not merely a saying, but a faithful saying, worthy of all confidence, being as sure as the truth of God Himself. Pass it around, ye Christians; repeat it among yourselves without the slightest hesitancy or question; let it be a proverb among you, a fact undoubted, a truth unquestionable. For the salvation of sinners Jesus came into the world. He contemplated the saving of no other sort of persons but those who are sinful."

The Isle of Man has extended suffrage in insular affairs to unmarried women and to widows, on the same terms as men, but married women remain represented by their husbands in electing the house of keys, as it seems.

MIDDLE-AGED WOMEN'S DRESS

Its Limitations If It Is to Be Kept Within the Pale of Quiet Elegance.

"There is a limit, you know," said a middle aged woman, whose milliner had been urging her to buy a large, flat hat, sheiving out in front. "It's all very well to say that there are no old women nowadays, and that we can all dress alike, at any age, but it's a matter in which good taste and common sense must set a check upon fashion."

"But you look young," said her friend, according to the New York Tribune.

"Thank you, my dear! But if that statement has any foundation in fact, apart from your favorable view, it is simply because I don't pretend to be young. If I dressed like a young girl, I should look old. It's true that there are no distinctive styles now for young and old, but there are subtle modifications that make all the difference. At my age we must be freer in some particulars, and more restricted in others."

"I don't quite see what you mean by that, though I do understand about your 'subtle modifications.' I think you manage them to perfection. But, as to freedom and restrictions—"

"Well, we can have a little more freedom from the tyranny of 'styles,' for example. We needn't always appear in the 'very latest thing.' If we have a two-year-old waist that has not a very long front, or a stock collar too high for this summer's prevailing mode, we can wear them without fear that 'the girls' will say we look as if we had come out of the Ark. With years and honors, we have surely won some little emancipation from the smaller tyrannies of fashion. We have outgrown our dread of a 'back number.' We may even dare to adopt an individual style of our own, which ultra conventional youth could hardly venture upon. But, on the other hand, there are some things we must not, cannot, dare not wear!"

"For instance?"

"For instance, big picture hats, flat hats without trimming on the top, big flying veils hanging down at the back, at lot of knotted ribbon ends, and all such youthful fluffs and frills. And we should avoid bright, delicate colors in large masses, using them only in small quantities to relieve an all black or very dark costume. A middle aged woman should never adopt conspicuous styles, or go to extremes in any way; she should study the 'little less' that gives quiet elegance. She should delight in black, and her favorite combination should be black and white. But she need not be afraid of a touch of pale color—a line of blue, or even rose—if it's only a line. Violet, of course, belongs to her, but pink should only peep out timidly, like a vanishing memory of youth!"

"Come, you ought to write a poem on the subject," said her friend, laughing. "Such language is really inspiring."

"I feel inspired, with all the ardor of a reformer," said the woman of middle age, laughing in her turn, "when I see what guys some women make of themselves in their efforts to look as young as they would like to be. They don't appreciate the value of years or the beauty and dignity that belong to every stage of living when the funny big caps and shapeless gowns of my grandmothers, but I do want to be fittingly and graciously attired."

SHELVES FOR STORING FRUIT.

How to Construct Good Substitute for Barrels or Board Shelves.

Chicken netting stretched as shelving in rooms where fruit is stored will be found a most advantageous substitute for barrels of board shelves. The mesh should be of such size as to prevent the fruit from falling through, but no finer. Apples placed on such a support will not touch each other nor be in contact with anything to promote decay, says the Rural New Yorker. They may be readily inspected, and spotted or imperfect ones removed. If preferred the netting may be firmly tacked on frames and supported on brackets attached to the cellar walls. For the smaller fruits, cherries, etc., a finer mesh may be used and the same frames serve for the drying and storing of the fruit. Where this is done, spread the cherries over the netting and place a similar frame over the fruit. Secure the two frames together by means of hooks and staples. They may then be turned over as often as desired, permitting the cherries to dry uniformly on both sides. If the frames are made with sides one inch deep below and two or more deep above they may be so placed as to bring the netting close together for the drying process and several inches apart for storage purposes. The advantage of the extra space in the latter case is that mice cannot attack the fruit from below, and will not be able to reach it from above. The frames can be readily removed and cleansed from fruit that has dried or decayed on them.

Peach Shortcake.

To two cupfuls of flour add four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter cupful of butter and one tablespoonful of sugar. Mix with milk and spread on two round buttered pans. When done, remove and butter under crust well, spread with peaches, pared and cut into sections, sprinkle well with sugar and put over the upper crust buttered. Cover the top with peaches and arrange pieces around the outside edge. Cover with whipped cream.—Good Housekeeping.

Blackberry Plumbiere.

Pick over, wash and drain a quart of blackberries and press through a sieve. Make a good syrup of one and one-half cups of sugar and three-fourths of a cup of water; when cold add to the blackberry puree and set in a cold place. Then turn in a freezer for 20 minutes, and when it begins to thicken stir in a pint of whipped cream and pack for two hours before using.—Washington Star.

GRATEFUL, HAPPY WOMEN

Miss Muriel Armitage.

Thank Pe-ru-na for Their Recovery After Years of Suffering.

Miss Muriel Armitage, 36 Greenwood Ave., Detroit, Mich., District Organizer of the Royal Templars of Temperance, in a recent letter, says:

"I think that a woman naturally shrinks from making her troubles public, but restored health has meant so much to me that I feel for the sake of other suffering women it is my duty to tell what Peruna has done for me.

"I suffered for five years with uterine irregularities, which brought on hysteria and made me a physical wreck. I tried doctors from the different schools of medicine, but without any perceptible change in my condition. In my despair I called on an old nurse, who advised me to try Peruna, and promised good results if I would persist and take it regularly. I thought this was the least I could do and procured a bottle. I knew as soon as I began taking it that it was affecting me differently from anything I had used before, and so I kept on taking it. I kept this up for six months, and steadily gained strength and health, and when I had used fifteen bottles I considered myself entirely cured. I am a grateful, happy woman to-day."—Miss Muriel Armitage.

Peruna cures catarrh of the pelvic organs with the same surety as it cures catarrh of the head. Peruna has become renowned as a positive cure for female ailments simply because the ailments are mostly due to catarrh. Catarrh is the cause of the trouble. Peruna cures the catarrh. The symptoms disappear.

Female Weakness is Pelvic Catarrh.

Always Half Sick are the Women Who Have Pelvic Catarrh.

Catarrh of any organ, if allowed to progress, will affect the whole body. Catarrh without nervousness is very rare, but pelvic catarrh and nervousness go hand in hand.

What is so distressing a sight as a poor half-sick, nervous woman, suffering from the many almost unbearable symptoms of pelvic catarrh? She does not consider herself ill enough to go to bed, but she is far from being able to do her work without the greatest exhaustion. This is a very common sight and is almost always due to pelvic catarrh.

It is worse than foolish for so many women to suffer year after year with a disease that can be permanently cured.

Peruna cures catarrh permanently. It cures old chronic cases as well as a slight attack, the only difference being in the length of time that it should be taken to effect a cure.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be glad to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Chinaman's Repartee.

The editor of the Chinese Daily World, published in this city, is a graduate of Yale, and while retaining all the characteristic reticence of his race he is, nevertheless, rather clever at repartee, as was recently instanced when a rather dapper young fellow called at the World office to sell a certain grade of paper. The editor affects the American style of dress, and the paper house drummer thought he would be smart and opened the conversation by impudently asking: "What kind of a geese are you—Japanese or a Chinese?" The editor smiled blandly, and with a courteous bow retorted: "Before I answer your inquiry will you kindly inform me what kind of a key you are, and tell me if you are a monkey, a donkey or a Yankee?" The drummer fled in disnay.—San Francisco Wasp.

Capable.

A very jaunty looking applicant for the position of stenographer and typewriter in the office of a gentleman in public life was told that it would be necessary for her to have a thorough knowledge of grammar. She gave proof of her entire proficiency by saying: "Well, I have always known how to spell, and when it comes to grammer I don't take no back seat for nobody, I don't."—Woman's Home Companion.

BOONE CO., RECORDER
Wednesday, - - Sept. 9, 1903.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce JAMES W. LILLY, of Gallatin county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District,— composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce F. C. GREENE, of Owen county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

CINCINNATI is robed in her holiday attire because of the fall festival now in progress there.

THE speech delivered by Gov. Beckham at Winchester, last Saturday, is printed on an inside page of this issue. It is a fearless presentation of the Democrats' position od the issues on which the campaign will be made.

THE census reports show a great loss to the live stock industry of the country. On the range the loss is largely attributed to exposure and disease. On the farms the loss is trifling. The greatest loss is among flocks of sheep, next is that of hogs and then cattle.

THE investigation of the postal department at Washington was developing such an immense political scandal that the powers that be ordered it conducted behind closed doors, since which time the public has heard very little of it. The investigation might as well have been boldly declared off.

THE campaign for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney in this judicial district will be fast and furious from now until the nomination is made. The office is one the value of which is conceded to be very little, but, nevertheless, there are several who want it and are putting up a stiff fight for it.

THE Civil Service Commission has decided that a constant diet of glass, tacks, brass watch chains frogs, soap, collar buttons, wire nails, broken china, and belt buckles renders a man unfit to hold a Government situation and ordered that the name of Lee W. Wright, better known as the "human ostrich," be dropped from the eligible list.

THE fact that Mr. Bryan endorses Mr. Clarke, of Ohio, for U. S. Senator indicates that he may not fly the coop in the next national campaign even though he be not allowed to dictate the Democratic nominee for the Presidency. Mr. Clarke was a gold bug in 1896, and entertains the same ideas on the financial question now that he did then.

Mr. James W. Lilly, of Gallatin county, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney, was in town Monday, making the acquaintance of Boone county Democrats. His announcement appears in another column, and he comes well recommended by the people who know him best. His democracy is unquestioned, and if elected he will give his best energies to the duties of the office.

AT the last meeting of the tobacco Growers' Association held in Lexington, it was shown that 80 per cent of the growers in the Burley district had signed the articles agreeing to support the Association, and the promoters feel confident that the Association will be in a position to handle the 1903 crop. The committee which was appointed to finance the Association did not report the money on hand, but it was very confident it would be on hand in time for handling the present crop.

DEHORNING calves is described as such a simple operation by the agricultural department bulletin on this subject that it is difficult to explain why it is ever postponed until the horns are fully grown and the necessity arises, if hornless cattle are wanted, for sawing them off. To dehorn secure a pencil of caustic potash at a drug store. When the calf is three to four days old, throw it to the ground, locate the little knot which indicates the young horn, wet it well, and rub it with the pencil, held in a gloved hand. This is all there is to the operation. It constitutes but a few minutes' work and causes no pain to the animal. If after a couple of weeks any signs of growth appear, a second application will complete the job.

AN interesting comparison of the salaries of the various rulers of Europe is made by a German statistician as follows: "Assuming that they work six hours a day, the emperor of Russia receives $80 a minute, the emperor of Austria $35, the king of Italy $21, the emperor of Germany $17, the king of England $15, the king of Spain $15, the king of Belgium and the king of Denmark between $8 and $4 and the king of Servia between $1 and $2. President Loubet of France receives about 5 cents a minute more than the king of Servia."

A Montana telegram says: "There will soon be a secret organization of wool growers in this state. The district association is in session in Billigs, and is holding secret meetings. It has been learned that arrangements are about completed by which sheepmen generally will be banded together in one organization. This will be strictly for the purpose of protection. The Wool growers are made to feel that they must be in close communication with one another as a protection in shearing season; also when the time comes to put the wool and mutton on the market.

THE management of the Cincinnati Fall Festival has been endeavoring to secure considerable free advertising through the rural press. Just how the country papers are under any obligations to allow the Festival a free use of their columns, can not be comprohended at this office. The class of business people who will reap the benefit of the vast number of visitors drawn to Cincinnati by the festival ignore the country press entirely in the distribution of its advertising, but when it comes to an exposition or festival the country papers are recognized as the proper medium through which to portray the attractions, and to secure an attendance from the surrounding country. No doubt but what if a solicitor for a country paper was to call on those who are managing the Fall Festival in Cincinnati, for an advertisement, he would be informed that it would not pay, yet they load the mails with advertising matter for the festival, and have the cheek to ask that it be published free. If Cincinnati business men want to profit by the use of the columns of the country press they must show their appreciation in a proper way, and then such matter as has been sent out in the past few months in the interest of the Fall Festival will receive consideration.

The Special Illustrated Edition of the Boone County Recorder, issued Aug. 19, was a very creditable and satisfactory paper, and Editor Riddell is entitled to great praise for the industry and enterprise displayed in its execution and makeup.—Williamstown Courier.

The Burlington Recorder has issued an illustrated number that is hard to beat. The illustrations are of the most approved style, and the paper is printed in clear and handsome type, with tasteful embellishments of the printer's art. It is a souvenir well worthy of preservation.—Courier-Journal

The Boone County Recorder last week issued a profusely illustrated edition, showing numerous prominent citizens, stores and scenes of interest within the borders of the land of Boone. Publisher Riddell is to be congratulated upon this spendid special edition, of his always excellent paper.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Mr. W. L. Riddell, editor of the Boone County Recorder, issued a handsome and profusely illustrated edition of his excellent paper last week. The only criticism we have to offer is that a picture of the good looking editor was not to be seen in the paper. But then some editors are very modest and Bro. Riddell is one of them.—Rising Sun Local.

AN experiment is to be tried in Cleveland, O., during the coming fall election that will be watched with interest throughout the state as well as by many others outside who are interested in the device. The Ohio legislature several years ago gave Ohio municipalities authority to buy voting machines, and this authority was taken advantage of by the city of Cleveland recently, when 205 voting machines were purchased at a cost of $66,625. These machines are to be used, one at each polling place in the city on the Tuesday following the first Monday of next November. The friends of the voting machine system claim that by the use of the machine absolute secrecy is secured and the work of the judges of election will be greatly simplified.

Fine Farm For Sale.

I withdraw from sale my farm of 255 acres at Hebron at the price named in a recent notice. The farm is for sale at a bargain if sold soon, but not at that price. The conditions and circumstances and opportunities existing when that offer was made, do not exist now—hence the withdrawal. This is a magnificent farm, finely located and elegantly improved. The land and improvements are all in splendid condition. This plantation and its improvements were planned, constructed, developed and finished for a superb country home, for a country gentleman, and only a man of that character can appreciate it. The whole farm is as beautiful as a city park. It is for sale at a bargain if sold soon. If not sold soon it will be for rent to good and careful men.

Sept. 7, 1903. A. G. WINSTON, Hebron, Ky.

Very little is said about Aguinaldo these days. He should by all means come as a delegate to the Republican National Convention. The Sultan of Sulu is another gentleman whose relations to our Government suggest as another proper delegate. It would be a piece of delicate and appropriate consideration for Senator Smoot, of Utah, to be appointed Chairman of the committee to receive the Sultan.—Enquirer.

As a result of the drouth in Fleming old corn is now selling at 75 cents a bushel at Flemingsburg—higher than wheat. The drouth is said to be the severest in Fleming in years.

IT is said that apples packed in dry sand, so they will not touch, will keep without limit to time. This is an easy way to keep that fruit, and it is hoped some of the RECORDER readers will give it a trial and report.

A good, solid, all round trust by the farmers of this country, for the express purpose of keeping all the standard crops on the farm until the consumers need them, and dishing them out to the middlemen in a way to prevent a surplus, is the need of the time, says the New York Farmer. This can not be done, of course, with milk, small fruits and some other products, but it can be done with hops, tobacco, beans, eggs, apples, corn, oats, rye, wheat, buckwheat, rice sweet potatoes, cabbage, beets, rutabagas, potatoes and other long-keeping products. Until this is done, the profits on agriculture must continue to flow into the bank accounts of the middlemen, and not into those of the producers. Every farmer should study the question of selling methods, and try to devise a system of selling that shall prevent a surplus in the market or the accumulation of the standard crops in the hands of the middlemen at the harvest-glut prices.

Old Officers Re-Elected.

The North Kentucky Agricultural Association held its annual election of officers on its grounds at Florence, last Wednesday, afternoon and reelected the old board. B. F. McGlasson, president; E. H. Blankenbeker, vice-president; Alvin Perry secretary, and A. B. Rouse, treasurer, were elected without opposition. The vote for directors was as follows: F. A. Utz, 52; W. E. Walton, 52; J. O. Griffith, 56; O. Percival, 54; J. L. Riley, 60; W. P. Cropper, 37; J. J. Rucker, 30; R. H. Crisler, 2; R. A. Brady, 13; Charles Cleveland, 1; W. H. Rice, 5; J. B. Dixon, 1; Ezra Rouse, 5; J. G. Allen, 6. A dividend of 14 per cent was declared.

A matter that will probably come before the next legislature, and which is just now meeting considerable attention from educators all over the State, is the question of increasing the State School Fund and in consequence, the lengthening of the school term. For many years 5 per cent. of all the revenues of the State has been set aside to the Sinking Fund, to pay off the debt of the State. The debt having already been paid, the question naturally arises; what shall we do with the 5 per cent? It is proposed that 3 per cent. of it be added to the school fund. It will not increase the present rate of taxation, and will add many thousands of dollars to the School Fund. It is a popular move and it is thought the legislature will gladly make the necessary provision.—Owen Herald.

Baldon-Carpenter Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Alma Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Carpenter, and Mr. Calber Baldon was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, last Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the presence of about 100 guests—relatives and friends. At the appointed hour the bride and groom entered the parlor together, preceded by the officiating minister, Rev. John L. Sproles, of the Baptist church, who in a quiet and impressive manner, tied the knot that linked the happy couple together for life. The only attendants were Miss Sadie Crisler, of Burlington, and Mr. W. H. McBurney, of Carrollton, Ky. The bride wore a dainty gown of white silk and carried bride roses, while the maid of honor wore a toilet of white Paris mualin. After the ceremony and congratulations the guests repaired to the dining room where they were greeted with a bountiful spread consisting of all the delicacies of the season. After partaking of refreshments the young couple entered a carriage, amid a shower of rice and old shoes, and were driven to the station at Erlanger, where they took a train for Cincinnati, to visit relatives. They were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Baldon have the best wishes of all on their journey across the sea of life.

The Proper Treatment for a Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is usually two or three months before he has fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, for in many cases in which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has been promptly and freely applied, a complete cure has been effected in less than one week's time, and in some cases within three days. Base Ball.

The Boones took two games from the Erlanger team here last Monday. The score of the morning game was, Boones, 18; Erlanger, 9. Afternoon, Boones, 16; Erlanger, 7. The feature of the games was the terrific batting of the Boones. In the morning game Lentz, pitcher for the Erlangers was knocked out of the box, the Boones making 14 singles, 3 three baggers and one home run—Bullock. Erlanger made 3 singles off of Hughes, who struck out 9, while Erlanger's pitcher made 8 Boones bite the dust. In the afternoon Shearer, for Erlanger and Houston, for the Boones did the pitching. The Boones made 6 singles, 4 two baggers and 3 home runs, while Erlanger made 8 singles, 2 two baggers and 1 home run. Of the home runs in this game Souther made 2, Slayback, 1; Nie made the home run for Erlanger. Hogan and Nie caught both games, and they did nice work behind the bat. Houston struck out 9 and Sharer 4. About 1000 persons witnessed the two games, a very large proportion of the crowd being from Erlanger.

The Woolper and Burlington ball teams will play at Burlington park next Saturday.

The Erlanger and Petersburg teams played a fine game of ball at Petersburg, last Saturday afternoon, the score standing 5 to 4 in favor of Petersburg at the close of the ninth inning.

The Hebron ball team came over last Saturday and played the Burlington team, the score being 13 to 9 in favor of the locals. The Hebron boys appeared to have everything their own way until Phelps Walton was taken out of the box, when the Burlington team batted his successors all over the field. A strong wind blew from the north, which was very much against the batters.

Last Saturday about noon a terrific rain and hail storm visited this section and wrought damage to the growing crops of tobacco and corn to the extent of about one hundred thousand dollars. Coming from the west when it first struck this county the width of the storm was about a mile wide and the hail was heavy but nothing like it was when the storm reached the eastern border of the county where its scope widened to about two miles. The track through the county was marked as if a discharge of grapes and canister shot had passed through the territory. The tobacco and corn fields from the Carrollton county line to the Grant county line, in the track of the storm, a distance of nearly twenty-five miles, were completely destroyed. In the Napoleon neighborhood where there was a particularly fine acreage of tobacco, the destruction was simply awful, tobacco and corn being entirely destroyed and not a leaf or blade being left on the stalk under the heavy hail.—Warsaw Independent.

The Colt Show.

Messrs. O. P. and Albert Conner have a right to be proud of the great success of their Max Ledger colt show in Burlington, last Monday. The show was witnessed by a very large crowd, and the judges, Messrs. Alec Buckner, of Erlanger, Henry Feltman, of Covington; H. P. Stephens, of Nashville, Tenn., had a considerable task in deciding as to which of the 21 handsome youngsters were entitled to the premium. Finally Giedon Kite, of Waterloo neighborhood, was given the premium on horse colt, while Lineous Kelly, of same neighborhood, took the premium on the mare colt. Old horse men said they never saw a finer lot of colts together. The show was an immense advertisement for the sire of the colts, and Messrs. Conner are joined by a great many in the belief that Max Ledger can show a better lot of colts than any other stallion in the county. Every colt in Monday's show would be a ribbon winner under ordinary circumstances.

PROF. LANGLEY'S AIRSHIP.

Owing to An Accident to the Motor An Effort to Launch It Failed.

Widewater, Va., Sept. 4.—Efforts Thursday to launch Prof. Langley's 60-foot aerodrome had to be abandoned at 6 o'clock Thursday evening owing to the failure of the gasoline motor to work properly. For four hours Prof. C. M. Manley, the inventor's right-hand man, labored hard to get the machinery in shape. The inventor then made the following statement: "The work of the afternoon has been a great disappointment to us all. The failure to have an experiment was caused by the discovery of a broken valve in the motor. This can be repaired, I think, during the forenoon to-morrow."

When the signal was given by firing a sky-rocket from the houseboat to apply the motive power to the machine, Prof. Manley tried in vain to get his engine in operation. Several subsequent attempts were made.

Once the propellers were got to going for five minutes but the revolutions, instead of reaching 1,200, did not exceed 500, and the work was very irregular. Prof. Manley was attired in a light costume when he entered the cabin. He wore a pair of white duck trousers. His jacket was padded with cork to assist in keeping him above water at the termination of the flight. Attached to his left knee was a watch to register the exact time of starting and the duration of the flight. Throughout the whole of the trying ordeal he appeared remarkably calm and composed. Prof. Langley said:

"If there is no accident at the houseboat in the launching, we hope to see a successful flight. The greatest fear is for the immediate launching."

Widewater, Va., Sept. 5.—The prospective launching Friday afternoon of Prof. Langley's big aerodrome was abandoned at 4 o'clock, after the port propeller, revolving about 500 times a minute, had wrecked itself among the rods and bars of the machine. Both blades of the propeller were torn to small pieces, and one, a main supporting rod of the airship, was bent to a right angle. Other slight damage was done. The accident was the result of a change occurring in some unexpected manner in the orbit of the blades. But for the prompt action of Prof. Langley, who was in the navigator's car, the aerodrome might have been hurled from the superstructure and wrecked.

HUNGARIAN DELEGATES.

They Place a Wreath on the Tomb of President Garfield.

Cleveland O., Sept. 4.—One hundred delegates who are in attendance at the national convention of the Federation of Hungarian societies visited the tomb of the late President Garfield in Lakeview cemetery Thursday and placed a beautiful wreath of flowers on it. At the same time there were eloquent eulogies of the life of Garfield, which the delegates listened to while standing in a circle within the tomb, with bared heads. A prayer preceded the ceremonies. Later the same delegation placed a wreath of flowers on the statue of Louis Kossuth in University Circle. Similar ceremonies to those at the Garfield monument were carried out.

DISTRICT LEADER MOONEY.

Alleged He Worked at Cross Purposes With President Mitchell.

Kansas City, Sept. 4.—James Mooney, the district leader who is regarded as responsible for the Novinger coal strike, is asserted to be holding out against John Mitchell to further his alleged aspirations for the presidency of the United Mine Workers of America. Mr Mooney has, it is said, worked at cross purposes with President Mitchell ever since the calling of the Pittsburg, Kan., conference, two months ago when Mitchell went so far as to tell Mooney to sit down and keep still.

NEGRO COLONY ELECTION.

A Peculiar State of Affairs at Hobson City, Ala.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 4.—The approaching city election at Hobson City, the Negro colony near Anniston, will disclose a peculiar state of affairs. The town is solely run by Negroes. Under the new constitution nearly all of the male adult inhabitants are disfranchised, there now being only about two voters, and the affairs of the town will have to be conducted by the two citizens alone. As there are nearly as many offices to be filled as there are voters, the candidates will virtually elect themselves, and may thus perpetuate themselves in office.

The Insurgents Are Active.

CUP DEFENDER WON.

Final Race of the International Yacht Contest.

Sir Thomas Lipton's Crew Will Return to England Next Tuesday and He Will Follow Shortly After—Shamrocka For Sale.

New York, Sept. 4.—Reliance, the American cup defender, Thursday won the third and final race and the series for that famous sea trophy, the American cup. In a dense fog, which prevented vision beyond 200 yards, she finished the race at 5:30:02 three miles ahead of the Shamrock, amid the acclamation of the assembled fleet. Shamrock III., after running for more than an hour into the fog, missed the finish line, passed by it and then returned to it from the opposite direction. As the Reliance was then being towed through the fleet of yachts, ensigns fluttered from her truck and spreaders in celebration of her victory, the Shamrock III. did not cross the finish line. As often said of the historic race when the America won the cup, there was no second.

This successful result was achieved only after four futile attempts to sail off the final race, and after the outcome had been admitted by even Sir Thomas Lipton to be a foregone conclusion. Thursday's was the eighth attempt to sail a race. After one fluke Reliance won the two following races, one by seven minutes and three seconds and the other by one minute and nineteen seconds.

A week ago Thursday the first attempt to sail the third race failed, and attempts have been made every day this week. On these occasions Reliance led Shamrock to the finish line by two miles, but failed to reach it before the expiration of the time limit of five and a half hours. Thursday's victory means that the cup is destined to remain in America until England is able to produce a genius equal to Herreshoff in yacht business.

Thursday night Sir Thomas Lipton said:

"Two weeks ago I was hopeful; last week I knew I was doomed to defeat and was disappointed, but to-day I am almost glad in my own defeat, this America having been such a thoroughly generous victor. I want again to thank the American people for their generosity to me in my defeat.

"My crew is to return to England on Tuesday next, and I really ought to go back by that time myself. I will post out my engagements in a day or two and then determine just what I shall do.

"I am to meet some people Friday who desire to buy at least one of the Shamrocks. After I have seen them, I shall determine what to do."

Regarding the defeat of Shamrock III. he simply said: I don't care to discuss it any more. The American boat was the better; that is all."

Designer Fife refused to talk.

Capt. Wringe, while agreeable, still would not talk any further than to say: "We did the best we could, but the other boat was better."

Capt. Barr, of Reliance, said after the race: "Reliance is a beautiful boat; had all kinds of weather and won in it. Our adversaries did the best they could with the material at their command."

BRITISH PAPERS ON THE RACE.

They Agree That the Contest Was Won By the Best Boat.

London, Sept. 4.—Friday morning's papers publish editorials congratulating the United States on again retaining the America's cup and complimenting Sir Thomas Lipton on his gallant fight. All the journals agree that the contests were won by the better boat and the cleverer skipper and crew and admit that there seems to be no reason why the United States should not retain the cup for many years to come, since it seems that Great Britain has something to learn from America in the matter of yacht building.

San Francisco Wants Next Yacht Race

San Francisco, Sept. 4.—The California promotion committee has sent a telegram to the president of the New York Yacht club, inviting the club to select San Francisco harbor as the next course for the defense of the America's cup.

An Agreement Has Been Signed.

London, Sept. 4.—The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says an agreement concerning the Venezuelan debt was signed Thursday between a syndicate of Paris banks and Senor Velutini, the Venezuelan representative.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The Quarryworkers International Union of North America was the name adopted by the 13 delegates from half a dozen states for the new international union just formed here. A constitution was adopted.

Only Surviving Field Officer.

Bristol, Tenn., Sept. 4.—Col. George R. McClellan celebrated the 89th anniversary of his birth at his home in Bristol Thursday. Col. McClellan is said to be the only surviving field officer of the volunteer army that marched against Mexico.

A New World's Record Made.

Boston, Sept. 4.—In an attempt to beat the track record of 68 4-5 seconds, Albert Champion Thursday night, at Charles River park, established a new world's record for motor cycles by riding a mile in 50 seconds.

THE WIMBLEDON CUP.

Capt. Richards, of Ohio, Won the Famous Trophy.

Seagirt, N. J., Sept. 5.—All previous records in the number of competitors in an individual contest were broken Friday when 113 riflemen reported at the firing line to compete in the Wimbledon cup match for the famous trophy presented by the National Rifle association of Great Britain, to be shot for under the auspices of the National Rifle Association of America. The winner received a medal and is entitled to hold the cup for one year. The contest was open to all citizens and residents of the United States. Each competitor was required to fire 20 shots at 1,000 yards. The use of any rifle was permissable. The firing began at 10 o'clock Friday morning, and was not concluded until nearly dark.

The cup was won by Capt. Richards, of Ohio, who scored a total of 91 out of a possible 100.

The other individual event of Friday was the match open to all inspectors and ex-inspectors of rifle practice. The distances were 500 and 600 yards, 10 shots by each competitor at each distance. The use of any military rifle was permissible.

Capt. Springstead, of New Jersey, scored a total of 95 out of a possible 100 and won the prize badge, to be held by him for one year, and $25 in cash.

The events scheduled for Saturday are the skirmish team match and the revolver team match. The former is open to teams of six men from the regimental battalion and separate company organizations of the organized militia and naval reserve of the several states and from the United States army and navy and marine corps.

The first prize is a trophy valued at $350 with a second prize of $25 in cash. The trophy has been won twice by the Second regiment, District of Columbia. Any organization winning it three times will be entitled to hold it permanently.

The revolver team match is open to teams of five men. The winning team will secure a trophy, a medal for each team number, and $50 in cash. There are three other cash prizes.

A detachment of riflemen representing the state of Michigan arrived here Friday. The detachment from Georgia is due Sunday and two teams representing respectively the cavalry and infantry arms of the regular army are expected next Monday. The army teams are now at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

LARGEST MAN IN THE WORLD.

Joe Grimes, Who Weighed 754 Pounds, Died in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Sept. 5.—"Big Joe" Grimes, said to be the largest man in the world, is seriously ill at the home of his brother at 2346 Ohio avenue. Mr. Grimes is 34 years old, 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 754 pounds. His brother, Dr. J. F. Grimes, is attending him, and attributes his illness to his excessive fat. His body and limbs are of ponderous proportions. Joe Grimes, the "biggest man in the world," died Friday night at 8 o'clock at the home of his brother, 2346 Ohio avenue.

SPORTING WRITER DEAD.

John B. McCormick (Macon) Succumbed to Bright's Disease.

New York, Sept. 5.—John B. McCormick (Macon), sporting writer died Friday at Bath Beach of Bright's disease. He was born in Cincinnati in 1837. For 20 years he was connected with the Cincinnati Enquirer, and while on the staff of that paper had much to do in bringing out John L. Sullivan.

After he had retired from active newspaper life, he became identified with theatrical work.

NATIONAL MINE WORKERS.

The Quarterly Report of the Auditing Committee.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 5.—The auditing committee of the National Mine Workers of America Friday submitted its quarterly report to Secretary-Treasurer Wilson. It shows 325,000 members. The figures show the membership as follows: In 1897, 9,731; in 1898, 32,902; in 1899, 61,887 in 1900, 115,521, and in 1901, 198,024 Of the 325,000 men less than 2,000 are out on strike. The miners now have $999,610.94 in their treasury.

CRUISERS AT BEIRUT.

The Brooklyn and San Francisco Arrived Friday.

United States Must Insist on the Porte Listening to Representatives Regarding American Converts or Drop the Missionaries.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Minister Leishman Friday informed the state department that some of the European powers have landed marines in Constantinople. If the lives of Americans there become endangered, the United States government also will send a detachment of marines to Constantinople.

The disposition of the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco, of Adm. Cotton's squadron, which arrived at Beirut Friday, has not yet been finally determined by the administration. Nor orders regarding the future movements of the vessels have been sent to Adm. Cotton, and much will depend on the character of the report he makes concerning conditions in and about Beirut and on the representations which may come from the minister as to the necessity for the presence of American war vessels in Turkish waters to look after the protection of the interests of the citizens of the United States in the sultan's domain.

London, Sept. 5.—The Morning Post publishes a letter from its Constantinople correspondent in which he discusses the Beirut affair, and the position of the American missionaries in Asia Minor.

He says: "Things have arrived at a crisis. The United States must either insist on the porte listening to its representatives regarding American converts or drop the missionaries altogether. The latter course is naturally impossible and the sending of a squadron has great significance as showing a determination on the part of America to take any active part in the Turkish question. One result of this step will probably be to induce the sultan to raise his representative at Washington to the rank of ambassador so that the United States can be equally represented here. At present America is at a decided disadvantage in this respect compared with the other first-class powers. Nobody can foresee the ultimate attitude of the United States, but it is almost certain that her weight will incline on the side of the Christian against the Turk. At the same time as a matter of importance to Great Britain, America is almost bound to oppose the descent of Russia on the Dardanelles because in religious matters the Turk is more tolerant than the Russian."

RAILWAY EXPRESS EMPLOYES.

A General Strike Throughout the United States Is Threatened.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—A general strike of railway express employes throughout the United States is threatened because of the refusal of six of the largest companies in Chicago to consider demands made by the Brotherhood of Railway Express Men two months ago.

It was announced Friday that the men are preparing to strike, the fight to be directed particularly against the United States Express Co. While it is the aim of the rank and file to tie up the local agencies of all the principal express companies, leaders in the organization declare that the strike will spread to all agencies of the United States, and that the 8,000 employes of the United States Express Co. will be involved unless some recognition of the demands made by the union is forthcoming.

TRAFFIC AT AN END.

Eight Thousand Employes on the River Front Locked Out.

New Orleans, Sept. 5.—Eight thousand men employed on the river front have been locked out by the steamship companies and a struggle for supremacy began between the New Orleans Steamship association, comprising every steamship line entering this port, and the Longshoremen's, Screwmen's, Stevedores' and Freight Handlers' unions.

The unions demand more pay, fewer hours and the enforcement of certain regulations for loading and unloading vessels. The steamship lines declare that the demands of the unions are unreasonable and unjust.

FAMILY BOOKKEEPING.

One Husband Who Discourages His Better Half in Trying to Keep Accounts.

Most persons know so many competent business women that it will not do to take too seriously the popular slander that the better half of the race cannot master the principles of banking. Still there is occasionally a joke of this kind good enough to stand with apologies, and a recent one from the Chicago Post will not be taken amiss.

"My account book," she said, proudly, "showed that I had eight dollars and fifteen cents more than I had, and when the balance was so much bigger than it should be, I felt free to spend the money."

"If you had more money in your purse than the book showed," he suggested, "what then?"

"I should have spent it," she answered. "Either way, it's all the same."

Now he is trying to get her to give up keeping accounts.

An Old Soldier's Experience.

Dennard, Ark., Sept. 7th.—Mr. E. J. Hicks, merchant of this place, has written for publication, an account of a personal experience, which is very interesting.

"I am an old Federal Soldier," writes Mr. Hicks, "and shortly after the close of the war I was taken sick. I had aches and pains all over me, fluttering of the heart and stomach trouble. I just simply was never a moment without pain. I could not sleep at night, and I was always tired and fearfully weak.

"I took medicine all the time, but for a long time I was more dead than alive. Altogether I suffered for over twenty years, and I believe I would have been suffering yet, or in my grave, if I had not read of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I got an Almanac, which told me of this remedy, and I bought some of it. I started with three pills a day, but ceased the dose to six pills a day. I had received many till my pains began to disappear. Step on, and now I can sleep and [illegible] ever I could, and I feel like a new man, with no pains or aches left.

"I will always recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they are a wonderful remedy."

"He's comparatively rich, isn't he?" "I should say rather that he is relatively so. He has a rich uncle upon whom he bases his hopes."—Philadelphia Press.

CONSULAR SERVICE.

A Change in the Policy of Appointing Consuls.

Hereafter President Roosevelt Will Select Men For Higher Positions From Those Who Have Served in Minor Places.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 5.—An important change of policy with respect to the making of appointments in the consular service has been decided on by President Roosevelt. He discussed the change Friday with Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Loomis.

For many years it has been almost the uniform practice of presidents to appoint men to positions in the consular service substantially without reference to whatever previous experience they may have had. Quite naturally the president endeavored always to select for appointment men of integrity and ability, but experience was not a determining factor in the equation.

President Roosevelt, after consultation with Secretary Hay, Assistant Loomis and members of his cabinet, not immediately identified with the state department, has determined to appoint hereafter to important places in the consular service men who already are in the service and have had that experience and training in minor positions which will render them the more capable of filling places of higher grade and greater importance.

The change in policy does not extend the civil service to the consular service, and it does not extend, necessarily, consul's tenure of office at any particular place; but, it is pointed out, it does give reasonable assurance to the manufacturing and the commercial interests of the United States, which, particularly are interested in the extension of the country's foreign trade, that in a comparatively brief time all important consular situations will be filled, not only by men of character and ability, but by men who, by training and experience, are specially qualified to advance the trade interests of the United States.

Mr. Loomis discussed with the president several appointments in the service that are to be made soon. It is understood that all of the appointees will be men who now are filling places of lesser importance in the service. They are to be promoted, and, in turn, their places will be filled by men who have not had the experience they have had.

DINNER TO SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

He Was the Guest of Honor of the Pilgrims of the United States.

New York, Sept. 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton was the guest of honor of the Pilgrims of the United States at a dinner given in his honor Friday night at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Nearly 100 men, prominent in many walks of life, were present. Sir Thomas arrived at 7:40 o'clock, and for half an hour received his friends. Then Sir Thomas, escorted by George T. Wilson, who was to preside, led the way from the reception room to the tables. At either end of the hall was hung Sir Thomas' private emblem, a shamrock on a field of yellow, surrounded by a green border, while above the guests' table were draped the flags of Great Britain and the United States. Bunches of red roses on each table and the ferns on the walls completed the decorations.

New York, Sept. 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton is still undecided whether to challenge again for the Americas cup. He said Friday, "If I can find a man who can design a boat to beat the Yankee sloop I shall challenge again.

THE NEXT REUNION.

Society of the Army of the Cumberland Meets October 14 to 16.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Gen. H. V. Boynton has issued a circular to members of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland informing them that the next reunion of the society will be held in Washington on October 14 to 16, and that the society will participate in the dedication of the statue of Gen. W. T. Sherman on October 15. The dedication of the Sherman statue will be the first reunion of the great army societies since the war.

STRANGLER KNAPP'S CRIMES.

He Says the Confession He Signed Is Absolutely True.

Columbus, O., Sept. 5.—Alfred Knapp, the strangler, said Friday that the story of his crimes that he prepared and signed was absolutely true, and he had no amendments to make. "I don't care to do a thing to change the course of things," said he, "and don't care how soon the end comes. I have got all the nerve there is and could sit down in the chair now and push the button myself."

Business Failures During the Week.

New York, Sept. 5.—Business failures in the United States for the week ending with September 3 number 162, against 142 last week, 133 in the like week of 1902, 169 in 1901. In Canada failures of the week number 18, against 25 last week.

Edith W. Broke All Records.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 5.—Edith W. broke the track, state and world's records for pacing mares on a half-mile track Friday in the free-for-all pace. Her time was: 32½; 1:03½; 1:36; 2:07.

THE CRACK MARKSMEN.

They Will Participate in the Big Shooting Tournament.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 7.—The flower of the crack marksmen of the United States gathered here to participate in the big shooting tournament, observed Sunday as a day of rest. An unprecedentedly busy week is ahead for the hundreds of expert shots who have been working hard for months past in anticipation of these competitions. Everybody is anxiously awaiting the beginning of the national trophy match, which will occur on Tuesday and Wednesday. It is open to teams of 12 men each, from the United States army, one team from the troops stationed within each of the military departments, the United States navy, United States marine corps, and the national guard of the several states and of the District of Columbia. The distances are 200, 500, 600, 800 and 1,000 yards, ten shots each range. Service rifles and ammunition must be used. The team making the highest average total in the two days' contest will receive the national trophy, provided for by congress, and $500 in cash.

The second prize is the Hilton trophy and $300; third prize, "The Soldier of Marathon," trophy and $200; fourth prize, $150; fifth prize, $100, and sixth prize, $50.

Each member of each team winning a prize will be presented with a medal. These medals are reproductions of a part of the design of the national trophy, showing that part of the shield of the trophy which includes the design of Mars restraining the dogs of war. The bar from which the medal is suspended will indicate the event for which it is issued while the reverse side will bear the name of the holder. The trophies mentioned are to be placed in competition annually. Maj. Gilfoyle, 12th United States cavalry, will serve as executive officer during the firing in the national trophy match.

KENTUCKY FEUD DISTRICT.

Deputation of Pittsburg Salvationists Leave For Breathitt County.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 7.—A deputation of Pittsburg Salvationists, under the leadership of Staff Capt. White, will leave Wednesday for the feud district of Kentucky and undertake the work of reforming the feudists. The objective point will be Breathitt county. The party will be made up, outside of a few of the officers in the work in this city, of members of the local army who volunteer to give their time to the work, and it is likely by the time the party is ready to start this week there will be quite a formidable array of local workers in the party.

The reception which the members of the army will receive in the counties to be invaded is a matter of grave doubt to many interested in army work, but those who are going seem to have no fear of the manner in which they will be treated.

ANOTHER MURDER MYSTERY.

Body of An Unidentified Man Found in the River at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Sept. 7.—The police have another murder mystery to solve as a result of the finding of the body of an unidentified man in the river at the foot of Lucas avenue. A bullet hole between the eyes discovered when the body was taken to the morgue is the basis for the theory that the man had been foully dealt with, and later developments at an autopsy held over the body strengthened this theory.

The shoes worn by the dead man were marked "D. A. Pitts," Cordele, Ga." The body had evidently been in the water about ten days.

Locomotive Boiler Exploded.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 7.—While passing Green View at full speed Sunday the boiler of a locomotive pulling a Kansas City fast train west-bound on the Chicago & Alton railroad exploded, killing Engineer Frank J. Upton, probably fatally injuring Fireman C. C. Keltner and hurting Brakeman J. A. Montgomery.

Indian a Murderer and Suicide.

Carson, Nev., Sept. 7.—At Shurza, a hamlet on the line of the Carson & Colorado railroad, an aged Indian named George Sam, unable to witness the sufferings of his young son, who was sick, killed the lad with a shotgun and then, placing the muzzle of the gun at his own head, discharged the remaining barrel.

Four Killed in a Trolley Accident.

Pelham, N. H., Sept. 7.—Through a head-on collision Sunday between the electric cars each running, it is said, at a rate of more than 20 miles an hour, four persons were killed and 19 seriously injured.

A New World's Record.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—A new world's record for long distance running was made by a passenger train on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad early Sunday morning. A stretch of 128 miles was covered in 125 minutes.

Injured in a Trolley Collision.

New York, Sept. 7.—Nearly a score of persons were injured in a collision between two trolley cars at the crossing of Adams street and Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, Sunday night. All the injured were able to go to their homes except one.

Suppressed the Bishop's Salary.

Paris, Sept. 7.—Premier Combes has suppressed the salary of Bishop Andrieu, of Marseilles, because of a violently worded circular issued by the bishop to the clergy of his diocese, denouncing the authorities.

COLOMBIAN SENATE.

General Feeling is Favorable to a New Canal Treaty.

Senor Macaro Was Opposed to the Hay-Herran Treaty Because It Violated the Laws of the Colombian Constitution.

Bogota, Colombia, Tuesday, Sept. 1.—The senate has appointed a commission to prepare a bill authorizing the government to negotiate a canal treaty without violating the constitution, but the government has not presented it to congress, which is necessary, asking for reforms regarding tribunals, the sovereign control of the canal strip and the hundred-year lease. The general feeling is favorable to a new treaty. Senor Macaro, the actual president of the senate, expressed his admiration for the noble and sincere policy pursued by the United States and hopes that the canal will be opened by them. He says he regrets that he was chilled to oppose the Hay-Herran treaty as being a violation of the laws of the constitution, but he will work strongly for a canal treaty satisfactory to both countries. Senator Obaldia, who has decided to support the canal treaty, has been appointed governor of Panama.

Intense excitement has been produced here by a cablegram reporting the probability of the United States dealing directly with Panama in the canal matter. Senator Obaldia, who has been appointed governor of Panama, left for his post. He will take with him a canal plan which it is said will satisfy all.

Congress has only enacted five laws, and it is reported that the sessions will soon be closed. It is probable that the presidential candidates will be Gen. Rafael Reyes, the vice president, and Jose Manuel Marroquin, the actual president. The European legation has been offered to Gen. Fernandez, the former minister of war.

The government insists on congress reconsidering the matter of the Panama canal treaty.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Dr. Herran, the acting minister of Colombia still clings to the hope that a way will be found whereby the present treaty will be ratified. He lays much stress on the possibility that the senate may agree to a measure to be subsequently passed by the house where there is said to be a majority for the treaty, giving President Marroquin authority to negotiate directly an instrument along the lines of the present treaty. President Marroquin is known to be heartily in favor of the treaty as it is now drawn, and if he were duly authorized to do so the confident belief of Dr. Herran is that the treaty would be ratified.

MARCONI IN ST. LOUIS.

The Inventor Is in Consultation With the World's Fair Managers.

St. Louis, Sept. 7.—Sig. Guglielmo Marconi, the famous young inventor of the wireless telegraph, arrived in St. Louis Sunday night, accompanied by a number of officials of his company. Shortly after their arrival they were called on by a party of World's fair officials, including President Francis, the members of the reception and entertainment committees, and the electrical committees, who are now in the city. They were taken in carriages to the St. Louis club, where a dinner was given in honor of Sig. Marconi.

The visit of Marconi to the World's fair grounds is for the purpose of consulting with the exposition officials in regard to the proposed establishment of a wireless telegraph station on the site.

MARSHLAND DWELLERS.

Discovery of An Extraordinary Tribe on the Island of Papua.

London, Sept. 7.—A Melbourne dispatch to the Daily Chronicle says: The administrator of British New Guinea reports the discovery of an extraordinary tribe of marshland dwellers in the Island of Papua. Owing to the swampy ground and tangled tropical undergrowth, walking and canoeing are almost impossible. The native dwellings are built in trees and as a result of the conditions the natives are gradually losing the use of their lower limbs and are unable to walk on hard ground without their feet bleeding. Their bodies have developed enormously while their legs and thighs have become atrophied. In figure and carriage they are ape-like.

The Third United States Artillery.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 7.—The Third United States artillery, which has been stationed at Chickamauga Park for nearly two years, leaves on Tuesday for Fort Meyer, Va., where it will be permanently located.

Pacific Coast Pack of Salmon.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 7.—The Pacific coast pack of salmon this year is one million cases smaller than last year, and two million cases short of the output of 1901. A big shortage in Columbia river salmon is the cause.

A Head-On Collision.

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—In a head-on collision between trolley cars at Fort Washington, on the line between Philadelphia and Allentown, three persons were probably fatally hurt and over a score of others more or less seriously injured.

Death of Rev. Alvah Hovey.

Newton, Mass., Sept. 7.—Rev. Alvah Hovey, D. D., one of the best-known Baptist ministers in the country and for many years president of the Newton theological institution, died Sunday night, aged 83.

BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT.

It Decides to Maintain Neutrality in the Macedonian Question.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 7.—According to reliable reports from Varna, at the recent council of ministers presided over by Prince Ferdinand at the palace of Euxinograd, it was resolved that Bulgaria should continue to maintain an attitude of the strictest neutrality in the Macedonian question and further that the most stringent measures should be adopted to prevent anything likely to cause a disturbance in Bulgaria's relations with Turkey. The war minister is reported to have spoken strongly in the council against any thought of Bulgaria declaring war on Turkey; first, on account of the enormous expenditure that such a war would involve, and secondly, because the great powers would never permit Bulgaria to reap the advantage if she were victorious. Should Turkey attack Bulgaria, declared the minister, the present army could hold the Turks in check for the first few days while the entire Bulgarian army could be mobilized within three to twelve days. Bulgaria would never declare war, he added, but if war was declared against her, she would accept the challenge fearlessly.

As an evidence of Bulgaria's peaceful intentions, the council decided that upon the first symptoms of disorder on the frontier martial law would be proclaimed at Burgas, Kostendil, Philippolpis and Sofia. The ministers expressed the opinion that the powers would soon reach the conviction that the Macedonian question could not be decided without their intervention.

The Autonomieum publishes the names of 50 villages burned by the Turks in the following districts:

Resen, 30 villages; Dostur, 14; Brushevo, 6 and one monastery. The Turks burned four villages in the district of Strushkopolisk and murdered the priest. The population fled to the mountains. The Turks have destroyed all the flour mills in the district of Resen and also every church. A fight is reported to have taken place at the village of Vetrsko, in the district of Kumanovo, between a body of insurgents and a Turkish battalion. It lasted four hours and the Turks lost heavily.

Reports have reached the revolutionary headquarters of atrocities by the Turks in the village of Velmosti, in the district of Dehar. Troops and Bashi Bazouks are said to have surrounded the village and part of them entered and began plundering the houses and assaulting the women. The other soldiers remained outside and killed those inhabitants who tried to escape. The Turks then set fire to the village in four places, burring 12 women and children. One child was hanged. Altogether 60 peasants were killed and their bodies were left lying in the streets.

WAR OF EXTERMINATION.

Massacres in the Vilayet of Monatsir Are of Daily Occurrence.

London, Sept. 7.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Monastir, telegraphing under Saturday's date, says:

"There is no doubt that a Turkish war of extermination is proceeding in the Okrida district. The massacres of a century ago are as nothing compared with those occurring daily in the vilayet of Monastir. I have obtained substantial evidence to prove that the Turkish nisams (Turkish regular troops) are in most cases committing unheard of atrocities, which are not solely the work of the Bashi Bazouks, as the authorities are seeking to prove. The plight of the survivors is terrible. Not daring to leave their houses and subsisting on grass and water, they resemble people in the last stages of famine. The Turks are also losing heavily, judging from the number of injured arriving here.

Among the instances he gives in support of his statement the correspondent relates that a priest's son in one village was flayed alive and kept in this horrible condition for several days to the delight of his tormentors until a merciful Turk shot him dead.

KING PETER OF SERVIA.

An Unconfirmed Report of An Attempt on His Life.

Vienna, Sept. 7.—Special dispatches give an unconfirmed report of an attempt on King Peter's life at Nish on Saturday. It is said that stones were thrown at the royal carriage, one striking the king in the face, and a pistol was fired from a neighboring window. It is also rumored that the Sixth Servian regiment, notorius for the part it played in the recent regicides, has been ordered to Nish.

The Killing of Sergt. L. G. Bryson.

To Stop the Massacres in Macedonia.

Rome, Sept. 7.—Pius X. has represented to the Austrian emperor the advisability, especially on the part of the Catholic powers, of coming to an agreement as to the best way to stop the massacres in Macedonia.

FROM ALL OVER THE STATE

PIED THE TYPE.

Determined Attempt to Suppress the West Point Beacon.

West Point, Ky., Sept. 4.—A determined attempt is being made by unknown persons to suppress the publication of the West Point Beacon, a weekly paper edited by Dr. L. Morrison. A few days ago all the type in the office was "pied." This seriously crippled the paper temporarily. Then one night a brick was thrown through a window of the Beacon office at Mr. Dempsey, the foreman of the printing office.

The latest outrage is an assault on Mr. Dempsey. Mr. Dempsey was returning to his boarding house, when he was struck on the jaw with a brick.

THE LAST OF THE FAMILY.

Squire Gentry, Descendant of a Revolutionary Hero, Dead.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Sept. 4.—Squire Charles Gentry died Thursday. He was the youngest son of Col. Richard Gentry, who served on Green's staff through the revolutionary war, and probably the last surviving son of a revolutionary soldier in this state. He was a brother of Col. Richard Gentry, who was killed while leading his regiment against the Seminoles on Christmas day, 1837. He was 80 years old, and was the last of 15 brothers and four sisters.

HONEYMOON CUT SHORT.

Worthless Checks Passed By the Bridegroom, It Is Alleged.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 3.—The honeymoon of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rambodt, which began four weeks ago in Omaha, Neb., and which has been marked by a lavish expenditure of money, came to an abrupt end Wednesday night, when detectives invaded their apartments at the Fifth Avenue hotel and arrested Rambodt on a charge of passing worthless checks. Rambodt claims to be proprietor of a hotel in Niagara Falls and city treasurer of the same city.

THE JURY DISAGREED.

Mrs. Garret and Her Daughter Will Get a New Trial.

Mayking, Ky., Sept. 3.—After the jury in the Garret case at Whitesburg, Ky., reported five times that it could not agree, Judge M. J. Moss ordered it dismissed, and continued the case till the November term of court. Mrs. Garret and her daughter are charged with having scalded to death Jason L. Craft, aged 60 years, of Craftsville, in February.

Covington Man In Ill Luck.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 3.—J. A. E. Miller, of Madison avenue, is having more than his share of ill luck. Several weeks ago his father was shot and killed in Columbus, O., by a Negro patrolman, who mistook Miller for a burglar. His brother-in-law was badly injured a week ago. Wednesday morning Miller's wife slipped while coming down a stairway, and in falling sustained internal injuries that may result fatally.

Court of Appeals Docket Heavy.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 4.—The fall docket of the court of appeals was made up Thursday, and shows 364 civil appearances and continued cases, 57 criminal cases and 29 old cases on the argument docket, or 440 cases in all. Besides the above there are 270 cases under submission, making a total of 710 cases of all kinds now before the court.

Detained Against Their Will Alleged.

Bowling Green, Ky., Sept. 5.—Dr. J. French Duncan is charged in two cases with detaining a woman against her will. They are mother and daughter. The warrants were sworn out by H. Cox, husband and father of the women in question. Dr. Duncan Friday waived an examining trial. The defendant is a member of one of the best families here and is married.

Copper Discovered in Kentucky.

Madisonville, Ky., Sept. 4.—Copper has been struck in the zinc mining district of Western Kentucky, in Crittenden county. It is said that the vein is equal in value to that of Arizona and New Mexico. Mines will be opened at once for developing the newly discovered territory.

Placed Under the Knife.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 5.—An operation on Congressman John S. Williams, of Yazoo City, Miss., who has been agreed upon as democratic leader in the next congress, was performed at Gray Street infirmary Saturday morning. Dr. J. M. Mathews was in charge of the operation.

Female Rural Route Carriers.

Bowling Green, Ky., Sept. 3.—Two women are applicants for positions as carriers on the rural free delivery routes in this county. They stood the examination here Wednesday. One is a widow and the other is a young single woman.

Missing Girl Is Located.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 3.—Miss May Smith, the girl who was thought to have left with a Hungarian musician, has been located here with friends. She says she left home because of a disagreement.

TELEGRAPH COMPANY'S MISTAKE

William Triplett Entered Suit For $25,000 Damages.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 4.—The Western Union Telegraph Co. was made defendant here Thursday in a $25,000 damage suit instituted by William Triplett, of Lexington, a state witness in the last trial of the Jim Howard murder case. The ground of the petition is that a report of the evidence of Triplett was by mistake of an operator sandwiched in with that of a witness whose reputation was attacked, making it appear in newspaper accounts that the attack was on the character of the plaintiff.

WEST POINT ENCAMPMENT.

President Roosevelt May Visit It During the Maneuvers.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 4.—Though not yet officially announced, it is almost a certainty that President Roosevelt will visit West Point during the army maneuvers there this fall. Since West Point was selected for the encampment a great deal of pressure has been brought to bear upon the president, urging him to honor the occasion with a visit, and it is said he has about decided to do so. Col. Wagner has stated that the president would probably visit the camp early in October, and that it is possible he will spend two or three days there.

HE CALLED FOR SARDINES.

When He Received Them He Stabbed the Merchant Dead.

Cornishville, Ky., Sept. 3.—William Donovan, it is charged, fatally stabbed Egbert Morris Wednesday afternoon. Donovan, who, it is said, was drinking, went into Morris' store and called for a can of sardines. When Morris handed out the can Donovan stabbed him through the heart, Morris dropping dead. Both were under 21 years of age. Donovan has not been captured.

Chief's Leg Was Amputated.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 4.—Fire Chief Joseph Mayer, of Covington, who was injured in a recent fire here, underwent an operation Thursday in this city by which his left foot and the lower part of the leg was amputated. The operation was performed by Dr. Duncan, assisted by Dr. Pussay, of this city, and Dr. Averdeck, of Covington. The operation was a success, and chief Mayer rallied nicely.

Long Fast to Cure Catarrh.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 3.—John Mims, of Catlettsburg, Ky., has just completed a 25 days' fast at the Falls City hotel, in Jeffersonville, undertaken in the belief that it would cure catarrh of the head. He has lost 27 pounds, but feels no bad effects. He says the trouble has improved. He suffered excruciating hunger throughout his fast.

Money For Injured Driver.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 3.—Local betting horsemen have taken up a subscription among themselves and have raised the snug little sum of $500 for the benefit of Ben Kennedy, who was recently injured on the grand circuit by being thrown from a sulky. The money will be forwarded to him Thursday.

Mad Dogs at Barboursville.

Barboursville, Ky., Sept. 3.—This city was invaded by a drove of mad dogs and a reign of terror ensued. Every one turned out with shotguns and pistols, and dogs began to fall on all sides. A number were killed within a short time. One was shot in the door of one of the principal hotels. No one was bitten.

Coal and Mineral Lands Sold.

Pikeville, Ky., Sept. 5.—Fifteen thousand acres of the finest lands, embracing valuable coal and other mineral deposits on Pond creek, in Pike county, was sold Friday to New York capitalists. It is reported that 30 miles of railroad, which will connect with the C. & O. here, is to be built and the tract developed soon.

Sues For $20,000 Damages.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 5.—The L. & N. Railroad Co. was made defendant in a $20,000 damage suit filed by J. W. Ayers in the Kenton circuit court. Plaintiff avers he attempted to get off a train in Central Covington, when it suddenly started, throwing him under the wheels, causing him to lose a limb and part of a foot.

Pratt Nominated For Judge.

Princeton, Ky., Sept. 3.—Clifton J. Pratt, at present the attorney general of the commonwealth of Kentucky, was nominated by the republicans of the Fourth judicial district for circuit judge. Walter Blackburn was nominated for commonwealth's attorney.

Negro Cook Crushed to Death.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 5.—Charles Miller, a Negro cook employed by the C. & O. railway, was instantly killed Friday morning near Twelfth and Washington street. Miller was passing between two coaches at the time the train crew were making up a train.

Death of River Editor Tom Hall.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 5.—Tom Hall, the veteran river editor, died suddenly Friday. He was one of the best authorities on river subjects and was known from Pittsburg to New Orleans.

There are radically different ideas as to what the better agriculture should consist in. The real farmer is said to adhere too closely to the ways of his fathers. He plods. The city man who goes to the country would correct all this by overturning it. He sees revolution in everything with which he has to do. Ways of doing business are not so much improved as revolutionized. The new things are of different kind from the old. The automobile is not an improvement of the horse and carriage; it is a new creation. The new telegraphy uses no wires to carry its messages. The X-rays allow us to see through a board. The man who is familiar with all this wants to introduce some wholly new and startling thing when he goes into farming. He would reform it and revolutionize it. The upshot of it is likely to be a kind of freak farming. He will grow some specialty, perhaps popcorn, pigeons, liquorice, ginseng, wormwood, madder, basket willow, Angora goats, skunks.

The point is that these small crops and facitious enterprises are mere side issues and really have no great effect on agricultural prosperity as a whole. They may be very profitable here and there, but they are for the few and special conditions. Mere specialities cannot revolutionize a great series of business like the agricultural business, that engage four times more fixed capital than manufactures. We have probably about reached the limit of "fancy farming," except as it may be practiced as a mere diversion. In the upheaval of old ideas, we have made many impractical experiments, but the farmer stands by the old things, improving them slowly and surely year by year. We must be near the point of collapse of all kinds of freak farming.—Country Life in America.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to all whom it may concern, that a petition signed by more than twenty bona fide voters, of Burlington voting precinct, in Boone County, Kentucky, has been duly filed in the Boone County Court, asking that the vote be taken on the question for and against cattle generally running at large in said precinct, and the vote will be taken on said question in said precinct, at the regular November election for the year 1903.

G. G. HUGHES,
Atty. or Petitioners.

"Yes," said the old man, addressing his young visitor, "I am proud of my girls and would like to see them comfortably married, and as I have made a little money they will not go to their husbands penniless. There's Mary, she's twenty-five and a real good girl. I shall give her $5,000 when she marries. Then comes Bet, who won't see thirty-five again, and I shall give her $10,000, and the man who takes Eliza, who is forty, will have $15,000 with her. The young man reflected a moment or so, and inquired: "You haven't one about fifty, have you?"

The Cincinnati Times-Star says that at least $1,000 was taken out of Delaware county, this state, last week by a swindler who sold farmers colored water, which he represented was a liquid that would prevent fleas from bothering animals and would kill fleas wherever found. Many farmers bought five dollars worth of the stuff, because they could get six bottles for five dollars, whereas a single bottle cost one dollar.—Lawrenceburg Press.

A Kentucky couple, on marriage intent went to Frankfort, Ind. The Clerk refused to grant a license. The intended groom consulted an attorney, and learning that a common law marriage was legal in Indiana, had the attorney draw up a contract, which both parties signed. The signing of the contract was duly witnessed by several citizens and the parties left on the evening train.

S. P. Gibbs, who moved from Petersburg neighborhood to Kansas City, several months since, writes: "I have got my fill of Kansas City, and have moved down into Wright county. Send my paper to Norwood, Mo."

Just as we were going to press this morning we received a telephone message from F. C. Greene, of Owenton, authorizing his announcement for Commonwealth's attorney. It appears in the proper column.

September is furnishing its share of hot weather, which is providing considerable cow corn for use in this locality this winter.

A. W. Gaines' wife and children have taken rooms at Mr. Jackson's, in order to send the children to school here.

The foliage on the trees indicate the approach of the melancholy days.

Portions of the South Atlantic States experienced heavy rains while the Ohio Valley, the greater part of Texas and the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast districts are suffering from drought. There was some damage in the northern portion of the Middle Atlantic States by local storms on the 19th.

On the whole the corn crop has made favorable progress, especially over the central and western portions of the corn belt. the most decided advance being reported from Nebraska and Kansas in the upper Ohio Valley corn is suffering seriously from lack of rain, which is needed in portions of Illinois and Missouri, and much of the crop in Iowa will suffer unless rain falls soon. The reports indicate that early corn will be safe from frost by September 15 and October 1, and late corn from October 1 to 15 (dates by which it is estimated the crop in the principal corn states will be safe from frost are given in detail in the accompanying state summaries.)

Considerable spring wheat remains to be cut in North Dakota, but harvesting is practically finished elsewhere in the spring wheat region, and thrashing is in progress. In Southern Minnesota much grain in shock is damp. In South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas the weather has been highly favorable for stacking and thrashing. Harvesting is nearly finished in Oregon and advancing rapidly in Washington, the grain being of superior quality.

The condition of tobacco in Tennessee is exceptionally favorable, and a fair crop is promised in Kentucky, where an improvement is indicated. A fair to good crop is being cut in Maryland and Virginia. In Pennsylvania, though backward, tobacco has made fair progress, but drought has materially lessened its condition in Ohio.

The reports indicate a very general decline in the condition of apples except in the southern portion of the Middle Atlantic States, where the outlook continues favorable.

Fall plowing has progressed under favorable conditions, except in the Ohio Valley and central portions of the Mississippi Valley where the soil is too dry.

An Appeal to Democrats.

[Warsaw Independent]

A very enthusiastic meeting of Democrats was held at the court house Thursday evening, Sept. 3rd, meeting being called for the purpose of urging the claims of Gallatin County, to the Democratic nomination of Commonwealth's Attorney of this district made vacant by the death of the Hon Robert Wood, the late nominee for said office. It seemed to be the judgment of those present that as the nomination had heretofore been given Gallatin County, the Democrats of the district ought in justice meet in convention and again nominate a Gallatin County candidate. This is the only county in the district that has never filled either the position of Circuit Judge, Criminal Judge or Commonwealth's Attorney. Many years ago the Hon. J. D. Lillard, of Owen County, was elected and served as Commonwealth's Attorney; Owen County has also in the persons of Judges Warren Montfort and John W. Greene furnished the district with two Circuit Judges; Grant County has had the Criminal Judgeship in the person of the late O. D. McManama, and also has had the Commonwealth's Attorney's office for seventeen years—six years of the time Hon. A. G. DeJarnette filling it, and eleven years Hon. M. D. Gray. The Hon. John S. Gaunt, of Carroll County, filled the office of Commonwealth's Attorney for six years, and Hon. John M. Lassing, of Boone County, is now our very able Circuit Judge. So it is quite apparent that little Gallatin in all fairness, is entitled to some recognition, and she is earnestly urging her claims in the person of the Hon. J. W. Lilly, who has for two terms most ably represented Gallatin in the legislature of Kentucky.

Resolutions endorsing the candidacy of Mr. Lilly were offered by R. H. Brown and unanimously adopted at this meeting, held at Warsaw Sept. 3rd, 1903.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT THE ORIGINAL LIVER MEDICINE

A sallow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. Thedford's Black-Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It stirs up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by Thedford's Black-Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than Thedford's Black-Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Mullins, S. C., March 10, 1901.
I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for three years and I have not had to go to a doctor since I have been taking it. It is the best medicine for me that is on the market for liver and kidney troubles and dyspepsia and other complaints. Rev. A. G. LEWIS.

VERONA.

The little town of Verona was attired in her best clothes and wore her sunniest smile on the 10th inst., the occasion being the marriage of Miss Letha Callahan to Dr. Clarence Kemper. The church had been decorated by kind friends in the loveliest flowers of the season, and these, with waving palms and drooping lillies made a picture very impressive to the spectators. Shortly after 3 o'clock, the over crowded house saw the bridal party entering as follows: Ushers, Miss Eunice Johnson and Mr. Grover Rausom; waiters, Miss Bernice Johnson and Mr. O. K. Powers. Miss Blanche Roberts and Mr. Cloyd Powers, Miss Dora Garvey and Willis Snyder, Miss Edna Ransom and Mr. Ralph Kemper; maid of honor, Miss Mary Dimmit; lastly the bride and groom.

The bride was robed in white silk entrains and chiffon embroidery, carrying an immense bouquet of roses. The groom wore the conventional black; all conformed to make a vision of loveliness, on which the friends and relatives of the party gazed during the very impressive ceremony of Bro. Mills.

To lend enchantment to the scene, the organ pealed forth its melodious strains during the wedding, played by Miss Annie Lee Wolfe. After the ceremony the congratulations and good wishes were very numerous. The following are some of the presents received: Silver of all devises, forks, small and large spoons, Mr. Ralph Kemper; silver, gold lined sugar bowl and cream pitcher, Dr. and Mrs. B. K. Menifee; case of silver knives and forks, W. G. Kemper and wife; silver bread tray, Mrs. O. K. Whitson; silver top water pitcher, J. H. Callahan; silver berry spoon, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott; silver berry spoon; Miss Blanche Roberts; two silver bou-bon trays, Miss Edna Ransom; silver card received, Miss Minnie Northcutt; silver sugar shell and butter knife, Miss Stella Lowe; sugar shell and butter knife, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cleek; set napkins, Miss Julia Johnson, set napkins, Mrs. Tharp; tablecloth and napkins, Mrs. Johnson, of Grandview, Ind.; tablecloth, Mrs. Showers; bed spread, Mrs. L. S. Wolfe and family; dresser scarf, Miss Eunice Johnson; table cloth, Mrs. Ruth and Lizzie Roberts; pair towels, Miss Martha Rouse Rev. C. A. Bromley and wife, Mr. J. D. Castleman, Mrs. S. E. Whitson, Mr. Lisle Callahan, Miss Pieroline Allphin, Miss Alice Ransom; china tea set, Mrs. Wood, Covington; salt cups and three rocking chairs, Mrs. Fattie Carlisle; salad dish and saucers, Mrs. Dimmit and daughter; salt and pepper shake, Mrs. Webster; fancy center piece, Mrs. Julia Hume; wash cloth, Miss Florence Webster; hankerchief, master Scott Robeon; cream pitcher, Miss Pattie Callahan; burnt-wood picture frame, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Jones; dresser scarf, Miss Bertie Johnson; berry dish, Miss Lena Waller. The bride is one of the most popular and highly esteemed girls of Verona—to know her is to love her—to this agree Dr. Kemper, who is a fine young dentist of great promise. They both move in the very best circles of society and are greatly respected by all. Their friends all wish them a long and happy life, and a prosperous journey on life's pathway.

COMMISSARY.

Good rains here. Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Charles Craven is building his brother-in-law W. T. Ryle, a new corn crib.

Mrs. Leomer Louden visited her brother, near Petersburg, last Saturday and Sunday.

Jacob and Arthur Fleek called on their sister, Mrs. Ed Burris, near here, last Sunday evening.

Mother Hunt's foot is thought to be improving, but very slow. She will not be able to walk for several days.

Mrs. John Presser and children, of McVille, are visiting Mrs. John Stewart and family, near Elizabethtown, Ohio.

James Smith, Jr., and James Smith, sr., and their wives, of Bellevue, went to Lawrenceburg last Sunday visiting, and returned on Monday.

Mr. James Louden and wife, of McVille, are spending a few days with Mrs. F. A. McAtee, near the site where once stood Johnson's old mill, on North Hogan, Ind.

Charles Slayback and wife, of Erlanger, visited William Slayback and mother, and Nick Fleek and family, Saturday night and Sunday. Charley spent an hour or two at the entertainment in McVille.

Some say the Commissary tries to monopolize all the news of the county. When solicited to write for the Recorder pa said "we could get our news wherever found." Others have the same privilege; so don't find fault with us.

The McVille ball team—the coming team of Boone county, of which ye scribe is secretary, will cross bats with the Dillsborough team next Saturday. The McVille team challenges the Burlington first nine for a game on the 26th.

Richard and Flave Louden and their families, Jasper McGuyre and family, and ye scribe, attended the convention at Florence Thursday. We had the pleasure of listening to good addresses on several different topics, and was well pleased with Bro. Riley's remarks on cooperation. We thought them applicable to correspondents and readers of the Recorder. We would be pleased to see better cooperation between correspondents and the readers of their vicinity. The music was excellent and well rendered and the dinner all that appetite could wish.

We attended the Masonic entertainment at McVille Saturday evening. The crowd commenced arriving about dark and in an hour thereafter the hall and yard were full to overflowing. Persons were present from Cincinnati, Covington, Erlanger, Union, Warsaw, and from 7 or 8 miles back of Rising Sun. The managers had secured the services of Charles Kelly, of Waterloo, and Arthur Houston, of Union, with violins, to entertain, while Tom Clore, with his genuine jig and Jim Louden's billie goat entertained on the outside. The goat was the most amusing. About 25 gallons of ice cream, 2 barrels of lemonade and 1½ cords of bananas were disposed of. The ice cream was served in the saucers with side-boards that were used at the recent Sunday school entertainment. These sauced will be used at all entertainments in the future. All the ladies did toward the entertainment was to prepare the cake, of which there was an abundance. The men did the balance, even to decorating the hall and tables, which decorations showed them to be men of good taste. When it comes to entertaining the McVille people surely know how to make a person feel welcome. We are very sorry "pa" could not be present as the capacity of my ice cream tank was not equal to the quantity intended for us both. The managers thank the ladies of Bellevue for aid and donations, and the people for their presence and liberal patronage.

HATHAWAY.

Sept. 14.—John S. Mason has been hulling clover in East Bend for the past week or so.

Houston & Weaver did quite a business in the sugar trade last week. They sold 900 pound in one day.

Several from this neighborhood attended the Harvest Home near Limaburg Saturday, and report a very pleasant time.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Hubbard went to Covington last Saturday to visit Mrs. Hubbard's brother, who was struck by a train recently.

John Satch well will soon occupy the house on J. S. Mason's place, near Big Bone church, and will work for R. Lee Huey this winter.

W. S. White took to market last week and the week before a couple of loads of live stock, for which he received satisfactory prices.

Jeff Eddins, of Burlington, was here last Saturday, collecting a school tax for the district, to meet some necessary repairs on the school house.

R. Lee Huey received a large shipment of goats from Stanford, Lincoln county, recently with which he expects to start a cheese factory soon on a large scale.

Rev. B. F. Swindler, of Covington, has been assisting our pastor, W. S. Taylor, in a series of meetings for the past two weeks at Big Bone church, and we have listened to some very excellent gospel sermons and have been profited by them very much. There have been no additions to the church, but it has been revived considerably.

Lost—At Harvest Home, last Saturday, gold locket about size of lady's watch. It contained a miniature. Please return to Mrs. Dr. Rouse, Burlington.

At the morning services he united with the church by letter from the Louisville Chestnut street Christian church. At the night service Elizabeth McCarty was restored to the church.

Mrs. Kate Anderson, president of the State Assembly assisted by Mrs. Mary Lohstroh, past-president of Assembly of Kentucky and Lucretia Lodge No. 214 of Rising Sun, Indiana, instituted a Rebecca Lodge here last Wednesday afternoon. Thirty-one members were initiated, and it can be said with all sincerity that a finer order of manhood and womanhood never constituted a lodge. The members are the best and finest of the community. The initiations were conducted by Lucretia lodge, which is very efficient in the work, all their movements being accomplished with precision and elegance, while the oral parts were performed with that fluency which comes from familiarity with the charges, addresses, etc. After enjoying delightful refreshments the following officers were installed: Rea Berkshire, N. G.; Josie Grant, V. G.; Chas. Maurer, Financial Secretary; Ciara Smith, Recording Secretary; Sophia Clore, Treasurer; John Smith, R. S. to N. G.; Lizzie Smith, L. S. to N. G.; Annie Sullivan, Warden; Stella Scott, Conductor; Iley Stephens, Chaplain; Grace Sutton, Inside Guardian; R. L. Sullivan, Outside Guardian; Belle Williamson, R. S. to V. G.; Minnie Deck, L. S. to V. G. The new organization will hear the name Evergreene, No. 14., and may the lodge be in each member's mind as the name it bears.

Sept. 14.—Ray Cook and Charles Deck have gone to the city to hunt a job.

Kirb Clore is employed as clerk in Rogers Bros.' store.

It is rumored that T. J. Clore will move to Covington and engage in the hotel business.

Ten of our citizens saw the Aurora ball team defeat the Reserves of Cincinnati, last Sunday.

Quite a large crowd of our young people attended the barn dance out at Willie Clore's, one night last week, and all reported a delightful time.

We do not want to boast, but it is our candid opinion that, in proportion to population, Bellevue has more pretty girls than anyother town in the county. Of course Burlington comes next.

The McVille ball team defeated the Bellevue ball team at the latter place, last Saturday afternoon, 14 to 6. Brady and Ryle for the visitors, and Conner, Smith and Cook for the home team, were the batteries. A feature of the game was the errors of the home team.

THE NATIONAL TROPHY

The New York Rifle Team Won the Prize.

New Jersey, Which Had the Second Highest Score in the Shoot, Will Receive the Hilton Trophy and $300.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 10.—The name of the first winner to be engraved on the national rifle shooting trophy, provided by the congress of the United States, will be that of New York. In a spirited competition in progress two full days the New York team of 12 uniformed men captured the trophy handily, finishing with a lead of 86 points over its nearest competitor, New Jersey. New York's total was 2,988 out of a possible 3,600. In addition to the national trophy, valued at $1,000, which will be held by the winning team only one year, the New York team won a cash prize of $500.

New Jersey, which scored the second highest aggregate total of 2,902, receives the Hilton trophy, to be held one year, and $300.

Massachusetts was third, with a total of 2,888, and will carry home the "Soldier of Marathon" trophy, to be held one year, and $200.

The District of Columbia, fourth, with a total of 2,873, receives $150; Ohio, fifth, with a total of 2,788, receives $100, and the United States marine corps, sixth, with a total of 2,772, receives $50.

A medal will also be presented to each of the 12 members of each of the six winning teams.

Massachusetts entered a protest against New Jersey, asserting that Hudson, of New Jersey, was a regularly enlisted member of the Ninth New York regiment. Maj. Guilfoyle, executive officer, held that the protest must be passed on by the board appointed by the secretary of war.

Not once during the day did the sun show itself through the leaden clouds. Although overcoats were worn generally and the air was damp, the conditions for firing were fairly good.

The national trophy match will be shot next year in the middle west, probably at St. Louis.

By far the best work of Tuesday was that of Private Wilson, of the Georgia team. He was the last man to shoot and in almost total darkness succeeded in attaining a total of 42 out of a possible 50 at 800 yards. Dardingkeller, of New York, and Mr. Smith and Lieut. Benedict, of Ohio, each succeeded in scoring 49 out of a possible 50 at 500 yards. The cavalry team of the army is using the service carbine and therefore under the rules received an allowance of 12 points at 600 yards. The teams' actual score was 412, but the allowance raised it to 424.

MASTER BUILDERS' EXCHANGE.

A Systematic Warfare on Sympathetic Strikes to Be Made.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—The advisory board of the Master Builders' Exchange Tuesday fixed January 1, 1904, as the date on which systematic warfare by means of lockouts against sympathetic strikes will begin. The builders' exchange represents practically all the builders and sub-contractors in the city. No workman will be employed after January 1, 1904, unless he is willing to agree not to engage in any sympathetic strike and to arbitrate any difference that may arise, work to continue meanwhile.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND.

She Jumped Into the River, Carrying Her Babe With Her.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 9.—The mystery surrounding the finding of the body of 5-year-old Viola Cordes in the Allegheny river last Sunday evening was partially cleared Tuesday evening by the finding of the body of the child's mother floating in the same stream. From all accounts it is believed that Mrs. Cordes, who was 24 years old, jumped into the river, carrying her child with her.

SWEPT BY A GALE.

Much Damage to Property in Great Britain With Loss of Life.

New York, Sept. 11.—Owing to a storm sweeping over Great Britain the telegraph lines to London are all down. The Continental telegraph system has also suffered. All messages are subject to delay.

London, Sept. 11.—A terrific gale has sprung up all over the United Kingdom. Within ten hours the barometer fell one inch; the wind blew at a force of 70 miles an hour and torrential rains have fallen.

All the telegraph system was disorganized for several hours, and communication with Ireland and the United States was interrupted. Enormous damage has been done to property in the interior and along the sea front, especially at the sea side resorts. Hundreds of vessels are running to shelter and it is feared that there will be serious casualties. Heavy floods are reported from Wales and snow is falling on the Grampian hills, in Scotland.

A dispatch from Gothenburg reports that the Norwegian three-masted schooner Theis Lundegaard, from Skonvik, for London, is ashore at Falkenberg and all the crew have perished save one. Several other vessels are ashore.

THE PRINTERS' OBLIGATION.

Bishop Scannell, of Omaha, Takes a Decided Stand in the Matter.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 11.—Bishop Richard Scannell, bishop of the Omaha diocese of the Catholic church, has taken a definite stand in the matter of Catholics becoming members of the typographical union and makes the plain statement that a Catholic can not belong to the union and receive absolution from a priest.

Bishop Scannell Thursday night said: "This question has not come up in this diocese and there is no reason why it should, because no priest would need any instructions in the case. There is a primary principle of ethics and such principles are self-evident to every one. No man could lawfully take an obligation of this kind for the keeping of it would render all government, ecclesiastical or civil, impossible. In fact, it would render null and void all courts at law, ecclesiastical or civil. It would make the authority of a voluntary organization paramount to all law, national, divine, ecclesiastical and civil. I am at a loss to understand how any sensible man could formulate such an obligation, or how any sensible man could assume it."

SALES OF PUBLIC LANDS.

Approximately $8,461,494 Was Covered Into the Treasury.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Commissioner Richards, of the general land office, Thursday issued a statement showing that approximately $8,461,494 was covered into the treasury to the credit of the reclamation fund from the sales of public lands and fees and commissions in the various irrigation states in 1903. This amount will be distributed among the same states. The irrigation projects of the government will be carried on by means of this fund. The statement shows that an aggregate of $16,191,835 has been received from the sales of lands in the various states during 1901, 1902 and 1903 for use in furthering irrigation plans. The total amounts received in 1901 was $3-144,822 and in 1902 $4,585,521.

BANK ROBBERS FOILED.

Owing to An Accident They Failed to Get Any Booty.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 11.—Bank robbers broke into the bank of Downs, Wash., and blew the doors off the safe, which is said to have contained about $5,000. The explosion was so great that the heavy safe fell forward on the floor. The robbers were unable to raise it to get at its contents and left without their booty.

Alice Roosevelt's Novel Experience.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 11.—Miss Alice Roosevelt went down in the submarine boat Moccasin Thursday. After being submerged for a few minutes so that the novelty of the situation might be appreciated, she rose to the surface and disembarked. The water was quite shallow where the boat went down.

THE ARMY MANEUVERS

Names of Troops That Will Participate at West Point, Ky.

A Number of the Officers of the Regular Army Have Been Named to Act as Umpires During the Reviews.

Washington, Sept. 11.—The announcement was made at the war department Thursday that the proposed maneuvers to be conducted near West Point, Ky., from September 20 to October 16 will be participated in by troops from Camp George H. Thomas at Chickamauga; Jefferson Barracks, Mo.; Fort Sheridan, Ill.; Fort Wayne, Mich.; Fort Porter, N. Y.; Fort Brady, Mich.; Fort Thomas, Ky.; Columbus arsenal, Tenn.; Columbus Barracks, O.; Fort Myer, Va., and Washington barracks, three regiments of infantry and a battery of field artillery from the Indiana national guard, two regiments of infantry and a battalion of artillery acting as infantry from the Kentucky state guard, three regiments and one battalion of infantry from the Michigan national guard and one regiment of infantry from the Wisconsin national guard.

The following officers have been designated as brigade commanders: Gen. Kobbe, U. S. A.; Gen. McKee, Indiana national guard; Gen. McGuerrin, Michigan national guard; Gen. Bliss, U. S. A., and Col. Morton and Maj. Woodward, U. S. A.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The program of exercises and duties at West Point, Ky., during the period of combined maneuvers of regular troops and militia was announced at the war department Friday. The scheme was prepared by a board of officers under the direction and supervision of Gen. John C. Bates, who has charge of the maneuvers. The ground available for maneuvers does not permit strategical exercises of severe duration, but requires detached exercises in each case not lasting more than 24 hours.

The general strategical assumption upon which the exercises are based is the same in each case, namely, the blue army is supposed to have its base on the Ohio river at Louisville and to be operating against the brown army which has its base on the Tennessee river at Nasbville. The brown army has advanced to the vicinity of Louisville. The blue army, supposed to have been forced back in previous operations, has been re-enforced and now resumes the offensive. The maneuvering ground lies in the vicinity of the Muldraugh hills and was the scene of actual maneuvers during the civil war.

The foreign military attaches accredited to the United States have been invited to be present at the army maneuvers at West Point, Ky. Invitations also have been extended to each of the several states not participating in the maneuvers to have an officer present. It was announced at the war department Friday that Battery A, Ohio national guard, located at Cleveland, has signified its desire to participate.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF BLACK.

He Named His Personal Staff and Issued His First General Order.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Gen. John C. Black, recently elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, Thursday appointed his personal staff and issued his first general order in the form of a fraternal greeting to the members of the organization. In the ensuing year the national headquarters will be in Memorial hall, Chicago, and will be in charge of Adjt. Gen. Charles A. Partridge. The following were named as members of the staff: Adjutant general, Charles A. Partridge, of the department of Illinois; quartermaster general, Charles Burrows, of the department of New Jersey; inspector general, Edwin B. Messer, of the department of Iowa; judge advocate general, James Tanner, of the department of New York.

Against Tuberculosis.

Berlin, Sept. 11.—Dr. Nuefeld, of Koch's institute, writing to a medical weekly, reports that successful experiments have been made to produce immunity in animals against tuberculosis by injecting into the blood vessels of mules, goats and cattle living bacilli from the human beings. He has been unable, however, to produce the same affect with dead cultures.

MAJOR DELMAR.

The Trotter Went a Mile in 2:01 1-4 at the Syracuse Fair Grounds.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 12.—With turf conditions which were estimated to make the course a good half second slower than on Wednesday, when he established a new world's trotting record for gaildings, 2:01¼, Major Delmar Friday went a mile on the state fair ground track at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in 2:00¼.

This exhibition was made in the presence of 15,000 persons, who cheered enthusiastically when the result was announced and it was realized that Lou Dillon, the two minute trotter, alone stood between Major Delmar and the world's trotting record and that by only a quarter of a second.

ANTHRACITE MINERS.

They Are Entitled to a Five Per Cent. Increase in Wages.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 12.—Mine workers and operators of the anthracite region have been advised by Chas. P. Neill, who was appointed by the anthracite strike commission as the computer of prices at the mine, that the miners are entitled to a 5 per cent. increase in wages, in accordance with the recent advance in the price of anthracite, to go into effect for the month of September. The regular rate for hard coal at New York harbor is $4.75 a ton. This is expected to be the standard for the coming six months, or until the operators arrange their price list.

WANTED A CUP OF COFFEE.

The King Pulled the Airbrake Connection and Stopped the Train.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—King Edward while crossing Germany on his return to England from Vienna, requested an equerry to order a cup of coffee. The cook, an American Negro, was in a forward car without corridor communication with the royal carriage. The king, when so informed, pulled the airbrake connection and stopped the train to the dismay of his suite and the train crew, until the reason for the stoppage was explained. The cook was then taken into the royal carriage with a coffee apparatus and the train proceeded.

INTERMEDIATE DISTANCES.

Charles Rubert Won Two American Swimming Championships.

New York, Sept. 12.—Charles Rubert, of the New York Athletic club, won two American swimming championships at the country home of the New York Athletic club at Travers island. Rubert made two new American records for intermediate distances. He swam 550 yards in 8:15 1-5, making a new record, the old one being 8:15 3-5, held by E. S. Schaeffer, and he also made a record for 770 yards, swimming the distance in 11:44 3-5. The former record was 11:51 3-5, also held by Schaeffer.

SIX MEN POISONED.

More Than a Pint of Paris Green Placed in a Water Cooler.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Sept. 12.—Henry Alston, William Moore and Hall Hassell, together with three Negroes, all employed by the F. S. Alston Co., were poisoned by drinking water from a cooler in which more than a pint of paris green had been placed with the apparent intention to kill all the Alston force. The six victims were dangerously ill during the afternoon, but it was believed Friday night that all would recover.

Captured the Dryden Trophy.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 12.—The infantry rifle team of the United States army came to the fore decidedly and captured the Dryden trophy, by scoring a total of 995 out of a possible 1,200. Quartermaster Sergt. Hawkins, a Negro, made the best individual score.

Diversion of Export Trade.

WAR CLOUD LOWERS.

Big Guns of American Ships Ships Trained on Beirut.

American Mission Property Is Threatened and Other American Interests Are Placed in Jeopardy—The Situation Seems Grave.

Beirut, Sept. 11.—The American warships in the harbor have cleared decks and are ready for war action. Signal men have been placed at points of advantage to give the men aboard the war ships all information that is desired during the present crisis. A guard has been placed at the American consulate, and every precaution made for landing marines at the shortest possible notice. Rapid-fire guns and small arms are ready to be loaded into boats for the marines when the command to land is given. Heavy guns on the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco are trained upon the city, and Adm. Cotton is on the alert to assume a determined attitude and back up his position in the most forcible manner. Guards have been demanded for the governor by the American missions. American mission property has been threatened, and other American interests are placed in jeopardy.

Moved by the menace of Rr. Adm. Cotton, the Turkish sultan has ousted the vali of Beirut, under whose regime rioting took place in that city Sunday, in which many Christians were killed.

Washington, Sept. 11.—The state department Thursday morning received the following dispatch from Minister Leishman, at Constantinople:

"Four ambassadors have demanded the removal of the governor of Beirut. The other foreign representatives will probably do the same.

"I have urged that the governor be replaced by some one more capable of preserving order and giving effective protection to American citizens and interests."

Sofia, Sept. 11.—The continuous reports of wholesale massacres of the Bulgarian population and the destruction of Bulgarian villages in Macedonia are causing considerable excitement in political and general circles here. Premier Petroff is said to have informed the representatives of the powers in Sofia that neither the government nor the Bulgarian people can witness with indifference the annihilation of the Bulgarian element in Macedonia and the devastation of the country and unless the powers can find some means of restraining Turkey's terrible repressive measures Bulgaria will be forced to depart from her present attitude of strict neutrality. While the premier's intimation was conveyed in the course of informal conversation with the diplomats in Sofia and in no sense intended as an official communication, it may be regarded as an indication that the patience of the Bulgarian people is becoming exhausted.

Every day brings news of fresh massacres and outrages in Macedonia. The revolutionary organizations Thursday published elaborate statistics giving the names of 111 villages burned by the Turkish soldiery, the number of houses in each, the date of the incendiarism, and particulars of the number of persons murdered in each case.

London, Sept. 12.—The powers are evidently still exerting pressure both at Constantinople and at Sofia to avert a Turco-Bulgarian war, apparently with some temporary success; but meantime an increasingly terrible tale of atrocities committed in Macedonia shows that the situation is daily becoming aggravated.

The news that a French squadron is going to the Levant is also held to be ominous and this step by the French government will probably be followed by similar action on the part of the other powers.

The Turkish embassy in London in its denial, issued daily, of Turkis atrocities, Friday declared it to be "absolutely false that the Ottoman troops are burning villages, the truth being that it is the Bulgarians, who, at the approach of the troops, use explosives to burn the villages before leaving them and then accuse the Turkish troops of such abominable deeds."

The same communication maintains that there were only eight persons killed and fifteen wounded in the affray at Beirut and that many fugitives to Lebanon are returning to their homes.

According to special dispatches from Constantinople Mussulmans sacked Christian houses during the disorders at Beirut and startling rumors of all kinds are current, including a general massacre at Beirut and the imminent dynamiting of public buildings and the poisoning of the water supply at Constantinople.

From Vienna comes again an unconfirmed report that Boris Sarafoff, the Macedonian leader, has been murdered near Monastir.

Count Tolstoi's 75th Birthday.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—Count Tolstoi spent his 75th birthday in strict privacy, among his children, at Tula. He was in the best of health. The papers printed glowing eulogies of the count on the occasion of his birthday.

Made a New World's Record.

New York, Sept. 12.—Van Ness, carrying 107 pounds, created a new world's record at Sheepshead Bay Friday by covering the 6½ furlongs in a straight course in 1:18, which is 3-5 of a second faster than the best previous time, made by Jane Holley.

Eight-Year-Old Boy Killed His Sister.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Stewart Johnson, aged 8, shot and killed his sister, Mabel, 13 years old, at their home. The boy had been given a rifle as a birthday present, and was playing with it when it was discharged.

THE INDICTED MEN.

Official Statement Regarding Alleged Postal Frauds.

Some of the Men Are Charged With Conspiracy to Bribe An Officer of the United States—Letter Box Contract.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The names of those indicted by the federal grand jury a few days ago in connection with postal frauds were made public Friday. They are Beavers, Machen, Erwin, McGrehan, Huntington and Schoble.

The official statement regarding the indictments follows. "The indictment against Beavers, Machen and Erwin alleges in substance that the Postal Device and Improvement Co., of San Francisco, formerly the Montague Indicator and Letter Box Co., by resolution of October 6, 1899, set aside 10,000 shares of its stock, to be used in any legitimate way its president might think proper in forwarding the interests of the company. Armed with this authority, the president, Daniel S. Richardson, accompanied by Erwin, came to Washington. Erwin was then a post office inspector and the company was composed almost entirely of post office employes in the west. Erwin introduced Richardson to all the post office officials at Washington and Beavers, Machen, Heath and others examined the device. As a result an order for equipping 2,089 letter boxes with the device was secured.

"The indictment against McGlehan, Huntington and Machen alleges that McGlehan was the person interested in the profits from certain contracts from the United States for furnishing package boxes from July 1, 1893, to June 1, 1897; that in pursuance of a scheme to defraud the United States, Machen, recommended to his superiors that the compensation of the contractor be increased in payment for attaching a different support to the boxes which raised them higher from the ground. This scheme was put through and afterwards, when Huntington became interested in the contracts with McGlehan, they continued to receive the extra compensation. The indictment is in ten counts.

"The other indictment against McGlehan, Huntington and Machen is in 15 counts, on the same facts as set forth in the first indictment, these being conspiracy to bribe an officer of the United States.

"The indictments against McGlehan and Huntington for bribery alleges that Machen procured the payment of $1.25 on each of the package boxes, additional to the contractor, for the device which lifted them higher from the ground, when the sum paid for that attachment should not have exceeded 75 cents. McGlehan agreed to pay Machen 50 cents from each $1.25, with the concurrence of Huntington, who was then interested in the contracts with McGlehan as the Columbia Supply Co., for his own personal use.

"The indictment against Schehla and Machen alleges that Eugene D. Scheble, of Toledo, O., became interested with the firm of Maybury & Ellis, of Detroit, of which town Maybury is the mayor, in securing contracts with the United States for purchasing letter boxes. That in pursuance of their scheme to defraud the government, Machen induced the department to order large quantities of letter boxes for the rural free delivery service; quantities far in excess of what was needed or what could be used; and that Machen, in his official capacity, approved the bills for the same."

PACKING PLANT STRIKE.

Twelve Hundred Men Are Out and Business is at a Standstill.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 11.—A general strike was ordered at the Nelson Morris packing plant in South St. Joseph at noon Thursday and the plant was practically at a standstill Thursday afternoon. The trouble was caused by the refusal of the superintendent to discharge a fireman who was charged with being unfair to union workmen. Twelve hundred men are out.

Lancaster, S. C., Sept. 12.—While hunting squirrels in Chester county with his young grandson Friday morning, Maj. J. M. Riddle, one of the proprietors of the Lancaster Review, accidentally shot and killed the boy.

SMUGGLED ALCOHOL EXPLODED.

Two Men on Board the Cruiser Olympia Were Killed.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 14.—Lieut. Commander Van Doser, executive officer of the cruiser Olympia, Sunday gave out an official statement of the facts attending the explosion of a barrel of alcohol on the cruiser's deck Saturday night, causing the death of Marine Corporal J. S. Yerkes, of Philadelphia, and Apprentice Seifert, and the serious injury of Third Class Master-at-Arms Caster and Apprentice Shavey, in addition to the burning of the cruiser's forward awnings and awning supports. The explosion resulted indirectly from the smuggling of alcohol into the navy yard by members of the cruiser's crew.

The statement of Lieut. Commander Van Doser says: "The entire crew of the Olympia were returning aboard after 48 hours' shore liberty when a five-gallon water breaker full of alcohol was discovered in the forward turret. The executive officer at once ordered a thorough search of the ship and the yard in her vicinity to find any other spirits that might have been smuggled. As the cruiser is in drydock all her small boats are lined in rows along the wharf near the drydock. Between two of these boats two men were discovered. One fled and escaped in the darkness. The other was placd under arrest. Where the men were hiding was found a full barrel of alcohol which had been broached. It was by orders carried aboard the Olympia to be emptied into the alcohol tank on the aft deck. This tank being full, the barrel was carried forward by Corp. Yerkes, Seifert, Spavey and Caster. In the meantime the crew was called to quarters and every man accounted for. While the men were in line answering the roll the detachment with the barrel began pouring its contents into a tank on the port side of the forward turret. They had scarcely begun when, in a manner yet to be ascertained, the fumes of the spirits became ignited and exploded with terrific force. Both ends of the barrel were blown out, followed by a torrent of burning alcohol, that spread in a flood of flame over the forward main deck. Yerkes was struck in the head by a stave from the barrel and fell into the burning mass. He was roasted to death. The other three men were also struck by flying fragments of the barrel, but were knocked away from the center of the fire and thus escaped fatal injury."

TRAGEDY IN JAIL.

Prisoner Shoots Two Officers and is Himself Killed.

Edna, Tex., Sept. 14.—Sheriff Geo. F. Wharton and Deputy Frank Brugh Sunday arrested a man known as McCagie, of Philadelphia, on a charge of attempted swindling. McCagie was conveyed to jail without trouble, but when the officers attempted to search him the prisoner drew a revolver and opened fire. The first bullet struck Sheriff Wharton and the second mortally wounded the deputy. The sheriff while falling drew his revolver and fired at the prisoner, killing him instantly. Wharton, when picked up, was dead and Brugh died an hour later.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH.

His Abdication as King of Hungary Freely Discussed.

London, Sept. 14.—The Vienna correspondent of the Dail Mail declares that the Hungarian political crisis has become so acute that the abdication of Emperor Francis Joseph as king of Hungary is freely discussed in the latter country, and although no party leader is willing to openly discuss this probability, there is a strong feeling in favor of Hungary's right to choose its own king, the candidate favored being the German Emperor's second son, Prince Eitel.

Signor Marconi in Canada.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—Signor Marconi, who has been in the city for the past two days, had a dinner with Lord Minto at Rideaux hall. Marconi interviewed Minister Fielding and some of the other ministers. He expects to start an overland system as soon as he has had his trans-Atlantic system in working order.

To Investigate a Lynching.

St. Louis, Sept. 14.—The September grand jury will be impaneled in Belleville, Ill., Monday and will make a thorough investigation of the lynching of the negro school teacher, David S. Wyatt, on June 6. Wyatt, who shot a school director but did not kill him, was strung up on the public square by a mob.

Sir Thomas Lipton Ill.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

Pennsylvania Convicts Alleged Making Spurious Coins.

The Fact Was Discovered While Investigating Gross Irregularities in the Cigar Department of the Eastern Penitentiary.

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—Following closely upon the exposure of gross irregularities in the cigar department of the eastern state penitentiary came the public announcement Sunday night that the illegal coinage of minor silver pieces has been carried on by convicts in the big institution. No details of the counterfeiting scheme can be learned from any of the officials connected with the prison or from the government officers that have been assigned to the case. The fact that such a daring scheme had been carried on in the penitentiary was made public by George Vaux, jr., one of the prison inspectors, who summoned newspaper men to his home and voluntarily made the disclosure.

He gave out a brief statement which is as follows: "Dr. W. D. Robinson and Mr. Vaux, jr., who are at present the visiting inspectors on duty at the eastern penitentiary, made the statement that there has come to their official knowledge that within a short time an attempt has been made by certain convicts now confined in the penitentiary to manufacture counterfeit silver coins. But a few pieces were made and a number of these have come into the possession of the inspectors together with the metals and chemicals used, the attempt thus being nipped in the bud. The evidence in the case is not yet complete but all that has been secured has been submitted to the United States authorities."

Mr. Vaux refused absolutely to give any more details than contained in his statement. From other sources, however, it was learned that dimes, quarters and half dollars were the coins manufactured. The discovery was made several days ago and United States secret service officials were immediately called in. Their investigation, it is learned, is still in progress, their principal object being to learn whether there was collusion between the convicts and employes of the institution.

It is believed the discovery of counterfeiting in the prison was the result of the investigation now being carried on in the place as a result of the irregularities in the cigar department. The irregularities became public matter last week, and pending an investigation Warden Daniel W. Busslinger and the overseer of the cigar department were temporarily relieved from duty and the penitentiary placed in charge of Rev. Joseph Welch, the chaplain. It is alleged that thousands of cigars made by convicts are unaccounted for, that thousands of them did not contain the internal revenue stamps and that in many instances the law requiring prison made cigars to be stamped "Convict made" was ignored. How long this has been carried on is yet to be learned. The government of the penitentiary is vested in a board of five inspectors appointed by the governor who serve without salary. This board is now making an inspection of each branch of the institution and has employed an expert accountant to go over the books. In addition to this the internal revenue officers are carrying on a separate investigation.

Dr. William D. Robinson, one of the inspectors, in speaking of the affair, said that the inspectors have not found anything that militates against the personal integrity and ability of the warden, but had found abundant evidence that the old methods so long in vogue are faulty and antiquated. Warden Busslinger has been permitted to engage an accountant to protect his interests in the matter of his accounts.

BALLPLAYER BADLY INJURED.

Missed His Hold and Was Run Over By a Street Car.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 14.—Umpire Ollie Conn, of the "Three I" league, was badly injured after the Cedar Rapids-Decatur game at Decatur Sunday evening. He was endeavoring to get on a street car, but missed his hold and was run over. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where his right arm was amputated. His left leg was badly crushed. He may not recover. His home is in Mount Zion, Ill.

First Bale of Porto Rican Cotton.

San Juan, P. R., Sept. 14.—The first bale of Porto Rican cotton exported for four decades was shipped September 9 on the Red Line steamer Caracas, consigned to a Porto Rican concern in New York.

Will Receive a Warm Welcome.

San Juan, P. R., Sept. 14.—A popular demonstration is being organized in honor of Gov. Hunt, who will return here October 1. Some of the federal leaders refuse to co-operate in the affair for political reasons.

Will Ask the President to Intercede.

Boston, Sept. 14.—At a mass meeting of Armenians from all over the United States held in this city, resolutions were adopted that President Roosevelt be petitioned to intercede to protect the lives and property of Armenian-Americans in Russia.

Longshoreman's Strike Ended.

New Orleans, Sept. 14.—The longshoremen's strike was formally settled and 16 ships will start Monday. The Morgan line dock workers are still out, the strikers having little or no chance of winning.

FLORIDA HURRICANE.

Much Damage to Shipping and Other Property Was Wrought.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 14.—Beginning Friday morning on the east coast and Saturday morning on the west and lasting 24 hours, South Florida has been swept by the strongest hurricane known in that part of the state. The wires went down at the beginning and railroad service was delayed. On that account no details reached here until Sunday. Even now they are incomplete.

At Miami the wind attained a velocity of 65 miles an hour. The car shed of the East Coast railroad was lifted from its foundations, clear of the cars that were under it, and demolished. Several small boats were sunk in the bay. Passengers on the East Coast train which arrived Sunday night report that they saw many wrecks along the shore from Miami to Hobes sound. There is one four-masted and one three-masted schooner and several smaller vessels. Their names are not known. A Standard Oil Co. steamer with two barges is on the beach near Boynton. The crew of 15 men was saved. Bodies of two unknown white men drifted on the beach near Boynton. At Stuart 15 acres of pineapple sheds were blown down. At Jupiter the wind blew 75 miles an hour with the rain falling in torrents.

Taking a day in crossing the peninsula the storm struck Tampa Saturday morning soon after attaining a velocity of 70 miles an hour and raged all day. The roofs of the Almeria and DeSoto hotels were blown off. Several cigar factories were badly damaged at Ybor City and several buildings were unroofed. In Tampa the Hampton block was unroofed and six small dwellings were blown down. No loss of life is reported. The streets are a tangle of wires. Street lines made no effort to run cars. The wires leading from Tampa in all directions are down and the city is in total darkness.

Other places on the west coast and in the interior have not been heard from and it is feared that when reports come in the damage will be vastly increased. The orange and grape fruit crops have been greatly injured.

The wires west of Madison went down at 9 o'clock Sunday night indicating that the storm is now raging in Middle Florida.

A PLANTER KILLED.

Furnifold G. Simmons Found Dead on His Plantation.

Newbern, N. C., Sept. 14.—Furnifold G. Simmons, father of Senator F. M. Simmons, was killed Saturday on his plantation a few miles from Pollocksville, Jones county. He had been missing since Saturday morning. The body was found near a river bank. Mr. Simmons had been shot several times with a shotgun. Bruises about the head indicated that he was clubbed also. Mr. Simmons was a quiet man, about 75 years old. The cause of the killing is unknown. A Negro of the name of Daniels has been arrested as the slayer. Another account from Pollocksville says that Mr. Simmons was killed by a trespasser who was squirrel hunting on his land and whom Mr. Simmons went after when he heard the shooting.

KILLED ON THE STREET.

Dr. A. R. Harmanson Shot Charles Medicis at Opelousas, La.

Opelousas, La., Sept. 14.—Dr. A. R. Harmanson shot and killed Charles Medicis Sunday morning, using a Winchester rifle. Medicis was passing on the street when the fatal shot was fired, he being unarmed. Dr. Harmanson surrendered to the sheriff. He claims that Medicis is the author of several anonymous letters attacking the reputation of members of his family. Medicis was prominent, as is Dr. Harmanson.

TUNNEL CAVED IN.

One Man Dead, Two Hurt and Ten or Twelve Missing.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 14.—By a cave in at the Green Tree tunnel of the Wabash railroad in Green Tree borough late Saturday night one man was killed, two hurt and ten or twelve laborers are missing. Fellow workmen believe the missing are buried under the ten feet of coal, slate, rock and other debris that chokes the tunnel for a distance of 55 feet.

Struck By Lightning.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 14.—The top of the massive porch at the front of the executive mansion was struck by lightning Sunday afternoon during a storm. The bolt of lightning was a terrific one, and two great balls of fire seemed to fall from the porch. Gov. Yates thought the porch had caught fire and telephoned for the fire department. The fire marshal and a part of the fire department answered the summons but could find no fire. The bolt of lightning was one of the most terrifying ever witnessed in this city.

Newspaper Man to Be Prosecuted.

Panama, Sept. 14.—Rodolfe Aguilera, the first newspaper man to publish articles in favor of the secession of the Isthmus of Panama, is to be prosecuted. It is currently reported that 2,000 federal troops are coming to the Isthmus.

Non-Union Miner Assassinated.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 14.—Charles Marsh, a non-union miner employed by the Tennessee Coal Co., at Gricesville, Tenn., was assassinated in his home Saturday night by an unknown man. The officers have no clew.

FROM ALL OVER THE STATE

"TICKIE" JIM BACK ARRESTED.

He Was One of the Alibi Witnesses in the Jett-White Trial.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 11.—"Tickie" Jim Back, one of the alibi witnesses in the trial of the commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Curtis Jett, convicted of the assassination of J. B. Marcum here three weeks ago, was brought here Thursday afternoon by Woodson McChord, sheriff of Clarke county, after arresting him at Winchester while Back was trying to get on the C. & O. train for Virginia. Back testified for the defendant Jett in that case. After coming to town McChord took him to J. I. Blanton's office and Mr. Blanton, who is one of Hargis' attorneys here, called up Judge Hargis at Jackson by telephone, but the judge could not be located. Back was placed in jail to await Hargis' answer as to whether or not he would go on his bond. McChord arrested Back without a warrant, but he had been warned by Henry Hurst, at Jackson, that Back had left that place with his little girl ostensibly to go to Paris, Ky., but at Winchester Back tried to board the train for Virginia, where he would be safe from arrest. His bond was fixed Thursday morning at $500.

Judge James H. Hargis, of Jackson, Ky., just telegraphed Attorney J. I. Blanton he would go on "Tickie" Jim Back's bond, who is now in jail here for false swearing in the case of the commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Curtis Jett and Tom White.

THE FAMOUS METEORITE.

Suit Entered in the Circuit Court For its Possession.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 14.—Suit has been instituted in the Bath county circuit court by the heirs of F. M. Ewing to recover from T. J. Pergram the famous 300-pound meteorite which was seen from Northern Ohio to New Orleans on November 15, last, and which fell on the land of the Ewing estate. J. Hugh Pergram discovered the meteorite while hunting and he dug it up. He has been offered large sums for it.

Similar suits have been tried in the United States in the last few years, the court deciding the meteorites to be the property of the landowner, while a like suit in France resulted in the aerolite becoming the property of the one finding it.

SESSION TO LAST THREE DAYS.

Supreme Lodge of Knights and Ladies of Honor in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14.—The 14th biennial session of the supreme lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, will be held in this city, beginning Tuesday, September 15. The sessions will last three days. One hundred and fifty delegates are expected to attend the meeting, at which business of more importance than has come before the body for a number of years will be transacted.

Goebel Monument Commission.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 11.—The Goebel monument commission was in session here Thursday, United States Senator McCreary presiding, for the purpose of selecting a subcommittee to go to New York to inspect the clay model of the statue of the late William Goebel, being executed by the sculptor, G. Moretti. Arthur Goebel, brother of the late governor, will head the committee.

The Kentucky War Claim.

Washington, Sept. 11.—The Kentucky war claims now before the treasury department will come up for final consideration next week. They aggregate $10,000, the principal one being for disallowed interest on the Kentucky war claim amounting to about $8,000.

Prominent Farmer Drops Dead.

Petersburg, Ky., Sept. 11.—Daniel M. Hewitt, one of the most prominent farmers in Boone county, dropped dead of heart disease at his home, near here. He was in the confederate army under Gen. John H. Morgan and was with Morgan when captured, but made his escape.

Rattlesnake in Her Bed.

Rockport, Ky., Sept. 14.—When Miss Josie Hampton retired she felt something moving in the bed. Turning on the light she saw a rattlesnake, seven feet long, crawling under the cover. She screamed, and her father, gun in hand, rushed into the room and shot the reptile.

Gets Reward For Jett's Capture.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 11.—Judge Osborne has certified to the state treasurer that Sheriff Woodson McChord, of Clark county, is entitled to the reward of $500 offered by Gov. Beckham for the arrest and conviction of the assassin of J. B. Marcum.

Charles Butler For Representative.

Bedford, Ky., Sept. 14.—The republicans of Trimble county met in mass convention here and nominated Chas. Butler for representative from the counties of Oldham and Trimble. The convention also selected delegates to the railroad convention.

Rev. W. W. Ramsey Retires.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 14.—Rev. W. W. Ramsey pastor of the Centenary Methodist church, in this city, closed his ministry Sunday night and will retire from the pulpit. He will go abroad for two or three years.

DEATH OF COL. R. T. JACOB.

He Was a Picturesque Figure During the Civil War.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14.—Col. R. T. Jacob, a picturesque figure during the civil war, died at his home in this city Sunday. Col. Jacob was 73 years old and was widely known as the man who saved Kentucky from secession and also as the captor of Gen. John Morgan.

Col. Jacob's career began with a trip across the plains in 1845. He crossed in time to join Fremont's command for service during the Mexican war. Returning to Kentucky he was elected to the legislature as a democrat. The secession question came before the legislature and Col. Jacob created surprise by refusing to vote with the Breckinridge party, his vote giving a plurality of one for the unionists against secession. When active hostilities opened Col. Jacob organized the 9th Kentucky (union) cavalry. He participated in the smashing of Morgan's raid, and it was to Col. Jacob and his command that the confederate leader and a number of his followers surrendered. Near the close of the war Col. Jacob became lieutenant governor of Kentucky.

Col. Jacob's wife, Sarah Benton, daughter of Thomas H. Benton, died many years ago.

A KENTUCKY TRAGEDY.

Jasper McComas Shot Three Men to Save His Father.

Williamstown, Ky., Sept. 12.—As the result of a feud between the Hutton and McComas families, John R. Hutton and his two sons, Samuel and Wilbur, were fatally shot about noon Friday.

The Huttons were in the village when Moses McComas and his son Jasper drove up and stopped in their buggy near Kinman's saloon. Some words were passed, when the Hutton boys drew their knives and attempted to pull old Mr. McComas out of the buggy.

Jasper opened fire on them with his revolver and all three of the Huttons were mortally wounded, two of them being shot through the abdomen and the other just below the heart.

Young McComas was met by officers while on the way to Williamstown to surrender.

HE COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Richard Oder Hanged Himself Rather Than Face Exposure.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 12.—Richard Oder, a well to do farmer, living about six miles north of here, committed suicide. His body was found hanging about 5 o'clock by some of his neighbors. Oder had been drinking hard since the death of his wife, about a year ago. The cause of the act is attributed to the fact that last week some forged notes for which Oder was responsible came to light at the Williamstown and Corinth bank.

Waylaid and Robbed.

Newport, Ky., Sept. 14.—The surgeons at Ft. Thomas dressed the wounds of an old man who resides at Coldspring, but who did not give his name. He stated that he was walking home on the Alexandria pike, when he was assaulted by two men, who beat him up and left him in a semi-conscious condition at the side of the road, after rifling his pockets.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 12.—The offerings on the tobacco breaks Friday were smaller than usual. The market was unchanged. The offerings were 250 hhds, of which 107 hhds were burley and 143 hhds dark. Burley sold from $3.35 to $13.25, and dark ranged from $3.15 to $7.70.

Mrs. Carrie Nation in Kentucky.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 14.—Mrs. Carrie Nation has arrived here on a visit to her uncle, Squire Alex Campbell, and other relatives. Her visit to Kentucky, she stated, was only a vacation, and she could not make any speeches. She goes from here to Michigan in a few days.

Horribly Mangled By Cars.

Newport, Ky., Sept. 12.—Walter Alloway, 17, was horribly mangled by a C. & O. freight train in the yards near his home Friday afternoon. He failed to notice the approach of a cut of cars on the track on which he was standing and was run down.

Dead Body Found Near the Track.

Henderson, Ky., Sept. 11.—The dead body of an unknown man was brought here Thursday, having been found a mile below this city on or near the Illinois Central tracks. He was apparently about 35 years of age, wore blue overalls and patent leather shoes.

Aged Newport Physician Dead.

Newport, Ky., Sept. 12.—Dr. F. J. Locke, one of Newport's most highly honored citizens, died Friday morning at his home, 725 Overton street, after a short illness. He was one of the oldest practicing physicians in Campbell county.

Republican Campaign Opening.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 12.—The republicans are arranging for a big crowd at the opening of the state campaign at Munfordsville Saturday. Former Gov. Simon Bolivar Buckner will preside as chairman of the meeting.

BOONE CO., RECORDER
Wednesday, - - Sept. 16, 1903.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce
JAMES W. LILLY,
of Gallatin county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District,—composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce
F. C. GREENE,
of Owen county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The Democrats of Boone County are called to meet in mass convention in Burlington, Snturday Sept. 19, at 1 o'clock, for purpose of selecting 12 delegates to attend district committee at Mt. Sterling, Monday Sept. 21, for purpose of nominating a candidate for Railroad Commissioner.

A. B. ROUSE, chairman.
Boone Co. Dem. Ex. Com.

If that blizzard that is cavoiting around in the northwest should meet with our hot wave, they would have a general mix-up.

A KANSAS Judge cured dyspepsia by going without food for thirty seven days. His funeral was attended by a large concourse of friends.

THE postoffice scandals have broken out fresh, and some of the postoffice officials who have all along been considered above a shadow of a suspicion are likely to be involved in the scandal.

IT is strange how many persons who, when Youtsey was on trial for the killing of Senator Goebel, declared their belief in his innocence, now declare they believe he is the man who fired the fatal shot.

Two of Jett's alibi witness have been indicted by the Harrison county grand jury for perjury. Judge Hargis says he will go on their bonds. Of course he will. The Judge has to stay with Jett and his accomplices in crime.

A number of farmers in the east end of Mason county and in Fleming county have been compelled to sell their surplus stock on account of a very severe drouth making water very scarce and cutting their snpply of feed short.

THE annual report of the Commissioner of Pensions shows that there are now on the rolls 996,545 pensioners. The average amount of each pension is $133. The annual amount of the Spanish War pension roll has reached $1,765,310.

AT the election held in Williamstown, last Wednesday, the town voted dry by a majority of 17. It is said the whisky men had the election called to head off a vote on the question by the entire county, and they were beaten at their own game.

THE speech made by Caleb Powers in his own behalf at his recent trial in Georgetown will be put on sale in pamphlet form. The speech is conceded to be the most convincing ever delivered in the case, as it was followed by a verdict fixing his punishment at death, whereas the previous efforts of attorneys only secured life sentences.

INDICTMENTS were returned at Cynthiana by the grand jury against A. C. Adams, George Bowlin and "ticky" James Back, the principal alibi witnesses in behalf of Curtis Jett and Thomas White. They are charged with perjury. Testimony before the grand jury was to the effect that neither of the three men was near the courthouse when Marcum was shot. Back was arrested in Clark county just as he was boarding a train for Virginia.

THE announcement of F. C. Greene, of Owenton, for Commonwealth's Attorney, was received, last week, as the RECORDER was going to press, consequently there was only time in which to refer to it. Mr. Greene is a prominent young lawyer, of Owenton, Owen county, where he stands very high both as a lawyer and a citizen. His father was the late Hon. John W. Greene, who died while serving his second term as Judge of the Circuit Court in this judical district. It is said by those who are acquainted with him that Mr. Greene is a young man of fine legal ability, conscientious and upright in the discharge of every duty, a Democrat of unquestioned record, and if elected to the office to which he aspires he will make a faithful and able prosecuting attorney.

Mr. Dennis Hanley, the Republican juryman in the Caleb Powers trial in Georgetown, is one of the substantial farmers of Bourbon and a former resident of this county, where he has many relatives and acquaintances. If the other eleven jurymen are as honorable and upright as Mr. Hanley; and that has not been questioned by any fairminded person, Powers and his attorneys can not doubt that they were fully convinced from the evidence that he is guilty, as charged, and should suffer the death penalty.—Maysville Bulletin.

AN innovation has been introduced in the discipline of the State prison in Charlestown, Mass. The Boston, Mass., correspondent for the New York World tells the story in this way: "As a relaxation from cell life and as a reward of good conduct, baseball games are being tried with satisfactory results by Warden Bridges at the state prison in Charlestown. The game gives the prisoners a beneficial change from the routine of prison discipline, diversion and fresh air. The innovation has been followed by an improvement in the discipline. The warden says the prisoners act as if permission to play ball or to see a game is the greatest boon that can be conferred upon them next to a pardon or the expiration of a sentence. The inmates have two nines, called the Resolutes and the Hustlers, and they play every fair-weather Saturday. There is room enough for 200 spectators, all prisoners, in the yard."

Chicago and Baltimore cattle exporters have become active during the last week in purchasing Kentucky beeves for export. Agents of two firms located in those cities have been in Boyle, Fayette, Woodford, Scott and Mercer counties taking all offerings at the market price and slightly better for the export trade. Contracts have been signed for deliveries during the fall months, which will amount to several thousand head, and the cattle are being concentrated at Louisville and shipped to their destination at the rate of from five to ten cars a week. The activity is the same which usually strikes the Blue Grass region this season of the year, and the farmers are poorly satisfied with the values which their herds are bringing. Kentucky beeves last year at this time were worth about 8 cents a pound in Louisville, while this year they are bringing only 5cents. Some of the best steers that can be secu red are selling around $45 against $75 last year at the same time.

It has been definitely ascertained that fishes and frogs have tuberculosis. A doctor attached to the Pasteur Institute in Paris, who believed that the tubercle bacillus existed in the fish of that country recently carried through a series of experiments with bacilli taken from affected fishes that have proved his case conclusively. The bacilli were placed in an incubator-like apparatus, a temperature of which was gradually raised until the thriving bacilli were accustomed to the greater heat, and then some of the frogs were inoculated with these artificially warmed organisms. When the frogs became diseased they were placed in the same incubator and their temperature was also gradually raised until they were living at a temperature approximate to that of a rabbit. The bacilli were taken from the frogs, some rabbits were inoculated with them, and in a short while the rabbits developed decided symptoms of tuberculosis. In the words of a local scientist, it was "a very pretty piece of work."

While it is generally admitted that a human being can be infected with tuberculosis from diseased cattle and it is probable that, given a low vitality, a man might be infected with that disease if he had eaten of the French scientist's rabbits, there is no danger of getting tuberculosis by eating fish that have this ailment. The process of cooking would destroy them, to begin with, and even in case it did not the life of the bacilli in a cold-blooded animal is so much lower than in a human being that it could not survive outside its environment.

Tubercle bacilli are found in all portions of the human body, but thus far the only part of the fishes affected is in the intestinal tract. The only native fishes believed to suffer from tuberculosis are one variety whose habits is confined to Lake Superior.

Fine Farm For Sale.

I withdraw from sale my farm of 255 acres at Hebron at the price named in a recent notice. The farm is for sale at a bargain if sold soon, but not at that price. The conditions and circumstances and opportunities existing when that offer was made, do not exist now—hence the withdrawal. This is a magnificent farm, finely located and elegantly improved. The land and improvements are all in splendid condition. This plantation and its improvements were planned, constructed, developed and finished for a superb country home, for a country gentleman, and only a man of that character can appreciate it. The whole farm is as beautiful as a city park. It is for sale at a bargain if sold soon. If not sold soon it will be for rent to good and careful men.
Sept. 7, 1903. A. G. WINSTON, Hebron, Ky.

Thousands of tons of grass, and even weeds, go to waste annually along the road side, which might be easily utilized. A farmer in a neighboring county lately made a few movable hurdles, in which he placed sheep and pastured them along the road, the farm fences forming one side of the hurdle. The hurdles were moved forward daily and the result was that the roadside was cleaned off wherever the sheep were hurdled, while quite an amount of mutton was secured at a trifling cost. It is worth practicing by others.

The world existed for several thousand years without flats, but it did not get fairly started until the babies began to make appearance.

Our eccentricities are always glaring faults when exhibited by others.

We would rather see a man riding a hobby than a man plodding.

If the prices of hogs and corn go along together it certainly now looks very much like hogs would go up in price again. This is now past August and the time for the corn plant to be concentrating all its nourishing power in filling the ears, but in fact it is still growing, and at least three weeks late. It is true that with four or five weeks of good corn weather there might be a gain, but at present a splendid nubbin crop is the promise, and therefore higher priced hogs to fatten on it. The tendency of course under such conditions is higher priced beef cattle also, for cattle are large corn consumers. But, as stated before, as corn and hogs generally keep company in price more closely, it is evident that hogs will command high prices for another year.—Indiana Farmer.

Some people waste so much time worrying over imaginary ills that they fail to enjoy real blessings.

Call for a Convention.

The Democratic Executive Committee of the Fifteenth Judicial District met at Sparta, Ky., September 8th, 1903, for the purpose of fixing time and manner of nominating Democratic candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, to be voted for at next regular November election. Present and presiding J. H. Cunningham, Chairman; R. W. Brown, of Gallatin, H. M. Froman, of Carroll, W. G. O'Hara, of Grant, A. B. Rouse, of Boone. The following resolutions were presented, considered and sections adopted as a whole.

Resolved, that for the purpose of nominating a Democratic candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney to fill vacancy caused by the death of the late Hon. Robert Wood, to be voted for at the November election, 1903. Meetings to be held in the various precincts of said district on the 10th of October, 1903, at 2 p. m. for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend a convention to be held at Walton, Boone County, Ky., on the 13th of October, 1903, at 11:30 a. m.

The number of delegates from said various precincts shall be based upon the vote cast for President at the election, 1900, each precinct to be entitled to one vote for every 100 votes and fraction of 50 and over cast at said election. That the chairman of the various precincts preside at such meetings, only until a chairman shall have been elected.

Resolved, that the chairman of the committe shall call said convention to order and preside only until a chairman shall have been elected.

Resolved, that only delegates present be allowed to vote at said convention.

Resolved, that in the organization of said convention this committee, in the event of any contest from any precinct, determine what set of delegates are allowed to vote.

Resolved, that in the absence of the chairman of this committee at said convention the secretary shall call said convention to order.

J. H. CUNNINGHAM, Chmn.
W. G. O'HARA, Sec'y

In the precinct meetings to be held under the above call in this county, the precincts having cast the following vote for President in 1900, be entitled to delegats as follows:

Base Ball.

The Boones were defeated by the Erlangers on the grounds of the latter, last Saturday, 12 to 5. Several of the Boones' regulars were absent and the line up was disabled thereby, but they do say that had each of the players put up a game equal to that played by manager Rouse at first base, they would have won hands down. The feature of the game was a tripple play pulled off by the Boones in the ninth inning.

The Woolper ball team defeated the Burlington team here last Saturday by a score 17 to 16. Woolper broke the season's record in making home runs, having four to her credit at the close of the game. Four of the Burlington players will play with Gasburg against Woolper Saturday.

The Boones and the Anchors, of Ludlow, will play ball at the park here next Saturday afternoon. The Anchors are a very strong club, and a good game will be the result of their meeting with the Boones.

The following is the line-up:

Ludlows.	Position.	Boones.
Kling	third base	Clutterbuck
Eberle	center field	Slayback
Herbert	left field	Kirk
Cowan	right field	Luck
Grieme	second base	Souther

A tremendously large crowd attended the sale of the personal estate of the late A. C. Kelly, yesterday, people being present from nearly every neighborhood in the county. At noon the crowd was refreshed with bread, meat and soup. The bidding was brisk all day. Corn in the crib brought 65 cents a bushel, cattle as high as $40 a head, and everything else sold in this proportion.

Daniel McNiel Hewitt, who departed this life on the 8th inst., of heart disease, was born January 8th, 1838. He was united in marriage on January 1st, 1867, with Miss Virginia Beemon, daughter of Sathiel Beemon. Besides his wife, eight children, four sons and four daughters, all grown, survive him. D. M. Hewitt, besides being a loving husband and indulgent father, was a man ever willing to make a personal sacrifice to assist a neighbor or friend. He served with honor during the civil war, in the Confederate army, and was very popular with his comrades. He was a member of the Universalist church at this place, and always took a prominent part in church affairs, and will be missed greatly by both his church and his neighbors.

The Greater Works of Jesus' Disciples

How His Promise Has Been Realized Through the Operation of the Holy Spirit.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.

Chicago, Sunday, Sept. 13, 1903.

Text:—"Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto My Father."—John 14:12.

STANDING on the threshold of the bitter agony of the garden, and the cruel death on the cross, and with the marvelous ministry of something over three years behind Him, Jesus utters the thrilling and startling words of our text: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto My Father." Greater works! Even the faith of Peter must have staggered at that. Even John, who understood his Lord so well, must have been perplexed and troubled. Greater works! There swiftly pass before the vision of the disciples the scenes of triumph of that ministry. The multitudes gathered in the streets of Capernaum. The sick, the crippled, the demon-possessed are brought and He "healed them every one." Again and again did they witness His hand stretched forth to heal. The company of weeping friends is gathered before the tomb of Lazarus. He has been dead three days, but Jesus bids him come forth and he obeys the summons, and the home at Bethany is changed from one of sorrow to a happy, rejoicing one. Twice they beheld the vast multitudes gathered out on the mountain side and saw the few loaves and fishes multiply under the touch of Jesus until more than 5,000 are fed and large quantities of food remain. They heard Him during those three years preaching and teaching. The truth of God was unfolded. The hypocrisies and false teachings of Scribes and Pharisees were laid bare. The seeker after truth was always satisfied, the critic was always answered. So marvelous and ideal and scriptural were the teachings that it was declared that never man spake as this man. The marvelously great works of Jesus, and yet as a parting message to His disciples He tells them that they shall be permitted to perform greater works. Greater works!

HAD we been present with that little group of disciples in that upper room on the last night before His crucifixion and heard the words of our text fall from Jesus' lips we might have been staggered by them and failed utterly to understand their meaning. Our faith would hardly have carried us to the sublime heights of Divine triumph in their fulfillment, but with 19 centuries of triumph and glory of the Gospel, with the marvelous work of the early church as related by Luke in the book of the Acts, we must exclaim: "Behold, what God hath wrought!" Read the book of Acts and you must admit that what Jesus declared should be the fruitage of His disciples' ministry was literally fulfilled in the mighty operation of the Holy Spirit through them, first at Jerusalem, then Judea and Samaria, and then to the uttermost part of the earth.

These words need no explanation except that which is furnished by the story of the growth and spread of the Gospel after the descent of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost up to the present day. Jesus meant, I believe, just what He said. His words need no interpreter except hearing ears, seeing eyes and hearts that will understand. The opening sentence of the Acts is significant. Luke is writing after the disciples have gone everywhere preaching the Word, after Paul's mighty triumphs in the Gospel in Asia and Europe, and looking back on it all and contrasting it with the results of Jesus' ministry which he recorded in one of the Gospels, he says: "The former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which He was taken up." And on that day He encouraged the disciples with this promise: "Ye shall receive power; after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

OTHE second chapter unfolds the wonderful fulfillment of that promise, when on the day of Pentecost the Holy Spirit descended and filled them so that they all began to proclaim the Gospel message. And although they were mostly uneducated Galileans, they spake in all the different tongues of the world. The multitudes were "amazed and marveled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these which speak Galileans? And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born? Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia, Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews and proselytes, Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God." Greater works, surely! And following this, after the multitudes have gathered, Peter stands up and preaches and 3,000 souls are converted, more in one day after one sermon than Jesus had been able to win during the whole three years of His ministry. But that was only the beginning. A few days afterward the healing hand of God operates through Peter and John and the lifelong cripple at the beautiful gate leaps and walks and praises God, and soon the great area of Solomon's porch is crowded with people to whom Peter at once preaches Christ Jesus and Him crucified, and 5,000 men are converted. The women are not mentioned, but if they outnumbered the men in that early day in their acceptance of the Gospel as they do to-day there must have been about 15,000 women converted, too, besides children. But leaving the women out of the reckoning and counting only the men what a tremendous ingathering! Jesus fed 5,000 men beside women and children, but Peter, through the Holy Spirit, is able to feed 5,000 men with the bread of life and win them for Christ and eternity. Greater works! Then follow the days of mighty miracles which far outnumbered those which Jesus performed.

BUT what in our thought constitutes greater works? Do we consider the miracles—the healing, the raising of the dead, the feeding of the multitudes, the nets filled with fishes—as the greatest fruits of Jesus' ministry, and must there be a larger realization of such miracles in the service and ministry of Jesus' disciples to-day in order that we may feel that Jesus' promise has been fulfilled? Is there not a tendency always to associate with the thought of greater works the healing of the sick, the giving sight to the blind, the raising of the dead? So often do we hear the mournful regret expressed that the disciples to-day have not the gift of healing so that the preaching of the Gospel might be attended by mighty works of the Spirit which would bear visible testimony to the power of God. The "greater works" has come almost to be a synonym for miracles, as though God dealing with the physical was greater than God dealing with the spiritual. As a rule I am inclined to believe that the longing and unrest for another day of miracles such as ushered in the birth of the apostolic church is rather an evidence of unbelief than of faith. It is that old weakness of the natural man which desires to see. "Seeing is believing," is the thought which unconsciously sways the heart. The healing of the sick, the raising of the dead, what glorious and indisputable testimony they would be to the world! Thus we think and reason, and almost believe that God is short-sighted and careless in not pouring out His gift of healing upon the church to-day. Greater works, or in other words, miracles.

BUT are miracles greater works? Did Jesus so consider them? Why was His heart heavy, why was He sad, when the multitude had been healed at Capernaum and the 5,000 fed in the wilderness? Was it not because there was not the greater work of the creation of a new heart through faith in Him? "Ye must be born again," was Jesus' message to Nicodemus, and the miracle of the new birth was a greater work than that of physical healing, or bringing to life again the dead body, even though the latter were more wonderful to the natural eye of man. That Jesus forgave the sins of the man sick of the palsy before He raised him up to health and strength is significant. The greatest need of that man was not a healed body for this life, although his case was so pitiable and his need so great, but it was a cleansed and redeemed soul which would live with God throughout the eternities. This Jesus gave to him first. It was a greater work. It is evident from Jesus' first words to the man—"Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee"—that the man was troubled more by his sin-sick soul than he was by his disease-racked body. Jesus saw deeper than the physical, and because the man himself realized his greater need, Jesus at once met that need and gave forgiveness and salvation. Then came the healing as a secondary work, "that ye may know that the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins." The miracles were proof of His Divinity. The continuation of the miracles through the early years of the church was for the purpose of linking the Christ before the cross with the risen and ascended Christ and establishing the Divinely-ordered way of salvation. That which Jesus began to do, His disciples continued to more gloriously and fully do after He had ascended and the Holy Spirit had descended upon them. But a greater work than the speaking with tongues was the raising from the deadness in sin to newness of life in Christ Jesus of 3,000 souls. A greater work than the healing of the lame man at the Beautiful Gate was the healing of 5,000 sin-sick souls which followed. A miracle might cause the world to pause and wonder, but a soul cleansed in Jesus' blood and given life in Him is able to set all Heaven to rejoicing. Think of it!

AND in considering the greater works which Jesus' disciples are to do in fulfillment of His promise, we must not forget that although the disciples of Christ may do greater works than their Master, yet His, and His alone, is the enabling power. "Without Me ye can do nothing," was His positive declaration uttered at the same time that He gave the promise and prophecy of our text. See how Peter on the day of Pentecost recognized this and publicly declared it. He told the multitudes that the speaking with tongues was the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecy where God declared that "in the last days I will pour out of My Spirit upon all flesh." When the impotent man was healed and the people ran together to see the wonderful thing which had happened, Peter immediately said: "Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk . . . for faith in Jesus' name hath made this man strong." The declaration in the closing verse of Mark's Gospel is significant and suggestive: "And they (the disciples) went forth, and preached everywhere, THE LORD WORKING WITH THEM AND CONFIRMING THE WORD WITH SIGNS FOLLOWING."

THE reason the disciples were to do greater works than their Master is made clear by the closing words of our text. "Because I go unto My Father." The return of Jesus to Heaven was proof of three glorious facts: Jesus' triumph; God's acceptance, and man's deliverance. Jesus triumphed over sin and death; God accepted the sacrifice of His well-beloved Son for the sin of the world, and man was delivered from the consequences of sin, being cleansed and redeemed by Jesus' blood and made acceptable to God in the righteousness of Christ. And the return of Jesus to Heaven was the reason His disciples were to be enabled to do greater works than He had performed. While here in this world in bodily form Jesus was bound by certain limitations. But His going to Heaven made it possible for God to send the Holy Spirit to be everywhere present in the hearts of the believers and to be all-powerful. If Jesus had remained in the world to carry on His work He could have been in but one place at one time, but through the Holy Spirit who is sent to represent Him in the world Jesus is able to go everywhere with His disciples preaching the Word, and bringing dead souls to life. How marvelous it all is! Greater works than Jesus could do while on earth because the channels through which He could pour His power have multiplied through the years and multitudes have been raised from death to life. Greater works! A Peter at Jerusalem; a Philip at Samaria; a Barnabas at Antioch; a Paul in Asia and Europe; a Luther in Germany; a John Knox in Scotland; a Wesley in England; a Moody in America, and within the last year the most remarkable world-wide evangelistic tour of Mr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander with their over 20,000 converts. Australia, the center of the great revival movement, was turned into one vast choir singing the Gospel hymns, and praising God for the mighty works of saving grace which were wrought on every hand. Greater works, surely!

HOW may the promise of Jesus find its realization in and through us? I believe this promise is for the Christian of to-day, for you and me. Greater works, because Jesus is in Heaven directing the greatest conflict of the ages against sin, and because the Holy Spirit is present in the world and the command to the believer is "be filled with the Spirit." All the rich, full and wonderful promises of the New Testament are for us and are to be fulfilled in us. Greater works, but perhaps not a duplication of the works of the early church, except in the winning of souls to Christ. What is there in connection with this text which troubles the Christian, and makes him question whether its promise may be realized in him? Is it not because the thought has been centered upon the material rather than the spiritual? Is it not because the Christian has come to exalt the power of God upon the physical above the power of God upon the dead and sin-blackened soul? Jesus declared to those who were seeking for a sign that no sign should be given them. And the Christians to-day who are seeking for a sign in the miraculous as a testimony to the world when no such testimony is needed will be disappointed.

THE greatest miracle is a transformed life. The greatest testimony for Christ is the life redeemed and sanctified. Instead of sighing and praying: "Lord, Lord, where are the greater works? Do something wonderful through me," we ought to rejoice in a Christ powerful to save, and pray that we might permit Him to so live in our hearts and shine forth in our lives as to win others to Him. Were we permitted to perform miracles we might draw the multitudes and impress them with our power, but it would not win them for Christ. We may have the presence of Jesus in our lives though so as to win some soul for Christ. The greatest thing in the world is not the gift of tongues or prophecy, it is not the understanding of all mysteries or the possession of all knowledge, it is not faith that could remove mountains, it is not charity which would give all earthly possessions to feed the poor, it is not martyrdom in the name of Jesus, but the greatest thing in the world is love. And the greatest work in the world is the fruit of that love, the winning of a soul for Christ. It is not miracles which the world needs to-day to draw it unto Christ, but it is the Christ lifted up in the individual lives of Christians so that the world may be drawn unto Him. Then may we realize the promise of Jesus of greater works. Have you ever led a soul to Christ? If you have you have known in the joy of that moment the greater works which Christ is performing through you. Let us be content to live in the present. Let us like true soldiers of Jesus Christ live faithfully and obey His orders implicitly, and permit Him to plan the campaign. He will make no mistakes, He will not fail you, and you in your service will be doing the greater works which will shine as stars in your crown forever and ever.

PROGRESS IN MEXICO.

New Government of the Federal District Will Include Suburban Towns.

The new administration of the federal district of Mexico, which went into effect on July 1, will make for increased efficiency and a marked improvement in the living conditions of the inhabitants of the district, particularly in the suburban towns, says Modern Mexico.

These towns, instead of being dependent purely on their local resources and the greater or less enterprise and intelligence of their annually elected municipal boards, which were often uncertain factors, will be taken directly under the wing of the federal government, whose ample means will be available for the improvements demanded by health, decency and comfort. In other words, these towns will be no longer isolated and left to prosper or decay, according to the abundance or scarcity of their own funds, but will be taken into a general system of which the capital will be the head, and, equally with the capital, they will be the object of the solicitude and liberality of the federal exchequer. There will be no atrophied members in the district community, as each will receive a generous and invigorating current of the life-fluid. In fact, the whole spirit of the law is that this district, the seat of the federal authorities, is in a special manner their concern; it is in a way their estate, so to speak, their show place, and, therefore, every part of it will be entitled to the proper care which beauty and more solid interests demand.

The law vests the administration of the federal district in three federally appointed officials, known as the governor of the district, the president of the superior board of health and the director of public works, in some cases acting together as a superior governing board, or separately, each in a clearly defined sphere of action.

The ayuntamientos, or municipal councils, cease to be governing and administering bodies, and, in fact, cease as corporations to have an independent legal existence, but on the other hand, boards of aldermen will continue to be elected in the capital and outside towns of the district, and they will constitute a popular check on the superior governing board. They will be the representatives, the guardians of the interests of their several localities, with the rights of initiative, vigilance and veto. They will be entitled to suggest measures in the interest of their constituencies; to exercise supervision over the proper carrying out of measures adopted; and to suspend public works, which they consider detrimental, by a veto which cannot be ultimately set aside except by the president of the republic, acting with the advice of his cabinet.

VICTIMS OF NIAGARA.

Pathetic Pictures of Tragedies Enacted Above the Brink of the Terrible Cataract.

The Indians held that Niagara claimed its yearly quota of victims. Even to-day, when the wind is in a certain direction and the roar of the falls has a peculiar, thunderous sound, they say, "Niagara is booming! It is calling for another victim!" And long indeed is the roll call of the lost, says Youth's Companion. All guides point out the spot where the French lady, stooping to fill her cup from the rapids, fell, and was whirled away in an instant. Nothing was seen of her but once; then for the space of a flash a hand tossed above the waves.

They show you the rock to which Avery clung for 20 hours, for half a day in view of the frantic crowd, who sent raft after raft to reach him, yet saw him swept like a weed to destruction at last.

Perhaps the most tragic story is that of the young man who was walking with his bride on Luna island. Just at the brink of the falls they stopped to greet a party of friends. The young husband, in merry mood, took in his arms a little girl of the party. Teasingly he held her out over the brink, never doubting the security of his strong grasp. The terrified child struggled and screamed, and in the struggle slipped from his arms and into that whirl of foaming water.

Overwhelmed with the awfulness of his act, and doubtless actuated by a wild thought of saving the child, the young man leaped after her to his own death, and the two were swept away before the horrified gaze of their friends.

Perhaps that bride's fate, who stood and saw this awful tragedy, was sadder than the lot of the other ill-starred bride, who went rowing in a little boat with her young husband on the river above the falls. Although warned not to venture too far, they rowed on and on over the smooth, treacherous, fair-seeming waters, till the terrible current seized their little skiff and whirled it into the rapids. The last glimpse of them showed them standing up in the rocking boat, clasped in each other's arms. The boat, bride and bridegroom were engulfed in the relentless waters.

Packing Cigars.

An improved method of packing cigars, which has for its object the means of facilitating the sending of cigars and other similar articles by automatic machinery is a long ribbon of paper which not only enables these delicate pieces to be handled by slot machines, but also offers a means of protection while in the pocket. Another feature of this invention is that it may be used as a means of preventing or detecting theft from the boxes of gentlemen who are in the habit of purchasing their cigars by the box. Under the present method of packing the cigars it is an easy matter for a servant, or other person, to abstract a cigar or two from the box, every day, without detection, but such a systematic thievery is prevented by the ribbon system, for the paper strings are so numbered that the removal of a single cigar could be detected.—Philadelphia Record.

SCANDALS NO END.

Republican Land Commission in Indian Territory Being the Strenuous.

The scandals in the interior department have led to the arrest of Benjamin H. Colbert, United States marshal for the Indian Territory. Benjamin was a member of that immortal squad, the Rough Riders, and was the orderly that attended the strenuous movements of Col. Roosevelt. The name of Colbert would possibly never have been otherwise enrolled on the scroll of fame if Col. Roosevelt had not accidentally been promoted to be president of the United States. The president has an enormous patronage to distribute and as the politicians dictate to him nearly all the appointments in the states, and as most of the appointees are notoriously unfit and many of them corrupt and incompetent, the president took the bit in his mouth when it came to making selections for the territories. He wished to give the politicians of his party an example of the class of men he would select if he were left untrampled by the republican wire pullers. To do this, President Roosevelt had to turn down Col. John S. Hammer, who was the United States marshal appointed by President McKinley, a Grand Army man, and indorsed by all the leading republicans of the territory for appointment.

But the personal selection of the president has turned out to be no better, if not worse, than those of Senators Hanna, Quay, Platt and the other republican spoilsmen, for while the majority of the appointees of those worthies have so far succeeded in keeping out of the clutches of the law, the personal appointee of the president is in limbo charged with many crimes and misdemeanors. The New York Post thus enumerates them:

"This official is accused of using his power for political purposes. Letting prisoners out of jail that they might vote was one of his pleasing pastimes; imprisoning Indians for not voting according to his wishes, was another."

But the strenuousness of Benjamin is hardly to be wondered at. His education in Cuba and the Philippines has together taught his illy balanced mind that Indians and Philipinos have no rights that a white man like Benjamin is bound to respect, and that laws are made but to be broken when it suits the whim or policy of those in authority. He had seen Col. Roosevelt and others sign a "Round Robin" in Cuba, which transgressed the articles of war and would have been followed by court-martial if the politicians who were responsible had dared to order an investigation. Gen. Alger at that time was on too thin ice to be sure of his footing, and the "round robin" was passed over with a reprimand.

"Words are good when backed by deeds and only so," and Benjamin was trying to carry out this precept of his benefactor by interpreting it to suit the strenuous times in Indian Territory. Being evidently in league with the "land ring," it was necessary to carry the election there at all cost. The bad Indians in jail he let out to vote the way he wanted them to. The good Indians, who were intent on voting to save their land, which interferred with the purposes of the land robbers to steal it, were shut up in prison to prevent them from voting.

What a distorted view of the justice of Uncle Sam the white and red inhabitants of the Indian Territory must have when the United States marshal, who is the chief of police of the territory, the friend and personal appointee of the president, does such deeds as these.

And the Dawes commission looked on with their hands folded behind them, ready to receive their share of the reward, and they still hold office by the grace of President Roosevelt. No wonder the cry goes up from the Indian Territory: Turn the rascals out.

The Veterans on Miles.

The Grand Army of the Republic shows by the following resolution adopted at San Francisco that it does not agree with the president of the United States in his estimate of Lieut. Gen. Miles:

"Resolved, That we congratulate that splendid soldier, exemplary commander and patriotic citizen, Nelson A. Miles, upon his attainment of a distinguished and honorable retirement after a matchless record as a soldier of over 42 years' service without just criticism of his official conduct, which began as a lieutenant in the Twenty-second Massachusetts infantry, progressed by the brightest grade of heroic patriotism from Manassas to Appomattox during the greatest of all civil wars, from 1861 to 1865, and illuminating this record by his military achievements as a successful Indian fighter and again as a great and judicial military disciplinarian and organizer."

"Without just criticism of his official conduct" is a diplomatic but stinging condemnation of the amazing hostility shown by the president and the secretary of war toward the most accomplished and experienced soldier now living.

It is a pity that there was any occasion for such a reflection upon the president of the United States but that there was will be admitted by most people.—Chicago Chronicle.

PROMISES AND PERFORMANCES

Results of Republican Administration Have Been Far from Satisfactory.

A recapitulation of the Roosevelt administration's course with reference to the national scandals reveals very little of creditable action in proportion to the amount of talk. A balance would show promise far outweighing performance, says the St. Louis Republic.

For the results actually accomplished nobody is disposed to withhold credit; but in number those results have been few. A handful of indictments, many of them cumulative, is the tangible showing. No prosecutions have been commenced, although the offenses are many months old. It is by no means unjust to refuse to give the administration the benefit of the doubt in the matter of delays for which there is no apparent justification. The presumption naturally arises that politics is responsible; a presumption fairly supported by the administration's manifest general policy of tact and temporization in preference to direct and prompt action and full publicity.

The administration's performances are not to be measured against mere rumor or the public's impression of the scandals' extent as gleaned from news secured independently and in its own way by the press. The publicity given to the scandals has been accidental or incidental, and although the information has been the best obtainable, it has doubtless in some cases been unreliable. Rumor has probably added thereto in some instances—nevertheless it should be observed in passing that the extent of the scandals as revealed by the press has not been denied by the administration, which fact warrants the inference that it has not been exaggerated.

In judging of the scandal's extent, and judging the administration with reference thereto, the people need not go beyond the administration's own announcements and promises. These indicate the breadth of the field and the amount of work to be done. Thus far, certainly, the results have not given satisfaction. Proceeding at the present rate of investigation, indictment and prosecution, the Roosevelt stewardship cannot reasonably hope to accomplish the thoroughgoing cleaning up of the various departments into which corruption has been actually traced. To all appearances a prodigious change must take place in the plan of treatment, and a vigorous bare hand must be shown if the administration within the time remaining would satisfy the people's reasonable expectations based on its own promises.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——Ex-Senator Hill was obviously correct when he said at Niagara that with a surplus revenue, the imperative duty of congress was to reduce taxation instead of trying to find ways of getting the money back to the people through the banks. The policy of public deposits is a proper palliative for a bad situation; it is a good remedy for an emergency; but there is now a prospect of years of surplus revenue, and the first duty of congress is to cut the taxes down to the necessities. —Philadelphia Record (Ind.).

——The Providence Journal, an independent republican paper, does not think well of some of Mr. Roosevelt's alliances. "It is not reassuring," it says, "to those who wish to think well of the president to find the Quay men and the Addicks men still persisting that he is on their side, and will give them valuable support when the time comes. Mr. Roosevelt, the reformer, cannot afford in this case to be known by the company he keeps."—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

——With grafting in Wall street, grafting among the captains of industry and finance, grafting by all sorts of combinations formed to mulct the consumer, and with the countenance which the government lends to grafting through the system of protection, there is no cause for surprise in the reports of robbery among the Indians in the territory. If it is the lack of opportunity to steal that is to make men honest, the heads of the interior department should see to it that such restrictions shall be imposed among a people who are so poorly fitted to protect themselves as the Indians. There should be some semblance of honor even among thieves.—Kansas City Star.

——When a republican politician pays his own way to Oyster Bay to see the president it is called a secret visit. —N. Y. World.

——President Roosevelt's injunction to "dig deep" into the post office frauds is all right, but he ought also to instruct the investigators to "look higher up."—N. Y. World.

——Graft in the post office department; graft in the army contract department; graft in the public land department—graft, graft, graft. And the grafts will continue until an aroused people overthrow the grafters. —The Commoner.

AN ORNAMENTAL GROUP.

Improved Appearance of Lawn Trees Caused by Cutting Back in a Proper Way.

One o fthe most striking objects in ornamental planting on our lawns for a dozen years or more has been a group of nine specimens of Prunus Pissardi (purple leaved plum) surrounded by a ring of variegated leaved Cornelian cherry (Cornus mas var). The Pissardi plums were planted within a circle about three feet apart from one another; the Cornelian cherries a little closer together, the 16 specimens completely surrounding the others. Every visitor for years has admired this group, with its striking contrast of color in foliage, that of the Cornelian cherry appearing almost white against the deep purple of the central group. Finally, however, the plum trees got large, running up high and threatening to choke out the Cornelian cherries (which, in their variegated form, are rather delicate, anyway), the whole group appearing out of proportion to the size of the surrounding lawn. Figure 1 gives a cross section of the group at this time. Something had to be done, and as the San Jose scale had secured a foothold in the plums I at one time even began to think of cutting the entire group down. I had not yet seen Volume III. of the Cyclopedia of American Horticulture (L. H. Bailey), which, on page 1,447, says of the Prunus Pissardi: "The best color is secured on the strong growths; therefore, it is well to head back the tree frequently;" but it occurred to me that the only thing to do, both to get the group reduced to proper limits as to size and to get rid of the scale, was to cut the plums down to stubs, and this was done one spring, the stubs themselves being afterward treated to a thorough wash with hot whale oil soapsuds to make sure work of the scale. A neighbor happened to pass the grounds shortly afterward and remarked that if it were his property $50 would not have tempted him to indulge in such a piece of vandalism. I simply told him to wait a year or two and see. At present he has nothing to say when he goes through the grounds. He admires the group more than ever, for now the trees appear as shown in cross section in Figure 2. The purple of the plum leaves is even deeper and frasher than before. The Cornelian cherries have taken a new lease of life, and their foliage looks bright and healthy. The San Jose scale, the existence of which my neighbor, of course, had no knowledge, is entirely cleaned out, and we have saved one of the most ornamental features of the premises. Possibly in a very few years we may have to repeat the operation of heading back—how severe, the future alone can tell. We will be guided by the conditions then existing.—T. Greiner, in N. Y. Tribune-Farmer.

AFTER TRIMMING.

A WATERCRESS FARM.

An Interesting Industry Which Has Assumed Considerable Proportions in the East.

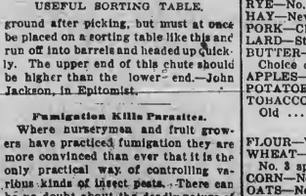
The cress is planted in the mud of a series of shallow canals over which clear water is continually flowing. Great care is taken to keep the entire patch clean and free from weeds. Three or four narrow paths run the entire length of the patch, which is perhaps 200 yards long. Between the paths is a still narrower footpath of planks resting on piles sunk in the mud, these again being crossed at right angles by similar wooden bridges; the whole having the appearance of a huge chess board with dark green squares where the cress is ready to cut, a lighter shade where it is growing and a pale green where the crop has just been gathered. The cress takes from ten to 14 days to come to perfection, cold weather delaying its growth. When the crop is ready, a plank is placed across the bed, one end resting on the path and the other on the wooden bridge. On this the gardener kneels, his knees and shins protected by thick pads, while, with an ordinary table knife, which he uses like a sickle, he lops off the cress in handfuls, which he places heads down in the water to keep fresh. This plank is moved forward a foot or so at a time till the square is entirely gathered.—E. M. Hess, in Epitomist.

THE FARM WOODLOT.

It Has Been Neglected Altogether Too Long and a New Leaf Should Be Turned Over.

I think it may safely be said that the farmer's woodlot or bush receives less care and attention than any other part of the farm at all. The attention it generally receives is the destructive blows of the axe in winter, and the no less harmful browsing of stock in summer. Under this treatment the wood is constantly decreasing in quantity and value, and the land lies as an unprofitable, stumpy waste, which is neither wood nor pasture, or is turned into cultivation, for which, being generally poor land, it is little fitted. Doubtless this unproductiveness of the woodlot is due to the fact that farmers generally do not consider the bush capable of any systematic management or regular cropping, or at all capable of repaying any labor expended upon it. As farmers we are apt to consider bush land as something to be cleaned up, and not to be perpetuated, or as a gift of nature for our own special benefit and one that cannot be renewed. The time it takes for a seedling tree to become of marketable value is not so long as is usually supposed. Of course, if we had to begin on a bare field to raise timber it would be a somewhat different matter. But in the ordinary woodlot we find trees of 10, 20, 30, 50 or even 70 or 100 years of growth. Nature, if left to herself, will gradually change a scanty coppice into a forest of value, but at best her methods in forestry are slow and somewhat irregular. However, by careful thought and practical management nature may be so assisted that the woodlot may be made to supply not only all present needs for fuel, but to give regular crops of merchantable timber, and to be year after year increasing in permanent value. —Wm. W. Hutt, before Ontario Farmers' Institute.

LESSON IN PHYSICS.



Why Heating Frames and Hothouses Remain Hot on the Inside for a Long Time.

"It is very curious," said the old professor of physics, "to see how many market gardeners there are to raise things under glass, make money out of the process, and yet do not know why their heating frames and their hothouses remain hot inside. Now, as a matter of fact, the heat mechanism of a hothouse depends on a well-known proposition of physics. I suppose you are acquainted with the fact that the energy from the sun travels in the form of little waves. The energy doesn't come down to us in straight lines; it comes, as it were, in a zigzag manner, dancing from side to side as it comes along. If these waves are very short, light is the result; if they are a trifle longer, they take the form of heat. If the light waves strike anything on the way down they are very apt to be turned into heat. Now, the waves which form light are so short that they will readily pass through glass, but the waves which form heat are so long that they will not pass through. From this, therefore, you may see why a hothouse remains hot. The energy from the sun passes into the house through the glass roof in the form of light. Then it strikes the objects in the house and is turned to heat. But this heat cannot pass out through the glass. The heat waves are too long. So the light keeps coming in, and the heat keeps accumulating, and soon the hothouse becomes very warm indeed, even on the coldest days in winter."—Rural World.

ground after picking, but must at once be placed on a sorting table like this and run off into barrels and headed up quickly. The upper end of this chute should be higher than the lower end.—John Jackson, in Epitomist.

Fumigation Kills Parasites.

Where nurserymen and fruit growers have practiced fumigation they are more convinced than ever that it is the only practical way of controlling various kinds of insect pests. There can be no doubt about the deadly nature of the gas, and no animal life can possibly live through it where it is properly generated and handled. Plant lice or aphis cannot withstand the fumes of this gas, and are quickly destroyed. The gas does not affect insect eggs, but there is no opportunity for the living to escape where it is generated.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Plant a Few Chestnuts.

We realize that it is difficult to grow chestnuts in all situations. The tree seems to be one that will do well only where given proper conditions of soil and moisture supply. Yet there are certainly many waste places where chestnut trees might be successfully grown. The nuts would prove quite a valuable annual receipt while the main harvest of timber was being waited for. He who plants these trees plants for his children unless he himself is a very young man, but most men desire to do something of the kind.—Farmers' Review.

BUGLE CALLS.

The Chinese government has commenced to send cadets to Germany, instead of, as heretofore, to the military schools of Japan.

The French minister of war has made arrangements for a number of reading rooms for the use of the French soldiers; they are to be supplied with games as well as with newspapers and books. Some doubts are expressed as to whether the soldiers will make use of their opportunities, in view of the fact that the English soldiers, with similar advantages, seem to prefer to visit their sweethearts or spend their time in taverns.

President Diaz of Mexico has immense admiration for that hard-riding, straight-shooting and splendidly trained corps of cavalry, the rurals, and often declares that should occasion arise they would win the admiration of the world. The fighting force of this sister republic is not generally known. The peace strength is 40,000 men; at two weeks' notice 50,000 more, all well-trained, are available, and about 100,000 in addition could be put in the field in another month.

Col. Mills, superintendent of the West Point Academy, has a reputation for sternness. A subordinate off on a furlough sent him this dispatch: "Will not report today, as expected, account unavoidable circumstances." The tone of the message was not at all to Col. Mills' mind, and he wired at once in reply: "Report as expected or give reasons." Within an hour the following message came over the wires dated from a hospital in New York: "Train off—can't ride; legs off—can't walk. Will not report unless you insist." The colonel did not insist.

PULPIT AND PEW.

Dubuque is the strongest Catholic city in the west, 52 per cent. of the population belonging to that faith. There are seven parochial schools, attended by 16,424 children, and 19,655 young people are under the care of the church.

The late Cardinal Vaughan was probably the handsomest and most distinguished looking of the Roman ecclesiastical hierarchy. Just as Cardinal Manning looked the learned ascetic, so Vaughan looked a true Roman prince of the church. But he was most simple in his tastes and habits. Several times Roman Catholic ladies presented him with costly robes, and on one occasion they presented him with a carriage. But they found that he soon sold their gifts and spent the money in charity. They therefore at last "lent" him robes and a carriage, in order to oblige him to retain them.

Interesting and unusual as an evening service was the one recently held at the Bethany Presbyterian church of New York, when Walter M. Chandler, of the New York bar, delivered his lecture on "The Trial of Jesus from a Lawyer's Standpoint." This lecture, while reverent and devout in its character, is a strong presentation of the totally illegal nature of that trial. Mr. Chandler tells in brief and pointed fashion just what was the Jewish law about such trials and shows that almost every step taken at that time was a violation of that law. From the Roman standpoint the arraignment before Herod and Pilate could not be designated as trials at all.

THINGS NOT TO DO.

To contradict your friends when they are speaking.

To say smart things which may hurt one's feelings.

It is bad to make remarks about the food at dinner.

To tell about things which only interest yourself.

FEARED A SEPARATION.

The Dear Little Lamb Was Afraid Her Father Might Be Put with the Goats.

Her father had read her the parable of the sheep and the goats at the day of judgment. She made no comment, but that night a sound of weeping came from her room. Her mother went as consoler, relates Brooklyn Life.

"Why are you crying, dear?"

"About the goats! Oh, I'm so afraid I'm a goat!"

"Why, no, dearie, you are a sweet little lamb, and if you should die to-night you would go straight to Heaven." With this and like assurances she was finally pacified.

The next night the same performance was repeated, and again her mother inquired the reason.

"It's the goats! I'm afraid about the goats!"

"Didn't I tell you, dear, that you were a little lamb?"

"Oh," she sobbed, "I'm not crying about myself, but I'm 'fraid you may be a goat!"

THE SELF-MADE MAN.

Not Always a Finished Product, But There Are Some Afflictions He Escapes.

Now and then we encounter a natural-born ice man, says Puck.

Some men always seem so very new, and others so very parvenu.

The self-made man is often a very good sort—when he's finished.

He rarely has the gout, but he sometimes suffers from over exertion of the egotism.

Somehow, the ears of the self-made man often have the look of having been stolen from a grab-bag.

The self-made man escaped one great affliction. He didn't have a baccalaureate sermon preached at him.

And, oh! if he could only remember that there are always others just as insignificant as himself.

We occasionally see an architect of his own fortune who seems to have mislaid the blue-print when he was about half-way through.

An Ice Cream Idyl.

Gentle reader, didst thou ever order one plate of ice cream with two spoons? Honest, now, in the dear old days when you were young and there was only one girl in all the world, and she had a round face like the full moon and as full of freckles as the skin of a brook trout? Did you, now? Come, own up! It was down in the little ice cream shop, the only one in the village, and you were dreadfully angry when the lady who waited on you smiled, as you thought. You would have been glad to get along with one spoon and take turns in licking, but you were too bashful for that. Still, you used to snare licks when you thought the smiling lady was not looking, and love went with them, and the ice cream was twice as sweet and flavorsome. What! You never did? (You really never did? Well, then, son, you have never known what Heaven on earth is. Your education has been neglected.—N. Y. News.

A Boy's Victory.

Crossroads, Tenn., Sept. 14.—Orbra Young, the ten-year-old son of Lawson Young, of this place, is a bright boy, and one who is very well liked by all who know him.

For some years Orbra has suffered a great deal with a form of Kidney Trouble which was very annoying, and which made him miserable all the time. He had to get up three or four times every night, almost all his life.

His father heard of a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought some for the little fellow with the result that he is now completely cured of the old trouble. He says:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills soon gave me great relief, and now I can sleep all night without having to get up. We will always praise Dodd's Kidney Pills."

There are many children suffering from Kidney and Urinary troubles. These disorders should be promptly corrected. Dodd's Kidney Pills, is a safe and sure remedy for all such derangements.

Master Orbra Young conquered his troubles and made a well boy of himself by using Dodd's Kidney Pills, and any one may do the same by the same means.

Parents should see to it that their children are given a fair chance in life, and there is nothing that can undermine the health of a growing child as much as Kidney and Urinary derangements.

Growth.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Ashtabula (O.) Record-Herald, gives prominence on its editorial page to this important item: "Miss Carrie George has had her limb amputated for the third time. She is in the hospital and is getting along nicely."—Growing country, Ohio.—Rochester Post-Express.

FALL KIDNEY CHILLS.

With the chilling air of fall comes an extra tax on weak kidneys.—It's the time Doan's Kidney Pills are needed—now recognized the world over as the chief Kidney and Bladder remedy.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back, and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs and dropsy signs vanish. They correct urine with brick dust sediment, high colored, pain in passing, dribbling, frequency, bed wetting. Doan's Kidney Pills remove calculi and gravel. Relieve heart palpitation, sleeplessness, headache, nervousness, dizziness.

DECATUR, IND.—"It was called rheumatism. I could get no relief from the doctors. I began to improve on taking Doan's sample, and got two boxes at our druggists, and, although 69 years of age, I am almost a new man. I was troubled a good deal with my water—had to get up four and five times a night. That trouble is over with and once more I can rest the night through. My backache is all gone. I thank you ever so much for the wonderful medicine, Doan's Kidney Pills."

THE HARVEST HOME

A Beautiful Day—A Large Crowd, and a Fine Show.

THE LIST OF AWARDS.

The Harvest Home people had everything their own way, last Saturday, the nice rain the day before putting the ground in a most excellent condition for the comfort of those who attended.

Early Saturday morning the Harvest Home grounds presented a lively appearance, and before the sun was many hours high, people were arriving from every neighborhood in the county, many bringing exhibits. By noon the crowd was estimated at 2000 and still they came. By one o'clock everything was ready for exhibition and judges had been selected for the different departments. The show outside of the livestock was a little short in some particulars, but taken as a whole it was fine and up to the average.

The colt show was first class. Two bands made music, one on the pavilion for the dancers, the other in the ring where the stock was showed.

Charles Clore, of Hebron, had charge of the refreshment stand, and did a profitable business.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the 2-year old child of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 N. Tenth St., Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble, and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which settled her stomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permanent cure and she is now well and strong. For sale by all Druggists.

The Owingsville Messenger says that two young ladies near that town each raise every year a good crop of tobacco and other salable farm products. These crops are the average size that men raise and these young women do all the work from planting the seed to loading the crops on the wagon for market. These young women do not have to do this work as they could live comfortably at home without it. They do the work for the pleasure of having a bank account and the glorious privilege of being independent.

The report of the International Apple Association, based on a comparison of the crop of 1902, shows great gains in Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Nova Scotia, while the Indiana crop is poor. The figures of the report show that Ohio gained 10 per cent this year, West Virginia and Virginia 250 per cent each, while other parts of the country show a corresponding increase of the crop over last year. Commission men are free in their predictions that apples will be cheaper and better this year than perhaps at any time.

One of the largest sales of cattle which hastaken place in this vicinity in many months was consummated when Mr. Simon Weil the well known cattle dealer of this city, conveyed to Lehman Bros., of Baltimore, Md., 600 beef cattle for the immense sum of $40,000.

Mr. Weil is well known as one of the most extensive cattle dealers in the South, but this sale is the largest he has negotiated for long time.

He will ship the 600 head to Baltimore on a special train.

Of this vast number of beeves he obtained 404 from Mr. J. H. Graves, of Chilesburg, for which he paid $30,000. The remainder of the lot were picked up over the state at various small sales.—Lexington Democrat.

Last year there was in operation in the San Fernando Valley of California the largest combined harvester in the world. It consisted of a traction engine capable of hauling seven-tyfive tons and which takes the place of sixty horses; a header or mowing machine which cuts a thirty-six-foot swath, and a complete threshing machine. The header and threshing machine are run by a separate thirty-horse-power engine getting its steam from the same boiler as the threshing engine. The drive wheels of this monster traction engine are eight feet in diameter, with tires forty-eight inches wide on which are ridges an inch and a half high. It can average three and a half miles an hour in good grain. The thresher has a capacity of 100 acres a day. Eight men are employed on the thresher. The grain is threshed clean and finally carried to a bin from which it is sacked. When twelve sacks have been filled they are allowed to slide off the cart to the ground. This huge machine will work equally well on level or hilly country, having sufficient power to take a 10 per cent, grade without difficulty. It is sixty-six feet long, halt as wide and wheighs more than 100 tons. Oil is used as fuel. This harvester has been succesfully ussd for shelling peas and beans as well as grain. It is purely a California production.—(W. B. Thornton in the August World's Work.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1903. NO. 49

County Correspondence.

RABBIT HASH.

J. W. Duncan, of Burlington, was here on business, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clore are visiting relatives in Indianapolis.

Henry Clore will house a fine and large crop of tobacco. If he can only stand Jack off for a short time.

The meeting at East Bend Baptist church, conducted by Revs. Adams and Atwood, closed with five additions.

Quit Wilson, of Bloomington, Ill., is visiting here, accompanied by his daughter, and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Yoch.

R. M. Wilson and wife have received cards to the wedding of Miss Helen McKay, of West Virginia, to a Mr. Lawson, same state.

Our public school is progressing nicely under charge of Miss Lolia Ward. The teachers are invited to attend the Dist. Association here September 26.

A. C. Kelly's sale was well attended and most everything sold high—corn, 65c; cattle, 4c or more and horses at a price that would satisfy most anyone.

Miss Jennie Riggs was given a surprise party in honor of her 16th birthday, Sept. 17. Icecream and cake were served, and it is said they had some sleet.

Rabbit Hash is now connected with the long distance telephone. Brother editor, so don't forget that we still exist, and when we get rural delivery and our roads piked, come down.

COMMISSARY.

Mrs. J. J. Lillard called on Mrs. Hunt Wednesday afternoon.

Doc French and O. P. Kennett, of French, Ind., attended the Kelly sale last Tuesday.

Tom Marshall returned from a visit to his daughter at Florence, Ind., the first of this week.

Miss Mary Gaines, of the Idlewild neighborhood, began teaching our school last Monday.

Mrs. Sally Popham, of South Hogan, Ind., visited her son, Columbus, from Monday until Saturday.

Miss Coey McGuyre, who has been on a visit here since the fair, returned Tuesday to her home at Stewartsville.

Desiring to spend the remainder of his days on a farm, James Louden offers for sale his ferry, two horses, and two houses and lots in McVille. The boat is as good as new; new power having been put in last summer, and is in good running order. The McVille ferry is one of the best ferries between Patriot, Indiana, and Constance. Terms reasonable. Call on, or address James Louden, Grant Ky.

Since our last report, we have sold copies of the illustrated edition as follows: Ed Burres, 2; Clyde Berkshire, 1; Doc French, 1; Jacob Anderson, 1 Frank Cantwell, 1, Joe McCreary, 1, making 35 copies we have sold. All the above named men are Indiana, except the two first named. Mr. Anderson's wife is afflicted with asthma and he decided to try Elixir of life, and we sold him a 6 months' trial package. When this remedy is once introduced in a family, it is there to stay. These copies were sold while on a recent outing over in Hoosier, in the vicinity of Salem church. The country over there is very hilly. What they call hills we call mountains here. It is so hilly they have to climb a ladder, to get down in the cellar, and look up the chimney to see if the eggs are missing hens. When the young men call on their best girls, they wear patent half soles on the seat of their trousers, and carry a pair of climbers.

WALTON.

Born—To Herbert Glenn and wife, last Thursday, a 9-lb. boy. What a comfort he may prove to his grandfather in his old age, who can whisper in his ear the well known greeting, "A fine day," in even the most inclement weather.

Candidates have been berzing around Walton during the week past with little or no effect. The struggle appears to be for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney. The present incumbent has a host of friends in this locality, and they will stand by him to the last. Frank Gaines created a ripple of excitement, and is a mighty young man who may climb his competitors a heel or run them down and beat them. The people here are not too well satisfied with the candidates as they have appeared unto them that are offered from the other counties. The business of the Circuit Court has been conducted in such a manner that the people looked for the other counties to offer them men of ability and high legal standard to vote for. The Boone County Court has been brought into prominence by the legal ability of its presiding officer who has had the support and assistance of an able and legal recording Commonwealth's Attorney. We are asked to make a change in the latter office without knowing anything of their capacity for the discharge of its duties or the extent of their legal lore. Shall we do it?

One of our young men filled with bad whiskey drew a revolver on a threatening manner and was arrested by Deputy Marshal Crisler. His name is not given because he has been so good a son to his good old mother. Our citizens are all sorry for him.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such in brief was the condition of an old mother by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years she was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctor nor medicine gave her relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies: "I am on the road to complete recovery." Sold on earth by Riddle and Love's Pharmacies and all Series of Stomach and Liver Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed to cure.

HATHAWAY.

Sept. 21.—Farmers are busy sowing wheat.

John D. McNeely has for sale two fresh milch cows.

Frost was seen here a couple of mornings last week.

Some of the farmers in this vicinity have been cutting their corn.

H. O. Adams and wife spent Sunday with Sidney Clements and wife.

T. J. Stephens took his horse to the city one day last week to sell at a fancy price.

Mrs. Emily Presser, of Walton, has been spending several days the past week with her son here.

Mrs. Josie Riley, of near the Grange Hall, spent several days last week visiting her parents on Gunpowder.

The Walton 2nd nine can have a game Saturday, Sept. 26. Address Capt. of Richwood B. B. Club.

E. L. Glacken left, Saturday, for Columbus, Ohio, where he will take a course at the Veterinary College.

William Carpenter lost a fine female pointer. He traced her to Florence. Any information will be gladly received.

Galloway has a large force of men working on James Dobbins' house and barn, and hopes to complete both in a few weeks.

We are sorry our bank building did not have an upper story for town hall and other things needed in an up-to-date town.

Some months ago the railroad fenced in the right of way. Now safety gates are needed at public crossings. A few days ago Jasper Boothe and his mother had a narrow escape here and in checking his horse suddenly to avoid being run over Mrs. Boothe was thrown out and hurt.

From reports there are two teachers left to supply 12 vacant schools, and from personal knowledge one of them has refused a school to seek other employment, and thus 12 schools will be teacherless, unless we all go in cohoots and get telephone connection and get this solitary madam or master to teach by telephone our 12 schools, thus untieing the teacher to 12 public moneys, about what one school is worth. The trustees of one school near this city, secured a teacher, he reflected, became defected and elected to go elsewhere. We sent for another, from another county willing and ready to be examined in all branches, but the law read no and Sup't. Snyder could not override the law even to please a suffering people, and we must either send our children miles to school over our beautiful mud pike this winter or move to where we can secure an education, for which our taxes are supposed to be paid. Our road and school laws are a hard problem, but it must and will be solved sooner or later or Boone will be an eyesore.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substances and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all Druggists.

He Shot to Hit.

About 8 p. m., last Saturday the citizens of the town were startled by the loud report of a gun near the center of town. An investigation soon developed the fact that J. F. Blyth had sent a load of shot in pursuit of a colored man whom Mrs. Blyth had discovered prowling about their premises, and had Mr. Blyth not fumbled the shell when attempting to put it in his gun, there is no doubt but what Burlington would now have one less colored citizen. The fellow was seen running and jumping fences in his flight, and it is said he traveled with the speed of a meteor. Mrs. Blyth is confident that she recognized the man, and others say they recognized him when he was going at the top of his speed and expecting every second to have his back filled with shot.

Another Old Citizen Passes Away.

Mr. Michael Clore, after several days' suffering, died at the home of his daughter-in law, Mrs. Belle Clore, near Bellevue, at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Clore was one of the county's oldest and most respected citizens, being 84 years old since the 5th of this month. He was born and raised in this county in what is known as the Waterloo neighborhood, and was a son of Gideon and Josie Clore, who raised a family of one daughter, Mrs. H. P. Marshall, and seven sons, Leonard, Churchill, Gabriel, Jonas, John, Michael, and Noah, the latter being the only survivor of the family and now in his 87th year, and a resident of Florence this county.

Michael Clore was married to Miss Miuerva Reed, of Bellevue. To them were boru one daughter, Mrs. James M. Conner, of Cincinnuati, and two sons, Thomas and Robert Clore, the latter having died about one year ago.

Mr. Clore spent his long life in a few miles of his birth place, and by industry and good management he amassed a considerable portion of this world's goods, and until a few years ago owned a fine river bottom farm of several hundred acres adjoining the town of Bellevue. After the death of his wife, on September 14, 1899 and because of declining health, Mr. Clore sold his fine farm and made his home with his children. He was an unassuming gentleman of the old school, and considered one of the best and most successful farmers of his day. He lived to see the country which, in his youthful days, was almost an unbroken forest, cleared and numerous nice farms and comfortable homes carved out of the wilds which were abiding places of all kinds of game in pioneer days. So many changes had come over the face of the country since his boyhood that he could scarcely recognize it as the same in which he spent so joyously the days of his youth.

The burial took place in the new cemetery at Bellevue today at 10:30 o'clock.

This office has priluted a supply of counter stationery for the Richwood Deposit Bank, which will begin business about the first of next month.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the 2-year old child of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 N. Tenth St., Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble, and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which quieted her stomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permanent cure and she is now well and strong. For sale by all Druggists.

It is claimed by some that there will not be a finer 1903 crop of tobacco in Boone county than that raised by Jno. Jones, of Idlewild neighborhood. He cut it early and got it in the house in excellent condition, and he is a very careful handler all the time. The crop was raised on sod land, which was broken and planted early.

SALVATION ARMY CAVALRY.

Col. Holz's Command Starts For Magoffin County, Kentucky.

Jackson, Ky., Sept. 17.—The marching and exercises of the Salvation army that is touring the feudal district brought a very large crowd from the mountains to this city Wednesday. The parade and services here Tuesday night attracted large crowds, but it was not until Wednesday that the rural districts turned out on horseback, in ox carts and all sorts of vehicles, many also walking great distances. The meetings here are so successful that Col. Holz has decided to omit Hindman and Hazard from the itinerary and remain here over Thursday. The horseback ride of 35 miles over the mountains with a local guide to Salyersville will be made Friday, and continued thence for three weeks organizing local detachments of the Salvation army at different points. The religious services as well as the instrumental and vocal music commands close and respectful attention everywhere.

Jackson, Ky., Sept. 19.—Col. Richard Holz, in command of perhaps the first Salvation cavalry in the country, left here Friday for Magoffin county. The members of the Salvation army are unused to horseback riding and furnished amusement to the natives. The difficulty resulted in securing mounts, as horses are scarce in this section. The mountaineers feel kindly toward the Salvationists and listened to them with marked attention. Col. Holz expects to reconnoiter with his party and if the prospects are sufficiently inviting will establish a permanent location in the mountains. He said: "I find the mountain people have been greatly misrepresented in point of intelligence and morals. So far as I have been able to determine no section where more native intelligence prevails, and with proper advantages and inducements they will rival any section. Can't say yet what effect we will have on feuds and feudists."

ALLEGED IMPOSTOR ARRESTED.

Boston Jewelers Believe They Have Escaped Considerable Loss.

Boston, Sept. 19.—By the arrest Friday on suspicion of a man who at first called himself H. Cohen, of Canton, O., but who later said he was a resident of Columbus, O., several jewelry firms in Boston believe they have escaped a considerable loss at the hands of a clever impostor. Cohen bought considerable jewelry from several firms, giving drafts on the City bank at Columbus, O., and ordering that the goods be shipped to Canton, O. At one store, however, where he had already placed an order, he bought a second lot, of which he desired immediate possession. This aroused suspicion and the head of the firm communicated with Canton. He learned that there was a reputable merchant in that city of the name of H. Cohen and from him a reply was received that if any person was purchasing goods in Boston in his name, the man was an impostor.

TUESDAY'S STORM.

Estimated That 125 Lives Were Lost on the Atlantic Coast.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 19.—Capt. Bussels, of the Atlantic Fishing Co., at Cape Charles, Va., who brought safely into port the fishing steamer Atlantic, said Friday that there can not be any doubt that the Atlantic's sister ship Beatrice, foundered during the recent storm, going down with all hands aboard. The Beatrice carried a crew of 30 men. Capt. Bussels says he does not believe that the fishing steamer Swan, of Harborton, Va., foundered in the storm and expresses the opinion that the Swan has by this time made harbor.

Marine men estimate that as many as 125 lives were lost at sea along the coast in Tuesday night's gale, which was unquestionably the worst storm in the memory of present Atlantic coast navigators.

A DETECTIVE'S WORK.

Fatally Wounded Three Men and Killed Himself.

The Tragedy Was the Result of a Long Existing Quarrel and Was Witnessed By at Least 100 People.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 19.—After shooting and probably fatally wounding Chief of Police Fred Heuke and Capt. Brennecke, of the police department, and seriously injuring Frank Lutz, a councilman of Booneville, Ind., Detective Thomas Hutchens Friday night sent a bullet through his brain. He died instantly.

The tragedy was the result of a long existing quarrel between Brennecke and Hutchens. The cause is not known. The shooting occurred at the Tri-State fair grounds Friday night. At least 100 people were in the tent where the shooting was done. Neither Chief Heuke nor Capt. Brennecke had opportunity to defend themselves. Five minutes before the shooting Detective Hutchens, in conversation with Patrolman Crow and Fireman Heberer, made the remark with an oath that there were two men he intended to get even with.

Patrolman Crow was sitting at a table near the entrance of the German village with Hutchens when Chief Heuke and Capt. Brennecke entered. He jumped to his feet and started for the detective as soon as the first shot was fired.

He did not reach him, however, until both the chief and the captain had been struck. Hutchens then threw the gun over his shoulder and fired the shot that struck Lutz. Whether he intended the shot for Heuke or Patrolman Crow is not known. Both men were in the line of fire and it is probable he intended to kill Crow for attempting to interfere. After he had fired four shots Hutchens walked outside the tents, and saying, "No man will ever live to se me tried," placed the revolver to his right temple and sent his last bullet into his brain.

Capt. Brennecke reeled backward and staggered along the side of the tent and fell. Without moving out of his tracks Hutchens sent another bullet after him which struck him on the left arm. Just as Brennecke fell Chief Heuke sprang toward Hutchens, who leveled his revolver and sent a bullet into his right breast. The chief staggered toward the rear of the tent and fell. The fourth shot fired, either at him or Patrolman Crow, struck Lutz, who was sitting at a table a few feet from where the chief had fallen.

The hundred or more people in the tent had rushed from the tent before the last shot was fired. In the panic they broke through the sidewalls or took refuge behind the bar.

Six years ago Hutchens shot at Brennecke in a saloon but the bullet lodged in the ceiling. It is believed that the conviction Friday afternoon of William Trimble, one of the men who took part in the riots of July 5 and 6, had something to do with hastening the tragedy.

Capt. Brennecke has been one of the most active workers for the state and it is said that his activity against the rioters increased Hutchens' animosity. It is not known that the men had any trouble Friday. They were seen together several times and from all appearances were on good terms.

Capt. Brennecke is still unconscious. Frank Lutz is shot through the right lung. He is believed to be fatally hurt.

All three men attacked by the detective were shot in the right lung. Dr. Gilbert announced Saturday morning that the chances for the recovery of any of the wounded men were slight. The men have had a few moments of consciousness during the night. The body of Hutchens was taken by the ambulance to the morgue.

MURDER AND ROBBERY.

Body of Woman Found in An Attic With Skull Crushed.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Lying face downward in a pool of blood, with her skull crushed in two places, the body of Mrs. Mary Spika, 49 years old, was found Friday night in the attic of her home at 358 West Eighteenth street. Several feet from the body the police found a heavy, bloody cobblestone.

Further investigation has proved that robbery was the motive for the crime, as the pocket of the woman's dress had been cut with a knife and more than $200, representing the savings of meny years, which she is known to have had in her possession, is missing.

Late Friday night the police arrested Lewis Peasant, a neighbor of the Spilka family. He denies all knowledge of the crime.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 19.—The great council of Red Men of the United States, who have been in annual session, adjourned Friday to meet in St. Joseph, Mo., next year. No officers were elected.

OPTIMISTIC TONE.

Hopes Are Expressed That War Will Be Averted.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 19.—A distinctly optimistic tone now pervades government and diplomatic circles here and hopes are again expressed that war may after all be averted.

From London and Constantinople encouraging news has been received. From London it is reported that the British government will send a fleet to Turkish waters, while reports from Constantinople say that Great Britain, France and Italy have intervened to prevent the continuance of massacres in Macedonia. It is said that Thursday the representatives of these powers advised the sultan of their dissatisfaction with the methods of suppressing the outbreek and declared that the massacres must be stopped.

The porte is said to have replied that Turkey is simply carrying out the wishes expressed by the powers, who urge the sultan's government to adopt energetic measures to suppress the revolution as speedily as possible. The report that these powers have taken such action has been received with great satisfaction by the Bulgarian ministry.

The diplomatic corps here also appears to be more relieved that Turkey has taken the news of Bulgaria's mobilization steps much more quietly than was anticipated. At the present moment the whole situation is reported as being distinctly better than at any time for some two weeks past.

A special dispatch from Bila, says several Bulgarian bands under Capt. Stoyanoff attacked Melnik, province of Seres, 65 miles northeast of Salonica. Two regiments of infantry with cavalry and infantry in support were sent from Djoumaia to relieve the garrison, and they forced the insurgents to retire to the mountains where they are pursued by the troops.

Desperate fighting is reported to be proceedings in a defile of the valley of the Struma, near Kresna, between Turkish troops and bands under Gen. Zontcheff. Reinforcements of troops have been sent from Seres. Nasir Pasha Turkish commander at Monastir, is reported to have declared to the consuls there, "We have had one insurrection. It will be the last in this territory."

The Young Men's Christian Union in Sofia has issued an appeal to the Christian unions in Europe and may ask them to make September 27 a day of general intercession on behalf of the Macedonians.

NEW BATTLESHIP MAINE.

The Vessel Left For the League Island Navy Yard.

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—The new battleship Maine, which has been undergoing repairs at Cramps shipyards for structural weakness, which developed under tests of her heavy guns, left the works of her builders Friday and proceeded to the League Island navy yard. The Maine, which is in command of Capt. H. G. Leutze, will stay only long enough to take on a supply of provisions and coal and have her magazines stored with ammunition.

THE IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

Senator Clark, of Montana, Re-Elected President.

Ogden, Utah, Sept. 19.—The 11th national irrigation congress came to an end late Friday afternoon. It re-elected Senator Clark, of Montana, president, decided to hold the congress of 1904 in El Paso and adopted a platform which requested congress to make needed modifications of the existing land laws in order that speculation and monopoly of public domain be prevented.

Alfonso's Proposed Visit Abandoned.

Madrid, Sept. 19.—King Alfonso has abandoned his proposed visit to Barcelona, as the governor there has warned him that the opposers of the monarchy would probably make his reception a hostile one.

THE BRITISH CABINET.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain Resigns.

C. T. Ritchie, Chancelor of the Exchequer, and Lord George Hamilton, as Secretary For India, Also Withdraw.

London, Sept. 18.—The resignations of Joseph Chamberlain, as secretary of the colonies, C. T. Ritchie, as chancellor of the exchequer, and Lord George Hamilton, as secretary for India, were officially announced Thursday evening.

King Edward has accepted the resignations of Secretaries Chamberlain and Hamilton and Chancellor Ritchie.

Secretary Chamberlain resigned from the cabinet on the ground that Premier Balfour's attitude on the fiscal question is not sufficiently advanced to enable Mr. Chamberlain to remain a member of the government without the sacrifice of his own views.

The retirement of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain was unknown and unsuspected in London until the official announcement was issued late Thursday night, too late for the evening papers. There had been much exchanging of political visits early in the day, but as Premier Balfour and his brother, Gerald, left for their home at Whittingham early in the afternoon it was thought that nothing would happen for a day or two. Late in the evening, however, the king's acceptance of the resignations of Mr. Chamberlain, of Mr. Ritchie and of Lord George Hamilton, arrived from Balmoral, enabling the premier's secretary to make the official announcement.

It is understood that the resignations of some other members of the cabinet are imminent, and that Lord Balfour of Burleigh, secretary for Scotland, has actually resigned, although the fact has not yet been formally given out. Lord Lansdowne, foreign secretary, left London Thursday night for Balmoral, whither Premier Balfour and his brother are also expected to proceed immediately.

In the conservative clubs Thursday night, the manner in which the crisis was projected was almost as great a surprise as in liberal quarters. Curiosity centers on the attitude of the duke of Devonshire, whose resignation has been fully expected. It was supposed by some that he would take the present opportunity of retiring from politics on the ground of his advanced years.

As to the reconstruction of the cabinet no great interest is excited, although the political prophets are already busy appointing Austen Chamberlain as chancellor of the exechequer, the earl of Selborne as secretary for the colonies, because it is recognized as impossible that an appeal to the country can be much longer delayed and the general opinion is that in the present shattered condition of the unionist party the liberals will be returned to power.

London, Sept. 21.—Lord Balfour of Burleigh, secretary for Scotland, and Arthur Ralph Douglass Elliott, financial secretary to the treasury, have resigned and their resignations have been accepted by the king. Mr. Elliott was not in the cabinet. These two resignations make a total of four vacant cabinet posts and one secretaryship at Mr. Balfour's disposal.

With the resignation of Lord Balfour and Financial Secretary Elliott, both strong free traders, it is understood that the ministerial resignations are completed and apparently the duke of Devonshire has decided to remain in the cabinet. It is practically certain that Austen Chamberlain, Lord Milner and Mr. Broderick will take the exchequer, colonies and India portfolios respectively, and the only surprise in the new appointments is likely to be the nomination of a strong man to the war office to determine how far the recommendations of the South African war commission can be carried out. Home Secretary Akers-Douglass started for Balmoral Sunday night and he will probably be involved in the reconstruction changes.

WISCONSIN RIVER FLOOD.

A Space Covering Six Miles Is a Sea of Water.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 21.—At Portage, Wis., the Wisconsin river reached a stage of 12.2 feet at the government lock at noon Sunday, when the city levee on the west side of the river broke and the entire district between the Wisconsin river and the Baraboo river, covering a space of six miles, is a sea of water. Seven hundred feet of newly built city levee was washed away. Farm residences in the district are entirely surrounded. Hundreds of acres of potatoes, corn and millet are ruined.

Tonsac Works a Remedy.

Tonsac, Troy, Sept. 21.—Lenna has seldom, if ever, seen such a sensational sensation as was caused by the introduction recently of Tonsac for kidney diseases. This wonderful new remedy has been tried in thousands of cases, and in almost every case the results have been wonderful.

Henry Vaughan, of Rural Route No. 3, Troy, says of it:

"I suffered with Kidney Trouble for over 18 months. I was very bad and could get nothing to help me till I heard of the new remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills. I began to use these pills, and very soon found myself improving. I kept on and now can say I am absolutely cured and free from any symptom of my old trouble.

"I am very glad I heard of this wonderful remedy and I would strongly advise anyone suffering with Kidney trouble to try it, for I know it will cure."

TRIED BY TIME.

Eugene E. Lario, of 751 Twentieth Avenue, ticket seller in the Union Station, Denver, Col., says: "You are at liberty to repeat what I first stated through our Denver papers about Doan's Kidney Pills in the summer of 1899, for I have had no reason in the interim to change my opinion of the remedy. I said when first interviewed that if I had a friend and acquaintance suffering from backache or kidney trouble I would unhesitatingly advise them to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I was subject to severe attacks of backache, always aggravated if I sat long at a desk. It struck me that if Doan's Kidney Pills performed half what they promised they might at least help. This induced me to try the remedy. It absolutely stopped the backache. I have never had a pain or twinge since."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Lario will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Damaging Testimony in the Jett Murder Trial at Cynthiana.

Witnesses Testified That They Saw Curtis Jett at the Courthouse Shortly After the Assassination of Marshal Jas. Cockrill.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 18.—In the case of Curtis Jett, now on trial for alleged assassination of Jim Cockrill at Jackson, Ky., on July 21, 1902, John Patrick, a refugee from Jackson, Ky., and a resident of Charleston, W. Va., said that he was in an office across from the courthouse and saw guns poked out of a window of the courthouse and recognized Curt Jett as one of the men in the courthouse at the time of the shooting, and saw him come out of the door immediately after the shooting and having a pistol in his hand.

His testimony was fully corroborated by Riley Coldiron, who saw the men shoot and saw him come out of the courthouse with Bill Britton, Henry Strong, John E. Patrick, J. J. C. Balch and T. T. Cope, all from Balch's office, saw the shooting and saw Jett immediately afterward come out at the front of the courthouse. The main feature of the trial Thursday afternoon was the testimony of John Patrick, who was compelled to leave Breathitt county by the Hargises on account of seeing the shooting. His testimony was good and he made a fine impression on the jury.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 19.—In the case of Curtis Jett, now on trial for the alleged assassination of Jim Cockrill, seven witnesses testified for the commonwealth Friday afternoon. All of them in some way or other corroborated other witnesses which have testified. Tom and Kelly Mann corroborated witnesses Friday morning who swore that Jett had said that no — — — — could shoot him off the street's of Jackson, referring to the fact of a difficulty between Jett and Cockrill about a week before the assassination. The main and most sensational feature of the evening was the testimony of J. B. Little, who said he saw Cockrill running at the time of the shooting and immediately afterward Jett appeared in front of the courthouse. He heard Jett say a week before the assassination in the house of Mrs. Sam Mans that he would kill Cockrill on sight, and that he (Jett) never promised to do anything but that he carried it out. Little, when Cockrill was killed, ran to him and he (Cockrill) said to him, "Some one shot me from the courthouse." Little's testimony is corroborated by Charles Robinson as to the position of Little when the shots were fired, and as to Jett coming out of the courthouse a minute after the shooting.

D. D. Hurst saw a blue mist like the shots were fired from smokeless powder at the time of the shooting and corroborated Little in his testimony. A. S. Johnson saw both Jett and Spicer at the door of the courthouse immediately after the shooting with guns drawn.

Blanton, attorney for Jett, says there will be no confession. Conditionally the commonwealth rested unless some of the absent witnesses come in Friday afternoon, if not they rest and defense will begin Saturday.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 21.—The most important testimony was given Saturday in the Jett case that has been given yet was that of Charles Green. His testimony was that he was standing about ten feet from Cockrill when he was shot; that he heard the shots and looked up and saw three men shooting from the courthouse window, and recognized one of them as Curt Jett; saw Jett afterward standing in the courthouse door with a pistol in his hand.

San Francisco, Sept. 18.—The United States transport Sherman arrived Thursday from Manila with the Tenth infantry. The Sherman was due last Tuesday, but was delayed several days by the heavy weather.

TVE OPEN SHOP QUESTION.

Knott Is Found With the President's Attitude in the Matter.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—President Roosevelt Sunday was voted by the Chicago Federation of Labor a 9,000 word letter of advice in which fault is found with the president's attitude on the question of open shops. The letter was prompted by the decision of President Roosevelt in the Miller case, in which the president said that Miller, or any other man, must not be discharged from the government printing office on account of non-membership in a union.

"Deliciously unaware of the hypocrisy of the world of finance," "honest and humane, but uninformed," were some of the clauses used to describe the president in the long letter of the open shop committee.

Its opening paragraphs contained a definite disclaimer of any wish to attack Mr. Roosevelt, the blame for the chief executive's attitude in the Miller affair being placed on "coterie of certain well-known interests which are constantly on guard around the white house." The president was told that he fell into error in his view of the question, "Because of that impetuosity for which we love you.". A copy of the communication will be forwarded to Oyster Bay at once under date of Labor day, September 7.

KILLED BY A POLO BALL.

Nathan Swift, Son of Louis F. Swift, the Packer, the Victim.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Nathan Swift, son of Louis F. Swift, the packer, died Sunday from the effects of a blow on the temple with a polo ball at Onwentsia field during a game. The accident was at first thought to be trifling. Mr. Swift was playing in a contest in which his companions were Frederic McLaughlin, W. W. Rathbone, Walter Farwell, Sidney Love, Walter Keith, R. R. McCormick and Charles Garfield King.

The ball which struck Mr. Swift was one that went high in the air and from the mallet of Mr. Love. Mr. Swift did not appreciate the danger until too late, the glare of the sun preventing him from following the ball in its flight. When the ball hit him he did not fall from his saddle and when his companions galloped to his side he was at first inclined to make light of the injury. He was induced to dismount, but walked without aid from the field. Arriving home, he complained of dizziness and later he went into a delirium which was followed by his death.

HIS HEAD CUT OFF.

One Soldier Killed and Another Fatally Injured.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 21.—John Deiater had his head cut off and John Manni was fatally injured by an accident on the Bridge street bridge. Both were members of Company B, Second regiment, M. N. G., and were returning from rifle practice at Berlin, riding on a Muskegon interurban line combination baggage and passenger coach. The soldiers were sitting in the doorway of the baggage compartment swinging their feet when the car ran on to the bridge. Deiater's feet caught in the iron work of the bridge and he was suddenly jerked from the doorway and thrown beneath the wheels of the car. He was decapitated. In the fall he clutched at Manni and partially dragged him from the car. Manni had one leg broken and received other injuries that will be fatal.

BULL FIGHTING AT JUAREZ.

Six Bulls Were Killed and Several Horses Slain.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 21.—The new fifty-thousand-dollar bull ring at Juarez, on the Mexican border, was formally opened here Sunday in the presence of 10,000 people, chiefly Americans.

Six bulls were tortured and put to death and several horses were slain by the bulls. Cervera, the famous Spanish bull fighter, is at the head of the troupe.

BALL PLAYER INJURED.

Second Baseman Kelley Hit in the Head By a Pitched Ball.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 21.—In a game of baseball here Sunday between the Winnipeg team, champions of the Northern league, and the Algonia, Ia., team of colored players, W. W. Kelley, second baseman of the Winnipegs, was hit in the head by a pitched ball and probably fatally injured. Kelley is a brother of Manager Michael Kelley, of the St. Paul American association team.

Found Dead in a Tree.

New York, Sept. 21.—Floyd Knox, aged 18, disappeared from his home, in Hillsdale, two weeks ago, while temporarily insane. He was found dead in the woods by hunters. Knox had climbed a tall tree, secured himself there and then committed suicide by shooting.

Aged Man Frightened to Death.

New York, Sept. 21.—Patrick Collins, 59 years old, a driver in the employ of the city, has been frightened to death by the sudden glare of an automobile that nearly ran into his team in Jerome avenue at One Hundred and Seventieth street.

Population of the Philippines.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The population of the Philippines will approach about 8,000,000. The civilized people will number 7,000,000 and the wild tribes who were counted imperfectly, are estimated to number 1,000,000.

REBELS ARE MASSING.

Thousans of Them Congregating on the Frontier.

Beginning of Massacres, Burnings and Destruction Compared With Which the Turkish Atrocities Will Seem Child's Play Threatened.

London, Sept. 21.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Sofia telegraphs:

"One of the revolutionary chiefs has informed me that the revolutionists are massing thousands of men at various points on the frontier and their laboratories are working incessantly to replenish their stock of bombs and explosives. They do not count much on war between Turkey and Bulgaria, but on the day they hear that the meeting between the czar and Emperor Francis Joseph has not had the desired result for Macedonia, the world will witness the beginning of massacres, burnings and destruction compared with which the Turkish atrocities will seem child's play. The banner of revolution, my informant says, will be unfurled in all the border districts. Every city and village, whether the inhabitants are friends or foes, will be destroyed, and such a state of anarchy will be caused that the Turks will step out voluntarily and leave the country to Macedonian survivors. We have selected the frontier districts for these final operations so that Europe may hear the despairing cries of the dying nation which the Turks would stifle."

London, Sept. 21.—The Balkan situation presented few new features Sunday morning. The German emperor's influence at Vienna is said to have been thrown in favor of allowing the sultan the utmost freedom in suppressing the insurrection. Both Turks and Macedonians claim the victories in the daily encounters. A report from Sofia states that the Bulgarian military preparations are reaching the stage of perfection that will enable the concentration of 200,000 men on the frontier within a week and that the stocks of provisions, weapons and ammunition are rapidly becoming efficient.

DINNER TO J. B. JACKSON.

He is the First American Diplomatic Agent to Bulgaria.

Sofia, Sept. 21.—Prince Ferdinand Saturday evening gave a dinner party at the palace in honor of J. B. Jackson, who in the afternoon had presented his credentials as the first American diplomatic agent to Bulgaria. The guests included F. E. H. Elliott, the British diplomatic agent, and the Bulgarian ministers and high officials.

Prince Ferdinand proposed the health of President Roosevelt, speaking in English, and the court band played a selection of American airs.

Great satisfaction is expressed not only in official but also in commercial circles at America's action in establishing diplomatic relations with Bulgaria. The belief prevails that a great opportunity exists for developing a profitable export and import trade with the United States.

THE BOSTON GREEKS.

Strong Protest Against Bulgarian Incursions to Macedonia.

Boston, Sept. 21.—A meeting of the Greeks of Boston in Stein hall Sunday made strong protests against the Bulgarian incursions to Macedonia. The Bulgarians were charged by the speakers with stirring up insurrection and thereby causing the slaughter of Greeks in order that ultimately Bulgaria might annex Macedonia. A contribution of nearly $1,000 was raised to assist the persecuted Greeks in Macedonia.

Sir Thomas Lipton Better.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The condition of Sir Thomas Lipton was pronounced Friday night by his physicians to be entirely satisfactory and it is believed that all danger has passed, though the doctors say that it will be several days before they will be able to make that statement with entire confidence.

Sir Thomas Lipton arrived in Chicago Tuesday suffering from a case of appendicitis. He was taken to the Auditorium Annex hotel and a physician called.

Two New Counterfeits.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Chief Wilkie, of the secret service, announces the discovery of two national bank counterfeits. One is a ten dollar note on the People's national bank, of Roxbury, Mass., and the other is a five dollar note on the Waltham national bank, of Waltham, Mass.

Liabilities One Million Dollars.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—A petition has been filed in the bankruptcy court to have James S. Watson declared a bankrupt. Watson was president of Porter Bros. & Co., who failed several months ago. His liabilities are placed at $1,000,000.

Armenian's Mass Meeting.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—More than 400 Chicago Armenians held a mass meeting and discussed ways and means to stop what they deem a confiscation of Armenian church property by Russia. M. B. Seron, of the Armenian national church in America, presided.

The Loving Cup Awarded.

Ogden, Utah, Sept. 21.—The loving cup offered by H. O. Havemeyer, of New York, for the best display of sugar beets before the irrigation congress, has been awarded to A. Rhodes, of Garland, Utah.

THE IRISH PATRIOT.

The One Hundredth Anniversary of Robert Emmet's Execution.

Columbus, O., Sept. 21.—The Emmet centennial celebration held here Sunday was participated in by Irish-Americans from all sections of Ohio. It is estimated that 25,000 excursionists were brought into the city, including a large delegation from Fort Wayne, Ind. There was a parade early in the afternoon of Irish societies. About 3,000 men were in line. Following the parade there was a mass meeting at the Columbus auditorium at which James P. Madigan, of Cleveland, presided. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Gov. Nash and Mayor Jeffrey. Responses were made by T. S. Hogan, of Wellston, state president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Capt. George Sweeny, of Cincinnati, chairman of the state committee in charge of the celebration. The principal speakers were James E. Dolan, of Syracuse, N. Y., national president of the A. O. H., and John T. Keating, of Columbus, former national president of the order.

Sunday night a mass meeting, held at the Board of Trade auditorium under the auspices of the ladies auxiliary of the A. O. H., was addressed by Rev. L. W. Mulhane, of Mt. Vernon.

Among the resolutions passed at the afternoon meeting was the following:

"We, Irish-American citizens of Ohio in mass meeting assembled on the centennial anniversary of the martyrdom of Ireland's best loved patriot, Robert Emmet, affirm our undying allegiance to the principles for which he fought and died. Our ambition is that of Emmet, to see a republic established upon Irish soil and we will never be satisfied with less than absolute independence."

Chicago, Sept. 21.—At the First regiment armory Sunday night a huge meeting, under the auspices of the United Irish societies of Chicago, adopted resolutions declaring that no settlement of the Irish question short of national independence will satisfy the aspirations of the Irish people. The occasion for the gathering was the 100th anniversary of the execution of Robert Emmet and the resolutions were emphatic that no Ireland will satisfy men of Irish blood but the Ireland for which Emmet died: Ireland a nation of free and independent, making her own laws, floating her own flag, shaping her own fortunes, acknowledging allegiance to no power outside the limits with which nature has bounded the island.

The following resolution was adopted: "While we recognize in the land bill which has recently become law a substantial concession to the just demands of the Irish people, we do not regard it as either a settlement or a compromise of the Irish question. We urge the leaders of the United Irish league to take up with vigor and increased activity the movement to secure legislative independence which we hold to be of greater importance than the settlement of the land question."

The speakers at the meeting included Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Rabbi Hirsch, and Judge Marcus Kavanagh.

DESPONDENT OVER HIS LOSS.

Henry Mockley, Formerly a Kansas City Packer, Shot Himself.

Kansas City, Sept. 21.—Despondent over the loss of $35,000 in the June flood, Henry Mockley, former proprietor of the Riverside packing house, committed suicide Sunday by sending a bullet through his brain. The tragedy occurred in a desolate room in a tenement house. Mockley was 64 years old and had lived in Kansas City 20 years, coming here from Switzerland. Years ago he established the Riverside packing house and his business enjoyed a prosperous growth until the flood came, when he lost nearly all of his property. Three weeks later fire made the ruin of his packing plant complete.

Cured By Electricity.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 21.—A remarkable case, in which a woman has been made to speak after inability to utter a word for three years, is that of Miss Emma Lewis. She is 50 years of age and lost the use of her vocal cords through paralysis. A local physician has restored their use through electrical applications of varying power to the throat.

Boers Colonizing in Mexico.

Monterey, Mex., Sept. 21.—Gen. W. D. Snyman, one of the leaders of the Boer army during the recent war, has moved his entire family to the new colony site purchased near Ortiz Station, on the Mexican Central, and announces that 50 families are on the way from South Africa to join him.

Attacked By An Angry Lion.

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 21.—During a performance here an angry lion sprang upon Keeper Ricardo, who was in the cage, and tore off his right hand. Only the prompt work of attendants, who beat off the lion, saved the keeper's life.

Wilder Brigade Reunion.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 21.—The annual reunion of the Wilder brigade came to a close Sunday at the battlefield monument at Chickamauga park. Religious exercises were held there in the presence of the veterans in attendance.

State News Happenings

CONGRESSMAN BOREING DEAD.

Only Republican in the Kentucky Delegation Passes Away.

London, Ky., Sept. 17.—Congressman Vincent Boreing died at his home here Wednesday of pneumonia. He was the only republican in the Kentucky delegation.

Vincent Boreing, of London, Laurel county, was born November 24, 1839, in Washington county, Tenn.; removed with his father, Murray Boreing, to Laurel county in 1847; was educated at Laurel seminary, London, Ky., and Tusculum college, Greenville, Tenn.; volunteered in the union army in Company A, 24th Kentucky volunteer infantry, November 1, 1861, as private soldier; on account of meritorious conduct was commissioned first lieutenant from the ranks by Gov. Bramlett, of Kentucky; was severely wounded in the battle of Resaca, Ga., May 14, 1863. He was elected county superintendent of public schools in 1868 and re-elected in 1870; founded (as editor and publisher) the Mountain Echo at London, Ky., in 1875, the first republican newspaper published in Southeastern Kentucky; was elected county judge in 1886, president of the Cumberland Valley Land Co. in 1887 and president of the First national bank of London, Ky., in 1888. He represented the Kentucky conference as a lay delegate in the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church; was department commander of the department of Kentucky, G. A. R., in 1889; was elected to the 46th congress and re-elected to the 57th congress. He was afterward re-elected to the 58th congress.

London, Ky., Sept. 19.—The funeral of Judge Vincent Boreing took place Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Southern Methodist church, Rev. G. I. Jolly performing the rites. Only about one-third of the people could find standing room in the building, and when the body was borne from the church to the grave the largest concourse ever gathered in this city followed.

Throughout the entire county Friday was a day of mourning. Business was suspended, and the schools dismissed that even the children might pay a last tribute to the honored dead. Hundreds viewed the body, both at the church and the grave, and it was only a few minutes before sunset when the remains were laid to rest. Honorary pallbearers who attended the funeral were: J. A. Craft, Louisville; Stephen G. Sharp, Lexington; Judge W. H. Holt, Frankfort; Judge J. H. Tinsley, Barboursville; Boone Logan, Pineville; A. T. Siler, Williamsburg; Congressman C. Slemp, Virginia. Kentucky congressmen here were Shirley, of the Fifth; Kehoe, of the Ninth, and Trimble, of the Seventh.

To Sell Gen. Clay's Effects.

Richmond, Ky., Sept. 17.—In court Wednesday an order was entered directing the curators of the estate of Gen. C. M. Clay to expose at public auction the household effects, live stock and personal property belonging to Gen. Clay. The State Bank and Trust Co., as curator, will offer the property at public auction at White Hall on Thursday, October 8.

Frost in Kentucky.

Columbia, Ky., Sept. 19.—Frost formed in this section Friday night. The mercury stood near the freezing point. It is thought that damage was done to vegetation and corn.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19.—Light frosts were general throughout Kentucky Friday morning. Some injury to tobacco was reported.

Several Good Oil Wells.

Monticello, Ky., Sept. 19.—The Cliffy Oil Co. brought in Cofty No. 1 Friday, estimated at 50 barrels. Louis Naix brought in Tuttle No. 1, good for 15 barrels. Oil was found in the Beaver creek sand at 650 feet. The Kentucky Consolidated Oil Co. brought in a good well this week at Gap creek.

Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter a Candidate.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—It was said Wednesday night that Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter will be a candidate to succeed the late Vincent Boreing as congressman from the Eleventh district. It is believed that Dr. Hunter would have opposed Boreing next year had the latter lived to enter the race.

His Heart Cut In Two.

Lancaster, Ky., Sept. 19. — Steve Whittaker had his heart cut in two and died instantly, and Ollie Williams will probably die, as the result of a fight with J. B. Masters Friday. The difficulty arose over some land. Masters surrendered to the authorities.

To Succeed Congressman Boreing.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 18.—Judge John S. Denton, of Somerset, collector of internal revenue of the Eighth district, is said to have been selected by John W. Yerkes to succeed the late Judge Vincent Boreing in congress.

He Killed a Bystander.

London, Ky., Sept. 19.—In Pittsburg Ky., Friday Andrew Patterson and a young man named Feltner were scuffling over a pistol. The weapon discharged and a bystander, Thos. Black, was shot through the heart and instantly killed.

The Awful Crime at Ashland.

Ashland, Ky., Sept. 19.—Mrs. James Gibbons, the mother of the two children who were murdered in this city in 1880, is dead. Neal, Ellis and Craft, the men accused, were hanged for the crime.

MAJ. S. P. GROSS.

The World-Renowned Restaurant Man, Expired at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 18.—Maj. S. P. Gross, a world renowned restauranteur, died Thursday night. He was stricken with paralysis in St. Louis several weeks ago and brought to his home here. Maj. Gross made a fortune in the restaurant business at the Chicago world's fair, which he lost in the Kentucky restaurant at the Paris exposition. He retrieved at the Buffalo exposition. He had expected to conduct a restaurant in St. Louis. He was associated in business in Paris with Col. J. Hull Davidson, proprietor of the Ocean View hotel, Virginia.

Maj Gross came from Prussia 45 years ago when he was 25 years old. He has always been in the restaurant business here. He leaves a wife and two daughters in Cincinnati. He once ran a restaurant in Washington.

AN UNNECESSARY EXPENSE.

A $4,000 Family Monument Is a Useless Expenditure, Says the Judge.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—Judge Shackelford Miller Wednesday decided that a $4,000 family monument is not a necessary expense of a decedent's estate and that a widow's interest in one-half of the personality is not to be subjected to a pro rata of such an expense.

The opinion was handed down in the case of the Louisville Trust Co., executor of the estate of William Patterson, the contractor, against Maggie Patterson, the widow.

Patterson left a personal estate valued at $31,000.

POLITICS WAS BARRED.

Distinguished Kentuckians Guests of Confederate Reunion.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 18.—The state reunion of confederate veterans took place here Thursday. Among the distinguished guests were Senator James B. McCreary, Senator Blackburn, Hon. Morris B. Belknap, republican candidate for governor, and Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Belknap's father-in-law. Under a rule of the association no speeches were allowed and no politics discussed.

Reed Embry, of Danville, spoke of the glories of the confederacy.

PAPA IN HOT PURSUIT.

Breathitt County Elopers Are Headed For Cincinnati.

Greenup, Ky., Sept. 19.—Burley Burchett and Jemima Howard, of Breathitt county, came here to be married, but could not get a license, owing to the bride being only 15 years of age. They went from here to Cincinnati, declaring they would get married before their return. The young lady's father arrived here two hours after they left and went on to the city. He says he will stop the wedding if he can reach there in time.

Rural Free Delivery Discontinued.

Washington, Sept. 18.—The following Kentucky post offices, now being supplied by rural free delivery carriers, will be discontinued after September 30: Abner, Nicholas county; Elmore, Forsee, Tioga, Franklin county; Ballardsville, Worth, Oldham county; Mallorys, Poplar Grove, Squiersville, Owen county; Cicero, Faywood, Glenns, Highview, Woodford county.

Poker Game at Latonia Raided.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 19.—Acting Chief of Police Sandford and Detective Gaffney raided a poker game in the Latonia hotel Friday at noon and arrested two of the players, who gave their names as W. B. Kline and C. W. Stanton. The men were strangers and the hotel proprietor did not know the game was going on.

To Be Armed With Krag Rifles.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—The Kentucky national guard will be equipped with Krag-Jorgensen rifles for the maneuver encampment. The ordnance department has made a total allowance of 3,500 Krag-Jorgensens, but only 1,149 will be used during the maneuvers.

Bystander Killed in Duel.

Middlesboro, Ky., Sept. 19.—George Hightower and Lindsay Tood fought in the highway with pistols across the Tennessee river, near here and Hightower accidentally killed Alfred Lewis, who was watching the affair. Hightower was arrested, but afterward escaped.

Threatened With Paralysis.

Greenup, Ky., Sept. 18.—Col. Sam K. Johnson, who has been chief clerk in the office of the Eastern Kentucky Railway Co., has been taken to his home in Iroton, O., threatened with paralysis. For several months he has been complaining.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 19.—William Phillips, of Chicago, added to his already big string of yearlings by purchase of W. C. Overton, of Versailles, Ky., of three colts, one by Handsome, another by Falsetto and another by Applegate.

Insane From His Losses.

Carlisle, Ky., Sept. 19.—Magistrate Joseph Whaley, of near this city, who suddenly became deranged from losses made in stock trading, was Thursday taken to a private sanitarium near Louisville.

BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - Sept. 23, 1903.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce
JAMES W. LILLY,
of Gallatin county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District,— composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce
F. C. GREENE,
of Owen county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce M. H. Bourne, of Owen county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney of the Fifteenth Judicial District, composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

THE Cleveland, Ohio, salvation army is campaigning in Breathitt county. It is hoped that the army will do much good in that feud ridden region.

THE army and navy officers cannot agree as to when the recent war with Spain ended. They would better call on Congress at its next session to declare the date.

CARRIE NATION smashed no saloons on her Hopkinsville, visit last week, but she could not refrain from telling one saloonkeeper that he was in a shameful business.

AT the local option election held in Grant county a few days since, the drys out voted the wets, and shortly it will be supposed that a drink of whisky can not be bought in that county.

REV. SAM JONES called a man in Cartersville, Georgia, a liar, one day last week, and when the man got through with him he did not know whether he had been in contact with a buzz-saw or a cyclone.

SOME of the Republicans in Allie Young's judicial district are hot because their party machine will not permit the holding of a convention to nominate a Republican candidate to oppose Mr. Young.

THIS is certainly a country with a variety of climate. Last week people and stock were freezing to death in the northwest, while in this part of the country the heat was torrid, and in Florida the hurricane was having high carnival.

THOSE who said they would make Boone the battle ground in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney, have been shy of the field so far. Boone county Democrats want to gaze upon the aggregation of candidates before the day for the precinct meetings.

IT has been decided by the courts that the legal meaning of the word "cattle" includes all kinds of livestock—hogs, horses sheep, goats, cattle, etc., and the person who votes against the running at large of "cattle generally," votes against the running at large of any kind of stock in the voting district specified.

THE speech made by ex-Governor Bradley in the recent Republican State convention held in Louisville, is being used by the Democrats as campaign literature, but the Republican stumpers have no use for it in their business. It is an especially hot number, that part of it in which it is told how the Belknap people robbed Wilson of the Louisville delegation.

HAD General Buckner informed himself as to his own pardon record while Governor of Kentucky, he, probably, would not have had the audacity to say anything about certain pardons that have been granted by Beckham, as he Buckner, granted a greater number of that particular class of pardons than Beckham has. But then Buckner had to say something in his effort to assist his son-in-law politically.

IN the proper column appears the announcement of M. H. Bourne, of Owenton, Owen county, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney in this Judicial District. Those who are acquainted with Mr. Bourne, say he is eminently qualified for the position to which he aspires, and that if elected he will be fearless in the discharge of his official duties. He is a graduate of the Kentucky University, and has an experience of ten years in the practice of law, and is a fine speaker. He comes of a family of Democrats, and has always been as true to the nominees of his partyas the needle is to the pole.

THE death of Congressman Vincent Boreing, the only Republican member of the Kentucky Congressional delegation, and representative of the eleventh district, will bring to the front again several aspirants to fill the vacancy. While, Parker and Calson will, no doubt, be among the candidates. The nomination by the Republicans in the eleventh is equivalent to an election.

FOLLOWING is one of the planks in the Maryland Democratic platform:

"We believe that the political destinies of Maryland should be shaped and controlled by the white people of the State, and while we disclaim any purpose to do any injustice whatever to our colored population, we declare without reserves our resolute purpose to reserve in every conservative and constitutional way the political ascendancy to our race."

THE numerous changes of school books in some of the districts at the beginning of the present school year, caused considerable complaint on the part of parents, who, when the new books were adopted, were given to understand that the change would be brought about in a manner that would work no hardship—that the books the pupils were then using would be retained until a higher grade was needed. It is claimed that this understanding has been departed from, and the pupils have been required to replace their old books, yet good, by the same books of the authors of the new books adopted some time since. Probably the change never could have been made to suit all concerned.

Charsles E. Flandrau.

The following editorial from the St. Paul Globe of Sept. 10th, may be of interest to those of our readers who remember Judge Flandrau, or those who are acquainted with his daughters Mrs. Patty Selmes and Mrs. Sally Cutcheon, who during their early years lived inthis county and always return to it as one of their homes. This editorial selected for its brevity, is one of many similar, for the press of Minnesota has been lavish of tributes to the memory of the departed:

"By the death of Hon. Charles E. Flandrau the state of Minnesota loses one of its founders; a man of great force of character, eminent public services and those sterling traits of manhood that gave him respect and honor and friendship of men who knew him well. He was of the sturdy band of pioneers, lessening in numbers now, alas, so rapidly, whose fortunes were knit with the fortunes of the commonwealth. The connection of Judge Flandrau with Minnesota's early history is intimate and honorable; and he lived to see the fruition of those labors in which he bore so considerable a part.

"He early threw in his fortunes with what was to be afterward the state of his love and pride. He shared in the various activities of the territory that knew and needed men of mettle such as his. He helped to frame the first constitution of the state. He played a memorable part in the great Indian uprising, with the cool judgment and gallantry that marked him. He was honored again and again by the people; and would have risen to the highest positions within their gift but for his devotion to the fortunes of the Democratic party, of which he was a leader and ornament.

"In private life Judge Flandrau was a genial, charming, entertaining gentleman. He was adored by his family and admired by his wide circle of friends. He was an essentially companionable man; and added to his great fund of interesting reminiscences of past years the wide knowledge gained by a long life of reading and study. He was equally at home and equally happy on the public platform, as the center of a group of friends or in the quiet library where so many of his happy hours were spent.

"To his state he gave his best, to his profession the vigor of a strong and well-trained mind, to his party all the service it could ask, to the community the labors of a citizen of great activity and public spirit, and to his more intimate acquaintances the wealth of a close and lifelong attachment. This city and this state will join in doing honor to a man of such character and virtues as are rarely produced in their full flower save in the formative struggles of the new and strenuous period in a country's history."

AN examination for State certificates to teach school will be held in Frankfort on October 2 and 3.

Fine Farm For Sale.

I withdraw from sale my farm of 255 acres at Hebron at the price named in a recent notice. The farm is for sale at a bargain if sold soon, but not at that price. The conditions and circumstances and opportunities existing when that offer was made, do not exist now—hence the withdrawal. This is a magnificent farm, finely located and elegantly improved. The land and improvements are all in splendid condition. This plantation and its improvements were planned, constructed, developed and finished for a superb country home, for a country gentleman, and only a man of that character can appreciate it. The whole farm is as beautiful as a city park. It is for sale at a bargain if sold soon. If not sold soon it will be for rent to good and careful men.

Second Annual Convention.

The second annual convention of the Disciples of Christ in Boone County, convened at Florence Sept. 10. The weather was very inclement, yet the house was well filled.

After the devotional exercises Bro. Milo Atkinson was selected as chairman pro tem. We were then royally welcomed by Bro. Clark, the energetic minister of the Florence church.

First Principles was very ably discussed by the President. While he spoke of what is commonly known as first principles, he also dwelt upon the problem of Christian Unity, and the views of the fathers of the restoration in regard to this.

Bro. G. S. Miller's discussion of the Law and the Gospels was well received. He opened the law and showed plainly that we are not living under the law, but while we follow and obey some of the commandments we do it because some of the commandments are repeated in the New Testiment.

The writer discussed What Boone County Disciples need. He endeavored to show the lack of cooperation between the churches, especially in working the fields that have not the privilege of hearing the divine plea.

An elaborate dinner had been prepared by the good people of Florence, which was enjoyed by all present. When this pleasant treat was over, Bro. Miller gave a Bible Study of John 17. This was followed by the reports of the different committees.

The following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Pres., Milo Atkinson; Vice Pres, B. F. McGlasson; Sec., Nora Rucker. It was decided to hold the next convention with the church at Petersburg, on Thursday before the second Lord's day in September, 1904.

Bro. J. W. Rogers lectured on an Historical Study of the Sunday School. Bro. Rogers knew his subject and handled it in an interesting manner.

This convention was a source of much strength to us, and while we missed two of the speakers, yet we can all say that we enjoyed ourselves at Florence.

Base Ball.

The Boones and the Anchors, of Ludlow, played ball here last Saturday, the score standing 13 to 10 in favor of the Boones. Hughes let the visitors down with four hits and struck out 11 men. The Boones made 15 hits, and 9 men struck out. Hogan caught a fine game.

The Boones played at Lexington Sunday, where they went up against the fastest team they ever met. The score was 9 to 4 in favor of Lexington. Hanlon and Hogan were Boones' battery, and they did some nice work. The Boones were accompanied by a considerable delegation from Burlington, Florence and Erlanger, and they all had a fine time. Shortly after his arrival James Clore called up his friend Harry Stough by telephone, and he was on hand in a few minutes, and took charge of a delegation of the Booneites, and contributed much to the pleasurse of their brief sojourn in his city.

In its account of the game between the Boones and the Lexington teams, the Democrat says: "The Boones have a good ball team and the best behaved seen on the local lot this season."

A Model Church.

[Central Methodist, Sept. 10th.]

Walton Circuit, composed of Walton and Hughes' Chapel, made the following report through their pastor, H. R. Mills: 127 members; seven missionary societies which have raised $235 this year, building and repairing expenses, $1,360; to missions, all told, $555; to Orphans' Home, etc., $65; total to all purposes, $3,850, over $30 per capita on circuit. Over $3,500 of this total is from Hughes' Chapel, a small country church of only fifty-seven members. Per capita at this place nearly $44. This is more money than many of the strong churches with four times the membership have raised. The work two years ago paid less than $1,000 for all purposes. In most city churches the pastors get over half the money raised. But not so in this case.

Hughes' Chapel has been created a semi-station, and the pastor of last year returned. Preaching the fourth Sunday in this month.

The Proper Treatment for a Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is usually two or three months before he has fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, for in many cases in which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has been promptly and freely applied, a complete cure has been effected in less than one week's time, and in some cases within three days. For sale by all Druggists.

Poles for the Rabbit Hash, Waterloo, McVille and Bellevue telephone line will soon be ready for the wires. It is a citizens' line and the land-owners along the route are putting up the poles. It will not be long after the line is in operation that those who put in 'phones will wonder how they got along without them heretofore.

The Wise Man and the Foolish Man

One Builds for Eternity, the Other Only for Time

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.

THE WISE MAN AND THE FOOLISH MAN.

Chicago, Sunday, Sept. 20, 1903.

Text:—"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."—I. Cor. 3:11.

IN CONNECTION with our text we wish to invite your attention to the parable of the wise man and the foolish man found in the closing verses of the seventh chapter of Matthew. Both men were builders. Both had the same purpose, that of rearing a house. Their skill as workmen was not questioned. But in the matter of foundation for their buildings there was a striking and vital difference. One built on the rock, the other thoughtlessly constructed his house on the sand, probably the most convenient and easiest place to be had at the time. In fact, I have thought that perhaps the lumber for the house had to be brought by boat, and was unloaded upon the beach, and here, while the skies overhead were fair, and the waters in front were placid and the sand lay firm and smooth, he thoughtlessly and foolishly built his house. The other man, at the cost of great labor and time, carried his lumber up to the rocky heights above the shore and built his house there. And probably the foolish man, who built upon the sand, had his house completed and was settling therein almost before the wise man, who built upon the rock, had begun to get the frame of his house together. And I imagine, in the very start, when the vessel was unloading the cargo of lumber that he tried to get his friend to build with him on the sand, and when he was unable to prevail upon him so to do, he took to bantering and ridiculing him, and sought every means of discouraging him. But the wise man knew the value of a solid foundation, and in the face of trial and discouragement and hardship he built upon the rock.

AS the days came and went the man in the house on the sand seemed to be as safe and comfortable and happy as the man in the house on the rock. And the man with his feet resting upon the rock would talk with the man whose feet were sinking in the sand, and he would continue to warn him of the peril when the storm should come, and would try to persuade him to move his house to the rock, but the foolish man would not believe the time would come when the sun would be hid behind the angry clouds, and the gentle breezes would be roused to the fury of the gale driving the mad waters mountain high upon the beach. And so the man continued to enjoy life in the house upon the sand and to consider his friend upon the rock a very poor weather prophet, indeed. But one night the storm swept down upon those two houses and upon that wise man and his foolish friend. All through the long, black hours the wind blew, the rain descended, the flood came and beat furiously. The wise man heard the storm, he felt its violence as it rushed and beat and tore about his house, but never a fear troubled his heart, for he knew the old rock would stand, and with it the house he had founded thereon. But he was filled with dread for the fate of his friend down upon the sand. The rolling waters sucked the sand from underneath the sills of the house, the wind wrenched and tore at the creaking, failing timbers, and great was the fall of that house which was built upon the sand. The wise man heard the crash of the walls, he heard the groans and shrieks of the dying, but he was powerless to help. The next morning as he looked forth from his stanch abode nestled safely upon the unshaken rock he could see nothing but the glistening sand where his friend's house had stood, and along the shore lay strewn the shattered and splintered timbers that once had proudly sheltered the foolish man who had built upon the sand. The sand as a foundation was insecure, unstable. The rock was the only safe, enduring foundation.

THE foolish man is the man without a foundation; he is the man whose life rests upon nothing outside of himself or apart from the things of time. And we cannot show him how to build a foundation, for as our text declares: "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Men do try to lay other foundations with such materials as the world can provide, and they exhaust human skill and learning and ingenuity in the task, but when they have done their best and finished their task they have nothing that will stand the test of eternity, and a foundation which is worthy the name foundation must be enduring, it must sustain the superstructure as long as the superstructure will last. The soul of man lives on beyond the grave, and if the life of that soul is not resting on an enduring foundation it is doomed to destruction beyond the grave, even as the house which was built upon the shifting, uncertain sand. "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Does man heap up the glittering, shining gold and establish his soul thereon, and delight himself in the fatness of this world? It is a foundation which, even though it should endure through this life, is unavailing in the life beyond the grave. Riches have wings, and like the eagle's wings they vanish away.

OR is it worldly power or honor, social distinction or political prestige, human learning or wisdom or human goodness or achievements? Are these the foundations which man would lay for himself? They are no foundations at all, for they will not stand the test of eternity. They will not endure as long as the undying soul. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." And so we are not sent to tell you how to lay a foundation. We are not going to try to show you how you can improve the foundation you have been trying to lay on which to establish your soul, but we come to you in the name of the eternal God of Heaven, and point you to the only foundation, the Rock Christ Jesus. The God who has created you and placed within your bosom that precious, undying soul, has not left you to perish upon the shifting sands of time, but has established a sure foundation, an enduring Foundation, and that Foundation is Christ. Upon Him and Him alone the soul may rest in peace and safety. As we sing in the old Gospel hymn: "All other ground is sinking sand." And so the man whose life is not founded on the Rock Christ Jesus is the man without a foundation; he is the foolish man.

WITHOUT a foundation a building is unsafe, and certain of destruction when the storm descends upon it, and man without a foundation is unsafe. Unsafe! The fact that he does not realize his peril does not prove that his position is not unsafe. The man who a few years ago was swept over the falls of Niagara, with the careless laugh scarcely cold upon his lips, while his friends on the bank sought to warn him of his peril, was not kept from going down to death in the roaring, plunging waters, because he did not realize his peril. And the man without a foundation is in a position of peril, of awful peril, and in danger of plunging his soul into eternal ruin, even though he does not realize it. And the fact that the man without a foundation continues to prosper and flourish in this life does not prove that his position is not one of peril. This is one of the mysteries of life which troubles the Christian sometimes. The man without a foundation seems to have so much and to be so securely established, and the Christian who has a foundation has so little. This was what troubled the Psalmist. He says: "I was envious at the foolish, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked." Without foundation they seemed to have so much and to endure. But when he went into the presence of the Lord, "then," says he, "I understood their end. Surely Thou didst set them in slippery places; Thou castest them down to destruction." During the time of fair skies and gentle winds the house on the sand stood, but when the storm came it fell. During the few years of this life the man without a foundation may seem to get along pretty well, but when the storms of life settle down, and death cuts the soul off, then the awful lack of foundation is realized. The man without a foundation is in terrible peril.

BUT for this life, the man without a foundation is unstable in all his ways. The Psalmist in the first Psalm sharply draws the contrast between the man with a foundation and the man without. The former is like a tree planted deeply and firmly by rivers of water, "that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." But the man without a foundation is "like the chaff which the wind driveth away." He is tossed hither and thither. Inclination draws this way to-day, and circumstances and temptations drive that way to-morrow. There is no fixedness of purpose, because God is left out of the reckoning. Human reason, human judgments, human tendencies determine the life and conduct, and to-day the man stands in this position, or holds this view, or adopts this policy, engages in this enterprise, seeks this avenue of pleasure or diversion, and to-morrow has shifted to another position, he holds other views, has adopted another policy, engaged in other enterprise, or is rushing after the latest pleasure and diversion which the world in its infernal ingenuity has devised. The man without foundation is unstable.

Not many weeks ago there came moving through the streets of the section of the city where I reside a house. A house without a foundation. And it was on the move. As I passed it one evening with my little girl, she suddenly exclaimed: "Why, papa, there is someone living in it!" And sure enough there was. A house without a foundation sheltering its precious human lives. And many a human life without foundation is sheltering an eternal soul. And it moves on. Here to-day, there to-morrow, a perpetual menace to the precious soul it shelters.

BUT the house which was moving through the streets was being taken as direct as possible to a foundation which would support it and give it permanency. Would that everyone who hears or reads this message, who is without foundation, might be led to move upon the only Foundation, Christ Jesus. God is not going to push His Foundation under you and force you to stand upon it. You must leave your present position, and get over to where Christ is. Repent is God's message to you. The hard, unrepentant heart does not realize the peril of the sinking sand, but repentance opens the eyes of the soul to its desperate and lost condition in sin. God be merciful to me, a sinner," must be the cry. Repentance—sincere and genuine repentance—is the condition of heart which will break the fetters which bind you to the present position on the sand and will make you willing and eager to get upon the sure Foundation of Jesus Christ. And faith is the cable which will draw you and plant your feet upon the Rock. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved!" And if your faith is small, very small, you may come to Jesus as did that father long, long years ago, and cry: "Lord, I believe; help Thou mine unbelief." Ah, how great is God's mercy! It is able to reach to the depths of the mire of sin, and place the feet upon the Eternal Rock. Ah, how great is God's patience as He waits for sinful and lost man to turn from death to life, from darkness to light! He hears the faintest cry. His hand is outstretched to save.

BUT what does salvation through Christ mean? It means a new heart and changed life. The old heart has desires away from God. That is the reason Jesus told Nicodemus that he must be born again. But the new heart which God creates for the believer in Christ has a new and larger capacity for God. God's Word declares that "if any man be in Christ (that is, if a man by repentance and faith has become established upon Christ the Foundation) he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." The old man with its affections and lusts cannot become established upon Christ the Foundation. If the rich young man could have come into the Kingdom of God dragging his riches with him, he would gladly have come. And if many a soul, which is clinging to the old life, to its ambitions and its sins, could bring all those unholy things with it, it would quickly come. But the life established upon Christ Jesus must be the cleansed life. The new heart is the possession of the wise man whose life rests upon the sure Foundation. The foolish man without foundation knows no such possession. The new heart is part of the glorious transformation which God brings to pass in the life when it turns to the Rock Christ Jesus for salvation and refuge. How appropriate it is that upon the only sure Foundation God places the man with a new heart. The old heart is "deceitful above all things and desperately wicked," but the new heart which God creates is the center of the Divine life which is planted there and which God desires to have grow until it has attained unto the fullness of the stature of Christ. The Foundation for a purer and larger and better life. This is the building which it is God's purpose you shall place upon the Foundation He has laid for you.

THIS means the changed life. God never intended the Christian to go on living the old life of sin. The Foundation is worthy of more honorable superstructure. Right here is the battleground of the Christian. The man with Christ as his Foundation is the man who has conflict. There must be a striving to put off the old man and to put on the new. The changed life is the superstructure which graces and honors the Foundation, Christ. It is the gold and silver of a pure and holy life, it is the precious stones of loving faithful service which the Christian must build upon the Foundation. Paul goes on to declare that "every man's work shall be made manifest; for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." If it be gold and silver and precious stones, it will abide, but if wood or hay or stubble, it will suffer loss, and the soul will be saved "so as by fire." God intends every life which is founded upon the Rock, Christ Jesus, shall be the changed life. Would you dishonor Christ by clinging to the old life, by seeking delight and satisfaction in the old paths and old indulgences? Oh, what a low plane many of us live upon. We claim Christ as Saviour, but we do not live as though we were saved. We call ourselves Christian, but we cannot be distinguished by our conduct from the children of the world. We claim safety on the Foundation, but most of our time is spent down on the sand with the man without any foundation. No wonder reproach is brought upon the name of Christ, and the people of the world are but slowly brought to realize the peril of no foundation.

GOD calls the man in this life who is without foundation foolish, but when the day of grace has passed and the soul passes on into eternity, He calls him a lost man. Now, while the day of grace brings salvation nigh, He seeks to have the man on the sand mount to the Rock. Before the storm of God's wrath against sin breaks over the soul it may leave the shifting sand and find safety and security upon the everlasting Rock, but when the dark night settles down, it will be too late. Nothing then can save the man without foundation. The Foolish man has become the lost man, and only eternity will reveal all the horror and agony and anguish of the soul lost in its sin. The wise man who establishes his life upon Christ the only Foundation stands unmoved by the storm and blackness of death, for he is founded upon a Rock.

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee;
Let the water and the blood,
From Thy riven side which flow'd,
Be of sin the double cure:
Cleanse me from its guilt and pow'r.

"While I draw this fleeting breath,
When my eyelids close in death,
When I soar to worlds unknown,
See Thee on Thy judgment-throne;
Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

HAMBLETONIAN HISTORY.

Curious Incident of Long Accepted Falsity of Pedigree and Name—A Bit of Turf Record.

Hambletonian was a bull-like horse that was trained by Hiram Woodruff, but could never develop a speed equal to a mile in three minutes—3:13, to be exact, says John Gilmer Speed, in Century, being the best mile he ever did. As to his pedigree, Mambrino, the grandsire, was by Messenger; but he was worthless, and also vicious. He could neither run nor trot. He was bred by Louis Morris, of Westchester county, New York, and sold to Maj. William Jones, of Cold Springs Harbor, Long Island. As he was worthless and a serious disappointment, Maj. Jones virtually gave him away, and he was used as a traveling stallion at a small fee. John Treadwell, a Quaker farmer near Jamaica, Long Island, had two Conestoga, or Pennsylvania Dutch draft mares. Out of one of these mares by Mambrino, was born Andalah. This horse was so badtempered that he could never be broken to harness, but was ridden under the saddle. He had no speed either as a runner or trotter, not being able to do a mile in four minutes at any gait. He had a mule-like head and ears, a badly ewed neck, and a rat tail. But he was a Messenger, despite the Conestoga crossing, and he was sold to Kentuckians for $4,500. In less than six months the Kentuckians repented of their bargain, and sold him back to New Yorkers for $500—Messrs. Simmons and Smith, Bull's Head dealers, buying him as a speculation. This was in 1849. No purchaser could the speculators find at any price, and the stallion was virtually given away to stop expenses of keeping him. About this time Charles Kent wanted a new horse for his butcher wagon, and traded, through Alexander Campbell, of Bull's Head, his worn-out mare to Edmund Seeley, a farmer in Orange county, N. Y., for a steer for butchering. This butcher's mare had originally been sold to him by Campbell, who had obtained her in a drove of western horses, paying $40 for her. Her pedigree was quite unknown. This mare is known in American horse history as the Charles Kent mare, and is said to be by imported Bellfounder. She was in foal to Abdullah when Seeley got her, and the colt became the property of Bill Rysdyk, a hired man on Seeley's farm. Rysdyk looked around for a name for his colt—a name which should indicate the Messenger blood in him. There had been in the early years of the country a famous son of Messenger named Alexander Hamilton. This horse finally became known as Bishop's Hamiltonian. In his effort to borrow the name Rysdyk, being weak in orthography, called his horse Rysdyk's Hambletonian. And so he lives in history—false in his pedigree as in his name.

DIFFICULT POINT IN ETHICS.

The Woman Who Paddled Starts a Discussion Concerning the Proprieties of the Beach.

Fifty or more women in bathing costume were lolling about on the beach near one of Coney Island's best bathing places one afternoon lately. They were not, says the New York Sun, of the wayfaring kind that go down from the city with lunch boxes, hire a bathing dress, take their plunge and then hurry home to supper, but were mainly guests at hotels, cottages from Bensonhurst, tasteful wearers of their own garments.

A smaller number of men lounged on the sand with these women, and waited for the tide to rise to good swimming depth. For those who had eyes to see there was hosiery aplenty—blue and red and black, open work and shut, lisle and cotton and silk. If there was a knee in the crowd that was concealed by the skirt of a bathing suit it escaped attention.

Then a young woman strolled up and sat down to play with a little girl. She, too, belonged to the fashionable throng.

Her pale blue dress was well cut and fitted, her auburn hair was prettily coiled and cared for, and when, to please the child she prepared to go in paddling, it was a pair of silk stockings that she laid carefully over her patent leather ties and placed in a snug corner under the bathing pavilion.

The pretty blue skirt, held in both hands, rose six, then seven or eight, then, perhaps ten inches, but no more as the edge of the waves ran gently forward and backward about her feet and ankles and she, apparently all unconscious of the sensation she was creating, laughed and sported with the youngster.

But as soon as she was seen by the reclining men and women on the sand a ripple of "oh's" and "my's" and "Did you ever?" and "For heaven's sake!" ran up and down the adjacent beach. Some of the women hushed and tried not to seem to see, the frivolous giggled, the rest expressed their opinions audibly.

It wasn't long before the girl in blue, looking around, found herself the object of so much unpleasant staring and remark that she beat a retreat.

As she passed a group of four women and two men, all clothed for the water, whose conversation was obviously meant to convey to her ears their disapproval of her conduct, she paused and said:

"Ladies, I'm sorry to have shocked you. But if what I have done was immodest, tell me why what you are doing is modest?"

And she pointed to four sets of stockinged legs stretched upon the sand.

SOMETHING PRETTY BAD.

Great Railroad Pays the Bill of the Presidential Swing Around the Circle.

The Washington correspondent of the Providence Journal pays the following left-handed compliment to President Roosevelt: "It is a fact that on his recent tour the railroad company (the Pennsylvania) on which he started from Washington, and in which he returned, paid all the bills."

In view of the fact that the President had only a few weeks before he entered on this tour signed the union station act, which appropriated millions of dollars to that particular company, this is an exceedingly grave accusation. If it does not place Mr. Roosevelt in the same category with Littauer, Machen and Beavers, it certainly comes very near it. If the railroad company didn't bribe him technically, it certainly gave him a liberal reward for approving an unconstitutional and dishonest measure by which the people of the United States and the District of Columbia were grossly robbed.

The Springfield Republican of August 26, publishes under the headline, "The Cost of the Tour," a very severe criticism of the president's course in this matter. It is a subject which congress should not fail to investigate, lest its own members fall under the suspicion of sustaining similar relations to the same railroad company.

Every year the same railroad company entertains as its guests at Atlantic City all the correspondents of the great daily newspapers, paying not only traveling expenses, but all other expenses of those who accept its hospitality. And all the great newspapers, like the president, approved the legislation above mentioned.

It is also capable of proof that the railroad companies give free passes to congressmen, if not to judges; and we know that many congressmen—all the republicans in congress, at least, favored this legislation.

This method of procuring legislation without paying for it in advance may be properly called credit-bribery—action on the one part with the understanding that there will be reciprocal action on the other at a subsequent period.

It is fortunate for the democratic party that its members in congress opposed this railroad legislation almost unanimously.

THE TRUST BEING HURT.

Twice as Much Coal Being Imported Under Free Coal as in Any Previous Year.

The New York Times of August 31 contained an interview with Mr. George F. Baer, president of the Reading railway, in which he said that coal mines might have to be closed soon and miners thrown out of work because of the difficulty of getting rid of coal, especially of the steam size. The Times report says:

"He said that the plan he had inaugurated when he became president of the Reading of making a reduction of 50 cents a ton in April, and then advancing the price ten cents a month until the figure again reached normal by September 1 had worked very satisfactorily."

Yes, Mr. Divine-rights Baer, it does seem to have worked beautifully—for the coal trust. It is, however, a little hard on a few millions of us coal consumers who now have to pay higher prices for coal than ever before, except during and after the strike of last year. The retail price of anthracite at Washington is now $7.25 and at Chicago $7.50 a ton.

Immediately following the Baer interview, the Times contained a dispatch from Pennsylvania saying:

"The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company has issued a sweeping order closing every one of its washeries that produce small sizes, and other corporations and individual operators have followed suit. It is estimated that there are 2,000,000 tons of small sizes now in stock, for which there is little demand."

The inadequate demand for anthracite coal is said to be partly due to closed mills and to the increased use of soft coal for steam purposes. But the statistics of foreign commerce for the year ending June 30, 1903, offer some additional explanation as to this oversupply of hard coal. They show that we imported, last year, 3,818,189 tons of coal, or nearly 2,000,000 tons more than were imported in any previous year, and that of this amount 307,661 tons were anthracite. This is more than 100 times as much anthracite as was imported in any year since the Dingley bill taxing anthracite became law.

It appears, then, that free coal, while it has not compelled the hard coal trust to lower its prices for ordinary sizes of coal (and this is not strange when it is considered that there is nowhere else anthracite like ours—that is Baer's—to take its place), especialy at interior points, has compelled it to reduce prices of its smaller sizes used for making steam and which, therefore, compete with bituminous coal. Nearly all of this imported coal is consumed in New England and on the Pacific coast. It does a great deal to free manufacturers in these sections from the exactions of the hard and soft coal trusts now charging us two or three times a fair price for this bounty of nature. Possibly some mistake was made when the Almighty consigned this most valuable heritage to Mr. Baer to parcel out to the rest of us earth dwellers at so much per ton.

It will be observed that the excess of imports over former years (2,000,000 tons) just about measures the surplus stock of steam coal for which no market can be found, although prices have been reduced from 15 to 30 cents a ton for these sizes. How Mr. Baer must hate free coal! But he is lying low and saying nothing, for he knows that his republican friends in congress put coal on the free list only for one year and that bituminous coal will be dutiable again next January. He will not agitate this coal tariff again. But will the manufacturers and the people keep quiet?

Agricultural Hints.

NOTES ON DRAINAGE.

What Must Be Done in Places Where Artificial Underdrainage Is Necessary.

There are different conditions of soil where insufficient natural underdrainage is likely to result on land having a good slope to its surface. One is where the soil is very fine clay, with pores so small that water can pass through them but slowly. In removing the surplus water from such soils the natural pores are capable only of acting as laterals for a short distance. Artificial outlets or channels must be supplied at frequent intervals, into which they may empty. On similar slopes where the soil is more porous, the same amount of surplus water might be able to pass on through the pores of the soil to some natural outlet without causing any undue accumulation at any point. Another condition requiring the application of an artificial outlet is where a fine clay soil is overlaid by a more porous one as in Fig. 1. The water passing more readily through the upper soil will, in seeking its level, be carried into the finer soil much faster than it can get away. To produce this condition there need not be a very great difference in the porosity of the two soils, neither is it essential that the lower soil be an extremely fine grained one. It is simply a problem of trying to force the stream from a large pipe into a smaller one. Such a condition may occur where the slope is steep, or where it is very gradual. The result may vary from a slight interference with cultivation in very wet times to a constant boggy condition of a portion of the more impervious soil area.

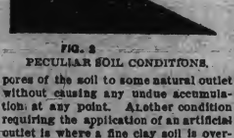

FIG. 2

PECULIAR SOIL CONDITIONS.

Still another condition that can be relieved only by artificial means is where a stratum of sand crops out at some place on a slope as in Fig. 2. The character of the soil overlying the layer of sand is immaterial. Whether closed or open, it will drain into the sand, which, being so very open, allows the water to flow readily to the nearest outlet. If the sand is coarse enough, the volume of water carried large enough, and the outlet is confined to one point, a flowing spring is the result. Otherwise a more or less wet condition exists on the slope below the outcrop, as at a. This condition is likely to extend for a long distance in a horizontal line around the stope. This water may be concentrated into a running spring and the wet condition of the hillside remedied by running a line of tile along the outcrop of the same stratum. A very common error in attempting to drain such a wet place on a hillside is to place the tile too far down the slope, as at a, where here is perhaps the most water in the surface soil. It will be readily seen from the figure that with such an arrangement the soil between the tile and the sand layers would still be wet, as the water would have to pass through it to reach the tile. The proper place for the line of tile is along the bottom of the sand stratum (at b) to catch the water before it enters the surface soil of the lower slope.—Prairie Farmer.

PRETTY FARM HOMES.

They Suggest a Happy Bird's Nest and Speaks of Contentment and Refinement.

I wish I could more forcibly impress on the mind of the farmer the value of attractive surroundings. Every farm home should be attractive. It is not necessary to have a fine house or fancy cottage, or expensive lawn fence to make the farm home pretty. To be sure, a neat fence, a few ornaments on the house and the free use of paint help mightily, but the chief attractions can be made of trees and shrubs. A shady lawn and a shady driveway are always attractive. Groups of trees, shrubs or flowers never fail to charm. The lawn may not be kept perfectly smooth, all the trees may not be cleanly pruned, yet the home place ornamented with them does not fail to convey the impression that peace and contentment dwell there. As a lady from the city said, "A pretty farm house suggests a happy bird's nest. We do not notice the dwelling so much as we do the surroundings. If the surroundings are pretty we know the interior of the house is all right and that it is the abode of love and contentment and all that makes life worth living. We look to the city for fine mansions, but to the country for pretty homes."—Home and Fireside.

Changing Stock in Pasture.

It is not best when it can be avoided to keep all kinds of stock in the same pasture, or keep one kind of stock in the same pasture too long at one time. The idea in changing is, that one kind of stock may like the kind of grass that another may not eat, and in order to lessen the waste as much as possible it is best to change. Usually sheep can follow cattle to good advantage, as they will eat much that cattle will refuse.

BREAK IN THE CRUST.

In Working the Soil Root Farmers Too Often Forget the Great Law of Capillarity.

When rain falls on heavy soils, the water penetrates it only slowly, as the spaces between the soil particles are very small. After the rain, the sun and the wind begin their work, and the evaporation from the soil causes it to form a crust. This crust, while preventing the air from reaching the roots of the plants, serves as a medium through which the water in the soil may the more readily pass of, without going through the plants The latter, therefore, often seem at a standstill in their growth. The water must not be permitted to pass out of the soil except through the plants, if we are able to prevent it, and we can to a large extent prevent this by breaking up the crusts as soon as they form. This generally occurs after a heavy rain. The heavier the rain the firmer the crust is likely to be.

We too often forget the great law of capillarity that is working in our soils. Those who have not given attention to this matter imagine that plants drink water in bulk. This is not true, at least for any length of time. When there is a down-pour a plant may take up water, if it be thirsty for it, but it is probable that it takes up water only in a certain proportion to its food. It cannot gorge its cells with water minus food. Most of the water it takes is drawn up from the lower portions of the soil by capillary attraction, and the film of water is surrounded by a larger bulk of air and by these two the plant food in the soil is made available for the plant. Now, the hard-packed soil is a soil with great power of drawing up water. Some one has described the sun and the wind as the pumps of the Lord to draw moisture out of the earth. The saying is largely true. But these pumps should be made by man to draw moisture out of the leaves of our plants, that growth may be accelerated.—Farmers' Review.

GRINDING MADE EASY.

Attachments Which Rob the Work of Sharpening Tools of Its Old-Time Terrors.

The kind-hearted mother who stipulated that her fond son should be in haying season be allowed to daily "turn the grindstone an hour to reet," has passed from this world's troubious scenes and I now provide for her great-grandson.

It is much more comfortable and a much better edge can be given to an impiement if one can sit on the grindstone frame and see the edge as it begins to turn.

In the cut, a b, is a seat, the upright board enabling one to get very near to his work without becoming wet. The height of the frame should be sufficient for the tallest person. The foot treadle can be adjusted to suit a short person by changing the bolt on leg and piston rod. A strip of bent iron will keep the treadle in position.

An old lead keg, with a faucet, hung over the stone, will regulate the water supply better than a trough placed under the stone. Grindstones, too, become soft and uneven by standing in water. The gum or dirt adhering to a stone can be removed by grinding a soft brick or placing fine sand on the wet stone. A ten-inch board should be suspended by a wire so as to prevent the operator's pants and shoes from becoming wet. If the grindstone has become small, raise it by putting a piece of joist between the frame and the mounting.—G. R. Drake, in Farm and Home.

Burning Straw Is a Waste.

It would almost seem impossible that there are still to be found farmers in the central west who adopt the practice of burning the straw. It is not surprising that this plan of getting rid of the straw was practiced in the early days, for the reason that soils in this belt were highly charged with vegetable matter, and indeed were in no sense improved by the application of humus. But the cropping of soils for a period of thirty or forty years works a decided change in the methods that are to be employed in their cultivation. The time has certainly arrived in the central west when it will not pay to burn straw.—Midland Farmer.

The Sheep as a Civilizer.

A speaker at a recent local growers' meeting eulogized the little animal with the golden hoof in the following interesting strain: "Sheep are always the advance guard to attack new and undeveloped territory. The first sheep and the first negro slaves that placed foot on what is now the United States of America were landed from the same fleet at St. Augustine September 5, 1565, 330 years ago. From that day to this the sheep has been the most universal live agent of the settlers in subduing the country and maintaining its productiveness; and whenever they have neglected them sterility exists as a monument to their folly."

KITES IN AID OF SCIENCE.

Governments of Denmark, Sweden and France Cooperate in Making Meteorological Investigation.

The first permanent station for kite flying in Europe, and the first in the world established under governmental auspices, is that at Viborg, in the extreme northern part of Denmark. Pioneer work in sounding the upper air with meteorological instruments which were carried up by kites was done at the Blue Hill observatory, near Boston, but that it is a private institution. It is worthy of note that the greatest altitudes yet reached by his method (about three miles) were attained there. Somewhat extended experiments have been made in the United States, too, under the direction of the Washington bureau, and while these may be renewed in the future, they have hitherto been brief, temporary and more or less disconnected. At Viborg provision has been made for more continuous exploration, the governments of Denmark, Sweden and France cooperating in the scheme. Delegates of international reputation in weather science from these countries met to fix the site and plan other details, says the New York Tribune.

The most important building at the station is a tower 33 feet high, mounted on circular rails, so that it can be rotated easily, and left open on one side. No matter from which direction the wind blows, the tower is turned with this gap to leeward. Thus the operator can eit within, where the windiasses are, and watch his kitee. The latter, of course, naturally take their linee down the wind. There are two windiasses, controlled by electric motore, one being held in reserve for immediate use in case the wire on the other breake while in service.

From an account which M. Teisserenc de Bori, the director, contributes to the latest number of "The United States Weather Review," it appeare that systematic work has been carried on since last August. An effort is made to fly the kites by night as well as by day, and the staff is divided into three sections, one relieving another every eight hours. The value of the data obtained is believed to depend largely on the continuity of the observations. Hence it is desirable to have self-recording barometers, thermometers and registers of humidity and wind force tell their stories as often as possible. For this special service all four types of instruments are combined in one, and this is placed in the outermost kite. Usually two or more kites are sent up tandem, the greater the number the higher the elevation reached. What the meteorologists want to study is the situation in the upper parts of "highs" and "lowe" as these drift over the country, and compare it with that at the surface of the earth at the same moment. Light on the structure and cause of storms, cold waves and other phenomena may be thus obtained, and accuracy of forecasting enhanced.

The great majority of the ascents have been to heights of 1,500 to 2,000 meters, or in the vicinity of a mile; but occasionally the kites go up 3,000 to 4,000 meters. The amount of wire which must be let out depende partly on the elevation of the kites, and partly on the angle which the string forms with a horizontal line. On an average the length of wire is 50 per cent. greater than the height attained. The duration of each ascent is mainly dictated by the strength of the wind. As soon as the predetermined amount of wire is run out, the windlass is set to hauling it in. A fresh instrument is substituted for the other one (the removal of whose records takes time), and the kites are started up once more.

In case of breakage, time is required for repairs; but there is always at least one extra instrument on hand. The apparatus is so adjusted in a basket that it will not suffer harm, unless it gets a heavy fall. A letter is attached to this, offering a reward of seven francs (about $1.40) to the finder for bringing it back. Then if a kite gets away there is a chance of recovering the property. Such luck has been enjoyed even when kites have drifted over 100 miles from the station. Once within 24 hours three inetruments, 15 kites and nearly nine miles of wire were lost in high winds. The more valuable part of the apparatus was afterward found.

Worthy of Imitation.

Among the many canine qualities worthy of imitation, a lover of the "four footed brothers" emphasizes their contented resignation to the circumstances of life. Dogs, he says, do not go about trying to do good to other dogs by urging them to bark in the same key and bite with the same tooth as themselves; nor, which is a merciful provision of nature, do they become bored by the people with whom their lot is cast and want to try a new master every few months. Whatever the disadvantages of their homes may be, they stand by them and make a cheerful best o. it. Over and again a dog puts his heart before his outraged stomach and lets his affections dominate his indigestion rather than desert his master for a better board. Many a master, concludes the dog champion, would do well to emulate in points like these the meanest of his "little yellow curs."

Protection for Books.

"We have to varnish all our books in my country," said a Chinese. "Otherwise they would soon be eaten into a gray powder by a little black insect, like a beetle, that takes to books as a cat takes to ashes. Everybody in China, when he receives a consignment of books from Europe or America, mixes a little pot of varnish at once and proceeds to coat his books with it. This fluid is a perfect protector; it is made of creosote, Canada balsam, resin, spirit of wine and mastic."—Philadelphia Record.

BARRED FROM HIS OWN HOME.

Watchman Refuses to Allow Senator Clark, of Montana, to Enter His New York Residence.

How Senator William A. Clark, of Montana, came to be kept out of his magnificent new New York residence by a watchman and how he had to leave without being able to show his new home to a party of friends, is a story over which workmen about the great palace have been chuckling. The residence has cost $3,000,000 already, and before it is finished may cost $3,000,000 more.

Senator Clark seldom sees his new palace, though he "O. Ks" all the bills. The supervision of the work is in the hands of Dr. Culver, Senator Clark's son-in-law. The last day Senator Clark was in the city before leaving for Montana he invited two women friends to go up and see his new house. One of his friends had a camera and was anxious to take some interior views of the palace.

Senator Clark went up the steps and was about to go in when he was stopped by a watchman.

"Where you going?" demanded the watchman.

"I'm going to look over the house," replied the senator quietly.

"Well, I guess not," retorted the watchman, emphatically. And he meant it, for despite all his efforts the senator failed to identify himself and was obliged to retire.

CANCER CURED BY RADIUM.

Malignant Growth Said to Have Been Eradicated in Vienna by Exposure to Its Rays.

Medical circles at Vienna are greatly interested in a report to the Viennese Society of Physicians to the effect that a long-standing case of cancer was cured by radium rays at the clinic of the late Prof. Gussenbauer. The patient, who was 61 years old, had suffered from cancer of the palate and lip and had been operated upon repeatedly. In 1902 the physicians of the Viennese hospital declared it was absolutely useless to operate again. One physician determined as a last resort to try radium rays and treated the afflicted parts by exposing them to the light of radium bromide rejoicing. So far, most of the scandals the strongest radium preparation in existence. He was rewarded by a gradual and complete disappearance of the tumors. Physicians have reported that radium rays had cured a case of melanosarcoma (a tumor containing black or other dark colored matter) and several cases of red mole.

COFFIN READY FORTY YEARS.

Pennsylvania Man to Be Buried in Casket Which He Made Himself Four Decades Ago.

Forty years ago Philip Altland, of York, Pa., then a young man living in the village of New Salem, constructed his own coffin. The other morning he died at his home in the village and he was buried in the coffin which has been waiting for him all these years.

It was made of hard, polished wood which Altland procured in Philadelphia, and is of a pattern such as was in use during the civil war. It is strangely unlike those used at the present day, being less ornamental and showed the effects of time, though Altland frequently made repairs to it and repainted it.

New Salem being at a distance from the railway, funerals have often been delayed because of difficulty in promptly securing coffins. Altland, who had once worked at the cabinet-making trade, resolved to be provided for when death came.

COMMODORE NICHOLSON OF OUR NAVY

Recommends Pe-ru-na—Other Prominent Men Testify.

Commodore Somerville Nicholson, of the United States Navy, in a letter from 1837 R Street, N. W., Washington, D.C., says:

"Your Peruna has been and is now used by so many of my friends and acquaintances as a sure cure for catarrh that I am convinced of its curative qualities and I unhesitatingly recommend it to all persons suffering from that complaint."—S. Nicholson.

United States Minister to Guatemala Endorses Pe-ru-na.

Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter, U.S. Minister to Guatemala, ex-member of Congress from Kentucky, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes:

"I am fully satisfied that your Peruna is an efficacious remedy for catarrh, as I and many of my friends have been benefited by its use."—W. G. Hunter, M. D.

Member of Congress From Virginia Writes.

Hon. G. R. Brown, Martinville, Va., ex-member of Congress Fifth District, 50th Congress, writes:

"I cheerfully give my endorsement to your Peruna as a cure for catarrh. Its beneficial results have been so fully demonstrated that its use is essential to all persons suffering from that disease."—Hon. G. R. Brown.

The day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true today of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low stations, that no one hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

The highest men in our nation have given Peruna a strong endorsement. Men representing all classes and stations are equally represented.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

For nearly 40 years Kentucky held a large claim against the United States, growing out of money borrowed and expended by the State government in the civil war. Numerous efforts had been made to collect this claim previous to the time Mr. Beckham became Governor of Kentucky, but all to no effect. He went to work determined to recover this money, and in a short time he succeeded, and at a very small cost as compared with that paid by other States for collecting their claims of the same character, and yet there are some who are making a great howl because the cost of collecting this claim was 5 per cent of the amount collected, while the per cent allowed by other states ranged from 10 to 25 per cent. From these figures it looks very much like Gov. Beckham handled the business for Kentucky to a much better advantage then it was handled for any of the other States.

From a recent report on agriculture in Germany, it appears that of the total agricultural area of 125,000,000 acres in Germany three-fourths are actually under the plow or in cultivation as meadows, pastures and hop gardens, and less than 1,000,000 acres are cultivated for market garden and vineyard produce. The area is divided into 5,500,000 holdings, and is principally in the hands of small peasants and farmers. These peasant holdings of from two and a half to five acres from the backbone of German agriculture.

It is strange what a perfect disregard for truth many correspondents of the large daily papers have when it comes to reporting a political meeting. The reporter whose party holds the meeting will say the attendence is not less than 15,000 and that the enthusiasm was tremendous, while the reporter of the opposite party will declare the attendance about 5,000 and the whole thing a regular frost. Seldom is a political meeting correctly reported.

Judging from the way the Democratic factions in Covington suspect and watch eachother, they have about the same confidence in eachother's political integrity as ex-Governor Bradley has in the political honesty of the Republican contingent that is in the saddle in Louisville.

The farmers are of the opinion that the price of hogs will be kept up because of the short corn crop. In this part of the county many persons have disposed of their hogs rather than take chances with a scarcity of corn.

It is said that the investigation of the U. S. postal scandals will end this week with the indictment of small "grafters." Just so. It would not do to bag any large game just at this time in the political game.

Tom Johnson and his red devil are loose in Ohio again. Johnson does not appear to be making much headway, politically, in Ohio, but it is generally believed that he is having a great deal of fun.

A Columbus, Ohio, mechanic claims to have evolved a rule by which a circle can be squared accurately. A mathematical problem that has been annoying the world from the beginning.

It is said that a New Jersey man, who had never been bitten by a dog, died of hydrophobia, the other day. The report is silent as to the kind of whisky he had been drinking.

Leading Indiana "gold" democrats are pushing the fight to secure a Cleveland delegation to the next national convention. Lively contests are expected.

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such in brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies. "I am on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Kidney and Liver troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by all Druggists.

BELLEVIEW.

Sept. 28.—James Rogers' residence will soon be completed.

Vegetables are high-beans, $1 25; potatoes, 50 cents; apples, 60 cents; corn, 12½ to 15 cents.

R. L. Lampton is talking of going to some place in Michigan to be treated with mud baths for his rheumatism.

Mrs. Jane Couner had as her guests, last week, Mrs. Alice McGlasson, of Covington; Mrs. Samuel McGlasson, of Charleston, South Carolina, and Mrs. Brewster and daughter, of Covington.

We are informed by a Covington peddler that the probability is the country peddlers will have to pay a license in that city next year. We do not doubt that an effort will be made along that line by the city government. A license on the country peddler would be an advantage to the city peddler, but how about the Covington merchants? If the farmers are compelled to go to Cincinnati to dispose of their produce, there is where they will buy their supplies, and they will not stop in Covington for as much as a drink of lager.

For Sale—A dwelling and blacksmith shop in the town of Bellevue, Boone county, Kentucky. This is a first-class stand for a good smith. Address Jos. M. Birkle, Hebron, Ky., or Birkle Bros., Burlington, Ky.

The citizens met in mass convention last night and nominated the following non-partisan ticket: W. T. Evans, Police Judge; E. L. Helms, Marshal, D. N. Bonduraut, Peter Keim John Botts and J. W. Snyder, Councilmen.

Wm. Green, a son of the late Edward Green, of Bellevue, died at the National Military Home in Washington, last Thursday, of cancer of the stomach. The authorities refused to permit his remains returned here for burial.

Our town is trying very hard to land a New York button factory which will locate at some point on the Ohio river, and we believe our chances for the factory are good. John W. Berkshire will donate two lots, and the town will contribute liberally, besides making the factory tax free for 15 years. It employs 75 people, and our high and healthy location makes very much in our favor, to say nothing about our excellent steamboat landing—the best between Cincinnati and Louisville. Besides our numerous local advantages in the way of health, etc., a bed containing tons of mussels has been found in the river, opposite here, and would provide an unlimited amount of material for the factory. Let us all pull together and secure the factory, which would be a great help to our town.

ERLANGER.

John Furlong, who is doing a big business writing life insurance in Covington, spent Sunday with his sisters, Misses Mary and Catharine, at this place.

John J. Rucker, one of the wealthiest farmers and stock raisers in the county, was in town last Monday. He was in consultation with Henry Quick, architect and builder, in regard to plans for an elaborate stock barn he will build, as soon as Mr. Quick finds time to undertake the job, and he is afraid that with all the hustling of which Mr. Rucker is capable he cannot get ready by the time he will want to begin work.

Obituary.

After a few short but most terrible hours of intense suffering, Miss Lola Haler, passed from earth to that great beyond on Sunday afternoon, September 20th, 1903.

The final summons, we are aware comes to us one and allalike, but when they appear in the midst of health, happiness and youth, it is indeed sad for one so lovely to be called upon to break all the ties that bind her to this world. In the very prime of girlhood, just blooming into what promised to be a beautiful young woman, so thoughtful in the wants of others, so free from care, so true to those about her, she has passed out of our lives forever—but there shall linger with us as long as life shall last, sweet remembrances of that dear face—of that voice, and, oh! how shall that step be missed,—no one can tell.

She has left us, but who would be so unkind as to want her back again. Her sufferings, her pain, her sorrows are all gone, while we live on, and so make our preparations to have life, death and that vast forever one, grand sweet song.

How Lola was held in every ones estimation was well told in the immense throng of people who attended the funeral at the Lutheran church last Tuesday morning.

Rev. Slater gave a short discourse which touched the hearts of all. He gave us those comforting words, "In my father's house are many mansions; I go to prepare a place for you. If it were not so I would have told you."

Mrs. Etta Gregler, her Sunday school teacher, lead the six young girls, who were her classmates, and intimate friends, and who acted as pall-bearers—Misses Bessie Lodge, Birdie Tanner, Callie Lee Clore, Eva Aylor, Ora and Flora Dye. Each carried a beautiful floral design as did their teacher, and on each beautiful rose fell the passionate tears that came from the hearts of these young ladies who loved her so well.

She leaves mother, father, brother, sisters and a host of relatives and friends to mourn this said bereavement. But God's will be done, and may those who have been so unexpectedly bereft of their loved one,

"Though I walk through the valley
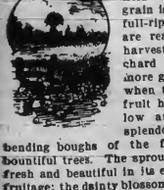
the shadow of death, for thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

Harvest Time and Some of Its Lessons



What Nature May Teach the Christian of Faith and Patience

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

Copyright, 1903, by J. M. Edson.

Chicago, Sunday, Sept. 27, 1903.

Text:—"Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not."—Gal. 6:9.

GLORY of Completion.—The crowning glory of the field of waving grain is the golden full-ripe ears which are ready for the harvest. The orchard is never more glorious than when the luscious fruit hangs in yellow and crimson splendor from the bending boughs of the faithful and bountiful trees. The sprouting grain is fresh and beautiful in its eager hope of fruitage; the dainty blossoms as they unfold upon the trees whisper hopefully of the days of harvest to come, but neither the growing wheat field nor the fragrant orchard can claim that glory which alone is the reward of ripeness and maturity. Nature is eager in her springtime of beginnings, she is patient and persistent in the summer-time of testing and growth, but she is magnificent and bountiful and satisfying in the glory of her harvest-time, for the harvest is realization, it is completion.

The artist does not find glory and fortune in the rough sketch, but in the completed and perfect work of art of which the rough sketch was the beginning. The inventor does not win the praise and approval of the world while yet his ideas of some great machine are crude and undeveloped, but when the completed machine performs the work for which it was constructed glory crowns the efforts of the maker. It is the returning, victorious army, and not untried troops, which enjoys the enduring glory of history's page. The conquest completed, the task finished, the device perfected, the enterprise concluded, are possessed of a glory which they could not know in their immature, imperfect state. My little daughter has just entered school. It was a pretty sight to see her start off proudly and enthusiastically, eager to begin her climb up the ladder of knowledge, but the glory of that beginning must be found in the graduation, ten or twelve years in the future, when she shall have finished the grade and high school work. If she would share in the honor and distinction of the graduation, she must endure the long years of plodding study. What joy, what satisfaction, what glory attaches to the thing completed! The harvest field, the ripening fruit of the orchard are eloquent in expression of this thought. The glory of completion!

IN the service for Christ, this is especially true. "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever and ever." There is the crown of life promised to the Christian who endures the fiery trial of temptation. There is the crown of righteousness which is promised to those Christians who are watching faithfully until their Lord comes. There is the crown of glory which fadeth not away promised to the faithful under shepherds when the Chief Shepherd shall appear. What a time that will be! I want to attend that magnificent coronation ceremony. When the faithful who have patiently turned many to righteousness shall burst forth in glory resplendent as the stars forever and ever and when they shall be crowned. What a picture to dazzle the Christian! Who is there that does not long to stand some day among the honored and glorified throng? The glory of the completion of the Christian course. Paul exclaims: "I have finished my course. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness." Jesus on the cross cried with His dying breath: "It is finished." And on the other side of that cross were the resurrection triumph and the ascension glory. When the course is run, when the mission is finished, when the duty is done, then comes the time of glory and rejoicing. The certainty of this day is the star of promise for the Christian.

BUT there is a day of realization nearer than the great final harvest time. There is the reaping here, as well as over there. The blessed privilege comes of seeing souls brought to Christ by personal effort. The word spoken, the deed of kindness performed, the duty discharged, bring forth their fruitage which God often permits us to behold here in this life. And how the glory of such fruitage rests as a halo upon the one who has not been weary in well doing, but who has persisted until the hardened and obstinate and sin-loving sinner has been won for Christ, has persisted in the hard way of duty until victory and success have been won. The Christian never shines more resplendently or glorifies his Lord more fully than when the harvest time has come, with its reaping of precious souls. But the weary days of waiting, and watering, and tending, have preceded. The hot sun of trial and persecution has beat down, the storm of criticism and opposition has raged about. It has been a long and hard journey between the time of sowing and the day of reaping. But God's promises are sure and His words: "In due season we shall reap, if we faint not," have encouraged to steadfastness. And at last the reaping has come. It is a delightful place to be, for it has cost something to get there. [illegible] another kind of reaping which has to do with the personal and inner life. The fruits of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. When we find these shining out in a Christian's life how beautiful and attractive and influential is that life! How prone the Christian who lives on a lower plane is to sigh and long that he, too, might be as beautiful and Christlike in character. The glory of such a character attracts him, and he would like to be as Christlike, but he forgets that there has been a putting off the old man with its affections and lusts, in order that the fruits of the spirit might grow. How often the Christian makes the start to develop these attributes in his life, but he becomes weary in the well doing, and fails to come to the time of reaping the fruits of the Spirit.

ENTHUSIASM of Beginnings.—It is easy to make the start. Enthusiasm marks the beginning. It is comparatively an easy undertaking to arouse enthusiasm; it is not hard to take the outer defenses of the enemy by the sudden assault, but it is quite another matter to hold the forces together and maintain the slow siege until the stronghold is captured and victory's banner is unfurled. Moses quickly aroused the enthusiasm of the children of Israel over the proposed colonization of the promised land, but it was the trying task of years to lead them through the wilderness and bring them to the plains of Moab, opposite to Jericho, the place of entering. Joshua had no difficulty in rallying all the people to the daily march around Jericho, but it was a constant struggle after the people were fairly settled in the land to stir them to the further conquest of the heathen nations still remaining. When the Midianites threatened the land and the oppressed people found a leader in Gideon, their enthusiasm brought together an army of 32,000 men, but only 300 were left when the battle cry of "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon" was raised. Many enter the race, but few finish the course. It is easy to begin, but it tests muscles, and lungs, and will power to cover the speedway, and score at the end. Enthusiasm thrills the many, and brings them together at the beginning of a movement or enterprise, but endurance measures the quality of that enthusiasm, and determines the kind and degree of fruitage. Enthusiasm is the spark which explodes the gunpowder, but endurance is the force which determines whether the cannon ball will hit the mark or fall ineffectively and harmlessly short of the point aimed for. Enthusiasm sparks and glows, but unless endurance fans and feeds the fire, it soon becomes a cold, dead ember, without influence or power.

WELL Doing.—Endurance in well doing. Well doing implies a right start and a steadfast course. Well doing is progressive. The farmer sows his field to-day, that is well doing. It is the right start. But to-morrow it is not the seeder again which he should run through the field, but the cultivator. The seed has been sown, now must follow the cultivation, the watching, the protecting, the patient waiting. The farmer cannot sow good seed in his field to-day, let the weeds grow there to-morrow and the next day reap the golden grain. And yet that is exactly what many a Christian is trying to do. Good seed is sown in the life to-day, but to-morrow the weeds of carelessness, of indifference, of sinful indulgence are allowed to grow, and in the time when harvest should be filled with the joy of reaping there is sad disappointment, and failure. Instead of wheat there is a harvest of tares. This is not well doing. Well doing does not find its full expression in beginnings. Each day well doing brings its new responsibilities and duties. You may not settle back and take your ease to-day, because yesterday the well done was written over the day. Some people try to crowd all their well doing in on Sunday, and expect the other days of the week are to go in the strength of that one day of service. Some Christians are zealous in the well doing in church and prayer meeting, and Sunday school, but utterly forget obligation in well doing in the home and in business and on the street. Let us not be weary in well doing, for weariness marks the departure from right to wrong paths.

"Yes! He knows the way is dreary
Knows the weakness of our frame,
Knows the hand and heart are weary;
He, 'in all points,' felt the same.
He is near to help and bless;
Be not weary, onward press.

"Look to Him, Who once was willing
All His glory to resign,
That, for thee the law fulfilling,
All His merit might be thine.
Strive to follow day by day
Where His footsteps mark the way.

"Look to Him, the Lord of Glory,
Tasting death to win thy life;
Gazing on that wondrous story,
Canst thou falter in the strife?
Is it not new life to know
That the Lord hath loved thee so?

"Look to Him Who ever liveth,
Interceding for His own;
Seek, yes, claim the grace He giveth
Freely from His priestly throne.
Will He not thy strength renew
With His Spirit's quickening dew?

"Look to Him and faith shall brighten,
Hope shall soar, and love shall burn;
Peace once more thy heart shall lighten;
Rise! He calleth thee return!
Be not weary on thy way,
Jesus is thy strength and stay."

THE Due Season of Reaping.—It is the fullness of God's time. Did you ever realize what this meant? Over and over again is this expression used in God's Word as referring to the operation of the Divine will and purpose. Man blunders, but God never. Man spoils by too early or too late reaping, but God always thrusts in the sickle at the right time. The due season of reaping is realized when there is patient waiting upon God. In the fullness of time God sent His Son into the world. In the fullness of time Christ was offered upon the cross as a sacrifice for sin. In the fullness of time He rose from the grave and ascended into Heaven; and in the fullness of time the Holy Spirit descended and filled the waiting disciples. God always acts with precision. This ought to cheer and encourage the heart of the Christian whose well doing is doing the will of God. No anxiety and worry because the day of reaping does not come. "In due season we shall reap," God says, and we can afford to wait. The farmer does not set the day of harvest in the springtime after he has planted his crop. He tends and cultivates the field and waits. Nature may bring an early harvest, or she may delay the maturing of the grain so that the day of reaping is a matter of great uncertainty, but all the farmer can do is wait until the right time has come, then the sound of the reaper and the thrasher is heard. God's promise of reaping in due season if we faint not ought to keep the Christian steadfast and hopeful through all the trying, dark days of waiting.

NOT only is the harvest timely, but it is proportionate. Much sowing and faithful cultivation will produce a larger crop than scant sowing and careless cultivation. "He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly," is the declaration of God's word. This is true in the realm of nature, and why should it be thought strange in the spiritual realm. Joash, king of Israel, shooting the arrow at the bidding of the prophet, Elisha, and his smiting of the ground three times and then staying his hand when he should have smitten five or six times, gives us a picture of the Christian who is half-hearted in his work of sowing. And because the sowing is half-hearted and scant, the reaping is in like ratio. Be not weary in well doing at the time of sowing of the seed nor afterwards in cultivating the crop, for weariness will lessen the yield. A blighted field is a sad sight. I remember during a period of drought passing through sections where the shriveled, parched and stunted corn gave no hope for the harvest time. The fierce heat had baked the ground and shrunk up the corn, and the Christian's fields are scarred and disfigured by the fierce heat of temptation and trial. Well doing would keep the blasting rays away from the growing crops, but having become weak and faint-hearted, temptation and trial win easy conquests. Be not weary in the well doing which guards the field after it is planted, which waters and cultivates the growing crop, which waits patiently until the due season of reaping, for the reaping is proportionate not only to the sowing, but to the faithfulness and patience of the cultivation.

THE ripened grain and fruits are a sum in addition. Into that kernel of wheat and into that yellow peach and rosy apple have been pressed the sunshine and cloud, the dew and the rain, the fresh air above and the soft nourishing earth beneath. Not a day can be spared out of its existence. Each day since the apple blossom had opened to the rays of the warming sun it has been busy developing and growing. Nourished by the parent stem, wet by the dew and kissed by the sun to-day, it has needed the next day and the next for further development and growth. And thus it has gone on and on. The half-grown apple has swelled to the proportions of maturity, the green dress has mellowed to a yellow hue tinged with crimson, its hard heart has softened to a state of edibility, and all because the necessary days have counted off to the due season of reaping. And so it is with the Christian. Each day, each experience, must add something to his life and character that will contribute to the day of reaping. All the days are needed. The sunshine of to-day, the rain and storm of to-morrow, the cold and the heat.

AND the ripened grain and fruits are a lesson in multiplication. Harvest time brings with it the possibilities of future harvest days. The kernel of wheat under proper conditions may multiply itself manyfold. The grain as it crowds the bin after harvest rustles in its impatience to be out again and performing a newer and larger mission. The Christian's time of harvest is his commission to larger and better effort. The time of reaping is not the time of cessation of labor. It marks the call to more sowing, more patient cultivation and more certain reaping. The harvest gathered is warrant for the preparation for the harvest yet to be. "Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

Opium Smoking in Paris.

For some time past doctors in France have been warning the public against the dangers of the latest craze—opium smoking. The habit has been introduced by officers and others home from Indo-China, and gradually extended to society at Marseilles and Toulon. After being adopted in other seaports, the mania has now reached Paris, where it is reported to have widely spread.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Little Pointers That Will Make the Work Go Off More Easily—Ways and Means.

To make beets peel easily plunge in cold water as soon as they are boiled, says the Chicago Daily News.

If one desires eggs to keep well, place them upright; otherwise the yolks will cling to the shell and spoil.

It is said that a pinch of saltpeter added to the water in which cut flowers stand will make them keep fresh longer than otherwise.

To remove stains of paint or varnish use a fluid composed of five parts of alcohol, three parts ammonia and one-quarter benzine. Do not use near lighted gas or lamp.

To open oyster shells easily just place the oysters on the warm kitchen stove for a second, then insert the knife between the thin portion of the shell and it will open easily.

Bronze may be renovated and recolored thus: Mix one part of muriatic acid and two parts of water. Free the article from all grease and dust and apply the mixture with a cloth. When dry, polish with sweet oil.

Patent leather boots should never be cleaned with blacking. They should first be wiped with a damp sponge to remove dirt and then thoroughly dried and polished with a soft cloth. A very little oil or fresh butter may occasionally be used as a dressing.

To make a clam cocktail take a little Worcestershire sauce or catsup, horseradish, salt, pepper and the juice of a lemon and beat with a little chopped ice in a bowl that has been chilled. Place six small clams in each glass and pour a little of the dressing over them. The glasses should have been chilled first.

To exterminate carpet bugs take three ounces of common salt, one ounce of alum, one ounce of chloride of zinc. Make a solution with two quarts of water and let it stand one night in a covered vessel. Next morning pour the liquid off the drugs. Dilute with two quarts of water and sprinkle the edges of the carpet for a distance of ten or 12 inches from the wall. The bugs will leave and the carpet will not be injured.

HIS BETROTHAL.

A Tale Showing That Authorship Sometimes Develops Awkward and Embarrassing Situations.

When Fredrika Bremer, the Swedish novelist, was traveling in America, she took the liberty of talking with all kinds of strangers, and asked kindly but very personal questions. One day, in going from New York to Washington, says Lippincott's Magazine, she sat beside a young mechanic, and in her desire of obtaining information, began to question him:

"What is your name?"

"Jonathan Brewster, mum."

"How old are you?"

"Just 24, mum."

"Are your parents living?"

"No, mum."

"Are you married?"

"No, mum."

"What work do you do?"

"I am a bricklayer, mum."

"How much do you make at your trade?"

"Two dollars a day, mum."

"You do not drink, I hope?"

"No, mum, I'm a teetotal."

Then, to her amusement, the young workman turned about and put the same questions to her. She answered them with the greatest frankness and good nature, and at Philadelphia, where she was to stop over, she left him. That day, after dinner, a waiter came to her in the hotel, with the information that a young man wanted to see her.

"I know no one here," said she. "There must be some mistake."

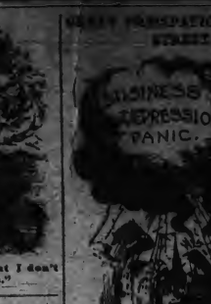
"He says he came over with you from New York. His name is Jonathan Brewster."

"Oh!" laughed the lady. "Well, you may tell him I am tired, and he really must excuse me."

Presently the waiter was back again.

"Miss Bremer," said he, "that young chap won't go. He says you never could have tried to send him away, for you want to marry him. He says you asked him about his circumstances, and told him you were single, and that you made a lot of money. So he thinks he'd rather live in Sweden with a rich wife than slave here for two dollars a day."

A Fashion Fancy.



The smart girl has a new use for heavy silk cord. She is again demonstrating her cleverness by converting it into a novel coreage-decoration. The silk cord is thick and preferably black, and here and there she sews to it big black passementerie bulle. These balls are sometimes of silk, and sometimes are studded with jet beads. To look effective the cord should be at least five yards long. She winds it loosely about her neck, crossing it in the back, and keeping one end longer than the other; she does the same thing over and over again, until she has four loops arranged in festoon-fashion over the front of her waist, with each loop longer than the last. After she has made four loops, she ties the two ends at the left side in a bow, the ends of which are either finished with black silk tassels or passementerie balls. This cord corsage-decoration gives a touch of charm and newness to a plain waist, and is a happy variation from the bead chains.—Woman's Home Companion.

"What's the matter with him?"

"He's a fisherman who [illegible]

DISORGANIZED REPUBLICANS.

Rats Leaving the Sinking Ship and No Prophet Can Foretell the Outcome.

The republican leaders seem to be unable to agree on what legislation is necessary by the coming congress. President Roosevelt demands that Cuban reciprocity shall be first attended to, and has declared that he will call an extraordinary session of congress for that purpose.

The republican leaders in the senate are opposed to reciprocity legislation, and Senators Aldrich, Platt, Depew, Hanna, Quay and Spooner have all advised the president not to call an extra session of congress this fall, and they are known to be opposed to the president's policy. The president has declared that such legislation shall pass, "as sure as fate," and will doubtless send a message to congress recommending it. On the necessity for financial legislation there is a like division of sentiment, and even those who desire a change in the law are hopelessly divided on the scope of the alterations that should be made. On the trust issue, the president has declared for publicity, but is very slow at putting it in practice, and a majority of the republican leaders are for letting it alone, so anti-trust legislation will be at a standstill. On tariff revision the party is more nearly united, but a minority of congress that are being pressed by their constituents, will demand that some of the tariff schedules be revised and if no recognition is vouchsafed them, declare they will carry the fight into the republican national convention. That this tariff revision and anti-trust element will not meet with any success, unless they join with the democrats, is perceptible to the veriest tyro in the political arena, and most of them are merely playing that way to fool voters.

The Panama canal is another matter upon which the republican politicians are at odds, their leaders in the senate who are controlled by the transcontinental railroad are secretly opposed to any canal, others favor the Nicaragua route, and, in consequence, nothing has been accomplished.

There is, however, legislation that the republicans unite upon with the utmost celerity. They all favor "the old flag and an appropriation" and official graft and loot for themselves and their political strikers, and they unanimously agree that the crops would not grow and hard times would result from a democratic victory.

The republican leaders also pretend to be unanimous for the nomination of President Roosevelt, yet more than half of them are really opposed to him. The cohesive power of public plunder holds them together, but the long-headed ones like Root and Quay know that the end is near and are leaving the rat-infested ship. There is a universal unrest, and even the chief of the prophets, if in the flesh, could not predict what the present republican president or the coming republican congress will do. Talk of democratic disorganization and reorganization, why it is infinitesimal compared to the republican factional disagreements. Every democrat is united upon opposition to trusts, upon tariff reform, upon equal taxation and upon equal rights to all and special privileges to none, and that is the winning platform.

The President's Omissions.

President Roosevelt is not a man to inspire venomous hatred. He is too much of a poseur and an opportunist. We doubt if even Mathew Quay and Thomas Platt dislike him heartily. In sport he goes in for big game, bears and mountain lions and other large beasts of size and reputation, but in politics he blazes away at abstractions or confines his fire to petty individuals who can be made a safe sacrifice on the altar of public justice. He resembles the preachers who inveigh against Pharaoh and the ancient Jews and never, figuratively or otherwise, "point a bony forefinger" at some member of the congregation and say coldly: "Thou art the man." In a contemporary magazine he is described as a "man of inapplied maxims." This is certainly not "venomous" and is in some regards exaggerated, for in some of his maxims about the strenuous life and the avoidance of race suicide he applies to his own case. But his maxims about the trusts and Cuban reciprocity and the duties of citizenship and the like seem to be for oratorical purposes chiefly and these definite application to be indefinitely postponed.—Hartford Times (Ind.).

——For a practical politician of national prominence Postmaster General Payne is exhibiting a remarkable propensity for committing irretrievable and most dangerous political blunders. No sooner is he through explaining his premature characterization of the scandal which has already resulted in a dozen indictments as "hot air" than he finds himself involved in a scarcely less compromising complication over the use of the spoils system in Delaware. Will it stop at wall street?

SHAW'S CURRENCY SCHEME.

Loans More Millions Without Interest—The Administration and Wall Street.

The amateur statesman and financier who has been placed by the republican leaders in charge of the United States treasury has been adding to the amusement of the world by telling how he would settle the currency question and how he would build up American shipping. If theorizing about what he would do, if he had the power, was all there was to laugh about, Secretary Shaw could go on with his vaporings and no harm would be done. As secretary of the treasury, he has, however, enormous opportunities for mischief and his zeal for the Wall street bankers, born of numerous interviews with the astute masters of finance who control the money and stock markets, has led him to violate the plain enactments of congress. Secretary Shaw, at the evident bidding of the stock gamblers, has been and is doing the very acts that the Aldrich bill that congress refused to pass, would have authorized.

That Secretary Shaw is entirely incapable of comprehending the simple law that governs the movement of money is shown by his extraordinary efforts to increase the currency volume. With one hand he deposits with the banks the treasury surplus, and with the other is retiring circulation, which the banks find it profitable to do, as the bonds that secure it have so advanced in price that the banks find it is more profitable to sell them. The increased premium on bonds has been brought about by the demand for them as security for the surplus cash Mr. Shaw is loaning to favored banks without interest. So far as increasing the money supply goes, this is merely loaning Peter to pay Paul, the only restriction being that the retirement of bank circulation is limited to $3,000,000 a month.

Secretary Shaw has evaded, if not disobeyed, the law that provides for public money being deposited with banke, by depositing $3,000,000 with the St. Louis banks without requiring them to deposit United States bonds as security. In this case he accepted state and municipal bonds as security and bankers all over the country are demanding, on the same terms, their share of the $40,000,000 that Secretary Shaw says he will loan, besides the $156,000,000 already loaned.

It is rather discouraging to those who believe in a strict construction of the law in all that relates to the care of the public money that the evasion of the law in the interest of the bankers by the secretary of the treasury is indorsed by President Roosevelt. It shows the desperate condition of at least some of the banks that the president has been forced to yield to their importunities for help. It likewise shows that the boasted independence of the present administration of the money power and Wall street, if such ever existed, has been adjusted for political reasons and that the old alliance between the republican leaders and the banks, trusts and corporations is in full force and effect. It is not difficult to believe that for these loans, without interest, of nearly $200,000,000 of the people's money, they will return ample interest to the next republican campaign fund in which President Roosevelt has such great personal interest.

Shaw's Currency Idea.

When President Roosevelt discovered Leslie M. Shaw and announced his purpose to appoint him secretary of the treasury he gleefully proclaimed that he had found another Abraham Lincoln. Now, Mr. Shaw has many of the accomplishments of a plain, old-fashioned person; but he is not Abraham Lincoln. If he were, he would go at the question of circulation with plain direction, and would strike at the root of the difficulty without showing any fear of the "financiers." If it became the duty of the government to provide an "elastic" circulation, he would advocate the direct action of appealing to the pawnbrokers. If he found there was too much revenue locked up, and that the money was needed in the circulation of the country he would urge congress to reduce the taxes.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——Secretary Shaw predicts that prosperity will not cease; but neglects to tell us whether he means the prosperity of the post office grafters, the Indian land scoundrels, or the Gloversville contingent.—Albany Argus.

——With the fat surplus in the treasury, the demand for improvements in various parts of the country and the willingness generally of congressmen to help each other out, there are indications that the running [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

NEAT SCENIC EFFECT.

When Properly Constructed, Which, However, Is Rarely the Case, a Rockery Is Beautiful.

An attractive scenic effect may be given to the surroundings of a home by a rockery, planted with a variety of ferns. There may be arranged the delicate maidenhair and the wax leaf, dark green ferns, which retain their color all winter, and when the warm south winds lead one's thoughts to the coming spring.

Being nearly cut off from the ground water, plants in a rockery will suffer from dryness unless well cared for, and it is well to place it in a partial shade —on the north side of the house among the pines or arbor vitæ, or in some nook protected by maples or elms. Many wild flowers that love the shade will be found appropriate to grace the rockery, such as anemones, dog-tooth violets and lady slippers.

Dark, angular, moss-covered stones from the woodland may be piled up in an irregular way, with moist leaf-mold worked in the interspaces, taking care that the soil mass shall extend to the ground.—A few flat stones may be arranged to advantage, so as to catch the rain water and lead it to the plant roots, thus aiding nature in maintaining moisture. It will have to be well watered at first, until capillary action is established with the subsoil. To give a natural effect to the whole, masses of stone may be scattered about in a haphazard way, and planted with beauty of the woods. Too systematical an arrangement is to be guarded against if the native grace of the home of this class of plants is to be preserved.

The editors of the Country Gentleman emphasize the concluding sentence of the above article. As a general thing, they have just one suggestion to persons about to construct artificial rockwork—don't! In nine cases out of ten the result will be something like Fig. 1.

An ugly pile of stones, obviously not the arrangement of nature, placed where nobody wants stones either for utility or for beauty. But of course the effort to secure natural grace and picturesqueness is sometimes successful. The structure should look something like Fig. 2.

As a general rule, it should not be placed on level ground, but on the side of a slope, bank, or side of a ravine —just at those places where, in nature, beds of rocks are apt to protrude. It should be shaded by trees, and the rocks themselves should be partly covered with plants growing in their crevices; climbing and trailing plants are especially appropriate. It often happens that rocks of suitable character may be found already on the spot; and all that is necessary is to improve what nature has furnished, by the introduction of plants, and by clearing away whatever is offensive. Where the rocks are to be furnished, they must be large and massive—the larger the better—weighing a ton or more. On the banks of a small stream rocks are always interesting; and a small cascade dashing among them, or a rill trickling down their sides, in the midst of occasional plants in flower, gives them a very pleasant character.

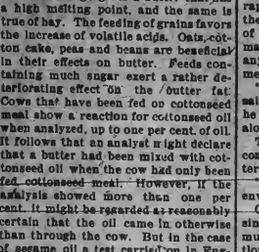
Horses Like to Walk Fast.

The walk of a young horse is largely influenced by the driver. Even on the farm, if you put a horse into the care of a slow, idle man, and if a young horse is driven by a slow, careless man anything like a considerable time, the animal will acquire a habit of slow motion that will be difficult to overcome. In a majority of the cases a slow, trailing gait makes really harder work for the horse. A moderately quick walk, with at least all ordinary farm work, exhausts the animal less than a slow, poky gait.

FOOD AFFECTS BUTTER.

Fatty Matter Is Also Recognized by Scientists and Dairymen Here and Abroad.



Butter product of a cow cannot be increased by feeding fatty substances, but the quality of the butter can be always affected in that way. For this reason the chemists are having no little difficulty in determining the purity of butter when the cows have been fed on certain foods, such as oil cake. It is found on analysis that toward the end of a cow's lactation the volatile acids in the butter fat become few. It has also been found by a Swedish professor that cows exposed to cold and wet weather give butter fats that have in them a comparatively small amount of butyric acid. Even the Dutch butter made in the fall of the year when the nights are cold and weather conditions bad have such a small amount of volatile acids in them that it has often been supposed that the butter was mixed with oleomargarine. We have not infrequently seen butter in this country that appeared to have no more flavor than oleo. In fact the writer was so sure at one time that he had been sold oleomargarine for butter that he sent a sample to the Michigan agricultural college for analysis. It proved to be pure butter. When pasture conditions are good the proportion of volatile acids is high and this gives a butter of high flavor. When the cows are stabled and well fed in winter the volatile acids again appear in the butter to an appreciable extent. Nearly all foods have some influence on the flavor of butter.

Green fodder gives a butter that is low in the melting point and quite rich in volatile acids—therefore it has high flavor. It is somewhat surprising to note that silage gives a butter that has a high melting point, and the same is true of hay. The feeding of grains favors the increase of volatile acids. Oats, cotton cake, peas and beans are beneficial in their effects on butter. Feeds containing much sugar exert a rather deteriorating effect on the butter fat. Cows that have been fed on cottonseed meal show a reaction for cottonseed oil when analyzed, up to one per cent of oil. It follows that an analyst might declare that a butter had been mixed with cottonseed oil when the cow had only been fed cottonseed meal. However, if the analysis showed more than one per cent it might be regarded as reasonably certain that the oil came in otherwise than through the cow. But in the case of sesame oil a test carried on in England showed no reaction for that oil after the sesame cake had been fed for two months. In some of the countries of Europe sesame oil must be put into oleomargarine so that it can by that means on analysis be distinguished from butter.—Farmers' Review.

HOLDER FOR MILK CANS.

A Simple Contrivance Which Assures Cleanliness and Saves a Lot of Annoyance.

bottom washed without lifting the can. Drive two stakes, a a, in the ground, and in each place a bolt, b b, so it will fit into the handle of the can, c. The can will swing readily or may be taken down.—W. A. Sheaf, in Farm and Home.

TIMELY DAIRY NOTES.

Beat time, but don't beat the cow.

The summer silo is cheaper than pasture any day.

It is not a good plan to paint a silo on the inside.

If you trust too much to pasture, dry weather may make havoc with your profits.

Keep the cow stable whitewashed and have no manure about to impart its effluvia to the milk.

Water the calf. It gets dry. Have some shade for it and some grass or hay; it will say thank you by growing and will make a better cow or ox.

There is but one criterion of fine quality of cream; it must be sweet and fresh, so that it can be pasteurized and cooled. It should be handled every day in summer and every other day in winter, to the skimming or cream receiving station.

To make a cow specially profitable for beef, while supplying milk for a small family, let the cow be disposed by nature to heavy quarters, as Herefords, Holsteins, Durhams and come in early and be continued in milk from year to year, with no other calf.—Farm and Home.

Timely Dairy Criticism.

One of the German agriculturists recently touring in this country criticised the placing of a hand separator in the middle of the dairy barn, and stated that the German law would forbid the placing of a separator in such a situation. Why? Because of the liability of the cream to absorb barn odors, with consequent lowering of the quality of the butter. They evidently believe in preventing the introduction of off flavors in the milk instead of relying on the ability of the butter maker to get them out afterward.

CREIN LIKE A GAME.

It Was Tentatively Objected To, But the Performance Kept It Going Right Along.

Dingenvort was tired and went to bed early, consequently he was not pleased when he was awakened from his first stage of slumber by the sound of a serenade in the alley. It was a man's voice singing and the voice in itself was not particularly unpleasant, relates the Chicago Daily News. What disturbed him especially was the monotony of the melody and the rapidity with which the words were uttered in some unknown tongue. It was more of a chant than a song and it continued without a breathing pause—longer than Dingenvort could have imagined possible. "There's one comfort about it," he reflected; "it can't last long at that rate."

That consolation had scarcely occurred to him when suddenly another voice took up the chant without the break of a note in the connection, while the first one ceased. It was the same sustained gabble and the same seesaw of a tune. From time to time a continuous shout of laughter, pitched in many keys, came from the alley, but through it all the song continued.

"Mighty odd," thought Dingenvort. "I wonder how long that confounded row is going to keep up?"

He got up and raised the window. He saw half a dozen men grouped around the singer, who looked up at the sound of the opened window but did not stop for an instant. Dingenvort watched him curiously and in a minute or two saw him drop out of the circle, while a third man advanced, singing if possible even more rapidly than the others had done. By the light of the street lamp at the end of the alley Dingenvort saw a policeman stop and listen without making any attempt to bring the entertainment to a close.

"I'm not going to stand for this," said Dingenvort. "Here, you fellows!" he called. "Cut that out and move along."

The men looked up, but the song continued amid fresh bursts of laughter.

"Raus mit you!" shouted Dingenvort. "Allez! Git! Vamos!"

One or two of the men clapped the singer on the shoulder, and with much merriment directed his attention to the indignant householder. But the singer was not to be interrupted until a fourth man took his place; then he stepped back with a gleam of white teeth directed upward at the man at the window.

"Hey, officer!" shouted Dingenvort, and the policeman moved forward. The man who was now singing saw him, but the torrent of gibberish that burst from him seemed to double its rate of speed. It was like the crackle of a gatling gun. The policeman was now close to him and he backed away a little, still singing, and it was only when he felt the policeman's hand on his shoulder that he stopped, and the instant he did so his companions pounced on him with noisy mirth and bore him away down the alley at a run.

"Well!" gasped Dingenvort, as the policeman stood looking after them. "What kind of a lunatic asylum do you call that, officer?"

"It's a game they have," explained the officer. "I've heard 'em many's the time. One of 'em starts it an' when he's got to some word the next takes it up an' the man that quits or doesn't come to time sets 'em up to the gang. They're some kind of foreigners."

"Why didn't you stop them before?" demanded Dingenvort.

"Why should I?" said the policeman, tolerantly. "They're good-natured an' 'tis their way. We can't all be Irishmen."

Dingenvort shut the window and went back to bed. "There are some disadvantages in living in a cosmopolitan city," he told himself.

THE NOVELETTE HERO.

Story Writer Defends Cheap Modern Fiction Against the Charge of Dangerous Sensationalism.

One who confesses himself "the father of many of them" writes a defense of the novelette hero in the columns of "V. C." He takes the line that the charge of dangerous sensationalism is undeserved, and only comes from those whose opinions have been formed on the subject by a cursory study of the novelette in its infancy. He admits frankly that the romantic interest of cheap modern fiction of to-day bears very little relation to the facts of life, but this is a charge, he declares, which can be levelled with equal truth against the popular novels which literary journals treat with high seriousness. The novelette hero is almost invariably a man of action, whose doings stimulate unsophisticated readers to fine things and clean thoughts, while almost always he is the champion of truth, honor and religion. There is no pessimism in the novelette, and the enormous sales of this humble form of fiction may therefore be taken as a testimony to the inherent optimism of the English people. Love is its main interest, action is its setting, and its conclusion is always immaculately happy. What strikes us most about the novelette, perhaps, is the ability shown by the writers. It is common knowledge that many of them have only just fallen short of attaining success in the higher fields of literature. For the rest we are disposed to agree with the writer of the article that the charge of dangerous sensationalism is undeserved.

TOOK RISK IN COUGHING.

Barber Used to Shaving Colorado Consumptives Always Gave Warning.

The man in the chair coughed suddenly and unexpectedly, states the Philadelphia Record. "Don't do that again," exclaimed the barber, with an unwarranted display of irritation. The man in the chair resented in somewhat lurid language this restriction of his personal liberty and intimated that he would cough whenever he felt like it. "All right, then, cough your head off, but don't blame me if I cut you," returned the barber. There was no more coughing, however, and the man in the chair made his escape without any injury. But, as he paid his check at the desk, he remarked to the boss barber:

"Say, you want to give some nerve tonic to the fellow who just shaved me."

"Oh, don't mind him," replied the boss. "He's from Colorado and he's used to shaving consumptives. He was telling me the other day that he's been in the business for over 20 years and has shaved everything from a 16-year-old boy to an octogenarian drunkard, but his nerve went back on him when he drifted into Colorado Springs and started to shave the consumptives who hang out there. Ever since then a man with a cough gives him cold chills. Opt there, he tells me, not a day goes by that some 'lunger' doesn't get a gash in his throat while being shaved."

"I Found It So."

McCormick, Ill., Sept. 28th.—Miss Ethel Bradshaw, of this place, has written a letter which is remarkable for the character of the statements it contains. As her letter will be read with interest, and probably with profit by many women, it has been thought advisable to publish it in part. Among other things Miss Bradshaw says:—

"I had Kidney Trouble with the various unpleasant symptoms which always come with that disease, and I have found a cure. I would strongly advise all who may be suffering with any form of Kidney Complaint to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which I have found to be entirely satisfactory.

"This remedy is within the reach of all and is all that it is recommended to be. I found it so, and I therefore feel it my duty to tell others about it."

Dr. Daneway, of Bentan, Ill., uses Dodd's Kidney Pills in his regular practice, and says they are the best medicine for Kidney Troubles. He claims they will cure Diabetes in the last stages.

WORN OUT, DRAGGED OUT,

Are Most Women in Summer. —Pe-ru-na is a Tonic of Efficiency.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 423 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"As Peruna has done me a world of good, I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hope that it may meet the eye of some woman who has suffered as I have.

"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."—Mrs. Tressie Nelson.

JOSEPHINE MORRIS, 236 Carroll St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna is a fine medicine to take any time of the year, but I have found it especially helpful to withstand the wear and tear of the hot weather. I have taken it now for two summers and feel that it has kept my system free from malaria, and also kept me from having that worn-out, dragged out look which so many women have.

"I therefore have no hesitancy in saying that I think it is the finest tonic in the world."—Josephine Morris.

Peruna is frequently used as a mitigation of the effects of hot weather. What a bath is to the skin, Peruna is to the mucous membranes. Bathing keeps the skin healthy, Peruna makes the mucous membranes clean and healthy. With the skin and mucous membranes in good working order, hot weather can be withstood with very little suffering.

Frequent bathing with an occasional use of Peruna is sure to mitigate the horrors of hot weather. Many ladies have discovered that the depression of hot weather and the rigors they have been in the habit of attributing to malaria, quickly disappear when they use Peruna. This is why Peruna is so popular with them. Peruna provides clean mucous membranes, and the clean mucous membranes do the rest.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

FOUR Jefferson county distillers have been fined at Frankfort for failure to make proper reports to the State Auditor.

WERE Curtis Jett permitted to say as to which of the two criminal judgments he would prefer having executed, there is no doubt as to which one he would select. So long as there is life there is hope.

ANONYMOUS publications for campaign purposes are not worthy of any consideration whatever. They generally present a case that exist only in the mind of the author who dares not allow himself be known.

BEGINNING with 1901 the Kentucky prisons have produced an income to the State rather than being maintained at a loss. For three years the Republican deficit was $320,757, which in three years the present Democratic administration has reduced to $12,703.

IN Russia 2,810 men in every million are annually called into the army; in Germany 4,120; in France, 5,620. To get so large a number of Frenchmen weaklings have to be taken. This makes the mortality in the French army three and a half times that of the German army.

DEMOCRATS should bear in mind that precinct meetings will be held October 10th for the purpose of selecting delegates to the district convention which will be held in Walton on October 13th to nominate a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney. Let every Democrat in the county attend the meeting in his voting precinct on October 10th at 2 o'clock p. m.

THE jury that tried Curtis Jett at Cynthiana, last week, for the murder of Thomas Cockrell, of Jackson, found him guilty and fixed his punishment at death. Only a few weeks ago Jett was given a life sentence for the assassination of Marcum. It is very seldom that a criminal has both a life sentence and a death sentence hanging over him at the same time.

WHEN Gov. Beckham made the bargain for the collection of Kentucky's claim against the United States, he made a better bargain in favor of Kentucky than was made for any of the other states for the collection of a like claim. He got the work done for 5 per cent, whereas the other States paid from 10 to 25 per cent. No for campaign purposes were over made in any of the States where the greater per cent was paid.

THE Kenton county Democratic primary election is past, and some of the candidates were very much disappointed at the result, and sheriff McInerny, leader of the defeated faction, has sworn allegiance to the Republican ticket from Governor to Constable. But that does not surprise anybody, as he was known to be just that kind of a cat. They need more Democrats in Covington like W. N. Hind, who declares he is to good a Democrat to bolt.

THE Louisville Times and the Carrollton News are booming Mr. E. C. Smith, editor of the Carrollton Democrat, as a candidate for Congress in this district. Mr. Smith is 44 years old, and according to the Times and the News both of which is well acquainted with Mr. Smith, he is a long ways the best piece of Congressional timber in the sixth district, where aspirants are too thick, for all to thrive. The News says Mr. Smith is now a candidate, but, as the combination will not be made for nearly a year hence, he may [illegible]

(Carlisle Mercury)

The editor of The Mercury can speak more advisedly of Governor Beckham than probably any other man in Kentucky. When we represented Bourbon county in the House "Cripps" Beckham was one of the pages that waited upon us. When he was Speaker of the House we were Clerk, and folks who know much of legislation know how close the Speaker and Clerk are associated. Since he has been Governor we have been one of the closest friends, and these circumstances have given us many opportunities to know him. As a Page he was one of the politest and most faithful boys; as Speaker he was considerate and fair; as Governor, notwithstanding the fact that he has had to meet a great number of most trying ordeals, he has been a success. As a candidate for re-election he is filling the demands of the occasion. This is what we know of the young Governor.

It has been declared frequently that success on the part of General Lee at the battle of Gettysburg would probably have resulted in the taking of Washington and Philadelphia and possibly other cities of the North, and the recognition of the Confederacy by some of the Powers of Europe. Now substantially the same thing is said of the battle of Antietam, which occurred a good deal earlier in the Civil War than Gettysburg. In the light of the whole story of the great American conflict it is difficult to determine which great battle was the vital point. They were all of great importance; and some of the Generals who conducted operations early in the war did as much for the general result as those who got the glory at the close, when the whole contention was concentrated before Richmond.—Enquirer.

An English writer tells of a method that has been adopted by a number of farmers in that country by which silage is kept in compressed stacks. The claim is made that the production is superior in many respects to that contained in pits. In the first place the entail cost is less. If the crop is cut while still succulent, if as much is stacked each day as can be conviently carried, the pressure applied each night and the stacking continued each day, just the right degree of heat (123 degrees) is reached, which preserves the silage in a sweet state. Stacks are more elastic to quantity than silos, as their length or width can be varied according to the amount of the crop. The stack pressing gear is thus saving the expense and time of hauling the crop. The crops which are most desirable for use in England for silage are meadow grass, clover, trees, sainfoin, lucerne and grain crops. The latter are cut when just in ear and the stacks consist of two or more pairs of drums with rack teeth bolted on a frame exactly opposite each pair of drums and passing over the stack and over a lever, each stroke of which tightens the wire ropes.

FROM the western states there have come reports in the last few months of sales of breeding hogs at unusually high prices. The statement is made that a record has been made for some particular breed, and all possible publicity is secured with the object of advertising the owner and his stock. A suspicion has gradually crept in that these sales were not always bona fide transfers of property. The prairie Farmer says: "It does not matter if these boomsters sell 'the best hog on earth,' the next day they have a still better one to offer." If the business were investigated it would be found that these men were carrying out a well-arranged scheme for trading with each other and announcing to the public that certain prices were realized, when, as a matter of fact, the animals were only exchanged. Such dishonesty is happily rare among breeders, and Canadians are, perhaps, ahead of their neighbors in maintaining a good reputation. Yet we should stand ready to condemn anything that savors of crookedness, whether in the sale ring or show yard. The trickery of one breeder not only injures himself but his neighbors as well when outside trade is sought for.

Fine Farm For Sale.

I withdraw from sale my farm of 255 acres at Hebron at the price named in a recent notice. The farm is for sale at a bargain if sold soon, but not at that price. The conditions and circumstances and opportunities existing when that offer was made, do not exist now—hence the withdrawal. This is a magnificent farm, finely located and elegantly improved. The land and improvements are all in splendid condition. This plantation and its improvements were planned, constructed, developed and finished for a superb country home, for a country gentleman, and only a man of that character can appreciate it. The whole farm is as beautiful as a city park. It is for sale at a bargain if sold soon. If not sold soon it will be for rent to good and careful men.

Considerable telephoning and writing was done to this point, last week, to ascertain if a man named Powell and a woman named Rist, had obtained a marriage license or been married here. They were Lawrenceburg, Indiana, people, and after an absence of several days they had returned, claiming to have been married in Kentucky town. The man was 61 years old and the girl, 20. They did not been here.

His Life Saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"B. L. Beer, a well known cooper of this town, says he believes Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy saved his life last summer. He had been sick for a month with what the doctors call bilious dysentery and could get nothing to do him any good until he tried this remedy. It gave him immediate relief," says B. T. Little, merchant, Hanoock, Md. For sale by all Druggists.

The people of Beaver and the neighborhood are still discussing the arrest of one McFarland there several days ago, charged with having a plurality of wives. The officer who arrested the man said his name was Croppor, but the woman claiming to be his wife says his name is McFarland. When lodged in a Cincinnati bastite, McFarland or Cropper denied ever having been married to the woman that was left in Beaver, but she claims they were married on the 6th day of August. The man's bond was fixed at $1,000 by the Cincinnati judge, and some say he gave the bond, while others say he is still in prison.

BASE BALL.

At Burlington Park.

Saturday, Oct. 3rd.

Boones vs McVille.

Monday, Oct. 5th.

Boones vs Nationals, of Cincinnati.

Games called at 2:30 p. m.

The Boones and the Erlangers played an exciting game of ball here last Saturday afternoon. It was very one sided up to the close of the eighth inning, the score standing 5 to 2 in favor of the visitors, who had been unable to score after the sixth inning. In the 9th they were again blanked, and when the Boones came too the bat, Hogan the first man up struck out, he was followed by Luck, who got first on balls, then came Souther who drove the ball to left field for three bags. Hughes was given first on balls, then stole second and scored on Clutterbuck's hit, making the third run to cross the plate in this inning, and tying the score.

The first man up for Erlanger in the 10th was given his base by Houston, but the next two struck out, and the third Erlanger man was soon disposed of. Excitement was now at high tide. Houston and Bullock of the Boones, failed to make first. Hogan had been batting in hard luck all during the game, and Lentz had two strkes on him, when he hit a three bagger. Luck was the next man, and it was thought he was an easy victim, but after two strikes had been recorded against him, he made a safe drive to left field and Hogan scored, winning the game. Following is the score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Boones	1	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	3	1—6
Erlanger	1	0	3	0	0	1	0	0	0	0—5

Struck out—Houston, 10; Lentz, 11.

Hits—Boones, 11; Erlanger, 8.

Home Run—Lentz.

Three Base Hits—Souther, Hogan.

Batteries—Hogan and Houston; Victor and Lentz.

Umpire—O. M. Rogers.

Attendance—300.

Lentz is a good pitcher and works hard.

Houston and Hogan make a strong battery.

There were several ugly errors made on each side.

It was a hard game to lose, and equally as hard to win.

There were several nice catches of flies in the out field, but Jesse Kirk's spinning catch of a long fly to left field, was a beaut.

The Proper Treatment for a Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is usually two or three months before he has fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, for in many cases in which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has been promptly and freely applied, a complete cure has been effected in less than one week's time, and in some cases within three days. HENRY D. MALORY,

A Veteran of Two Wars Passes to the Eternal Camping Ground.

Henry D. Malory, the subject of this sketch, was born September 9th, 1825, at Zaynesville, Ohio, and died at his home near Lawrenceburg Ferry, in Boone county, Kentucky, September 24. 1903, aged 78 years and 16 days.

He came to Kentucky about 1851, and on November 26th, 1852, was united in marriage to Malvina Minor, and they lived together as man and wife for more than 50 years. To them were born nine children, six girls and three boys, one child dying in infancy, and one, Cora, died July 4th, 1898. Mr. Malory was a kind and loving husband and father, and leaves an aged wife and seven children to mourn his death. He was loved and respected by all who knew him. He was an industrious man, and worked at his trade, carpenter and builder, as long as his age and health would permit. He was one of the few survivors of the Mexican war. Having served through that war he returned home and resumed his trade, which he followed until the rebellion broke out, when he responded again to his country's call on August 8th, 1862, and served until June 7th, 1865, when he was honorably discharged.

He was honest and just in all his acts, and belonged to no sect nor creed, as can be testified to by the writer, who had a long and intimate acquaintance with him.

North Bend Association of Baptists Will Meet with the Church at Bellevue, Oct. 7–9.

The next session of this body will be held with Bellevue Baptist church Oct. 7th, 8th and 9th. The first day, October 7th, will be devoted to the celebration of the centennial of the Association and Bellevue church.

The program is as follows:

FORENOON.

Historical Sketch of Bellevue Baptist Church—Rev. T. L. Utz.
Address—The Baptist Opportunity—Rev. E. N. Dicken, D. D.

AFTERNOON.

Historical Sketch of North Bend Association—Rev. B. F. Swindler, D. D.
Address—The Reflex Influence of Missions—Rev. W. H. Felix, D. D.
Paper—The Missionary Character and Work of the Association—Rev. James A. Kirtley, D. D.
Reminiscences—Five Minute Speeches.

We anticipate a great meeting, and Bellevue church extends a cordial invitation to all to attend. Some false reports have been circulated in regard to the entertainment, and we desire to offer a word of explanation: At a church meeting in August, the matter of entertainment was discussed, and it was decided to leave this to the ladies of the church. By a unanimous vote they decided to exclude all cakes, pies and ices, at the noon-hour, and to serve a dinner of substantials. It is our purpose to serve a good, substantial dinner, excluding only the three things specified, and we would request all friends, who desire to bring dinner and assist in the entertainment, to conform to this plan. In our houses, we propose to give you the very best of which we are capable, and we hope none will find any lack of hospitality on the part of the Bellevue church.

Immediately following the Association we intend to have a protracted meeting, in which Bro. E. N. Dicken, of Franklin, Ky., will do the preaching.

E. B. ATWOOD, Pastor

The young ladies of Erlanger Catholic church will give an ice-cream social on Saturday evening Oct. 3, in the town hall. All are respectfully invited to spend the evening with us.

EUROPE'S ILL WIND.

America is Reaping a Benefit From the Storms.

California Fruit is Imported in Larger Quantities Than Ever Before Owing to Ruined Crops—Better Prices Prevail.

London, Sept. 25.—America is now reaping great benefit from the storms which made the past summer one of the worst on record in Great Britain and the continent. Thanks to the ruined home crops, California fruit is imported in larger quantities than ever before. The sales last week in London marked a record with 25,000 boxes of American fruit, representing about 675,000 pounds weight. The fruit was sold at a two days' auction in Covent Garden market, the prices averaging 30 per cent. above what has heretofore been obtained here. The sales were chiefly of California pears and plums with a fair consignment of New York state Bartlett pears. There is practically no English fruit obtainable, while France, which usually exports large quantities of pears to England, is sending none. The American section of Covent Garden market is now almost the sole source of supply and there are no signs of the demand decreasing. American apples, which hitherto could not be profitably shipped hither till later in the year, now have a brisk trade. Forty-two thousand barrels of Canadian apples are expected in London at the end of this week and record prices are assured.

A member of the most prominent English firm dealing in foreign fruit said to a press correspondent:

"There has never been anything like it. Europe's ill wind certainly brought good to America. We are spending five and six hours a day in the auction box disposing of double as much California fruit as we ever did before at prices ranging from 25 to 30 per cent. higher. We have no difficulty in recur all we want from America, but we can scarcely order quickly enough. Heretofore California fruit has been more an adjunct to England's supply than a serious factor in the market. Now, owing to the failure of French fruit and the complete loss of the home crop, the American branch of the market is watched more eagerly than any other."

"How disastrous the present season has been to English growers may be judged from a letter in which a fruit farmer in one of the best counties of England says that on 11 acres all devoted to green gages the fruit on only three ripened. There is no wonder that shipments of American fruit are well received."

The following are the current quotations per box: California pears, $1.94 to $2.30; California plums, $2.43 to $2.91; Bartlett pears, $1.82 to $2.30; peaches, $2.43 to $2.67.

A MEMORIAL TEMPLE.

Favorable Report on a Plan to Erect a Million Dollar Structure.

Baltimore, Sept. 25.—At Thursday's session of the sovereign grand lodge, I. O. O. F., the committee on finance reported favorably on the plan to erect a million dollar memorial temple in Baltimore, but deemed it inadvisable to connect the name of the sovereign grand lodge with the project. The committee recommends that the enterprise be placed in the hands of Washington lodge No. 1, of Baltimore, known as the "Mother Lodge" of the order, with authority to solicit subscriptions from other jurisdictions. The report of the committee will be voted on Friday.

During the afternoon the officers of the sovereign grand lodge and other representatives visited the grave of Thomas Wildey, founder of the order, and placed flowers upon it.

FARMERS' NATIONAL CONGRESS.

Its Annual Convention Was Closed at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The Farmers' national congress closed its annual meeting Thursday night. The farmers will not urge much specific national legislation this year, contenting themselves with generalities. A set of resolutions favoring the extension of rural free delivery and the parcels post system, a postal telegraph system and postal savings banks was adopted.

A resolution favoring reciprocity with Canada was finally killed and the question of a ship subsidy found no supporters in the congress this session.

CURTIS JETT SENTENCED.

He is to Hang December 18 For the Assassination of Jim Cockrill.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 26.—In the case of Curtis Jett, convicted for assassination of Jim Cockrill, at Jackson, Ky., on July 21, 1902, Judge Osborne ordered Jailer Craigmyle and Sheriff Leach to bring Jett into court Friday morning at 10:20. Judge Osborne ordered him to stand up, and in the most unconcerned manner in the world, he did so, at the same time chewing a stick and looking about the room as the judge was reciting to him the indictment in the case and then asked him what he had to say why the death sentence should not be passed. Jett said: "Judge, I have several reasons, but I suppose that it is not worth while to mention them here."

The judge told him that he had tried to give him a fair trial and to get all the witnesses here for him. Then he said to him:

"You are ordered to be taken back to jail, and it is the judgment of this court that between sunrise and sunset on December 18, 1903, that you be hanged by the neck until you are dead by the sheriff of the county."

Mr. Blanton, Jett's attorney, said: "Well, judge, there will be many sunrises and sunsets before he has been hanged."

To which Judge Osborne said: "Well, it won't grieve me," and Jett said to the judge: "There are people in this county who will be grieved if I am not hung. But, judge, I do not think it would you, as you have given me a fair trial in this case."

Judge Osborne then said he would send him for safe keeping to another jail, and Jett asked him please not to send him to Lexington jail, as he did not like that place.

Mr. Blanton filed Friday morning grounds for a new trial and he will Friday afternoon make a motion and it will be in all probability overruled, and then the case will go to the court of appeals at Frankfort, Ky.

LIQUOR DEALERS BARRED.

The Odd Fellows Voted Down a Resolution to Admit Them.

Baltimore, Sept. 26.—At the session of the sovereign grand lodge, I. O. O. F., Friday a proposal to admit to membership persons of mixed blood was defeated, as was also a resolution to grant the patriarchs militant a direct representation in the sovereign grand lodge.

The resolution to fix the salary of Gen. M. A. Raney, commander of the patriarchs militant, at $1,200, was lost. His remuneration will consist of the profits on the sale of supplies to members of that branch of the order.

After a spirited debate the resolution to permit liquor dealers to join the order was defeated.

Prizes for the exemplification of degrees, contests for which occurred during the week, were announced Friday night as follows:

A FILIPINO WOMAN.

Claims She Was Married to Lieut. Burbank, Sixth Infantry.

The Officer Denies It and Files a Suit to Annul the Alleged Marriage in Order That He May Clear His Record.

Leavenworth, Kan., Sept. 26.—First Lieut. Sidney S. Burbank, Sixth Infantry, stationed at Fort Leavenworth, filed suit in the district court Friday to annul a pretended marriage with Mrs. Conception Vasques, a Filipino woman. The filing of this suit is the outcome of a charge made by Mrs. Vasques to the war department last spring that Lieut. Burbank was married to her while in the Philippine islands and that she was his lawful wife and wanted him to support her. The first notice of this alleged marriage was made public after the announcement of the betrothal of Lieut. Burbank to a society girl of Leavenworth.

The story of the Filipino marriage of Lieut. Burbank, which he says is a fraud, comes from Valladolid province, where Lieut. Burbank was in command of a garrison of United States troops in 1901. Mrs. Vasques, who was a widow with three small children, lived in the village where the garrison was situated.

Lieut. Burbank came to Fort Leavenworth a year ago and a report followed him that he was married to a Filipino woman and was the father of a newborn baby. The Filipino widow followed this by filing copies of documents, pretending to be a marriage contract with Lieut. Burbank.

To offset this Lieut. Burbank and Corp. Burns sent affidavits to the war department stating that Lieut. Burbank was not in the village but out on a campign on the date of the pretended marriage. Also that there was no notice of the marriage posted or announced by the town criers going up and down the streets of the village and proclaiming it according to the Filipino custom, and that the pretended marriage was a fraud and any documents to back it was a forgery.

It is said that Lieut. Burbank's solution of the affair is that a justice of the peace and president of the village, where Burbank commanded troops, was imprisoned for six months for insubordination; that the justice had charge of the records and that in his eagerness to get even with Lieut. Burbank he permitted the woman to apply and to make out a marriage certificate. His object in filing the suit here is to clear his record.

Under the Kansas divorce laws the woman has 40 days in which to answer. She will not have time to answer, as it would require at least three months to prepare any defense and file it by a person now in the Philippines.

DYNAMITE UNDER A BUGGY.

A Contractor Killed and His Bookkeeper Badly Injured.

Washington, Pa., Sept. 26.—Samuel T. Ferguson, of the Ferguson Construction Co., of Pittsburg, was instantly killed and his secretary, Chas. L. Martin, of Cincinnati, was probably fatally injured Friday by the explosion of a stick of dynamite, which robbers placed under their buggy as they were driving along the road carrying $3,600 in a valise to pay off the men employed on construction work along the line of the Wabash railroad.

The explosion tore the rig to pieces, killed Ferguson outright and threw Martin 200 feet, tearing the left arm almost from the socket. The satchel containing the money is missing.

Two men are under arrest in the camp of the construction company and several farmers believe they have one of the dynamiters cornered in an abandoned coal mine.

It was in a ravine flanked on one side by a clump of small trees and on the other by a sloping field that the robbers placed the dynamite in the middle of the road and connected the explosive with a small insulated copper wire to a battery. At the proper time they pressed a button, and the dynamite exploded. In the middle of the road was torn a hole 12 feet long, seven feet wide and four feet deep.

Both horses were thrown 60 feet and both were blown to fragments.

Woman's Veteran Relief Union.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Robert St. George Dyrenforth, commander-in-chief of the Union Veterans' union, Friday issued general orders announcing that the national encampment of the order and the national convention of the Woman's Veteran Relief union would be held in Louisville on October 14 to 15.

Major Delmar Equals World's Record.

New York, Sept. 26.—At the Empire City track at Yonkers Friday Major Delmar went against his own record of 2:00½, and went to the quarter in 30½, to the half in :59, to the three-quarters in 1:29 and to the wire in 2:00, thus equaling the world's record held by Lou Dillon.

Anti-Sunday Baseball Bill.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 26.—The senate passed the anti-Sunday baseball bill. This measure had previously been adopted by the house and now goes to the governor for approval. The bill prohibits the playing of all kinds of games on Sunday.

Movement to Advance Freight Rates.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—A movement is on foot by the railroads of the entire country to bring about a general advance in freight rates, the general reason assigned being the big increase in the wages.

Artillery Proving Ground.

The proving ground for the army at Sandy Hook is maintained for the purpose of reducing artillery to rubbish, if possible, by tests that determine whether or not anything new is equal to the most exacting conditions surrounding the use of ordnance. In the scrap heap are guns of almost every description which have either failed to achieve what was expected of them or have been burst or otherwise hopelessly disabled in proving them.

The Moon and the Weather.

Astronomers themselves seem to be tending now to a belief in some connection between the moon and the weather. From statistics from various sources Prof. W. H. Pickering has concluded that thunderstorms are really more numerous in the first half of the lunar month than in the last, liability to the storms being greatest between new moon and first quarter and least between full moon and last quarter.

Finally Got It.

"What do you want, little boy?" asked the druggist.

"Say, mister," said he boy, who had been wrinkling his face, scratching his head and rubbing his right foot up and down his left leg in the effort to remember something that had escaped him, "what's the name of that place where we've got so many soldiers?"

"Fort Sheridan?"

"No; it's a good deal further away than that."

"The Philippines?"

"That ain't just it, but it's somewhere around there."

"You don't mean Manila?"

"Manila! That's right! I know'd I'd get at after awhile. I want a bottle of manila extract for flavorin' ice cream. How much?"—Chicago Tribune.

Fully Prepared.

Teacher—Are any of your compositions ready?

Little Girl—Mine is.

"Is it an original composition?"

"Yes'm."

"Does it tell of your own experiences and observations, as I directed."

"Yes'm."

"Very well. You may read it."

"I went to a wedding and a funeral, an' the bride looked lovely an' the corpse looked natural."—Des Moines Times.

The Real Thing.

"Have you ever played a leading role?" asked the theatrical manager.

"Sure thing," replied the applicant.

"What was it?" queried the t. m.

"I led the mule in an Uncle Tom's Cabin company for two years," answered the embryo star.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Not Superstitious.

"I am afraid you are superstitious."

"Deed I isn't," said Mr. Erastus Pinkley; "some folks is mighty skeered of ghoses an' all kin's of critters; but as long as I has a rabbit's paw in my pocket I feels puffickly safe."—Washington Star.

JUMPED THE TRESTLE.

Nine Killed and Seven Injured in a Train Wreck.

The Locomotive and Four Mail Cars Were Reduced to a Mass of Twisted Iron and Pieces of Splintered Wood.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 28.—While running at a high rate of speed a south-bound mail train on the Southern railway jumped from a trestle 75 feet high, half a mile north of Danville, Va., Sunday afternoon and was almost demolished. Of the crew of 16, including mail cars, nine were killed and seven injured.

All of the injured men are seriously hurt and have been taken to the hospital in Danville. The recovery of Mail Clerk Spies is not expected and other clerks are thought to be mortally injured.

The trestle where the accident occurred is 500 feet long and is on a sharp curve. Engineer Brodie was a new man on that division of the Southern and thus came to the curve at high speed.

The locomotive had gone only about 50 feet on the trestle when it sprang from the track, carrying with it four mail cars and an express car. The trestle, a wooden structure, also gave way for a space of 50 feet.

At the foot of the trestle is a shallow stream with a rocky bottom. Striking this the locomotive and the cars were reduced to a mass of twisted iron and steel and pieces of splintered wood. As the cars went down they scraped the sides of the Riverside cotton mill.

All the dead men were mutilated The skin and hair on the engineer and fireman were torn off by the boiler.

Several thousand people were soon at the scene of the wreck. No one on any of the cars had made an effort to jump and the bodies of all those killed were found in the wreckage of the different cars to which they belonged.

Women who drove to the wreck from Danville fainted at the sight of the crushed bodies. All the express packages in the express car was destroyed, except six crates full of canary birds. None of the birds was hurt, though the crates were in the thickest of the debris.

All unofficial opinions say the cause of the wreck was the high speed of the train on the sharp curve. The train was running about an hour behind time.

The mail bags in all the mail cars were torn open and the letters and packages were scattered, but it is believed none is lost. Fire which appeared in the wreckage shortly after it occurred was quickly extinguished by the Danville fire department. On account of the wreck all traffic on the Central and Northern divisions of the Southern will be delayed as it will take several days to repair the damage to the track.

LOU DILLON.

Will Not Be Allowed to Go Into Contest With Another Horse.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 28.—C. K. G. Billings, owner of Lou Dillon, has announced that she will not be allowed to go into a contest with another horse for supremacy. Mr. Billings says that Lou Dillon is only five years old and comparatively inexperienced and untrained.

The mare will be shipped with the other members of the Billings string on Wednesday to Lexington, where she has two engagements After the Lexington meeting Lou Dillon will be shipped to Memphis, where she is scheduled to go against the world's trotting record, a trial against time which will probably be her last for this season. As at Lexington, two starts against the watch will be made at Memphis.

KILLED BY A NEGRO.

One of the Oldest Policemen in Birmingham, Ala., Murdered.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 28.—While pursuing a Negro criminal in a tough section of the city Sunday night, J. A. Mullin, one of the oldest policemen on the Birmingham force was shot and almost instantly killed. The only account of the affair came from the lips of the dying man. He said a Negro had pointed out a much wanted criminal to him, and he had started to arrest the man. As he did so, the Negro emptied a revolver into his breast and he fell after firing three shots in return. The name of the Negro informant or the criminal can not be ascertained and the police are without a clew.

Both Preparing For War.

London, Sept. 28.—Whilst there is little fresh news Monday morning from the Balkans, it appears from the dispatches received here that both Turkey and Bulgaria are actively preparing for the possibility of war.

Found Dead in the Waiting Room.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Alexander Clark, of Evanston, promoter of the Chicago elevated loop and the North Shore electric line, was found dead early Sunday in the waiting room of the Wisconsin Central station at Antioch, Ill.

Dr. Alderman Dies of Yellow Fever.

Monterey, Mex., Sept. 28.—Dr. Alvin G. Alderman, a well-known American, founder of the Christian institute, died at his home near the school from what is said to be yellow fever. The schools have suspended.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

It Seems to Be on the Increase in Laredo, Tex.

Laredo, Tex., Sept. 28.—The yellow fever seems to be on the increase in this city despite the stern measures that are being taken to stamp out the scourge. Two deaths and 12 new cases were reported at the close of the day.

Dr. Guiteras, in his house to house canvas Sunday, saw many cases of fever and at the conclusion of his day's examination made the announcement that 12 of the cases were genuine yellow fever.

This city now presents a dead appearance, all those who could get away having departed for points north of the state of Texas and for points south. It is estimated by the authorities that nearly four thousand people have fled from here since the beginning of the yellow fever scare.

The city is now quarantined against in all directions by the state and no person can get beyond the limits of Webb county. Other Texas counties have established a shotgun quarantine and are turning back all those who are endeavoring to get away in coaches, hacks and carts. The quarantine applies to all persons, freight, baggage, express, mail or other matter originating in the city of Laredo or points south, the only persons having authority to leave the corporation limits being the health officers of the state of Texas and of the United States.

The work of placing the city in a thoroughly sanitary condition is being effectively and scientifically carried on under the direct supervision of Dr. Guiteras and a corps of expert assistants.

The situation in Laredo is unchanged, no deaths or new cases having occurred as far as can be learned. Dr. Mariano Treveno, a Mexican government yellow fever expert, is in charge. Dr. Treveno believes that within eight days he will have stamped out the fever.

The Mexican custom house authorities have been temporarily moved to Lampasas, where all incoming baggage and freight over the National railway is examined, thus permitting trains to run through to Laredo, Tex., without stopping at Nuevo Laredo.

Tampico, Mex., Sept. 28.—Five new cases of yellow fever have appeared here, though they are of a mild form, apparently. Houses numbering 116 were disinfected Sunday and the authorities are uniting in their efforts to kill the plague.

Mexico City, Sept. 28.—Refugees from Valeej, Victoria Santiago, Linares and Tampico, fleeing through fear of the yellow fever, are making their appearance at Mexico City, and the capital is the oasis for a throng of visitors.

GENERAL STRIKE POSSIBLE.

Every Packing Plant in the Country Is Threatened With a Tie Up.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Every packing plant in the United States is threatened with a tie up by a general strike of butchers and affiliated workmen throughout the country for the first time in history unless the owners yield to demands of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America.

While the packers are willing to pay the wages asked, a hitch in negotiations has arisen over the demand of the packers that the butchers increase their amount of work. Every lodge of butchers in the country has been asked to vote on the demand of the packers and meetings will be held for the purpose throughout the country towns Monday. If the vote shall be unfavorable it is likely a general strike will be ordered affecting more than 50,000 men.

FLOATING IN THE LAKE.

Body of a White Woman Found Near Birmingham, Ala.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 28.—The body of Mollie Williams, white, about 25 years old, was found floating in East Lake early Sunday morning with three bullet holes through her head. On the bank, about 30 feet from the body, her hat was found but there were no evidences of a struggle, or any clue whatever to show how the woman met her death. Physicians believe the woman was murdered and thrown in the lake Thursday night.

Charles A. Kelley, a middle aged man, claiming to be a painter from Jacksonville, Fla., and Macon, Ga., was arrested Sunday night in connection with the murder. He is said to have been seen at the lake with woman Thursday afternoon and was present when the body was drawn from the water, He denies all knowledge of the affair.

To Cure Drunkenness.

Received Two Thousand Volts.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Lorrain T. Wilmer was electrocuted at his home in this city Sunday. While searching in the cellar for the cause of trouble with the electric light wires, he received a shock of 2,000 volts.

THE PRESIDENT FIRM.

He Will Not Yield His Position in the Miller Case.

It Is Not His Purpose to Enter Upon a Discussion of the Principles Laid Down in His Published Letters.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Sept. 28.—President Roosevelt passed the last day of his summer vacation quietly at Sagamore Hill. He and Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by two of their children, attended the morning services at Christ Episcopal church. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt and their children now at home, Ethel, Archie and Quentin, Secretary and Mrs. Loeb and members of the executive staff, left Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock for Washington, expecting to arrive there at 4:10 p. m.

Several months ago the president invited Mr. Mitchell, president of the mine workers, to take luncheon or dine with him when he next came to Washington. The mine workers' president is in Washington now and has accepted the invitation.

It is announced that the arrangement for the luncheon was made prior to the latest developments in the case of W. H. Miller, the foreman bookbinder in the government printing office, and that special significance is to be attached to the fact that the president and Mr. Mitchell meet at this time. It is quite probable that the Miller case, among other matters, will be discussed, but the meeting at luncheon will not take the form of a conference on that subject.

In view of the statement recently published that the president on his return to Washington would hold a conference on the Miller case with prominent officials representing organized labor, it is announced that the president has no intention of conferring with anybody regarding that case. His position, it is pointed out, was defined clearly in his published letters to Secretary Cortelyou. The principle enunciated in these letters was framed in accordance with the statutes of the United States and on it the president expects to stand. If a hearing on the merits of the Miller case is desired by those who are endeavoring to have the man dismissed from the government service, the president may grant it precipitately as he might a hearing to another body of citizens on a question of public interest, but it is not the president's purpose to enter upon a discussion of the principle already laid down.

FITZSIMMONS AND GARDNER.

They Are Matched to Fight For the Light Heavyweight Championship.

New York, Sept. 28.—At a conference held Sunday at Bath Beach between Bob Fitzsimmons, Wm. Pierce, of Boston, manager for George Gardner, the light heavyweight champion of the world, and James C. Kennedy, representing Yosemite Athletic club, of San Francisco, Fitzsimmons and Gardner were matched to fight at the Yosemite club the latter part of November for the title held by Gardner. The contest will be for 20 rounds at 168 pounds, the men to weigh in at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the day of the battle. The purse will be divided, 75 per cent. going to the winner and 25 per cent. to the loser.

TRAGEDY AT A CHURCH.

Attempted Wife Murder and Suicide at Lacrosse, Wis.

Lacrosse, Wis., Sept. 28.—An attempted murder and suicide occurred at the German Lutheran church, corner of Fifth and Cass streets, at the beginning of religious services Sunday when Herman Rossow shot his wife and himself in the presence of hundreds of witnesses. Sunday evening it appeared certain that Mrs. Rossow would die, while Rossow, though dangerously wounded, may recover.

Rossow, who had been separated from his wife for some time, lay in wait for her at a livery barn opposite the church, where the tragedy occurred.

Chief of Police Killed.

Attala, Ala., Sept. 28.—While attempting to quell a disturbance in the rear of a saloon here Chief of Police Jenkins was shot and killed and Patrolman W. H. Blankenship and John White, an alleged participant in the fight, seriously wounded.

It is stated that John White, his younger brother and a man named Gibbs had become involved in some dispute and several shots were fired, in attempting to arrest the men Chief Jenkins was shot and killed. White is in custody.

From France to England in a Balloon.

London, Sept. 28.—Count De la Vaulx and Count d'Outrement descended Sunday in a balloon near Hull, Yorkshire, having journeyed from Paris in 17¾ hours. This is the first time that a balloon has successfully traveled from France to England.

Portugal to Check Emigration.

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 28.—The Portuguese government has decided to establish a special police force at the Azore islands to prevent the secret emigration, which has been proceeding for a considerable time, especially to the United States.

Speed Record For Electric Traffic.

Berlin, Sept. 28.—A high speed trial over the Zossen experimental electric railroad resulted in attaining a speed at the rate of over 117 miles per hour. Every part of the 100-ton car was intact and the roadbed not affected.

CENTENNIAL JUBILEE OPEN.

One Hundred Tons of Red Fire Were Burned in Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The centennial jubilee was declared formally opened Saturday afternoon. Chicago's week-long celebration of its anniversary of 100 years' existence was launched in a veritable "blaze of glory."

One hundred tons of inflammable material blazed out from the downtown street corners at night and reproduced, though harmlessly this time, the great fire of 1871 that swept $250,000,000 of property down with its flames and rendered 100,000 people homeless.

The centennial exercises Sunday consisted of special services in 300 churches in the morning and a reunion in the afternoon of the six tribes of Indians encamped in Lincoln park. A crowd variously estimated at from 100,000 to 200,000 persons visited the encampment to witness the Indians dance and play their native games.

Officers of the Chicago Federation of Musicians advised the managers of the centennial celebration Sunday that if the United States marine band shall be allowed to take any part of this week's program not one of the many bands that have been engaged for the parade Tuesday will participate in the pageant.

THE ARMY MANEUVERS.

The Hospital Prepared For the Use of One Hundred Patients.

Camp Young, West Point, Ky., Sept. 28.—After a day of rest and tidying up their camps, the various detachments of regular troops will engage in the first of the maneuvers Monday. The work will be maneuvers of the advance and rear guard—involving the various tactics used in repulsing an attack on the rear of an army, etc.

The hospital, prepared for the use of 100 patients, received the first unfortunates Sunday. Lieut. Alvin Bassett of the Third infantry, fell into a ravine Saturday night breaking his wrist. Capt. Morrison, of the 20th infantry, was also received at the hospital suffering from an injured foot.

Col. Raspopoff, the Russian military attache at Washington, and Lieut. Col. Foster, representing Great Britain at the maneuvers, arrived Sunday.

MRS. DAVIS RALLIES.

There Is a Decided Improvement in Her Condition.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 28.—There was a feeling of gratification among the friends and relatives of Mrs. Jefferson Davis Sunday night, when the physicians announced a decided improvement in the condition of the patient.

While the improvement is marked, the doctors will not go so far as to say that Mrs. Davis is out of danger. The rally began early Sunday. She had a trying time Saturday night, and deep anxiety was depicted on the faces of those who silently entered and left the sick chamber.

Mrs. Davis sank into a restful sleep after midnight and when she awoke Sunday morning, she smilingly informed the nurse at her bedside that she felt much better. The improvement continued throughout the day.

DEGENERACY IN EUROPE.

Alcoholism Is Declared to Be the Chief Cause.

Berlin, Sept. 25.—At Thursday's meeting of the nationalist congress at Cassel, Dr. Moritz, of Aisberg, speaking on inherited degeneracy through social influences, asserted that degeneracy in European countries was spreading and was shown by a decree of physical resistance and a tendency to illness and weakness. Alcoholism, he declared, was the chief cause of inherited degeneracy, to cure which alcoholism must be wiped out, and he suggested that a legal certificate of health should be required before a person was allowed to marry.

Condemned Murderer Confesses.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 28.—Peter Lenousky, who is doomed to die on the gallows on Tuesday morning in this city for the murder of Anthony Senneke, who was beaten to death with a hatchet in the Exeter mine in April, 1902, has made a confession, admitting that he struck the blow which killed Senneke.

Will Support the Sultan.

Berlin, Sept. 25.—According to the National Zeitung, an international arrangement is likely to be reached whereby France will support the sultan of Morocco in suppressing the troubles within his dominions and will assume a protectorate over the country.

ADDITIONS TO THE CHURCH.

Bible Students Evangelizing in the Mountains of Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 25.—Reports received Thursday morning and announced from the chapel in the college of Bible of Kentucky university say that 1,188 additions to the Christian church were received in the mountains of Kentucky during the summer by the Bible students. A band of 20 students started out in June to do evangelical work in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky under the leadership of R. B. Neal, of Grayson. The mountain converts were baptized by the students. The college authorities will endeavor to induce a larger number of students to preach in the mountains next summer. The students report that they were offered no affront by the mountaineers and were cordially received at all places. It was also announced from the chapel Thursday morning that the endowment fund of the college had been increased $64,000 by small subscriptions during the summer. The hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Christian church will be celebrated at Cane Ridge Friday morning. Col. Alexander Campbell, jr., son of the founder of the Christian church, has organized a girls' college in Lexington which opened its first session this week.

HE RAVES FOR LIFE.

Doomed Murderer Bites at His Chains Feining Insanity.

Mayking, Ky., Sept. 24.—Clifton Branham, wife murderer, to be hanged at Wise C. H., W. Va., Friday, is again feigning insanity, in the hope that he may cheat the gallows. Branham is chained to the jail floor, and bites and snaps like a wild animal at every one who comes near him. He has not taken food for several days. The death watch has been placed over Branham, and the execution will take place at the time appointed. Hundreds of people from all over Eastern Kentucky will witness his death.

ANOTHER FEUD POSSIBLE.

Tom Caskey, Who Killed His Cousin Recently, Shot Down.

West Liberty, Ky., Sept. 26.—Tom Caskey, who killed his cousin, Forrest Caskey, a short time ago in this county, was shot to death Friday at Elk Fork, four miles from here. The brothers of Forrest Caskey are accused. The sheriff and a large posse have gone to make an arrest. The excitement is high. It is predicted that this is the beginning of a bad feud, as the Caskey families are among the largest in the county and are about equally divided. All are fighting people.

Dr. Duncan's Position.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 24.—The removal of Miss Alice Gaggs from the position of superintendent of the hospital training school resulted Wednesday in the notification by the board of safety to Dr. Ellis Duncan that he would either have to resign or else be removed from his position as superintendent. Orderlies Hayes, Baker and Scanland have also been removed. It is said that other removals will be made by the board of public safety.

A Young Woman's Deeds.

Marion, Ky., Sept. 26.—Miss Agnes Travis, a young woman of good family, Friday cut the throat of Milton Carley with a razor and then wounded herself in like manner. They will die. Carley had for five years paid court to Miss Travis, but a week ago married another girl and this is thought to have prompted the deed.

Will Locate a Church at Jackson.

Paris, Ky., Sept. 25.—More than a thousand delegates attended the opening of the State Sunday-school convention Thursday under the auspices of the Christian church. It was announced that the state missionary board has organized a church at Jackson, Breathitt county, the seat of the recent Kentucky feuds.

Young Girl Seeks a Divorce.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 24.—Lena Fahrubell, a girl only 14 years of age, brought suit Wednesday in the circuit court at Newport for divorce from Joseph Fahrubell. The suit was brought for her by her father, John Brausch, and is the result of a young girl's "romantic" marriage without the consent of her parents.

Kentucky Mexican Veterans Meet.

Richmond, Ky., Sept. 25.—The State Association of Mexican veterans met here Thursday in annual session. Only 18 survivors were present. They were addressed by Senator James B. McCreary and entertained with a banquet.

New Railway Bridge Collapsed.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 26.—The Tennessee Central Railroad Co.'s new bridge over the Canton pike collapsed, causing a loss of several hundred dollars. Hands were at work on the abutments when the accident occurred, but escaped injury.

Cynthiana Select Team Defeated.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 26.—Kentucky state college defeated a Cynthiana select team Friday in a football game by the score of 39 to 0. State college will make a strong bid for the Kentucky championship this fall.

TROOPS ASSEMBLING.

Gen. Bates Is On Hand For the Maneuvers at West Point, Ky.

Camp Young, West Point, Ky., Sept. 26.—With the commanding general on the ground and all preliminaries disposed of, the regular troops from the department of the lakes began arriving here Friday, while others were leaving the stations in the different parts of the country for the second series of instructive war maneuvers.

About 14,000 troops, including militia from Indiana, Illiois, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Wisconsin, will participate. The regular troops taking part represent all branches of the service except the heavy artillery.

The maneuvers proper will not begin until October 2, by which time all the national guards will have arrived.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 26.—Company I, of Covington, Kentucky state guards, 57 strong, will leave for West Point, Ky., on next Tuesday, where they will take part in the army maneuvers to be held there. The Covington company will be part of the First battalion.

WORKMEN BURNED.

Their Clothing Ignited From a Burning Gas Well.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 24.—Monticello (Ky.) well No. 2, of the Kentucky Colonel Oil Co., gushed 20 feet high Tuesday night, and the accumulation of gas caught fire from an engine boiler Wednesday morning and burned three men.

Thomas Marsh, driller, and A. B. Adams, rigbuilder, were perhaps fatally burned. The rig was destroyed. The fire was extinguished by driving a packer in the well.

Cat Adopted Young Polecats.

Petersburg, Ky., Sept. 24.—Warren Tobin killed a polecat near his home that had several young skunks with her, which made their escape. Tuesday he found his house cat soundly sleeping in her usual place in the pantry, and huddled at her side were four young polecats that she had adopted. The youngsters seemed contented with their new-found mother, and she seemed as devoted as if they were her own offspring.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 25.—Prices were satisfactory on the tobacco breaks Thursday. Burley had a stronger tone and ranged from $3.50 to $13.75. Dark was sold from $3 to $6.90. The sales were 312 hhds; of which 283 hhds were burley and 29 hhds dark.

Prominent Attorney Quietly Married.

Newport, Ky., Sept. 24.—Ramsey Washington, of this city, former county attorney of Campbell county, it was learned Wednesday, was married about two months ago to Miss Ida May Hurtt, of Piketon, O. The wedding was celebrated in Parkersburg, W. Va.

San Jose Scale on Fruit Trees.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 25.—Prof. H. Garman, state nursery inspector for Kentucky, Thursday reported to the agricultural department that he has found the injurious and dreaded San Jose scale on fruit trees in several counties and a smaller number near Alexandria, Campbell county.

D. C. Edwards Resigns.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 25.—D. C. Edwards, of the Eleventh district, has resigned as a member of the republican state campaign committee because he is a candidate for the seat of the late Congressman Vincent Boreing. Edwards will be succeeded by J. C. Wood, of Mt. Sterling.

Soldiers Turn Carpenters.

Jackson, Ky., Sept. 26.—The soldiers, stationed here, have turned carpenters and have been repairing the sidewalks. Capt. Longmire proposed to the board of trustees that if the town would furnish lumber and nails, he would have his men repair the sidewalks, which are in bad condition.

Woman Died In the Depot.

Guthrie, Ky., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Jemima Thomas, while en route from Plattsburg, Mo., died in the passenger depot here of heart failure. She had $38.05 in money and a note in her pocketbook saying that she was on her way to her daughter, Mary Cole, of Elizabethtown, Ky.

Sells All Mineral Rights.

Madisonville, Ky., Sept. 26.—The Gordon Land Co., of this city, has sold all its mineral rights, consisting of several thousand acres of fine coal lands, to the St. Bernard Coal Mining Co., of Earlington. The St. Bernard Co. now controls over half the mineral rights in Hopkins county.

Salvation Army Cavalry Welcomed.

Mayking, Ky., Sept. 26.—The Salvation army cavalry which is invading the Kentucky feud district will be asked to conduct services at Bentley, Ky., and Pound, Va., villages on the route between Whitesburg, Ky., and Wise C. H., Va.

Would Succeed Boreing.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 26.—William Randall Ramsey, of London, Laurel county, announced his candidacy for congress from the Eleventh Kentucky district to succeed Vincent Boreing, deceased.

Teachers' District Meeting Held at Maple Hill, Sept. 20th.

After song service, etc., the meeting was organized by electing Albert Ryle Secretary.

Objects and Advantages of Association introduced by Katie Craig, making the point that the object in the broadest sense was to benefit children of the county. Superintendent argued that the purpose was to better equip the teacher and create a greater interest among patrons.

Z. T. Kelly very forcibly expressed himself on duties of teacher, parents and pupils.

Introduction of Reading by Brenda Craig was favorably received.

Art of Spelling, and How to Teach it was well introduced by Lola Ward. The Superintendent emphasized the importance of pronounciation of syllables.

English Sentence, by Bettie Dolph, who believes that our present text books sufficient.

History, as a Culture Study was introduced by Bettie Dolph.

Nature Study, etc., was ably introduced and discussed by Katie Craig.

Special Day Program, by Mrs. Maud Walton, was well received.

The above subjects were discussed by many present, but lack of space forbids a full account.

After a vote of thanks to the ladies for the most bountiful spread of good things to eat, the meeting adjourned to meet at Union October 10, 1903.

Other teachers present: Lizzie Rogers, Percy Ryle, Etna McAtee, and Mary Orem.

D. M. SNYDER, Supt.

Program of Teachers' meeting to be held at Union Oct. 10, 1903.

Advantages of Such a Meeting—Nannie D. Bristow.

Arithmetical Analysis—Marion Johnson.

Primary Reading—Edna McElroy.

History—Nannie D. Bristow.

Course of Study—Lillian Corbin.

How Secure Longer Terms of School—Hons. James Kennedy and L. H. Voshell.

The Teachers of the District are expected to be present. Would be glad to see other teachers, officials and patrons present.

NANNIE D. BRISTOW, Vice Pres.

Houston-Norman Nuptials.

On Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 23, 1903, the immediate friends of the family assembled at the home of M. C. Norman, Esq., near Union, to witness the marriage of Miss Ella Blanton Norman to Mr. Benjamin Houston, of Carthage, O. The parlor was artistically decorated with beautiful fall flowers, and at 2 o'clock the handsome bride in her dainty white frock and the gallant groom under an arch of golden rod uttered their marriage vows. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Slater. After a delicious luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Houston left amid merry good-byes, best wishes and showers of rice. They will beat home after Sept. 30, at their home, 513 Lebanon Street, Carthage, Ohio.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Norman, Miss Victor Youell, E. B. Norman, A. H. Norman, O. R. Norman, of Richwood; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Asbury, Miss Maud Asbury, of Mason county; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rachal, W. M. Rachal, jr., Miss Norma Rachal, Miss May Norman, Miss Nannie Bristow, Mr. J. L. Frazier, Eph O. Norman, Mrs. Lida Conner, of Union, Mr. H. G. Blanton, of Erlanger, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hedges.

The bride is one of the handsomest and most popular young women in Boone county, and scores of friends join in hearty congratulation to the happy groom.

No Truth in the Reports, which were Thoroughly Investigated.

There has come to our knowledge some slanderous and very damaging reports, connected with the name of our pastor, Bro. W. S. Taylor.

Therefore, we the undersigned, deacons of Big Bone church, have thoroughly investigated each report, and find them in every instance to be a lot of base fabrications, false assertions, and accusations, from beginning to end, wholly unmerited, groundless, and without foundation.

Whereby we do believe and declare him innocent, of conduct unworthy of a gentleman and minister of the Gospel, and fully exonerate him from all these charges.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the 2-year old child of Mr. P. D. McPherson, 59 N. Tenth St., Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded the child had stomach trouble and gave her a dose of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which relieved the stomach and she slept the remainder of the night. Two doses of this medicine corrected a permanent disorder of the stomach and made the child well and strong. For sale by all Druggists.

COMMISSARY.

Rolen McCarty was the guest of T. J. Walton, last Sunday.

Mrs. Ransom Ryle spent last Monday visiting Mrs. Will Sebree.

Louis Merrick and wife visited their aunt, Mrs. Kate Noble, last Sunday.

H. P. Parsons and wife visited their son Robert, of Cincinnati, from Sunday until Tuesday.

Granville Hall and wife, of Addyston Ohio, were guests of Jos West the latter part of last week.

Charles Hunt, of Cincinnati, a nephew of Mrs. T. J. Walton, came down Friday for a few days visit.

Mrs. Sylvester Fleek, spent the week visiting her father-in-law, Nick Fleek, and grandmother, Slayback.

Mrs. Hunt's foot was thought to be improving, but its as bad now as it has been, except its not so painful.

Jacob Craig and wife, of Cincinnati, came down Wednesday for a month's visit among relatives near here.

Misses Lou, Gracie, Nannie and Julia Louden, were guests of their sister, Mrs. Winnie Kelly, last Sunday.

Charley Slayback from near Erlanger, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his father-in-law, Nick Fleek.

Clyde Berkshire and wife, spent Sunday and Monday nights with Ed Botts. Monday was spent by Mrs. Berkshire in Aurora.

Watch the Commissary items for date of a grand to do at Bellevue, and Commissary. It will eclipse any to do either place has ever had.

J. J. Lillard and Xen Scott, from here and Geo. Blyth and Tony Bentler from Burlington, attended the Kinnett sale at French, Ind., Wednesday.

How is this for a squash? Mrs. Georgia Louden has a squash of the Mammoth Hubbard variety that measures 25½ inches in length, and 35 inches in circumference.

Karl Kelly, who moved to Illinois, is moving back. Mrs. Kelly arrived here week, and as soon as their household goods come, she will go to house keeping in the house they vacated. Mr. Kelly will come as soon as the corn is cribbed.

Gilly Welscle will move to Bellevue in the near future, in order to obtain better school facilities; and Ransome Ryle will move into Mr. Welscle's house. No doubt you all heard of the man who has moved so often that when a covered wagon is seen approaching his house, his chickens fall down, turn on their backs and hold up their legs to be tied. Well, Gilly is that man.

Wade McCarty and sister, Mrs. Peck, who were here visiting their half brothers, Rowlen, Dan and Tobe McCarty, returned to their home, Decatur, Ill., the latter part of last week. It was their intention to remain here until next Tuesday, but Mrs. Peck received a letter from her husband stating that he had been appointed city mail carrier, and as he was running a restaurant she returned to take charge of it.

We thank Mrs. Lillard for a basket of peaches and plums; Mrs. Ryle for a basket of peaches, and uncle Deane Rouse for a basket of apples. The plums we made into preserves, the apples and peaches made three fat cobblers. Mrs. Georgia Louden made one of the peach cobblers; Mrs. Martha Rance the other, and Mrs. Ed Barnes the apple cobbler. All three are excellent cooks. We had all the cobbler we could eat, and quit with a large dish full before us. We wished for Crescent to help us.

FLICERTOWN.

Charlie Sullivan is very low of pneumonia.

Cutting corn and sowing wheat is the order of the day here.

Mrs. Lizzie Day, of Bullittsville, was visiting her brother Ben Hensley several days last week.

With the thermometer at 80 after dark in October, is it not hot enough for the time of year?

Miss Sadie Marshall and brother, from down on Middle creek, visited Miss Bertha Smith a couple of days last week.

Don't begin the sport of shooting quails so soon boys, or some one else may have some sport also. Nov. the 15th is the date.

Frank Voshell shucked ten shocks of corn the other day that made 40 bushels, which is considered about the average in this neighborhood.

Although the tobacco crop was not up to the average in quantity the fine weather we have had since it was put in the house will insure a crop of the finest quality.

A number of cisterns in this neighborhood are dry, while stock water in all the pastures is entirely gone, and the water in the creek is scarcely fit for stock to drink.

Ben Parsons has returned to Tuscola, Ill., where he will husk corn this fall. His brother Harry, who intended to go with him, was prevented by getting his arm broken.

Dony Cook had better blow the cobwebs off of his dogs if he expects them to do any running in this neighborhood. Some of our local sports have dogs that they will not believe can be beaten until the trick has been turned.

The Woolper ball team was defeated by the Egypt team on the Commissary grounds, last Saturday. At the end of the ninth inning the Woolpor boys had 18 runs their to credit, while the Egypt team had 28 runs and a new ball to their credit, and one ball that was no credit to them. This is the second time they have defeated the Woolper team.

For Sale—Good milch cow. Apply to Tony Bentler, Burlington.

For Sale—Two fresh cows. Apply to or address M. Riddell, Burlington.

WALTON.

Miss Laura Acra, of Cincinnati, was the [illegible] guest of Miss Cecil Menifee [illegible]

Miss Lucile Acra, who is staying at her [illegible] Walter S. Wilson's, came up [illegible] to company with her [illegible] were the guests of Mrs. Emma Lemond one day last week.

Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Menifee had the pleasure of entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kinnaird, of Gardnersville, the parents of Mrs. Menifee, during their brief stay in Walton. Little Marie, appreciating the situation of a favorite grandchild, showed her grandfather all over the place which she was perfectly capable of doing without help from anybody.

Half a dozen of the young ladies of the Graded School determined to have a good time by themselves on last Saturday. On the morning of that day Misses Cecil Menifee, Myrtle Murphy, Katie Bolanston, Mabel Powers, Gladys Wilson and Ella Haley with baskets full of provender marched out of town to the residence of James Watson, and with Miss Hallie Watson betook themselves to Mr. Edward Taylor's woods to gather hickory nuts, jump over old logs and disport themselves generally as they should feel inclined. They gathered 25 hickory nuts each and came triumphantly home and claimed to have had, oh, such a time.

The throwing of stones at one another by the small boys of the town is a beautiful amusement should be discountenanced and discontinued at once. A recent object lesson on this head, to-wit: the hitting of Plummer Gorman's little boy with a rock above the eye in play by his chum, better illustrates the dangers of this pastime than any description that can be given by pen or pencil. In this connection it can be said that residents on High street near the bridge, have for a long time been annoyed by a gang of colored boys who get one of their number on the bridge and then rock him from either side, and sometimes rocks are hurled all around the premises in that locality, and further, it can be said that rocks are thrown about on High street in which whites and colored boys indulge whenever they feel like it.

Miss Clara Diers, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Lorena Wills, of Ludlow, had a very handsome reception in honor of her guest, Miss Pearl Perrin, an accomplished and charming young belle, of Harrison, Ohio. The house was crowded and the young folks had fun galore.

On Saturday last, Oct. 3rd, Mr. John Fink and Miss Pearl Grubbs, after having made a very cosy little home on High street, were very quietly wedded by the Rev. Lafyette Johnson at his home near Key West. Miss Kathryn Grubbs, sister of the bride, and V. D. Holder, one of Walton's most promising young men, were the witnesses of the happy affair. The ceremony having been performed, the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride where an elaborate supper was served in honor of the occasion. Those present not including the wedding party were Mr. Mrs. John Grubbs, parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Grubbs, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, G. G. Grubbs, brother of the bride, and Wm. Holder. The costume worn by the beautiful bride might have made a Queen envious, being a beautiful white silk waist with a black silk skirt, making a showy combination. The handsome, lordlike bridegroom wore a swell suit of black broadcloth. Sunday, Oct. 4th, at the home of the bride, an elegant dinner was prepared by the bride's parents in honor of the happy couple. May the happy ones live long and prosper.

The pawpaw season is just about over, and as soon as the first big frost comes the possum crop will be ready for some fellow that has a tooth and a taste for them.

Mrs. Polly Woods, widow of the late Robert Woods, who resided ou Buffalo path, near here, departed this life, Oct. 1, at her home, after a few day's illness of dropsy. The interment in Spring Grove cemetery, Cincinnati.

Saved Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Life Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Cough and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by All Druggists. Trial bottles free.

A Burlington girl declared she would not marry until the young man to whom she was engaged had $3,000 in the bank. She met him a few weeks afterward and asked him how he was getting along. "Very well," he replied "I have about $18 saved." "I guess," she answered faintly, "that is about near enough."

'Tis hard to break the tender chord
Whou love has bouud the heart;
'Tis hard to speak the word,
Must we forever part?
Dearest Hope, we have laid thee
In the peaceful grave's embrace;
But thy memory will be cherished.
Till we see thee heavenly face.

Hon. J. W. Lilly, of Warsaw, Gallatin county, made the RECORDER a brief call, last Friday. He was here in the interest of his campaign for Commonwealth's Attorney.

W. E. Vest has been quite busy for the last ten days closing real estate deals. He has located two Gallatin county men in Petersburg precinct, this county, in that time.

J. M. Conner, of Cincinnati, was in town a few hours last Saturday morning. Jim was looking fine and was in excellent spirits. He reported the hog and cattle markets as having gone all to pieces.

J. J. Rucker attended the Falmouth Fair, last week. He says the show was good, but the exhibit of corn beat anything in that line he ever saw—the exhibit was the largest and the corn the finest.

L. H. Voshell, who has been giving the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association considerable attention, was in town Monday, and said he understood that the Association had secured the money with which to handle the 1903 crop.

The following Owen county political rooters were in town, Mouday: Hon. J. W. Cammack, John M. Bourne, R. H. Gayle, Joseph Lewis. They are some of Owen county's most worthy citizens, and are very much interested in the race for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney.

Geo. Ossman and wife, of Beaver, were among Mrs. B. W. Adams' diners, last Friday. Mr. Ossman said that everybody in his neighborhood was very busy, cutting corn and sowing wheat. They have a crop of fine corn in the Beaver neighborhood, and the price has been started at 50 cents.

Confession of a Priest,

Rev. John. S. Cox, of Wake, Ark., writes, "For 12 years I suffered from Yellow Jaundice, I consulted a number of physicians and tried all sorts of medicines, but got no relief. Then I began the use of Electric Bitters and feel that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for 12 years." If you want a reliable medicine for Liver and Kidney trouble, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by All Druggists. Only 50c.

Man and the Day of Rest

The Sunday of God's Purpose and the Sunday of Human Needs

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

Chicago, Sunday, Oct. 1903

Text:—"Wherefore it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day."—Matt. 12:12.

THE Sunday Question.—It is not new. It has agitated the Christian church from the earliest times. Jesus came face to face with it at the very beginning of His ministry. He found the day burdened and distorted by the restrictions which the Scribes and Pharisees had placed upon it. His effort was to deliver the day from its unbearable exactions and make it, as God intended, a real day of rest. The cold formalism of the letter of the law had killed the freedom of the Spirit of God in His relations to the day. Jesus at once struck at the root of the matter when He declared: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." This statement was so radically opposed to the Jewish idea of the Sabbath as to arouse the bitterest opposition. The Scribes and Pharisees in their zeal for form and ceremony had deified the Sabbath and made it something for man to worship and serve. Jesus corrected this error by declaring that God had made the Sabbath day to serve the needs of man. Here, then, we have the first and fundamental doctrine in regard to the Sabbath day, or the day of rest. The other great truth, as Jesus went on to declare it, was that He was Lord of the Sabbath. He was not to be crowded out of the day as God, His Father, had been, for they had so filled the day with burdensome restrictions and obligations that it had become a religion of cold and lifeless forms and exactions. And not only was He Lord of the Sabbath day, but the law of that day was one of positive and active goodness. "It is lawful to do good on the Sabbath." Here, then, we have before us the fundamentals of the Sabbath day question: "The Sabbath made for man," "Jesus, Lord of the Sabbath," and the law of the Sabbath, "do good."

WHEN Jesus was on earth and endeavoring to restore to its rightful functions the day of rest which God had established, it was the extreme of ceremonial restrictions and exactions which robbed the day of its true spirit and purpose; but to-day the pendulum has swung clear to the other side, and we find that instead of the Puritanical type of Sunday we have the "wide-open" Sunday, the Sunday when liberal views, indifference to God's claims, and love of pleasure prevail. Instead of the burden of stern religious exactions, there is distracting and demoralizing freedom in every department in life. The laziness and ease which keep from church on Sunday morning; the Sunday newspaper, the reading of which relegates the Bible to the dusty shelf; the feasting and social functions; the pleasure ontings, which take the whole or part of the day; the rush of trains and street cars; the grind of the wheels of business; the din and pound of the workshop. Instead of the prescribed Sabbath's day journey of our Lord's day which the hypocritical Pharisees would not allow to be overstepped even to minister to a suffering and needy creature, we have the bicycle or automobile run; the long street-car ride to visit distant friends; the picnic in the park or the country. In Jesus' day God was crowded out of the Sabbath day by man's superficial zeal in religious things; to-day, God is crowded out of the rest day by man's utter forgetfulness or partial forgetfulness of God's claims upon him and his seeking the things and pleasures of the world, so that there is just as much need of effort to redeem the blessed rest day from the error and evil which crowd it as there was when Jesus faced His bigoted critics and declared that the Sabbath was made for man, that He was Lord of the Sabbath, and that the law which was to govern the day was that of doing good, and the same fundamental facts in regard to the weekly rest day which have existed since the foundation of the world, when God rested on the seventh day and hallowed it, exist to-day.

THE fact that the Christian world observes the first day of the week instead of the seventh as prescribed by the Mosaic law does not in the least alter the great underlying purposes and obligations of the day. We have not space here to develop the argument that man, physically and spiritually, needs one day in seven for rest. It is not necessary for us to recall how with the passing of the Jewish dispensation in the rejection and crucifixion of Christ and His resurrection upon the first day of the week and the establishment of the church of the Gospel dispensation upon the day of Pentecost, the Jewish Sabbath ceased to be observed by the Christians, who in its stead observed Sunday, or the first day of the week. But whether the seventh-day Sabbath of the Jews or the first-day Sunday of the Christians, they both rest upon foundation principles which are identical, and unchanged and unchangeable. The day of rest was made for man. Of that day Christ is still Lord and great Exemplar. The one great obligation of that day is that of doing good. It is not our purpose to discuss the question of whether the seventh day or the first day should be observed, nor is it our purpose to add to the great and confused discussion of what one can do and what one ought not to do on Sunday. Christ did not attempt to outline a list of the cans and the can'ts for the day, but He did call attention to certain fundamental truths in regard to the day, and these are unchanged and unchangeable, and they afford a sure means of determining what one ought to do and what one ought not to do on Sunday at the present time, even as they would have revealed to the Pharisees the true freedom, and blessing and obligations of the day when Jesus attacked their false and unholy position.

WITH a Chicago university professor advocating Sunday baseball, and other religious teachers and preachers throughout the country attempting to determine what may lawfully be done on Sunday; with the letting down of the bars in every direction and the shutting out of God from the rest day by the distraction of human plans and purposes, there is need to turn from human thought and reasoning and get near to Jesus, where we may hear Him tell us again: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath; so that the Son of man is Lord even of the Sabbath." "It is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day." Jesus' critics were ready to argue with Him. And there is just as eager willingness to-day to enter into controversy over the Sunday question. The punctilious Pharisees in their bigotry and blindness thought they were right on the question of the right observation of the Sabbath day, and the liberalist of to-day, although he is on the other side of the fence, as he reasons from his human point of view, believes that he is right. The Pharisees, with their distorted ideas as to what constituted work, asked: "Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath day?" Think of it! What blindness! And to-day with the extreme of liberality reached in reference to the question of Sunday observance, and with human desire and selfishness encroaching more and more upon the Lord's day, we find those who do not understand the real purpose and obligations of the day asking as foolish questions, and making as vital mistakes as did the Pharisees.

LET us look at the circumstances surrounding our text. It is the Sabbath day, and Jesus has entered the synagogue. His critics follow Him. There is within the synagogue a man with a palsied and wasted arm. Jesus' attention is directed at once to the sufferer. The Pharisees, noting this, and divining His purpose, ask the question to which our text is the reply. But before He renders the man the help he needs and answers their query, He asks them a few simple and searching questions, which lay bare their false position. "What man shall there be of you, that shall have one sheep, and if this fall into a pit on the Sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out? How much, then, is a man of more value than a sheep!" The restrictions of the Pharisaic law might be overstepped in behalf of the brute, which had an intrinsic value to its owner, but it must be rigidly and exactly observed when it came to suffering man, who in God's sight was of infinitely more value. And human life has not ceased to be the cheapest thing in the world in man's eyes, and this fact is strikingly in evidence in connection with the violation of the purpose and spirit of Sunday, both as regards man's treatment of himself and as regards his treatment of his fellowmen. The business man is willing to work his clerks seven days in the week, and when the men are worn out, he can get more. The railroad and the factory will put their men through the perpetual grind, and find more to fill their places when they become inefficient and worked-out.

LET us analyze Jesus' statement that it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day. The doing of good involves a triple relationship: The relation of a man to himself, to his God and to his fellowman. Doing good cannot measure up to God's standard of what goodness is, if any one of these conditions is lacking. First of all, then, man must consider himself in reference to this Sunday question. What should the day bring to him, and what of his own personality should he put into the day? If the day of rest was instituted for man, what is it that it should bring to him in his physical and spiritual being? Is it not rest on the world side, and growth Godward? Every seventh day was to be a day of rest. It is declared of God that "in six days He made Heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day," wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it." But that it does not mean the rest of inactivity and aimless purpose is evident from what Jesus declared, for, when He healed and wrought good on the Sabbath day, He defended His actions when the Jews accused Him of violating the commandment of God in regard to the holy Sabbath day by declaring that His Father worked hitherto and He worked. The rest which God purposed for man was not the rest of laziness, nor was God providing for a time when man could recover from the week of indulgences and excesses. And yet how many there are who run riot in the direction of business and pleasure during the week, because they know there is a Sunday coming in which they can obtain rest. How many make Saturday night the convenient season of excesses of all varieties, because they know that on the Sunday following they can sleep and rest up the physically-tired and wornout body. How many, many Christians—yes it said to their shame and confusion—deliberately plan the Saturday night social pleasure and outing, because they know that on Sunday they can sleep late. But such rest brings no blessing, save perhaps to the lower physical nature. To the Christian Saturday night ought to be the home night, as far as possible, so that planning and preparation for the Lord's day to follow may be made. Rest such as God intended should be found upon the day of rest was that which took one from the secular things of the week and gave him a favorable opportunity to grow towards the things of God.

AND in the second place, as regards man's relation to God on the day of rest: There is a distinctive obligation to God on the Sabbath day which no other day of the week can know. It provides an environment in which man's spiritual nature can properly develop and grow. To the degree to which man recognizes this fact, to that extent does he realize the blessings and benefits of the day of rest. The Sabbath day is given to man that God may have opportunity to come closer to him and satisfy the needs of his spiritual nature. Some natures are so starved and dead to a sense of God that they crowd Sunday full of the things of the world, their pleasures and ambitions, and are indifferent to the claims of God upon them or of their own need of Him. Many Christians by their worldliness, by allowing the natural man to predominate and rule, fail to realize the blessing of the Lord's day. There must be a separation from the world and the things of the world in order that the way unto God and His approach unto us may be unobstructed. In the days of Nehemiah, when the people had grown careless as to the Sabbath day and the day had come to be pretty nearly like the other days of the week, he shut the gates against those who had been coming into Jerusalem to buy and sell. He separated the people of the city from the outside influences which drew them away from God, and to-day we need the same stern and decisive action upon the part of every individual Christian in shutting the gates of his mind and heart against the cares and thought and plans of the secular week; there is need of shutting out the activities of the natural man in order that there may be growth and development Godward. This is essential to well-doing on the Sabbath day.

IN the third place, well doing on the Sabbath day involves man's relation to his fellowman. This raises a complexity of questions and problems which only can be settled as light is received from God, and His will and Spirit have opportunity to operate freely through one. "It is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day," declares Jesus, and there is apparently a vast deal of well doing from man to man on the Sabbath day which apparently receives the general approval of man, but we dare to say that some of it at least does not meet the approval of God, for the well doing does not reach any higher than man or seek to go beyond the temporal physical needs of man. Take your Bibles and read all portions of the Gospels which tell of Jesus' Sabbath day activities, and what do we find? Jesus' well doing as it touched the physical sought to reach the spiritual and lead to clearer understanding of God and nearer approach unto Him. Test your activities on the Lord's day as those activities bring you into touch with others and see what is the underlying motive. Why do you do this or that on the Sabbath day? Why do you go to this or that place? Why do you make that call, or go on that jaunt on the street cars to another part of the city or country? Why do you arrange that gathering of relatives or friends at the festive board? What is your purpose in it all? All that you do may in itself be harmless and perfectly proper in its rightful place. It may satisfy and please your friends, and those with whom you come in contact, but if it does not satisfy the conditions which God lays down as the law of His day you have failed.

IF Sunday baseball, Sunday picnics, Sunday pleasures and outings, Sunday socialibilities and feasting can stand the test of this triple-sided view of the law of the Sabbath day, all right; but if not, it is all wrong. The trouble with people in arguing with themselves and with others in regard to what they rightfully may and rightfully may not do on the Sabbath day is that they reason from human standpoints and with conceptions of life which do not reach beyond the present life. But if a question as regards to conduct on the Sabbath day is to be settled rightfully and finally it must be considered in relation to himself, to his God and to his fellowmen. Christians would not be so troubled and anxious over this Sunday question if they were moved by the purpose of doing good which actuated Christ. He never found it difficult to decide what He ought to do. He never seemed to be troubled by the criticism of those about Him, for the law of the Sabbath day was being lived out in His life. He was doing good. It involved His relations to Himself, to His God and to His fellowman, and this was the purpose of the day. It was the direction in which the highest possibilities of the day might be realized. Surely the Sabbath day was made for man, but the only pathway of realization of all the blessed possibilities of that day is the way which Jesus marked out. He is the Lord of the Sabbath. He it is Who can lead us. To do good on the Sabbath day and test that good doing by your relationship to yourself, to your God and to your fellowman. Then the Sunday question will be settled, at least as far as you yourself are concerned, and this will be a long step in the direction of settling it for others.

FEMININE FINERY.

New Ideas in Gowns, Waists and Hats for the Current Season.

A severe but elegant brown holland walking suit has a corset skirt and a very long coat to match. The coat reaches nearly to the knees, and is buttoned almost the entire length. These gowns need to be perfectly tailored to be successful, reports the New York Post.

A pretty suit of white holland or dress linen has a box plaited skirt and waist, the latter having all the plaits stitched flat. It blouses a little all around. The belt, collar, cuffs and sleeve caps of this gown are piped with rather bright blue, and are trimmed with small silver buttons. Under the flat stole collar falls a tie with long ends of blue linen ornamented with large, graduated disks of white, hand-sewn.

A perfectly-made lace waist is as much of a satisfaction to wear or to behold as an inferior garment of the same description is dowdy and distressing. An interlining of two or more thicknesses of chiffon is almost a necessity. A costly example of a well-conceived white lace waist is of a lace resembling point de Venise, and has a sort of a spider-web pattern. It is interlined with chiffon, and is quite bare of ornamentation. The seams, including those that join the sleeves to the body, are put together with fine nainsook seaming. A line of the seaming also joins the soft stock collar.

A gorgeous boa is in a flat stole shape and is very long. It is made of fine black ostrich feathers, with white marabout, almost as airy as swan's down for a lining. The ends of the boa are long fringes of the black and white feathers.

Another feather boa keeps the popular round shape. It is made of lilac ostrich feathers, and shades from the palest to very deep tones around the face. With this regal boa goes a hat of lilac straw, in a Gainsborough shape. It is loaded with purple lilacs, and has a scarf of lilac ribbon extending to the turned-up back of the hat, where it is tied in a large bow.

The number of brown hats among the latest importations is notable, and is an indication of the vogue that color is destined to become when the next fashions are shown. A charming hat of deep tan-colored straw is bent into a three-cornered shape almost like a continental army hat. A bandeau of brown ribbon lifts it from the hair, and a dashing cockade of brown ostrich tips and an aigrette trims the hat on the left side.

COULD IMPROVE ON ADVICE.

It Was Good for Those Who Had Won Recognition, But Not for the Beginner.

He might have been 45 or 50 years old, and was apparently in comfortable circumstances. He was well dressed, and as he sat in front of the big fire at the club he puffed meditatingly at a cigar. The young man sitting near him was scowling at the fire as he smoked his cigar, relates the Chicago Post.

"Just on the threshhold of your literary career," said the old man at last, interrogatively.

The young man acquiesced with a movement of his head.

"You have a hard struggle ahead of you," said the old man. "I know what it is. It takes a long time to secure recognition."

The young man admitted the truth of the assertion by another nod.

"It requires patience, perseverance and constant improvement," continued the old man, complacently. "One must not get discouraged. I was almost ready to give up once or twice, but I kept right on, and now I can sell anything I write at a good price. And let me give you another piece of advice: Always read your stories over in print. There is nothing like it for improving a man's style. He sees the flaws in print when he would overlook them in manuscript."

The young man took his cigar out of his mouth and looked at the other curiously.

"That's your advice, is it?" he asked at last.

"It is."

"It's the best you can give, I suppose?"

"Why, yes. I don't think of anything in a general way that's more important."

"Well, from my limited experience I can improve on it mightily."

"How?"

"By prefixing it with 'First get your story in print.'"

Tomato Ginger Preserves.

Tomatoes barely ripe, the large round kind. Wash in cold water and cut in half at right angles to the stem. Take out seeds, which can be more easily done with the finger than the knife. Throw into alum water (one ounce alum to one-half gallon water). Make a ginger tea of one ounce of ginger root to a pint of water, using as many pints of water as pounds of tomato. When boiled to a strong tea, make syrup of white sugar and tea, using one pound of sugar to each pound of tomato. Boil in a porcelain kettle until tomato is somewhat dark, two or three hours. Take out tomato and boil syrup until thick. Seal in air-tight jars, putting ginger in with preserves.—Good Housekeeping.

Chocolate Puddings.

Soak two cupfuls of fine bread crumbs in four cupfuls of milk. Add three eaten eggs, three-quarters cupful of sugar, two squares of chocolate melted, and beat all well together until a smooth mass. Add one-half level teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into butter custard cups and bake. Serve cold with a spoonful of whipped cream on each.—Detroit Free Press.

A Wish.

Thinne—Oh, I wish I had your voice.

Tilecke—No doubt you would enjoy using it.

"No, 'tain't that, but I was thinking if it were mine I could stop it when I liked."—Boston Post.

INVESTIGATION JUGGLED.

There Is Evident Intention to Squelch the Post Office Scandals.

The expected has happened. Postmaster General Payne has succeeded in pretty nearly squelching the post office scandals. Since the indictment of Machen and Beavers, it is evident that but little more will be done. There are too many congressmen and republican leaders mixed up in the matter, who must protect the looters, and some of them too much dread an investigation to allow the matter to proceed. Such a competent machine politician as the postmaster general knows that the republican party cannot receive any more such hard knocks as it has received by the exposure of even a small part of the scandals and survive the treatment. Trusting that other matters may occupy the attention of the voters, Mr. Payne has ordered no information to be given out about the scandals, and refuses to say anything himself. Looking at the matter from a political party standpoint, he may be wise, but the exposure of the scandals in other government departments persistently keeps these matters in the public eye. How President Roosevelt and the other republican leaders must pray for something big to happen. How quickly the Beirut Incident was seized upon, but that faux pas only occupied a day or two, and the scandals are still on top. There are indications that an attempt is to be made to take advantage of the disturbed condition at Panama as an outlet for the public mind to dwell upon. But the scandals will not down, but bob up unsuspiciously with a worse aspect for the administration.

One day we hear that Diggs and Miller will not be brought to trial; the next day that Beavers snaps his fingers at the administration and dares the government officers to arrest him, anyway he is daily seen on the streets and avenuss of New York, often in the company of government officials. The proceedings are becoming farcical, and there is a strong impression abroad that the investigation is being juggled and the pressure from the machine has been too great for the president to withstand.

—The report of President Roosevelt's brief Richmond Hill address made 13½ nonpareil lines, and there were ten "I's" in it. The combination of "spectacularist" and "egomaniac" is certainly a strenuous one in this distinguished instance.—Atlanta Constitution.

—The president asserts that he knew nothing about Mr. Payne's appointment of a successor to Miss Todd to suit Senator Allee, in Delaware. But did he know anything about his own appointment of District Attorney Byrne, twice rejected by the senate?—Pittsburg Post.

—Patronage is the root of two-thirds of the troubles and scandals of our political life. The ax must be laid to the roots, but they are far spread and the tree is of the stoutest. However, it is politically safer to use the ax than to "stand pat," since a scandal whose proportions are one size less dangerous to an administration than one that is covered up, will every body guessing at its real size.—Boston Transcript.

TRUSTS IN SUGAR.

They All Join Hands to Rob the Farmer and the Consumer.

The sugar trust, officially known as the American Sugar Refining company, has bought the controlling interest in the Oxnard beet sugar combine, so that in future there will be no more competition between these two highwaymen as to who shall hold up the consumer, and we may expect the price of refined sugar to gradually, if not rapidly, rise. On the other hand, it is probable that the price paid to the farmers for beets will be reduced, for the sugar trust will have no incentive to increase the output of beet sugar and will probably decide to decrease it, the profit on refining cane sugar being greater than on manufacturing beet sugar, in consequence of the discriminating duty of nearly one cent a pound on refined sugar, to which must be added the countervailing duty, which is imposed to offset the export bounty paid by foreign nations, making the actual duty on refined sugar about 2.25 cents a pound. If the reciprocity treaty with Cuba is ratified this winter the sugar trust will have a further advantage of a 25 per cent. reduction on all sugar imported from Cuba, and as sugar can be grown much cheaper there than it can be manufactured from beets, the outlook for the farmers who grow beets is not reassuring. It is stated that the sugar trust magnates have invested in a large acreage of the finest Cuban sugar lands, and when the reciprocity treaty is an accomplished fact these lands will be utilized to produce sugar.

The only hope for the farmers who grow beets and also for the general public—the consumers of sugar—is that the discriminating and countervailing duty shall be abolished and the sugar trust would then have to reduce the price of refined sugar to prevent the competition of the foreign article. As beet sugar is refined when it is manufactured from the beets, without going through a separate refining operation, as the cane sugar does, it is probable that the trust would find it more profitable to manufacture beet sugar than to buy and refine the cane raw sugar when the preferential duty is abolished.

The democratic position is that a reasonable duty on sugar is necessary to raise revenue, but the preferential duty which allows the trust to increase the price to the public and pocket the difference, is robbery.

—We are glad to add that, though still bound by a bigoted tariff at home, the idea of fairer trade abroad has now disposed our own government to obtain the opening of new ports on the Asiatic coast, not to the exclusive trade of the particular power in control, but to the trade of all the world. This policy, as exemplified by the present administration, is also the best world policy. It minimizes the chances of conflict between the natural desires of Russia whenever the manner of their execution is contrary to the interest of the Teuton states. Our leverage in world politics—for the United States is a world power—means no exclusive individual ambition, but a conciliatory adjustment on all sides for the preservation of what is best in trade. And that is called the open door. Only that will prevent a possible armed conflict one day between the Teuton and the Slav.—Outlook.

—Why Mr. Roosevelt chose Mr. Payne for the cabinet becomes more and more evident. Somebody was required who could do the ugly work necessary when a presidential aspirant wishes to peddle offices to a machine. Somebody was needed who could, for instance, appoint persons not "personally and particularly obnoxious" to the bosses. Mr. Payne was well qualified, having had large experience in that sort of practical politics, and he has justified Mr. Roosevelt's selection.—St. Louis Republic.

—It is hardly creditable to Mr. Hanna's originality that, while denouncing Mr. Clarke as a calamity howler, he himself utters veiled threats of business disaster if people do not vote the republican ticket.—Chicago Chronicle.

—The New York papers are full of the ravages of the great equinoctial storm which swept that city on the 10th. Among its freaks the World recounts, with an illustration, the blowing off of the skirts of the president's coat so as to expose to view a six-shooter in his hip pocket. Like the Diggs-ay tariff, we suppose it is for protection only.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

STABLE CONVENIENCES.

How to Build a Manure Carrier to Be Used on Cable Rope or Steel Track.

In the illustration Fig. 1 is shown a desirable carried to be used on wire cable or rope or wooden or steel track for removing manure from the shed or for other uses around the stable, that will suggest themselves to the thoughtful farmer. It may be made of the size thought best suited for the use it will be put to, and, according to size and weight, may be pushed or drawn by hand or a singletree may be attached to the front end and a horse be used to draw it along.

Four inch boards make a box one to two feet in depth, about three feet wide and four feet long, although as before mentioned, the size is optional with the maker. The front floor of the box should cover a little less than the bottom surface and be slanted somewhat as in the illustration, the rear floor consists of a hinged bottom which can be dropped down to empty the box. This hinged bottom may be attached to the solid floor by a strap or T hinges or by 4 light iron rod run beneath it and turning in simple bearings at side of box. It should have low side-boards. To hold it shut when necessary and still allow it to be easily dropped when ready, a lever device may be arranged as illustrated. An iron rod about ¼-inch in diameter can be bent into the required form by any blacksmith. At the point where the lever forms the main right angle, the rod, or rather rods, for there are two at this point, should be heated and flattened out so as to allow of a hole being made to receive the bolt that holds the lever on the box. On the hinged bottom an iron clip is attached and twisted ¼ way around in such a manner that a hole in the small clip receives the bent end of the rod or lever so as to complete a latch. As the dotted lines show, by raising the lever the latch is disengaged and the bottom of the box drops down, thus almost completely emptying the box of its contents. The lever must be hung so that the resistance will come beneath the points of support or it will not hold the box closed. Instead of this device, a hasp and staple and wooden pin may be used if it is not thought worth while to construct the lever latch. To suspend the box to the cable or track, use four ¼-inch iron rods at the corners of the box. Flatten the ends of the rods and bolt one end of each to the side of the box. Bend each two of the rods near together, and, in the case of using a wire cable or rope, bolt to the socket of an ordinary iron pulley of a size to suit the rope used. If there is much sag in the cable, it will be best to put a brace across from one set of rods to the other set so as to keep them from bending out of position. This completes the carrier for use on wire rope.

A subscriber who has a stable 75 feet long and who has a sufficient amount of ⅝-inch wire rope, wishes to know if he could use the rope to run a manure carrier to a distance of 100 feet away from the stable. It does not seem to the writer that a cable 175 feet in length anchored only at the two ends could be drawn tight enough to remove the sagging effect, and an arrangement of this kind would probably not be practicable on a line of that length. The inquirer, however, can easily accomplish his object by making use of a wooden track, which may be supported along its length as often as necessary. The track may be 2x4 or 4x4-inch stuff, and may be suspended behind the stalls in the stable by rods running to the loft. Steel track may be used in the same manner. When wood or steel track is employed for the manure carrier, the rods that reach from the box are bolted to a hay carrier which runs on the solid track as the rope pulleys do on the cable. In Fig. 3, A shows the manner of bolting the rods to the ordinary pulley when wire rope is used, and B shows how the rods may be bolted to a hay carrier by removing the two rope pulleys of the hay carrier and putting the rods in place.

TREE FUMIGATING SCREEN.

Description of a Device Recently Patented by a Progressive California Fruit Grower.

Farming a century ago consisted principally of planting the seed, keeping out the weeds and waiting for the harvest, with little or no conception of the chemical processes through which the soil induced the plant growth, and, consequently, no knowledge of how the plant growth could be forced by the addition to the soil of the chemical constituents which were lacking. Likewise the apples and small fruits were looked upon as a side issue, which must be left largely to chance in producing profitable crops. Gradually, however, a change has come about, until now the farmer performs his labor as a scientist with the aid of the agricultural college and government and state experiment stations and agricultural institutes. With this knowledge has come the necessity of better appliances for inducing healthy plant growths and guarding against diseases, both in fruits and vegetables. A century ago the idea of smudging a tree to rid it of insects or worms might have been scoffed at, but now the need for an apparatus like the one we illustrate can be easily comprehended. This tent-like device is intended to inclose completely trees of considerable size, and is constructed of a series of overlapping sections, which can be placed in position while folded, and allowed to fall down all around the tree until the lowest section reaches the ground. With the tree thus inclosed, it is an easy matter to build a fire inside the tent and apply the chemicals which will fumigate the foliage or rid the limbs and trunk of any fungus growths detrimental to its health.—Chicago News.

SUB-EARTH FACTORIES.

How Roots of Leguminosa Plants Change Free Nitrogen of the Air Into Soil Nitrates.

The farmer is not generally looked upon as a manufacturer. Yet on his lands and under them, on the roots of all leguminous plants, there are at work the microscopic creations that labor in changing the free nitrogen of the air into soil nitrates that may be used by the plants. Every nodule on the root of a plant is an immense factory. It may be smaller than a pea, yet in it are multitudes of the little workers. They existed from the beginning of the development of leguminosae on the earth; but man has only recently discovered them. Before he understood that they were the friends of man, he regarded these factories as symptoms of plant diseases, and various remedies were invented for the cure of the said diseases. But later such efforts were found to be misplaced, and it was recognized that these same tubercles were part of the machinery of Mother Nature, by which she kept the soil supplied with the so-readily soluble forms of nitrogen, which alone can be taken up by the roots of plants. In the woods and on the prairies there are numerous forms of leguminosae, which help to keep up the balance required. There are the wild peas, the beggar weeds, the vetches and their relatives. On all of their roots are the little nitrogen factories crowded with workers. Man is able to assist these laborers and make it possible for them to increase their product. This is a manufacture in which there is not danger of over production.—Farmers' Review.

POULTRY YARD PICKINGS.

Do not allow litter in coops to become damp during a rainy season. Fowls must have dry houses.

If you have any old, spoiled messes, bury them in the compost heap; don't feed them to the poultry.

Utilize the wastes about the farm and economize in salable foods, but never feed poultry on offensive offal.

Many a person puts the money into fancy buildings and furnishings for his hen-house that ought to go into the poultry.

Keeping up the feed and keeping down the lice will go a long way toward keeping up the profits from the poultry end of the farm.

Anything that will glisten in the sun as it swings about will frighten hawks and crows. Suspend glass, tin or mica on poles about the poultry runs.—Farm Journal.

PECULIAR INDIAN CUSTOMS.

Days on Which Mohammedans Will Not Bathe—Freedom of Cattle.

Mohammedans of India are very superstitious. No Mohammedan will take a bath on Sunday or Tuesday. But if one bathes on Wednesday all misfortunes and misery that are in store for him till next Wednesday will be averted. As a rule all Mohammedans bathe on Fridays before going to perform the jumma prayers. For donning new clothes Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday are regarded as bad days. If anyone dons a new dress or puts on a new cloth or allows his tailor to cut a piece of new cloth on these days he will live a miserable life till that dress or cloth gets torn or is thrown away. If a shirt is torn and if the wearer wants to stitch it, it must be taken off, for if it is stitched while it is on the body the person will soon die. A Mohammedan will never allow a barber to come near him on Tuesdays, for Tuesdays and also Saturdays and Sundays are bad days for shaving purposes. If absolutely necessary he will get himself shaved on Saturday or Sunday, but never on Tuesday, as his star is supposed to fall in blood if he does so. If one receives money or some valuable thing it is taken with the right hand, for if it is taken with the left the person receiving it is said to forget all about it very soon or to mislay it. A devout Mohammedan will not start on a journey on Wednesday, for it is believed he will never return home safely if he does so. And it is said that even a snake never ventures out of its hole on this day.

In Fez, the capital of Morocco, most of the houses consist of several stories, each being provided with a light verandah running round it and connecting the rooms. All the windows and doors open out in the patio, or courtyard, the window openings in the upper stories being covered with close trellis work. All the houses have flat roofs, with a wall some four to six feet high running around, and from four p. m. until sunset the roofs are given over to the ladies exclusively, who can then walk about and take the fresh air without being seen by any of the opposite sex. This reservation is a law which is never broken and no man would be guilty of being seen on his or on any other roof during the forbidden hours. Owing to the fact that the women of the house are not allowed to be seen by any other man than their lord and master, all domestic offices are situated away from the house proper. In many of the larger houses, besides the water fountains, others playing scent or scented water are to be found. Sections of the courtyard also are slightly sunk and these portions are filled with scented oil, which is used to perfume the rooms. The Moors are exceptionally particular in discarding their footgear before entering a room or crossing a rug or carpet; they even change slippers before entering their courtyard from the street. Thus the houses are kept beautifully clean and sweet and are not, as many people would suppose, musty or close.

Few people traveling in India can fail to notice the part played, whether in the flesh or its representation, by the cow and the ox. Sacred cattle wander unmolested and unmolesting through the streets of the cities, more especially in the south, generally decorated with garlands of flowers; stone "nandis," the bulls of Siva, keep guard before his temples and round his tanks; they are portrayed in fresco or in carving on the walls of many a rock cavern. Oxen turn mills, plow the land, are the drawers and carriers of water and, above all, are invaluable for drawing loads. Cattle, as is well known, are by Hindoos held in great and superstitious reverence, Ganges water poured over a cow's tail being equivalent to the kissing of the sacred book or taking an oath. Yet, unfortunately the draft bull often receives very rough treatment at his driver's hands. So long as the animal's life is not taken ill-treatment counts as nothing among these people who regard the brutes as sacred.

A SUCCESSFUL PLOT.

Opposition Only Fanned the Fires of Determination and George Became It.

"George is so forgetful. He is always wondering what I ever could have seen in him?" said the fair girl, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"George isn't the only one," remarked Brother Bob. "All the fellows are wondering how you could fancy such a blooming noodle."

"Jane Storrs told me only yesterday," said Sister May, "that the first example of good sense George has ever shown is in trying to get into our family. That was sweet of Jane, wasn't it?"

"If he tries to patronize me," growled little Jim, "I'll hand him one in the neck. I ain't going to have any cheap guy like that mussin' up my hair."

"He's much too good for any of you," shrieked the fair girl, as she flounced to the door. "And I'll marry him now just to spite you all—you horrid lot of backbiters!"

And she stormed up the stairway and slammed the door of her room.

Whereat the three conspirators winked and laughed. For they really liked the young fellow who liked their sister, and had taken this sure means to clinch the fair girl's wayward fancy.

No Attraction in This.

Dealer—Here's a machine I can conscientiously recommend. It is positively noiseless and odorless.

Automobilist—What! A machine that makes no noise and does not scent the atmosphere? What would it be good for? One might ride in it all day and not attract attention.—Boston Transcript.

CONVICT ACHIEVING RICHES.

Is Paroled and Becoming Wealthy from Invention of New Sewing Machine While in Prison.

Charles Filer, who was paroled from the New Jersey state prison at Trenton last July for good conduct and for having invented a blind lockstitch sewing machine while serving his fourth term for burglary, continues to profit by his invention. The English rights to it have been sold for $50,000.

When he left prison local capitalists agreed to market the invention, well-known Trenton business men agreeing to finance its manufacture.

The English deal has recently been closed, which gives, besides $50,000 in cash, $25,000 in stock of the English concern. It is reported that another large offer has been made for the Russian rights. The machine has been patented in 34 countries.

The local capitalists, in addition to backing Filer when he came out of prison, gave him a salary of $5,000 to superintend the construction of the machines. He says each machine does the work of 20 men and does it better than they could do it by hand.

Filer is a good-looking man, 42 years old. He was convicted four times of burglary, serving nearly 20 years in prison. He now says all his good fortune came from his incarceration, for if he had not been forced to work in the prison tailor shop he never would have thought of the blind lockstitch machine.

While in prison he met Miss Louise Hill, a pretty and well connected girl, who lived with her aunt opposite the prison. They were married last January in the Methodist church here, the event creating a local sensation, at the time. Filer has settled down in a comfortable home in one of the best residential portions of Trenton and bids fair to become a wealthy man.

He says he never committed the first crime for which he was sent to prison.

SAYS HE CREATED LIFE.

Indiana Doctor Declares That He Produced Animated Atoms by a Chemical Mixture.

With one ounce of common salt, six ounces of pure water, six ounces of 90 per cent. alcohol, all mixed in an ordinary glass dish, and two ounces of aqua ammonia distributed in five small plates and all covered by an airtight glass tube, Dr. Charles W. Littlefield, of Alexandria, Ind., declared and proved that he had created life in the form of thousands of atoms or animated substances similar to well-developed germs of life and trilobites.

Only 90 minutes were consumed while salt crystals were impregnated with the hydrogen and volatile magnetism of the chemical solution and transformed into living forms that immediately sought nourishment through mediums that Dr. Littlefield termed feeders, lacking any technical name. Microscopic examination showed that crystals not affected by the chemical mixture retain their original cubic or square form, while the magnetized crystals were of hexagon shape, with life first appearing in the center and spreading until the crystal was round and finally of globular shape. A mass of the life substances possessed magnetism of pronounced degree, radiating a power that would separate the crystals and then draw them together again.

It has not been determined what the germs or atoms would propagate, but Dr. Littlefield was content with the successful generation of life in a simple manner that might also be accomplished by the laity. He repeated his experiments several times, all with practically the same successful results.

Needed a Knife.

Prof. George Lincoln Burr, of Cornell, who lately toured New England on his bicycle in order to gather facts about witchcraft, is an authority on the history of superstition and persecution, and is also an indefatigable wheelman. Prof. Burr, with his bicycle, has penetrated many primitive and secluded parts of the United States.

From these journeys, says an eastern exchange, he returns with little stories that are now quaint, now strange, now humorous. A story of the latter sort concerns a visit to Tennessee.

"I arrived one night at a mountaineer's cabin," said the professor, "and asked for shelter for the night. The good people were very hospitable. They gave me a comfortable bed and an excellent meal.

"While I was eating the meal my host watched me narrowly to see that I had everything I wanted. He kept ordering his wife to fill my glass, to bring me more bread, and so forth. Finally, when I began to eat a piece of apple pie, he exclaimed in an indignant tone:

"'Jane, why don't you bring the gentleman a knife? Don't you see him here tryin' to eat his pie with a fork?'"

Might Mad Woman.

A cable train was scooting down State street as fast as the wire rope could drag it. The gripman was rattling off "Hiawatha" on the gong, and just ahead a woman, who was almost as fleet as she was tall, had preempted the track. The gripman released the hold on the cable and switched from "Hiawatha" to a break-down jig, but the woman never stirred. The next instant the street car "jumped" the preempted claim in the street, and 250 pounds of mighty mad woman was taking a ride on the fender. The gripman stopped the cable train, leaped over the dashboard of the car, and expected to find a dead woman. But she wasn't dead. Indeed, she was sitting there adjusting her hat. When she caught sight of the gripman she ground her teeth together, leaned forward, shook her fist at him, and said: "Blame you, anyhow!" A minute later she was up and away without saying another word.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

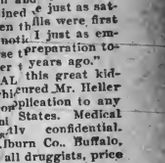
ALL TIRED OUT.

The weary, worn-out, all-tired feelings come to everybody who taxes the kidneys.

When the kidneys are over-worked they fail to perform the duties nature has provided for them to do.

When the kidneys fail dangerous diseases quickly follow. Urinary disorders, diabetes, dropsy, rheumatism, Bright's disease and bladder ills. Read the following case:



Veteran Joshua Heller, 706 South Walnut street, Urbana, Ill., says: "In the fall of 1899 after getting Doan's Kidney Pills at Cunningham Bros.' drug store in Champaign and taking a course of the treatment as directed by the readers of this paper they entirely relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of a lame back, with pain across my loins and pain the shoulder blades. During the interval which has elapsed I have had occasion to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed symptoms of an attack. On each and every occasion the results obtained were entirely satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. I just as emphatically indorse them to-day as I did over years ago."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Heller will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Medical advice free—strictly confidential. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - Oct. 7, 1903.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce JAMES W. LILLY, of Gallatin county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District,— composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce F. C. GREENE, of Owen county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney, of the 15th Judicial District composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announae M. H. Bourne, of Owen county, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney of the Fifteenth Judicial District, composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

CARRIE NATION spent a few days last month in Central Kentucky. She did not attempt to put any Kentucky saloonist out of business.

THE success of the Pendleton county fair, last week, was far beyond the expectations of the managers. The people of the county were liberal in their patronage the entire four days, and they were amply paid by an excellent exhibition in every department.

OVER five million of silver dollars were drawn out of the United States treasury during the month of September for the purpose of moving the crops of the South and West. In the course of a few months this vast amount of silver will find its way back to the treasury.

OUT of the fifteen to twenty repeaters that McInerny claims voted at each polling place in Covington at the recent primary election, none were arrested. What were Mc's army of special deputy sheriffs, that Tracy ordered to use their guns, doing, that so many guilty men were allowed to escape? To say the least they were not very efficient officers.

IN the Franklin Circuit Court, last week, a judgment was obtained by the State against ex-Auditor John S. Sweeney and his bondsmen, the Fidelity and Deposit Co., of Baltimore, Maryland. This amount was paid out onwarrants to the Taylor soldiers, after Governor Goebel issued his proclamation on February 2, 1900, ordering the soldiers to return to their homes.

EX-GOV BRADLEY thus describes the machine which Mr. Wilson ran up against in Louisville, in his campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor: "These men were running for delegates, acting as officers of their own election, and counting the ballots in secret and not before the people." Who ever heard of a machine equal to the Belknap machine in Louisville?

THE RECORDER for the first time in years was delayed several hours this week because of a disappointment by an engraver. It was its intention to have for use in this issue a half-tone of Dr. J. A. Kirtley, but the parties from whom it was expected to get it had destroyed the plate, and when this information was obtained it was too late to have one made.

REMEMBER that next Saturday the Democrats of this Judicial District are called to meet at their respective voting places in each precinct and select delegates to the District Convention which will meet in Walton on the 13th inst. to nominate a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney to fill the vacancy on the Democratic ticket caused by the death of Hon. Robert Wood, of Warsaw. The precincts in this county are entitled to delegates as follows:

NEW BAPTIST CHURCH BUILDING AT BELLEVIEW,
(In which the Centennials of that Church and the North Bend Association are being celebrated to-day.)

Brief Historical Sketch of Belleview Church.

A number of the members of Bullittsburg church, living mainly, South of Woolper creek, having decided on the advisability of organizing a Baptist church in their own neighborhood, and this movement having the endorsement of the mother church, accordingly a council of members from Bullittsburg was convened in a little log but near Middle creek on the 12th day of March, 1803. After due consideration the church was duly constituted and declared to be a regular Gospel church of Jesus Christ. The following brethren and sisters composed the body, viz: Christopher Wilson, William Brady, Urial Seebra, Jamison Hawkins, William Rogers, Elija Hogan, Isaac Carlton, John Ryle, Thomas Carter, James Ryle, Lucy Wilson, Hetha Brady, Fannie Seebra, Ruth Hawkins, Sarah Rogers, Lucy Hogan, Nancy Carter, Elizabeth Ryle, Sarah Ryle, Mildred Sebra, Dorcas Carlton, whites; and Anthony and Alice, colored. Total number, 23.

B. F. SWINDLER, D. D.,
(Moderator of the Association.)

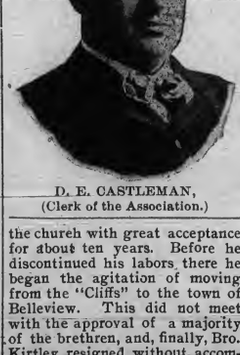
At their first meeting Christopher Wilson was chosen Moderator and Moses Scott, Clerk. For six years the church had no regular pastor, but was ministered unto by visiting preachers and by brethren of their own number, who possessed gifts of exposition and exhortation.

At the following June meeting, 1803, William Rogers and James Ryle were ordained the first Deacons of the church.

In February 1809, Christopher Wilson, who had been previously dismissed by letter and had later been ordained to preach, was invited, with Lewis Deweese and Chichester Mathews, to regularly serve the church in a joint pastorate, preaching services to be conducted by them on the 2d and 4th Sundays as might best suit their convenience. These brethren served the church acceptably for a few years, having baptised into the fellowship of the church in 1811, eighteen persons.

In 1812, Robert Garnett and John Watts were ordained by the church, to the Gospel Ministry, subsequently Robert Garnett was called as pastor, and labored efficiently till 1825.

In 1818, a great revival was experienced among the church and vicinity, during which 103 members were added to the church, 93 by baptism and 10 by letter.



In 1819 the church dismissed 14 of her members, by letter, who were afterward constituted into a Baptist church at East Bend. In 1720, John Brady was elected clerk.

In 1825, Robert Kirtley, who had previously preached his first sermon at Middle creek, was called to the pastorate. During his long pastorate of nearly 40 years, some wonderful revivals were experienced in the church. In 1840, 31 were added to the church, and on the 13th day of December, of same year, 21 members, who had been given letters of dismission from Middle creek church, were organized into a Baptist church, at Burlington.

On the 25th day of May, 1843, 44 of Middle creek's members were organized into a regular Gospel church at Big Bone. During this last year, viz; from August 1842 to 1843, though they had so greatly reduced their number in planting these other churches, the Lord more than made up the deficit by adding unto them 131 by experience and baptism.

In 1843 S. P. Brady was elected church clerk, and continued in that capacity until near his death, covering a period of more than 50 years.

R. E. Kirtley was called to succeed his father as pastor in June, 1865. During his ministry he preached but once a month, and a number of other brethren often supplied the pulpit on other Sundays. Bro. Kirtley ministered to the church with great acceptance for about ten years. Before he discontinued his labors there he began the agitation of moving from the "Cliffs" to the town of Belleview. This did not meet with the approval of a majority of the brethren, and, finally, Bro. Kirtley resigned without accomplishing his desired end. Soon after his departure from them the Lord emphasized the necessity of removal by casuing a little storm to knock the old house down.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
(Clerk of the Association.)

In 1877 Bro. A. M. Vardiman was called as pastor, and it was during his ministry that a new meeting house and parsonage were built in the town of Bellevue. Bro. Vardiman ministered efficiently for about four years, when he was called to the pastorate of Madison Avenue Church, of Covington. About this time Bro. E. N. Ticken was called to Bellevue, and proved himself not only a successful pastor, but the ablest evangelist of all the pastors of the church and of the North Bend Association. Belleview could not retain him long, however, as Bro. Vardiman resigned at Covington, and Bro. Dicken was called there to succeed him. Bro. Carney was then called as pastor at Belleview, and served one year. He was succeeded by the late J. H. Fullilove, one of the most profound preachers and best business men in the Association. He continued, successfully, in the work until 1891, when he was called home to his reward. It was during this year that the church called T. L. Utz, who served them for about eight years. During this period the church had a net growth of about one hundred members. The most notable meeting held during this time was in 1898, when he had the assistance of Rev. M. J. Hoover, at that time pastor of the church at Burlington. Fifty-eight were baptized at the close of the meeting. Soon after this great revival, when the prospects were so bright and the responsibilities so great, the pastor's health failed, and after months had elapsed, he was obliged to resign the work into stronger hands. Bro. E. B. Atwood was then called, and is now the effieient and much belovel pastor.

LATE S. P. BRADY,
(For Thirty-three Years Clerk of the North Bend Association.)

One of the saddest features of the recent history of the church, is the ravages of death among us. Among the many who have passed away during the last decade were three of the most honored deacons, viz: S. P. Brady, J. S. Huey and J. H. Walton.

The present officers of the church are E. B. Atwood, pastor, and moderator; D. M. Snyder, clerk; Robt. Aylor, R. B. Huey, M. J. Corbin and James Botts, deacons.

For a number of years past a serious detriment to the pleasure and success of the church has been that the congregation had outgrown the dimensions of the house of worship, but this difficulty has been obviated this year by the erection of the handsome and commodious church edifice as seen in the above cut. So closes the first hundred years of the history of this grand old church.

The first building occupied by the Middle creek church, of which we have any account, was a frame building, and occupied a site about half way up the Middle creek hill, on the Garnett's Mill and Big Bone road. The building was erected shortly after the organization of the church. Its location was a compromise between the members who resided north, and those living south of Middle creek. This building was used until about 1829, when the brick building that was destroyed by a storm many years ago, was built. The present new building is the fourth house of worship that the Middle Creek (now Belleview) Baptist church has occupied.

A novel spectacle was witnessed last week at Kokomo, Ind., when the Ladias' Aid Society of Markland Avenue M. E. church, embracing about 200 prominent women church workers, marched in a body to the local canning factory and were set at work peeling tomatoes for the packers. They went attired in old frocks and aprons, rubber boots, and other articles, as a protection from the slime and slush of the peeling and cooking rooms. The women carried their peeling knives in the procession, and propose to work two days each week as long as the packing season lasts. They will carn about 60 cents per day. The women agreed to raise a certain sum toward enlarging the church and building a parsonage and will go out and earn the money at the hardest kiud of work. The canners advertised for 200 tomato peelers, and the church women were offered the job and accepted.

The man who is right never has to resort to a game of bluff.

While playing at school, one day last week, a little son of Charles Kelly, of Locust Grove district, was hit in the eye by a piece of turnip thrown by one of the pupils. The pain that resulted was excruciating, but, fortunately, the injury to the eye will be only temporary it is thought and hoped.

Every body in Burlington and the adjacent neighborhood is doing his or her part to entertain those from a distance who are attending the North Bend Association in session with Bellevue Baptist church this week. The Bellevue people are splendid entertainers, and they will, on this occasion, add to their already well known reputation along that line.

An effort is being made to have the public road leading from Dry creek bridge near Anderson's ferry, so changed as to take it out of the creek. When the river is at a 35 foot state or above, the road is rendered useless by the back water, and it being part of the Ludlow rural mail route, those who have mail boxes along the route in this county are anxious to have the Dry creek road made passable at all times.

To improve the appetite and strengthen digestion, try a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. H. Seitz, of Detroit, Mich., says: "They restored my appetite when impaired, relieved me of a bloated feeling and caused a pleasant and satisfactory movement of the bowels." There are people in this community who need just such medicine. For sale by all druggists. Every bottle warranted.

When a horse is running away it is then that the driver usually becomes as scared as the horse and the runaway is not helped much. The driver needs to keep his head at a time like this, even though he should lose it at other times. What the driver needs to do is to pull vigorously on one line and then on the other with such rapid succession as to confuse the animal so that his fear may be removed. A known runaway horse should be driven with care.

Hon. J. W. Kennedy, of Union, is doing all he can to work up an interest in this county in the Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, in 1904. If you have a curio of any kind, you should notify him, and he will have it placed on exhibition and taken care of. He is anxious that Boone county have an exhibit at that great exposition, and will be pleased to have her people cooperate with him in arranging it. Boone can get up a very creditable exhibit, if her people will determine so to do.

We made a brief visit to Bellevue, last Wednesday afternoon. The town was very quiet except in and about the Baptist church building, where every thing was hurry and hustle, about twenty men being busy putting seats in the church and building tables beneath the trees in the yard, where dinner will be served each day during the Association. The new church building is a very handsome brick structure, 40x60 feet, and has a seating capacity of 400. The interior is handsomely finished, and at night it will be lighted by a nice gasoline plant of 250 candle power. This building is larger by 10 feet each way than the old one was, and which to change into the present commodious house of worship cost about $3000.

Bellevue Baptist church has a membership of 220, and for several years it has been evident, that it would be necessary to enlarge the church building, and as this is the centennial year of that church's organization, the members determined to commemorate its one hundredth anniversary by providing themselves with a more modern and commodious building, and this week they occupy their new home, the handsomest house of worship in the county. H. C. Griffith was the architect and builder.

The burying ground on the hill near where Middle Creek Baptist church once stood, has been abandoned for many years, and it will not be long until every mark of a grave there will be obliterated. The remains of a great many have been moved to other cemeteries since the church was taken to Bellevue, and others will be moved. Several of the pioneer citizens of the county rest there, and their graves now bear marks of many years neglect, and the indications are that the ravages of time will continue until the last trace of the earthly resting places of these early citizens will disappear. The occupants of some of the old graves lived in the century before the last, and carved their homes out of the dense forest that covered the Middle creek and Gunpowder hills. The hardships that they endured in blazing the way to the happy and prosperous homes that abound in Boone county, will never be appreciated by the present generation. Their descendants are numerous and a prosperous and ambitious people, and it is often remarked that it is strange that the dust of their ancestors that rests in the bluff overlooking Middle creek valley, is not consigned to a burying ground that will not be abandoned.

Base Ball.

The McVille Reds came up last Saturday afternoon and had a session with the Boones. It was an old time slugging contest of which the Boones got very much the best. Brady was in the box for the Reds and the only place where he got first class support was behind the bat, which position was held by Kirb Kyle. In the first game the Boones made 14 hits, and the Reds 8. Souther, of the Boones and Sandford and Wingate, of the Reds, each made a home run. In this game Houston and Brady each struck out six men. Houston and Hogan did as good battery work as has been seen on the Burlington diamond this year. The feature of the first game was Slayback's catch of a long fly to center field, which Wingate had labeled a home run. Slayback went up in the air and brought it down with his gloved hand. In the seventh inning the Boones made eight hits. In the second inning the Reds made four hits. Following is the score by innings:

Boones	1	4	0	0	0	1	7	2	*	—15
Reds	0	4	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	—5

At the conclusion of the first game a five inning game was played by the same teams, and resulted in a score of 9 to 5 in favor of the Boones. This was another slugging carnival, home runs being made by the following, Souther, Houston, 2, Slayback, Kelly. The score in this game was as follows:

Boones	4	1	1	2	1	—9
Reds	0	0	0	3	2	—5

Hits—Boones, 11; Reds, 8.

Struck out—Houston, 7; Brady, 4.

The worst defeat of the Boones, this season, was that of last Monday by the Nationals, of Cincinnati. For six innings the Boones shut them out without a run or a hit, in which they had made six runs, seven single hits and one home run (Houston). In the seventh the Nationals made their first hit and run, and kept piling them up until at the close of the ninth inning the score stood 8 to 8. It took two extra innings in which to decide the game, which was lost to the Boones by their throwing to bases, which has been their weakness all season, and to which nearly everyone of their defeats can be traced directly. It is strange that they will persist in playing a game that has proven so disastrous, and which lost a great game, Monday, after it had been nailed down. Time and again the Boones have demonstrated that throwing to bases results in runs for their opponents. Boys, cut out that part of your playing and you will be on safer ground all the time. Following is the score by innings:

Boones	4	0	0	2	0	0	1	0	1	0	—8
Nationals	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	3	4	0	4—12

Batteries—Hogan and Hughes; Munson and Knell.

Hits—Boones, 11; Nationals 8.

Struck Out—By Hughes 8; by Knell 7.

Home Run—Houston.

MAIL POUCH THEFT.

It Is Said It Contained $500,000 in Negotiable Paper.

New York, Oct. 3.—Word was received Friday night that F. H. Crosby, alias A. E. Bell, alias Hammond, alias Crawford, had been arrested in Denver, accused of stealing a mail pouch containing $500,000 worth of negotiable bank paper at Philadelphia on the night of September 8. He is charged with several other crimes, including swindling and forgery. It is alleged that Crosby returned to this country from Crowe, Eng., last summer and went to Asbury Park, where he represented himself to be a fruit speculator. His wife mingled in good society and introduced her husband to prominent business men and at the bank there, where he made deposits, declaring to the officials that he intended to continue his account for the summer months.

On September 10, it is said, he deposited a number of checks payable to his order, drawn on different Philadelphia firms. Two days later he closed the accounts, withdrawing the amounts due him. He and his wife then left Asbury Park.

About this time, it is said, W. W. Dickson, chief post office inspector of Philadelphia, discovered the theft of a mail pouch containing bank remittances from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, the entire amounts being estimated at $500,000.

It is alleged that during the last ten days compiaints were received at Asbury Park banks that checks accepted by them had been tampered with; that the names of the payees had been erased and Crosby's name inserted, and that small amounts had been raised to larger ones.

It was recalled that a mail pouch had been stolen at Springfield Junction, Ill., last April and that A. B. Hammond had opened a cash account at the Lincoln Trust Co., St. Louis, depositing a number of altered checks from the stolen mail pouch. It was suspected that the mail pouch robbery was committed by A. E. Bell, alias Crawford, whose photograph was identified by the officials of the St. Louis bank.

Investigation at Ashury Park developed that Crosby was none other than A. E. Hammond, alias Bell, alias Crawford. Post Office Inspector Jacobs traced him to Denver, where he was arrested Friday night.

Crosby is suspected of committing numerous post office robberies in New York, Buffalo and other cities.

THE MONOCACY SOLD.

A Japanese Merchant Purchased the Vessel For $11,225.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The navy department Friday received a cable dispatch from Rr. Adm. Robley D. Evans, commanding the Asiatic station, saying that he had accepted the bid of Hashimoto, a Japanese merchant, for the purchase of the Monocacy. The purchase price was $11,225. The Monocacy is now at Taku, China. She went to China soon after the close of the civil war and was present at the battle of Taku, in command of Commander F. M. Wise. Under instructions from Rr. Adm. Kempff, who was in command of the American ships at Taku, the Monocacy did not participate in this fight.

The Monocacy has had a somewhat checkered career. She is a schooner-rigged, sidewheel steamer, and was built in Baltimore in 1863. She outlived her usefulness many years ago, after arriving on the Chinese coast, and for several years has been lying in a mud dock in the Pei Ho. Adm. Evans was instructed to sell her without regard to the appraisement, which was only $8,000.

FIRE ESCAPE LAW.

A Crusade Against Violation Opened in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Building Commissioner Williams, who has just opened a crusade against owners of buildings four stories and higher who have not complied with the requirements of the fire escape provisions, discovered Friday that the city hall in which his department has quarters is in open violation of the law. The county buildings also is unprovided with fire escapes, and Commissioner Williams will have both structures provided with them at once. The commissioners had overlooked the deficiency, and is now in doubt as to whether the city can impose a fine on itself or not.

A Week's Business Failures.

New York, Oct. 3.—Business failures in the United States for the week ending with October 1 number 153, against 185 last week, 164 in the like week of 1902, 175 in 1901. In Canada failures for the week number 10, as against 18 last week.

Cincinnati, Oct. 3.—Prince Alert paced a mile at Oakley park Friday afternoon at 5:45 o'clock without the wind-shield and over a track that was rendered a full two seconds slow because of the rains of the previous night, in 2:01¼.

Their Demands Conceded.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Packers and the cattle butchers agreed on the wage demand of the union Friday night and a new agreement, satisfactory to both sides, will be signed Saturday. The demands of the union were conceded by the packers.

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

Officials' Prompt Work Prevented a Lynching at Oxford, O.

The Rope Was Cut and the Victim Rescued From the Mob—Previously Five Men Were Shot and Dangerously Wounded.

Oxford, O., Oct. 2.—Five persons were shot and dangerously wounded Thursday night in a fight between officers and several strangers from Kentucky who were shooting their revolvers on the streets during the fair. Two of the Kentucklans were named Joseph and John Spivey. Marshal John Woodruff and his deputy, Jacob Manrod, endeavored to arrest them and were shot, Marshal Woodruff in the right breast and Deputy Manrod in the left wrist. A crowd started in pursuit of the Spivey brothers and overtook them. Joseph Spivey was shot in the right side with a load of buckshot and his brother was knocked unconscious, with a stone thrown by some one in the crowd of pursuers. During the fight a stranger who refuses to give his name was shot in the abdomen and is in a dangerous condition. The Spiveys were arrested.

A large crowd followed and soon surrounded the jail. They had secured a rope and endeavored to take both Louis Spivey and Joseph Spivey out of the officers' hands, but they were frustrated by the officers. The mob also had no recognized leader, and were ineffectual in their desires. Finally Everett Woodruff, the father of the wounded marshal, appeared on the scene and expected the mob to avenge the murder of his son, himself directing the mob, the door of the jail was battered down and a long rope was fastened around the neck of Joseph Spivey and he was led forth. Fully one hundred men had hold of the rope and they dragged him through the street in the direction of the public park. Spivey begged and cried for mercy and implored the mob to allow him to see his wife and children before they hung him. Epithets and curses were heaped upon him, and he was dragged by the infuriated mob to the public park. When they came to the tree where 11 years ago a mob had lynched Henry Corbin, the Negro who killed Mrs. Horner, and murderously assaulted her daughter, a voice cried out to halt and to hang him. This tree was also the scene 25 years ago of a lynching of a Negro who had also assaulted a lady. The rope was suspended in midair. He again grabbed the rope above his head and between strangulations begged and pleaded for an opportunity to write a letter to his wife and children. He was again let down but only repeated his former miserable efforts. There were in the mob a number of Negroes and they were greatly excited. A colored man raised his voice and said that if Spivey were a colored man, he would have been swung into eternity long ago. The rope again tightened and Spivey was suspended for a third time in midair. There was a sudden jostling, and Deputy Sheriff Brannan and a few assistants rushed forward, cut the rope and dashed down the street with the prisoner.

He was rushed to the jail and has been spirited out of town.

John Spivey is dying with a bullet through his head. The stranger lives at Monroe, O., and will die. The marshal and deputy will recover.

AUTOMOBILE TRIP.

From Chicago to New York in Seventy-Six Hours.

New York, Oct. 2.—Bert Holcomb and Henry Sendall finished a record-breaking trip from Chicago to New York Thursday, the machine making the trip in 76 hours. The automobile, a 24-horse power machine, had been delayed several hours on account of losing the road Wednesday night. The car covered 1,177 miles, an average of 15½ miles per hour. It was driven by relays of chauffeurs.

Press Feeders to Be Locked Out.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—The Chicago Typothetae has decided to declare a lockout of press feeders in 400 book and job printing offices Monday morning. Twenty-five hundred men will be locked out, the employers declaring that the union violated an agreement in presenting demands for wage increase without extending a notice six months in advance that a change was desired.

Dan Patch Failed to Lower Record.

Cincinnati, Oct. 2.—Dan Patch at the Oakley track Thursday was driven against his pacing record of 1:59 but he failed to beat it. He went to the quarter in 30¼, to the half in 59½, the three-quarters in 130¼ and completed the mile in 2:01¾.

Value of Foreign Coin.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The quarterly statement of the changes in the value of foreign coin, issued by the director of the mint, shows an average increase in the value of silver of .03197 cents an ounce.

TURKS ROUTED AT REMONTOV.

Five Engagements Reported to Have Occurred in the Vicinity of Remontov.

Sofia, Oct. 3.—Five engagements are reported to have taken place in the vicinity of Kenstovo, where Turks were attacked by revolutionary bands, and, though many Turks were killed, the insurgents were routed. One of the leaders of the latter, Lieut. Tontcheff, committed suicide in order to avoid capture.

Advices from the insurgent headquarters assert that 6,000 Turks were routed by 2,000 insurgents in the Pirin mountains after four days fighting. The Turkish losses in this affair are said to have been the heaviest during the whole outbreak. They included three colonels and many officers of lower rank.

Three batteries of siege artillery left Sofia early Friday morning for Haskovo, near the frontier of Adrianople vilayet.

London, Oct. 3.—With the exception of the revolutionary report of the massacre at Mehomia, which is identical with the town of Razlog, there is little news from the Balkans.

The semi-official Journal de St. Petershurg, commenting on the visit of the czar to Emperor Francis Joseph, declares that the firm language employed by the representatives of the Russian and Austrian government at Constantinople and Sofia has averted war for the present.

A dispatch from Constantinople says the Anatolian troops recently called out are merely intended to replace the unruly troops who are responsible for the excesses, so the actual effectiveness of the army in Roumelia will not thereby be increased.

WANTS BIG DAMAGES.

Suit Entered Against St. Louis Officials and the Grand Jury.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—The Rialto Grain and Securities Co. Friday filed suit in the circuit court against Sheriff Joseph F. Dickman, Circuit Attorney Joseph W. Folk and his assistant, W. Scott Hancock, for $20,000 actual and $20,000 punitive damages. The members of the present grand jury are named as co-defendants.

The petition charges that on September 30 the defendants "Maliciously combined to destroy the business of the Rialto company and to bring the plaintiffs into disrepute by seizing the books, accounts, letters and papers of the company; that they broke open desks, rifled and pillaged the premises, all of which was unlawful trespass."

Simultaneous with the filing of the above petition, Maj. Hugh C. Dennis, president of the Rialto company, filed a suit against the same defendants for $25,000 actual and $25,000 punitive damages, charging that they caused him, on September 30, to be taken through the streets of St. Louis to the four courts "Depriving him of his liberty and subjecting him to great odium."

TO AID AMERICAN NEGROES.

Convention Decided to Raise a Fund of $200,000,000.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Commercial American Negro convention, which opened on Thursday in Brooklyn, closed Friday night. It was decided to name the new organization which had been effected the American Negro Co-Operative and Industrial association. The convention decided to raise a fund of $200,000,000 to aid Negroes in this country. On the suggestion of the committee it was declared that the 10,000,000 Negroes in the United States might be taxed 41 cents a month, which would create a fund of $50,000,000 in one year, or $200,000,000 in four years.

The interest on this sum at 4 per cent., $8,000,000 a year, could be used for the establishment of factories, banking institutions, the purchase of valuable stock and the organization of other business enterprises for the benefit of the race.

Wore Coat of Mail.

Boston, Oct. 3.—Wearing a coat of mail and using a self-cocking revolver, Won Lung Friday night killed a Chinese and inflicted serious wounds on two other Chinese. The shooting was the result of a gambling quarrel.

Student Committed Suicide.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—Robert Cordes, a student, has committed suicide owing, it is alleged, to the bad treatment meted out to him by Ensign von Hennings and several of the sergeants in his regiment.

ALLEGED SHORTAGE.

A Female Bookkeeper Charged With Grand Larceny.

The Complainants Are Officers of the United States Playing Card Co., Cincinnati — Alleged Peculations May Reach $50,000.

New York, Oct. 3.—Marie Layton Johnson, wife of Albert M. Johnson, a dentist of Larchmont, N. Y., was arrested Friday night on a warrant charging her with grand larceny of $2,000. The total amount of her defalcations may, it is said, amount to $50,000.

The complainants are officers of the United States Playing Card Co., of Cincinnati. The officers are John Omwake, president; R. H. McCutcheon, secretary and treasurer and manager of the New York branch, and R. J. Morgan, manager of the Cincinnati office.

Mrs. Johnson, whose maiden name was Marie Layton, was bookkeeper for the New York office, and in addition, acted as private secretary to Mr. McCutcheon. She was married to Dr. Johnson in 1901, but did not leave her position after the marriage. In April of this year discrepancies are said to have been discovered in her accounts, according to the statement given out by Inspector McClusky, and an examination is said to have revealed a shortage of $10,000 between January 1 and April 15, in the accounts of the New York office.

The woman's method is said to have been as follows: The accounts of the concern were kept in the Hanover national bank, there being a New York and Cincinnati account there. Cincinnati would send to New York a bill of goods, which would be sold for $3,000, and that amount would be placed to the credit of the Cincinnati account. But, it is alleged, Mrs. Johnson would charge the New York office with $5,000, taking the difference herself. To make the accounts balance she would then raise a small bill of goods shipped from Cincinnati from, say $9 to $2,009.

Mrs. Johnson was discharged from the employment of the company in April, when Inspector McClusky says, she admitted defalcations of $10,000. It was thought at that time that her husband, Dr. Johnson, who has a large practice, would make up the loss, but this was not done. Later, further investigation was made into both the New York and Cincinnati accounts, with the result, it is said, that the defalcations now amount to $53,000, with a possibility that they may reach $50,000.

Dr. Johnson refused to say anything about the case, nor would any of the officers of the card company talk.

It is said that Mrs. Johnson speculated in Wall street and lost considerable money there.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS.

It Will Be Called By President Roosevelt in November.

Washington, Oct. 3.—A good deal of pressure has been brought to bear on the president to induce him not to call congress into extraordinary session in November; but to all callers who have spoken to him in that vein he has said that this government is committed to the proposition that the Cuban reciprocity treaty be made effective at the earliest possible date and he regards it as a matter of good faith that this country should keep its word. He has declined, therefore, to consider any proposal looking to the abandonment of the idea of an extraordinary session.

GIRL ASSAULTED AND KILLED.

A 17-Year-Old Boy Confessed, Implicating Others.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 3.—Half buried in weeds by the roadside, her throat cut from ear to ear, the body of Mary Prokosh, 13 years old, was discovered Friday near her home in Northern Payne county. Izey E. Rogers, 17 years old, has confessed that he assaulted the girl and afterwards helped to kill her because she declared that she would tell her parents. Rogers has implicated Frank Quiness and a youth of the name of Malley, now in jail at Stillwater. Rogers is in jail at Perry.

King Alfonso to Wed.

Madrid, Oct. 3.—It is reported on the authority of a high court dignitary that the queen mother and Emperor Francis Josef, of Austria, have arranged for the marriage of King Alfonso to the Archduchess Eleanor, the eldest daughter of the Archduke Chas. Stephen, of Austria.

Chicago After It.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Chicago is a bidder for the national republican convention of 1904. In all probability the Hamilton club will lead the fight to get it. The question arose with the meeting here of the executive committee of the national republican league.

Ohio Man Receives a Degree.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—Clarence E. Schultz, of Cincinnati, has received the degree of doctor engineer from the Technical University. He is the first American on whom this degree, created by Emperor William three years ago, has been conferred.

The Battleship Missouri.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The official trial of the battleship Missouri will take place on the 21st inst. Capt. Bowles, President Roosevelt's brother-in-law, will be the first commander of the Missouri.

Couldn't See It.

A trifling technicality was the basis of the argument, and, after deciding upon a referee, each man stated his contention, replaces the Chicago Post.

"I don't see the difference," said the referee.

"You don't!" cried the argumentative one.

"No, I don't."

"Well, now, we here." And each one very carefully stated his position again.

"Now do you see it?" they asked.

"No."

"Well, you are dull." But, nevertheless, each one went over the ground again.

"How about it now?" they asked.

"I still fail to see it," was the reply.

"Do you ever expect to see it?" one of them asked, sarcastically.

"Not unless you put it in writing," he replied. "It's all a matter of words, and one can't see the spoken word."

Thereupon they stopped the argument long enough to throw the referee over the top of a building.

Easy to Get.

Pierpont, O., Oct. 5th.—Remarkable indeed is the experience of Mr. A. S. Turner, a man, now over seventy-one years of age, and whose home is here.

For many years this old gentleman had suffered with a very unpleasant form of Kidney Trouble, a kind that very often bothers aged people. He would have to get up four or five times every night, and this very tiresome disease was fast wearing him out.

At last after having almost made up his mind that he would never be able to get relief, he stumbled over a medicine which relieved him almost immediately, and hastened him permanently. It is so very easy to get and so simple that Mr. Turner thinks everyone should know it. Every dealer in the country has it, and all you have to do is to ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Turner says:—

"I can heartily and honestly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they cured me. Several others in the family have used them, too, and always with the best results. I think they have no equal."

Right Back!

When off duty Prof. Richards, of Yale, enjoys a joke, and his pupils often come to him when they have heard a new one. He adds to the fun sometimes with a witticism of his own. Such was the case when one of the students perpetrated the following antiquity: "Professor, wouldn't you like a good recipe for catching rabbits?" "Why, yes," replied the professor. "What is it?" "Well, you crouch down behind a thick stone wall and make a noise like a turnip," answered the youth, giggling in ecstasy. Quick as a flash came the reply: "Oh, a better way than that would be for you to go and sit quietly in a bed of cabbage heads and look natural."—Chicago Chronicle.

A Good Thing.

Every issue of The Four-Track News makes it easier for ticket agents and ticket sellers to secure passengers for distant parts of the country, for the reason that every article and every illustration in The Four-Track News is an inducement for readers to travel and see what a marvelous variety of scenery and climate our own country possesses. The more these facts are impressed upon the average person, the more certain he or she is to have a desire to travel. Therefore, The Four-Track News is not only in the interest of all the transportation lines and hotels, it also bears out the legend of its title page of "An Illustrated Magazine of Travel and Education."—From the Buffalo Commercial.

The modern Sherlock was told to spot the suspected man.

"Well," said Sherlock, "I have at least found that his wife is away on a vacation."

"How did you find that out?" asked the mystified friend.

"He is wearing a safety pin instead of a suspender button."—Chicago Daily News.

ORGANIZED MILITIA.

They Assemble at West Point, Ky., For the Maneuvers.

They Number About 9,000 and Will Play Mimic War in Conection With Several Regiments of the Regular Army.

Camp Young, West Point, Ky., Oct. 2.—The organized militia of six states poured in on Camp Young by the thousands Thursday and by night the greater portion of the 9,000 or more troops had arrived, although only about half of them had established permanent camp by nightfall. For the regular troops already in camp the day was rather a quiet one. The infantry put in a hard but uneventful stretch of work at digging intrenchments. The cavalry brigade spent the morning polishing up for a brigade review, which took place in the afternoon.

Twelve hundred men from the 1st, 3d and 20th infantries were set to work early in the day on a series of intrenchments with a front of about 1,700 feet. The time consumed and the quality of the work were appraised by Gen. Bates and the umpires. The principal object in throwing up the works, however, was that they might be used for the instruction of the officers of the state guard.

The review of the cavalry in the afternoon was attended by Gen. Bates, the umpires and nearly all the visiting officers, including Maj. Raspapoff and Col. Foster, the representatives of the Russian and British armies. The troops on review consisting of two squadrons of the 7th, a squadron of the 8th and two troops each of the 2d and 4th, made a decided impression on the foreign attaches. After they had passed in review the 7th was re-formed in line and to the accompaniment of music went through the first and second series of movements provided in the Butts manual for sabres.

Camp Young, West Point, Ky., Oct. 3.—The lateness of the arrival of portions of several of the militia regiments caused considerable modification of Friday's program after the troops had taken the field. Instead of spending the whole day in advance guard movements as intended at the start, it was decided to return after five Indiana battalions and the greater part of the Third brigade, composed of Michigan troops, has not been given a brief period of work, the Indiana troops, in extended order, and the Michigan infantry in close order.

The officers of the state troops spent a portion of the afternoon inspecting intrenchments thrown up by the regular troops on Thursday. The engineer officers in charge of the work had provided specimens of all the light earthworks known to modern warfare. The commissary officers of the militia also had a period of instruction from two regular officers on "Methods of administration in the subsistence department." A lecture for all officers on "The subsistance of armies" was given Friday evening.

CONVENT BESIEGED.

A Number of Monks and Civilians Were Arrested.
